So far as known, the Vedas has not passed through the Welland Canal since it left Windsor, and the records do not show its having passed up the river, consequently it must still be somewhere in Lake Erie, the Customs authorities here believe.

ENGLISHMEN GAINING IN SOBRIETY; DRUNKENNESS LOWEST IN 11 YEARS

Despite Rise in Wales, Convictions in England For 1929 Fell By 3,676 in Year—Fewer Saloons.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Englishmen were more sober last year than during any period since they celebrated the Armistice in 1918. The licensing statistics, according to the Home Office records issued yesterday, reveal the convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales totaled 51,966, as compared with 55,642 in 1928. The decrease is confined to England, as there was an increase of 31 convictions in Wales.

Compared with the total convictions for drunkenness, those due to the consumption of methylated spirits were trifling, says J. R. Clynes, the Home Secretary. Fewer people were disqualified from driving automobiles while intoxicated.

Of the total arrests leading to convictions for drunkenness, 57 per cent were made during the week-ends in England, as compared with 61 per cent in Wales.

In England the arrests made on Sundays represented 9 per cent of the total and the arrests made on Mondays represented 13 per cent. For Wales and Monmouthshire, where the saloons are closed on Sundays, the corresponding figures were 4 per cent and 12 per cent.

The number of saloons in Wales and Monmouthshire has decreased by 1,704 since 1905, a drop of 23 per cent, as against 21 per cent in England.

C. N. R. PLAN HELD UP BY MONTREAL THORNTON SAYS

Terminal Project Was Approved By Parliament—Would Provide Work.

NEEDED BY CITY.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—The proposal to submit to the Board of Railway Commissioners the Lancaster scheme and the Canadian National Railways plan for the erection of a railway terminal in Montreal, and for the board to make a decision as to which of the two plans is more feasible, is objected to by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, in a formal statement issued yesterday. The statement follows:

"I note from a morning paper that some interested parties are advancing a proposal to delay further the continuance of work on the Canadian National terminals at Montreal by having the Board of Railway Commissioners take into consideration the Lancaster scheme and the Canadian National Railways plan, and make a 'final decision.' This move should be regarded for what it really is, namely, a continuance of the attempt to block the building by the Canadian National of the terminal facilities which the important Montreal district so badly needs. Such an attempt should not be allowed to succeed.

"An Act of Parliament is in existence authorizing the Canadian National Railways to construct their terminals along definitely defined lines. This plan represents several years of study by engineers and railway operating officers whose standing cannot be challenged. The character and location of the works involved have received the approval by unanimous vote of the House of Commons and the Senate of Canada. Neither the Canadian National Railways nor any outside body can use the moneys voted by Parliament to carry on terminal works differing in any material way from those already authorized.

"The interests responsible for this new attempt to prevent the City of Montreal from acquiring proper terminal facilities are doing this great community and the country generally an ill service, and theirs must be the responsibility for depriving thousands of our workers of employment."

Question Before Council.

Friday's caucus of the Aldermen on the question of the terminals resolved itself mainly into a barrage of questions by Aldermen concerning the situation of the city to-day in regard to the Canadian National plan, possibilities of securing changes and the procedure to be followed, engineering phases of the Lancaster report, costs and work involved.

Alderman Gabias announced that he would move at the next Council meeting, that the controversial question of lines from Bonaventure Station to St. Henri, in the west of the city, be overcome by abolishing the lines, making a boulevard out of the right-of-way, and placing the Canadian National fruit, vegetable and cream depots at Turcot, near Point St. Charles. The city's legal position was explained by Charles Laurendeau, K.C., consulting lawyer.

MANITOBA THRESHING IS NEARLY COMPLETE

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 30.—(C.P.). — Under ideal harvesting weather, wheat cutting in Manitoba is almost completed, Saskatchewan is 80 to 85 per cent cut and Alberta 70 to 75 per cent, according to a crop report published by the Manitoba Free Press this morning. Manitoba threshing of wheat is about half completed. In Saskatchewn 15 to 20 per cent. while in Alberta it is just nicely started.

Summer COLDS

Quick Relief from any Cold, Sore Throat, Headache or Other Pain

DON'T treat a "slight cold" lightly! The discomfort of a summer cold can easily develop into dangerous illness if neglected. A tablet or two of Aspirin will check a cold as quickly as it came. And you will get immediate relief from the headache that goes with it. If there's a sore throat, too, crush 2 tablets in 4 tablespoons of water, and gargle. Those who have learned the true value of Aspirin are never without it in any season of the year. It's always ready to relieve headaches, neuritis, neuralgia, and a long list of aches and pains: see proven directions in each package. Aspirin does not depress the heart or upset the stomach. Druggists everywhere have it.

Game Of Bowls Fine Court Alibi

ST. CATHARINES, August 30.—A game of lawn bowls proved a convincing alibi for a motorist in court here yesterday. William Mitchenn, prominent citizen here, was called to Police Court to answer a charge made in Scarboro Township that he had speeded his car there on Wednesday afternoon ,August 20. Mitchell brought to court his skip, Ed. Burgess, and two other members of his rink to prove that from 1.30 o'clock until nearly 9 o'clock that same afternoon and evening he had been bowling in a tournament of the St. Catharines Lawn Bowling Club.

YORK ENGINEER IS SUSPENDED PENDING PROBE

Action Outcome of Contractor's Evidence That He Paid Strathearn $6,500.

NO RESIGNATIONS.

Move To Be Made For Gov't Action Under Combines Act.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—Announcements of the indefinite suspension of D. K. G. Strathern, employer of the York Township Enginering Department; a declaration by Councillor John Sanders that he would move a formal motion at Tuesday's council meeting requesting Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General, for an investigation under the Combines Act into the alleged contractors combine existing in York Township, which he believed extended to other municipalities, were highlights of yesterday's session of the probe into alleged irregularities in connection with the awarding of construction contracts in the township.

W. J. Gilbert Dean, Reeve of York, revealed the suspension of Strathearn following evidence at the enquiry before Judge J. H. Denton by Peter Mohan, Toronto contractor. The latter stated he had paid various sums, aggregating $6,500 to Strathearn for his "goodwill and friendship," and for "services."

In view of this evidence Reeve Dean forwarded a letter to Strathearn in which he stated: "I feel it is my duty to suspend you from your position as designing engineer. Will you therefore take notice that you are hereby suspended until such time as further action is taken."

Citizens Paying Through Nose

Queried regarding his move to ask for an enquiry under the Combines Investigation Act, Mr. Sanders said the 'evidence makes it look as though the citizens have been paying through the nose. An investigation should be made to clean up the situation and remove the odium placed on other municipalities through the evidence given at the probe."

Thomas C. Agnew, President of the Contractors' Association that admittedly exists in the Township, has issued a blanket denial of intimations his Assoication was connected with the alleged irregularities in York Township municipal affairs. While declaring the organization of which he is President has no connection with the present stand of afairs in the township Mr. Agnew, in an interview at Orillia, where he is spending a vacation, suggested the possibility that 'there were cases of graft in parts of greater Toronto other than York township.

The probe was adjourned Friday and will re-open Tuesday.

RELIGIOUS AID IS VERY VITAL

QUACKERY LOSING POWER.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 30.—Religion is a human and vital factor in the practice of medicine, according to Dr. Charles W. Mayo, most noted of United States surgeons. The Rochester, Minn., specialist, who spoke yesterday before the surgery section of the British Medical Association meeting, stated in an interview that happiness and health are often as much a state of mind as of body.

"When a man is about to go on the table in an operating room, if he wishes a visit from a minister in whom he has faith, it gives him confidence which no science can furnish," said Dr. Mayo. He declared that anything tending to aid one in facing a crisis in illness shared its benefits between the patient and the surgeon.

Quackery in America's medical field is losing its power, he believed. He mentioned, however, that he did not regard unsympathetically the "patent cure" illusion. Sometimes belief in some ridiculous report of a cure may be of aid, he mentioned. "It is purely a state of mind," he added.

Heart attack is one of the most common causes of death among doctors, according to Dr. Mayo's address to the surgical section. The reason was that in modern medical specialization, surgery demanded a high degree of skill and a maximum of patience. The task of the conscientious surgeon brought anxieties to strain the heart.

VIOLENT STORMS FOLLOW UP HEAT WAVE IN ENGLAND

57 DEATHS REPORTED.

Scotland is Heavy Sufferer on Property and Stock Loss By Ligthning.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A violent rain and thunderstorm struck London at 12:30 a.m., washing the heat from the parched pavements and bringing relief after a week of torrid temperatures in which the mercury daily spurted into the nineties.

Clouds gathered during Friday evening and lightning flashed continuously as darkness fell. The heat was oppressive, and clung like a plague over Southern England as the death toll mounted and millions sweltered. Thermometers hit a peak of 94 late yesterday.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald, returning by airplane to Lossiemouth, Scotland, to resume his vacation, was forced to turn back and land at Catterick airdrome, Yorkshire. He boarded a train for the rest of the journey to Lossiemouth. An official at the Leuchers airdrome, near St. Andrews, toward which the Prime Minister was heading, said it was the worst storm "within living memory."

For several hours official London was anxious about Mr. MacDonald's safety. Though the long distance lines to Edinburgh held, local systems were disrupted and it was impossible to reach either Catterick Airdrome or Lossiemouth.

After word of the safety of the head of the government had been received in London the MacDonald family at Lossiemouth received a telegram from him at Catterick.

The telegram said he had met with a severe storm near the Scottish border and had been obliged to abandon his flight. He will arrive in Lossiemouth this morning.

Mr. MacDonald broke his vacation on Wednesday to fly to London for a highly important secret conference on unemployment with his cabinet colleagues, and David Lloyd George and other Liberal leaders. With London sweltering under a heat wave, he headed northward today in a Royal Air Force plane for 10 days' rest before settling down to a heavy schedule of Autumn work, including that connected with the reopening of parliament.

57 Deaths Reported

Fifty-seven deaths were reported in England alone during the torrid spell and prostrations crowded the hospitals.

The most spectacular incident resulting from record temperature occurred at Hastings, where five heat-crazed bears killed their trainer, a German named Adolf Crossmeyer, 25, as he was feeding them in their cage.

Londoners suffered as they plodded through the day and prayed for relief. Thousands escaped to beaches as the mercury soared in the nineties.

Freakish storms hit Northern England and Scotland, great hailstones falling in a cloudburst which swept Yorkshire. Three towns were flooded, many roads washed away, and sheep and poultry drowned.

In Scotland, Aberdeen reported an electrical storm which terrorized the people, killed cattle, ruined property and damaged telephone lines. The lightning continued almost incessantly for three hours.

The Duke of York was unable to talk with Glamis Castle on the telephone when he called to find out how the Duchess and their new infant daughter were getting along.

King George and Queen Mary were at Balmoral, Scotland, in the centre of the storm. Clouds hovered only a few hundred feet above the ground in that vicinity, and lightning forked from the dark banks, followed by deafening peals of thunder.

The explosions of the thunder shook buildings and hundreds of salmon were killed in streams by the electricity. The River Dee was "alive with electricity" for hours, reports from Scotland declared.

At Aberdeen, 400 telephone lines were disabled. All long-distance lines were disrupted.

Conventionally clad men, or women, in the business districts were rarities. They shed everything they could in an effort to be comfortable.

Waitresses refused to serve men who came in shirt-sleeves, coatless and perspiring and diners had to wear their coats.

Dr. Bennett Coles, connected with St. Leonard's Hospital, induced more discomfort when he said alcoholic drinks were likely to induce sunstroke. The Britons feared to take a drink, which, for the moment, might be cooling but which might later be fatal.

ORILLIA YOUTH BAFFLES BANDIT

Gunman "Quits" When Told to Go Ahead and Shoot.

LAD HAD NO MONEY.

ORILLIA, August 30. — Defying a gunman to 'go ahead and shoot me," 19-year-ld Bordon Totten, garage employee, successfully emerged from an enounter with a bandit yesterday when the latter backed through a rear door of the garage and vanished into the night.

Totten was at work cleaning his car at the Palace Liveries where he is employed when he felt a pressure in his ribs. Straightening up he beheld a man holding a gun with the barrel a few inches from the surprised garageman's body.

"Stick 'em up," ordered the gunman.

"Pass over your money," the gunman said, shoving the gun into Totten's ribs.

"Haven't any" replied Totten.

"Come on, before I shoot you," the gunman menaced.

Totten protested that he had no money, but the would-be robber took a firmer grip on the gun and reiterated his determination to shoot Totten if he did not "come across with the money."

This defiance disconcerted the bandit and he appeared undecided as to the next move. He muttered something that his "victim" was unable to catch, and then backed to the exit, the gun still covering Totten, and made good his escape.

As soon as he had disappeared down the lane,Totten jumped into the car and started in pursuit. He later picked up Constable Bell and the two searched the streets and lanes, but were unable to find any trace of the bandit. Totten told the authorities that he was sure the gunman was not alone as he heard the shuffling of steps outside the livery.

Surprised by a speeding motorcycle, ridden by A. Cummings, of Elie, Scotland, a hare attempted to jump over the machine, but hit the handle bars, throwing Cummings off and causing the machine to fall on the animal, killing it.

AMOS (A Herdman Called of God)

Devotional Study of Sunday School Lesson for August 31.
Scripture: Amos 1: 1; 7:10-15; 2:11, 12, 3:7, 8. Golden Text Isa 6:8

By ARTHUR W. BROWN.

Hosea's prophetic calling came to him through domestic sorrow, Isaiah's through disillusion, Micah's by way of poverty, Jeremiah's through austerity, Habbukuk's through a series of perplexing thoughts, while Ezekiel reached his prophetic consciousness through a sense of failure. But Amos learned his prophetic mission as he pondered the ways and doings of his time in loneliness and obscurity as a pious herdman on the hills of Tekoa.

To understand him and his book we must know of the conditions of his age. In the middle of the eighth century before Christ, Amos delivered his warnings and teachings. Jeroboam II. was on the throne of Israel with Samaria as his capital. Uzziah was king in Jerusalem. Both south and north kingdoms were prosperous. They were at peace and with their peace plenty, though that plenty was unevenly distributed. These kingdoms were between two great empires, Assyria to the north and Egypt to the south. The Emperor of Assyria was ambitious, and some years later put that ambition into practise, to extend his empire over Egypt. Palestine was on the road to this goal, and it was thus brought into the arena of world politics. Thus to a man with vision the security and peace of the Palestinian kingdoms was not sure as he noted the brutal, pagan presence and heard the tramp of the armies of Assyria on their highways.

The generation of Amos had not known defeat in battle. They were prosperous to the building of substantial and spacious dwellings of brick and stone. Some of them had become so luxurious that they had built ivory palaces. City and city life developed and commerce and international relationships had wonderfully extended. Religiously, they fostered a false security in a ceremonial religion, indulged themselves in the notion that God would always look after them and allow them to come to no harm, nationally, as they were the chosen people of the Lord. Their frequent worship at the shrines of Bethel and Beersheba, Dan and Gilgal, their elaborate festivities at these altars, their paying of tithes, observing the Sabbaths and New Moons, their pious pilgrimages did not evidently enrich their personal, family or social life. Their injustice was flagrant, fraud frequent. Princes, merchants and priests were guilty and immoral in their gains. Though formerly a people sensitive to teachings and warnings in natural disaster, they could view the destruction of earthquake and storm and see their palaces overthrown, but they paid no heed to and were disposed to laugh at the prophet's warnings. Adam Smith says, "It was a joyous generation, so energetic, so patriotic, so devout! But its strength was the strength of a cruel wealth, its peace the peace of an immoral religion." The need of the times was for a daring man with religious zeal and devotion to protest against the corruption of the age, to point out the rot in the national structure, to champion the cause of the oppressed and poor. Such a prophet to do this was found in the herdmen of Tekoa whom the Lord, as he says, took him from following the flock and said, "Go prophesy unto my people, Israel." He appeared at the shrines where the people gathered, perhaps at first to sell his wool and sheep, and out of the deep ponderings of his lonesome hill-life and the studied observance of the doings of the crowds, he declared as he found speech in rugged, abrupt, incisive words his righteous indignation against impurities, false religion, sinful luxury, robbery of the poor, and gave warning of threatening national disaster for their evil. "The lion hath roared; who will not fear? The Lord God hath spoken; who can but prophesy?"

Amaziah, the priest of the great church at Bethel, who represented the vested rights of a state-supported religion, tried to silence this crude prophet by the familiar methods of the time-serving priest. Misrepresentation and contemptuous denunciation of the herdman of Tekoa were principally used. The priest used his warning of national disaster as unpatriotic, a method not infamiliar in this twentieth century. And there were plenty to gather with the scornful priest, for Amos assailed eyes greedily fixed on gold, and ears open to shady bargains, and mouths very ready to drink with such abandon out of pails of liquor. It took great courage for Amos to face so many in high and low places who had got away from God, who stood in the way of sinners and sat in the seats of the scornful. He was the Baptist of his age who cried, "Repent!" and whose preaching was all on righteousness.

A summary of the character and service of Amos I put in the way of an acrostic on his name.

The "A" stands for his being alert and aware. As a herdman he had learnt that. But in a higher sense in the spiritual and moral interests of the nation, he was that. While with so many there was a failing to perceive the growth of corruption and of useless ritual at the shrine which brought no credit to them, he was on the watch towers listening to the voice and the counsel of God. He saw the immoral present and the fearful future and declared it.

The letter "M" stands for his moral message. He was a reformer more than a theologian, or priest, or philosopher. He would turn them from their immoral merriments and banquets, their reckless gaiety which they practised to the music of idle songs on stringed instruments and disgusting drunkenness. He declared in stern language against treatment of the just and the poor, how the righteous were sold for silver and the needy for a pair of shoes. And he condemned tyranny and atrocities outside the nation as well as within. He was the embodied conscience of the best people of the nation. All the bells in his belfry rang for a new day when judgment should roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream.

The letter "O" may stand for an originator of a new order. He was the first of the writing prophets. He deepened and widened, as never before, the Israelitish conception of God and His requirements in the moral realm. The tie that bound them to Jehovah was not that of favoritism, or ritual, or ceremonial, but moral. "Ye are mine if ye do what I command you."

The letter "S" may stand for his seriousness and severity. The national crisis to him was grave. His heart was sick at what he saw. The gravity of it all made him a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. He was the William of Orange of the eighth century before Christ: "The wrongs of which he was the daily witness, the absolution, the cruelty, the rottenness of the government marked his face with premature furrows. He couldn't sleep." Sin must be loathed seriously, Amos felt. It was his nature to treat it that way.

And how severe he was, how down on sin, how he showed that punishment would inevitably come! They would meet with their due and doom. And on that stern note the grave music of the prophet ended. It was reserved for his successor, Hosea, to tell the people of the tenderness of God's love that redeems. But we will in thinking of Amos remember the eulogy that Jesus paid to the Baptist who was so like him.

THE DEATH OF FRIENDS

(A Passage from a Great Religious Classic)

Is it your own loss that you lament; because they are taken from you, with whom, nay for whom, you would willingly have died, and given up yourselves to the death? Even this is but the effect of self-love, and shows that you are more concerned in your own contentment than in their glory; and, that you might enjoy them yourselves, you would keep them from their near and intimate enjoyment of God. Can you not, for a while, dispense with their absence, for their advantage; and make up the comfort which you want in their presence, by the comfort which you have in the assurance of their happiness? What our Saviour said to His disciples, John xiv., 28, that may I say to you: "If you love them you will rejoice, because they are gone to their Father." And this separation, by this absence of theirs, is but for a short time: do you but tread the paths of their example, and follow their track, and as their works went before them to heaven, so yours shall follow you; where you shall rest from all your sorrows and troubles; where no affliction nor discontentment shall overcast your perfect joy; where, without fear of another separation, you shall be satisfied in the enjoyment of one another, and all in the enjoyment of God.—Ezekiel Hopkins.

The Question ? ? Box ? ?

In this corner the enquiries of readers on Biblical and religious problems are answered. Address "The Q. B. Editor c-o The Examiner.

Q.—Do you think there are angels, and if so, why?—W. W.

A.—We certainly believe there are angels and we do so because there is some evidence that angels exist, and no evidence to show that they do not.

There is nothing unreasonable in believing in angels. Take the view of a sceptic like Thomas Huxley, but an honest sceptic nevertheless, and one prepared to face facts like a man. He thought there was good reason to believe that there were beings in existence as far above man as man was above the black beetle.

All over the world you will find the belief in angels, though they are given different names in different religions, and different attributes are attached to them. But at the back of all these divergent ideas is one central one: that there are beings who live in finer, etherial bodies than we do, who can be seen under certain conditions, and whose chief function is to act as messengers between God and man.

The sceptic may say this is an old superstition which Christians have borrowed from the pagans, and we might be inclined to agree with them, were it not for certain facts, such as the close relationship of angels to the birth of Jesus, and the appearance of angels in recent times.

There are accounts of angels appearing to people who were in trouble and sickness, and while they are rare (perhaps because many have become too materialistic to believe in anything less substantial than money or property), they present a problem to the sceptic.

Of course, he can deny the truth of the accounts, but the person who has seen them is convinced of their reality, and he or she is a better witness than anyone who was not present.

Rev. John Roach Straton was thoroughly convinced of the existence of angels. On March 22, 1928, he and his family were in an automobile accident near Oklahoma City. Their car overturned, but the door which was closed and locked was opened by some unseen power, his wife thrown out and miraculously saved.

There has been a great deal of argument about the Angels of Mons and efforts made to explain the story away, which were perfectly satisfactory to the sceptics, but not at all satisfactory to the soldiers who saw the angels.

A.—Modern scholarship and even modern Jews have arrived at the conclusion that the "song of songs," which means "the best of Solomon's songs," deals with the marriage of Solomon to the daughter of Pharoah, and has no mystical meaning at all.

Other ideas have prevailed in the past. The ancient Jews believed that it related to the conduct of God to the Hebrews during their journey from Egypt to the Promised Land.

The Church Fathers thought that it had reference to the mystical marriage of Jesus Christ with human nature, or was an allegory of Christ's love for the church.

Modern criticism has compared it with the story of Venus and Adonis, but there are some who claim that there was a mystical element in this Greek story also.

To us it seems that the Jews would not have included the book in their sacred canon if it had been a love story only, but that the mystical meaning has been lost, in its detail at any rate.

Q.—Can you tell me the meaning of the expression, "Fishers of Men?"—J. C.

A.—It was used by Jesus on the shores of the sea of Galilee addressing Simon and Andrew who were fishing. He said, "Come ye after Me and I will make you to become fishers of men." You will find the quotation in Mark 1, 17.

Here the world is likened to the sea, and men to the fishes in it. Water was a favorite symbol for chaos, as we notice in Genesis 1, and the world we live in is a chaos of desires, emotions and ambitions.

The spirit was likened by the ancients to breath or air, and the fish drawn out of the water of the world enter the realm of the spirit. Their physical bodies die, but they live, as Paul said in a spiritual body.

Those who really lead others to God by precept and above all practice are "Fishers of Men."

MOTORING NEWS AND REVIEW

(By Frank Chamberlain)
(Special to The Examiner)

Harold G. Hoffman, commissioner of Motor Vehicles, New Jersey, has declared in a recent article that there is no inherent peril in automobile speed itself. Accidents, he says, are more directly traceable to narrow roads, poor visibility, mechanical weaknesses, neglect, sleeping at the wheel, recklessness or driving in an intoxicated condition. He also states that four-wheel brakes, high compression engines, more sensitive steering and general easier handling of the car have made it a much more controllable vehicle. And that brings to mind a remark made by Magistrate Robert J. Browne recently that he would like to clear the road of "slow-pokes" who delay highway traffic.

Those who motor along the northern highway that leads westward through the superlatively beautiful Banff and Lake Louise region must either drive southward for many miles almost to the international border, or ship their car by train all the way to Revelstoke. Much has been accomplished of late years in making the Canadian Rockies accessible to motor cars, but certain links in the chain of highways still remain to be forged. This work is now being pushed by the Canadian Government. However, let none be deterred from invading B. C. in a motor car because the highway system there is incomplete. Enough good roads already exist to enable anyone to drive in comfort through that region for hundreds of miles. Nor is it necessary to confine one's visit to the summer months—Autumn is equally attractive for such a tour.

There is something individualistically different about a motor trip into the Gaspe' region. This peninsula, runs out into the ocean from the Province of Quebec to form the southern shore of the St. Lawrence River and the northern boundery of the Baie des Chaleurs, holds attractions all its own. If its scenic and socoal offerings do not happen to be attractive for those who like something different, there are other objects of interest. Roads are good, scenery is commanding, hotels are acceptable. Best of all there is striking and continuing scenery of mountains and water, transitory association with the simple life of natives who remain Norman French.

Slight gains in the automobile industry in Detroit during the past week have cast rays of sunshine into the hearts of automobile manufacturers. Orders are increasing slowly, and reports show that dealers are in much better frame of mind. Price talk continues to hold the center of the stage, and there is considerable speculation as to just what the various companies are going to do regarding reductions. Three companies have slashed prices, but there has been no indication of similar action by other manufacturers, although it would not be surprising to hear of reductions at any time. A prominent business man recently told the writer that the nation was in for a considerable reduction of the cost of living. He blamed the stock market crash for it. Well, they do say that clouds have silver linings

The Peace Bridge at Buffalo continues to be one of the main routes to Canada from United States In the year from July 1, 1929, to June 30, 1930, more than 3,700,000 persons crossed Canada via tnis span. The Peace Bridge connects Buffalo with Fort Erie, Ontario. It is surprising how few Canadians have crossed to United States over this bridge. To have crossed it is an experience in itself, to say nothing of the enjoyment of a motor drive through the vicinity of the bridge.

It is not just the engine that causes one car to make better mileage on a gallon of gasolene than another of the same manufacture. Sometimes, in fact often, we may find faults in the body and chassis of the car that retard the efficiency of the motor. The moving parts especially may be at fault. The wheels, for instance, have much to do with the smooth running of a car. Loose bearings at the hubs, causing the wheels to wobble, take much of the power from the engine. To prevent this, the wheels should be kept tight and well greased. The grease should be changed every thousand miles, and the nuts on the wheels tightened at the same time. Misalignment of front wheels is another costly fault and reveals itself in less mileage for the fuel. The brakes may be adjusted so tightly that the drums might bind. This causes the brake to drag and put an extra weight on the engine. Another drain on power is an under-inflated tire. What means more pull on the engine. Tires should be checked each week.

Automobile Engineers are this year making a concerted attack on the age-old problem of gear-shifting. This year and last no fewer than 16 new transmission devices have been added to present models. The aim is to simplify the process by which the average car is operated from the driver's standpoint. It has long been conceded that the "wobblestick"—a name that used to be applied to the gear-shift lever—should be changed. Engineers have argued that there is no earthly reason why a car should have to be put through hop-step and jump stages to get it under way. The merits and demerits of four speeds in place of the three associated with the term "standard" gear shift are still matters of debate among the engineering fraternity. By some it is held that adding a fourth, or 'double high" has advantages because it permits high car speed in the top range. Therefore it is a fuel saver and allows fast travel with less engine noise. One advance which virtually all transmissions can be credited as the result of recent research is faster acceleration. The cars of two and three years ago barely were capable of producing 35 miles an hour in second gear, and were proportionately slower in getting under way from first gear. Now they flash away up to 45 to 50 miles an hour and beyond it, depending on the increased power that an engine may be capable off.

SAY MANITOULIN WRECK IS LA SALLE'S ANCIENT VESSEL

USED IN TRADING.

Seeking conclusive evidence that the wreck at the western end of Manitoulin Island, in Lake Huron, is that of LaSalle's famous ship, "Griffon," lost 251 years ago, a party of three has spent two weeks at Shequiandah, near the scene. In the following article, Mr. Fleming, a member of the expedition, tells the interesting conclusion reached.

By ROY F. FLEMING

SHEGUIANDAH, Ont., Aug 29—Fragments of the wreck on Manitoulin Island by the Mississago strait, believed to be the last relic of LaSalle's Griffon, were examined by the expedition party with all the interest and curiosity of mariners, historians, and even treasure hunters, for what possibilities lay before us and near to us. There lay the remains of that very ship that LaSalle loaded with furs at Worthington Island, Lake Michigan, and sent off to Niagara, in the equinoctial September of two hundred and fifty-one years ago, and which he never heard of again. He accused the pilot Luc of treason and the crew of five with deserting.

Hennetin who had been on it as far as Green Bay believed, as most would have, that it was wrecked in the equinoctial storms somewhere in the Great Lakes.

LaSalle searched for it. His two men Chapelle and LaClant went round the whole lake but no news of it came and for two and a half centuries mariners, historians and adventurers have examined derelicts and wrecks in the hope that the pioneer vessel would be found.

We believe the wreck before us to be a piece of the Griffon's ship's bottom. It is about twenty feet long, of white oak timbers, joined by great iron bolts and spikes. Fortunately one of our numbers was a mariner and builder of boats, else we might not have deciphered the piece before us.

Substantial Timbers

It was right side up. The keelson (the inner keel) consisted of two timbers one foot square, set an inch apart. Below it were the ribs, six inches wide, and nine inches deep, set nine inches apart, and below at one time had been the keel, one foot six, and two feet wide, because the thirty-six inch bolt had joined them all together. The ribs were seven and a half feet long from centre to the bilge curve, making the width of bottom fifteen feet, and the probable width of the main part of the hull, twenty feet. The planking was three inches thick and had been caulked with lead.

The skeletons were no doubt the victims of the wreck as they were all found within three-quarters of a mile of the wreck and all about the same distance up the rocky incline—rather too high up, however, to be thrown there by the waves. Then we went out to see the magnetic shoal at the south entrance of the Mississago Strait where the vessel most probably foundered before drifting to where it now is.

Perhaps the survivors swam ashore for they were able seamen. Their waning strength only allowed them to climb to the rock where their bones and been found. The skeletons were fine specimens of mankind, three of them over six feet long, one with perfect teeth.

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, August 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).— The cheese graded for the last week at the Campbellford Grading Station is below the figure for the same period last year. This year's total is 17 lots, 713 boxes, as compared with 21 lots, 846 boxes for last year. The test for July of this year of 806 composite samples showed an average fat content of 3 per cent. as compared with the same period last year, which registered 3.01 per cent for 867 samples.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Third were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott, Stirling.

Mr. J. A. Murray was one of the judges at the Belleville Fair this year.

And there is more truth and fiction in this:

B—"Really? And did you prevent the fight?"

A—"Oh, yes; he couldn't catch me."

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McArthur have as their guest for the holidays their daughter, Miss Jean McArthur, who is a nurse-in-training in Whitby Hospital.

Dr. G. A. Hay was a visitor to the Belleville Fair on Thursday.

Mrs. R. Jarvis and son Jack, of Hastings, are visiting friends and relatives in Campbellford and district.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Mason have as their guest, while on a vacation, Master Wilfred Dunn of Toronto. Wilfred is a nephew of his host and hostess.

Mr. C. H. Davidson was a business visitor to Cobourg on Friday.

THREE NOMINATED FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Two Havelock Trustees to be Elected Sept. 4

HAVELOCK, Aug. 30.—Nominations were held in the town hall, Thursday, August 28, for two members to the school board, and resulted in the following three being nominated:

S. S. Joyce, nominated by Peter McCann and John Kinnaird.

All three have duly qualified, and as only two trustees are required to replace Messrs. Mathison and McLaughlin whose resignations were accepted at the last meeting of the board, there will be an election held on Thursday, Sept. 4th.

In January last when nominations were held, a number of names was submitted, but only one qualified. At a later meeting two others were nominated, one elected by acclamation. In March the ratepayers voted against an expenditure of seven thousand dollars for the installation of water flush closets in the Public and Continuation schools, and at the next meeting the two newly elected members tendered their resignation which however was not accepted until the July meeting. The term of office for the two will run for the balance of the current year, and all of 1931.

BENNETT STAYS MUM ON IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30.—(CP)—Without comment on the forthcoming Imperial Conference, Premier Bennett left last night for Ottawa. After a busy day the Premier retired early without even glancing at the daily newspapers, and left instruction to railway employees in charge of the car that he was not to be disturbed. Premier Ferguson, who had accompanied him about the Exhibition, saw him off.

"I do not think that one could make a comparison between the Imperial Conference and unemployment in Canada," said the Premier. "One is external and one is internal. One reason for making no comparison is that the Imperial Conference will have a great deal of bearing on unemployment in this country."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1900

GOOD NEWS FROM THE NORTH.

Just at this time when general reports in regard to the condition of industry and agriculture are not such as to call for enthusiastic cheering on the part of the Canadian people, Northern Ontario sends out a message of hope that should raise the morale of the whole country.

In spite of depression in other circles, the mining industry has continued to press ahead to new levels of production, adding an impressive total to the country's wealth.

The semi-annual report of Ontario's Department of Mines shows that for the first six months of this year there has been an increase of nearly three million dollars in the mineral output of the Province, the returns for the first half of this year being $58,236,562, as compared with $55,508,162 for the same period in 1929.

Canada, already third in the world list of gold producers, may climb to second place within the next year.

These figures should give confidence to Canadians, for, as the Mail and Empire points out, "$58,000,000 of new money from Ontario's mines in six months is an impressive sum."

It means not only employment to thousands of workers, but it means orders for Canadian manufacturers and business for Canadian merchants and Canadian railways.

LABOR DAY.

Monday will be observed throughout the United States and Canada as Labor Day, a day set apart in recognition of the important place in the scheme of things occupied by the workers of the two countries.

The anniversary this year finds Canadian labor in a condition that is at once happy and disturbing; happy because induustrial troubles and disagreements between employer and employee are practically non-existent, and disturbing because the depression in industry finds many Canadian workers unemployed.

It is to be hoped that this latter condition will be short-lived, that the tide is almost on the turn, and that shortly there will be a return to the halycon days of Canadian prosperity with work and good wages for all, and happiness and contentment in the homes of this country's workers.

To the credit of organized labor in Canada it is fitting that on the eve of Labor's own holiday to bear testimony to the fact that labor organizations throughout the Dominion have taken a firm stand against Communism, and that not even industrial depression and the resultant unemployment have caused labor men to listen to the insidious arguments of Red agitators, always eager to take advantage of such conditions.

CANADIAN GOODS.

The one thing that is wrong with industry in Canada to-day is that people are not spending money, are not buying goods fast enough, and in addition to that are not buying enough goods in Canada. It may be said that a great many people cannot spend money, because they have no money to spend, and while that may be true, there is still a very large and powerful section of the Canadian public with an unimpaired purchasing power, says the Oshawa Daily Times.

Mayor Wemp of Toronto has expressed the opinion that one of the methods by which industrial depression and unemployment can be secured is by urging of the people of Canada to buy Canadian goods. There could be no truer statement. Canadian industries would be booming to-day if the money spent for imported goods were spent for goods of the same kind manufactured in the factories of Canada. For instance, in the month of June, imports to the amount of over $59,000,000 came from the United States alone. That amount, possibly contained a certain percentage of raw materials for industry, but nevertheless, it included many millions of dollars of goods which could just as easily have been purchased in Canada.

There are few people in Canada, rich or poor, who are not concerned over the unemployment problem. They ought to be ready to show their concern in a practical manner, by insisting, whenever they have a dollar to spend, that the goods which they buy are produced or manufactured in Canada.

TWO THINGS TO CONSIDER.

Canadian automobile manufacturers have been down to Ottawa asking for increased tariff protection, arguing that the granting of their request would mean more employment for Canadian workers.

While the verdict of the electors on July 28 may be accepted as evidence that the majority of Canadians are willing to see a policy of tariff protection set at work for the benefit of Canadian industry, there are two features in regard to the request of the automobile manufacturers.

In the first place, the interests of the Canadian consumer must be considered in any tariff revision that may be decided upon, and in the second place, the Government should see to it that as large a proportion of automobile parts as possible is manufactured in this country instead of being imported.

So long as the manufacture of these parts is done outside of the Dominion, Canadian workers will fail to realize anything like the full value they should receive out of the Canadian automobile industry.

Increased tariff on motor cars may be justified, but it should not be granted until there is a hard and fast guarantee that the interests of the Canadian consumer will not suffer, and until the Government is convinced that every possible manufacturing process is being done in this country.

It will be difficult to convince the Canadian people that many of the parts now imported could not be manufactured in this country.

SHOULD BE PUT IN SHAPE.

Unless the city authorities get busy and improve the condition of James Stevenson Park local ball clubs still in the running in the various Ontario series are going to find themselves shortly in a quandary in regard to finding grounds upon which to stage the important games to be played in the near future.

From the present outlook two or three games may be scheduled for Peterborough for the week after next, a week during which the Exhibition Grounds where most of the games have been played this season will be required by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

That situation will, of course, leave the clubs with the alternative of playing their home games out of town or of using James Stevenson Park, which in its present condition is anything but fit for important baseball games.

It would be a pity indeed if the first course had to be followed and the news circulated that Peterborough teams were playing away from home because they had no grounds at home in suitable shape.

James Stevenson Park can be made ready for use next week if the city authorities show a proper appreciation of the city and put a few men at work there for a day or two.

In the interest of sport and of the reputation of this city as a sporting centre, it is hoped that the orders for the necessary work will be forthcoming at once.

YES, THE SAME MAN!

Children's Day at the Exhibition gave many older people an opportunity to reveal their kindness of heart. He would be a hardened customer who would not be touched by the misery of a lost child, and there were hundreds of these in the shelter before the day was done. There they sat and sobbed, the embodiment of the most abject despair. Nothing ever would be right again in the world, and life was just a great tear-dimmed blank. And it was hot and stuffy in the room that was set apart for their comfort. Comfort! Didn't those ancients who were trying to console them know that comfort had passed forever out of their lives? Only the misery known to a lost child remained.

Enter the Premier of Ontario—but not lost. What about this heat? Are there no fans in this place? No? Then there will be. Here spoke the voice of authority—a voice that might never have been heard by these sad little people if they had not got lost: showing that all distress has its compensations. In a few moments the fans were whirring; a substantial cash donation from the same kindly gentleman set the ice cream circulating, and all at once the dejected kiddies saw life again through rose-colored glasses. A gracious act, and worthy of a Prime Minister.

But this delightful incident leads to a little interesting speculation. Can this benefactor of lost children be the man of violent speech who went storming about Ontario during the last federal election campaign, whose vigorous lungs—assisted, perhaps, to some extent by the radio—sent his voice hurtling through the night air of the Dominion? Is this the same Mr. Ferguson of the bitter gibe, the rough-and-ready retort, who scoffed at the dignity that should hedge a Federal Premier—even though he be a Liberal—and who had the temerity to speak slightingly of a Minister of Labor? The same man who, with his armor buckled about him and his claymore swinging freely, slashed viciously at an enemy head wherever he saw one? The man who took upon his ample shoulders the weight of a floundering party, carried his burden through the turbulent political waters and deposited it in the haven of office?

Yes, the same Mr. Ferguson. When the battle was over his better self reappeared. Removing his vizor and pulling off his shirt of mail, he calmed his fiery soul and became once more the genial and good-natured citizen. He came down again among the people, and even passed the kindly word to his erstwhile political foes. And in this more natural and amiable frame of mind Ontario's Premier visited the Exhibition, saw that lost children were suffering from the heat, and took prompt steps to see that they were made more comfortable. Splendid and thoughtful action. Taken all in all, and at the risk of mixing a metaphor, it must be said that the first citizen of this Province is a good head at heart. —Toronto Globe.

WORK FOR ALL.

What is the purpose of it? What good will it do? How soon will it do it, if any? Why bother with it?

These are questions the average shopper must ask.

Fair enough. And here is the answer:

Its purpose is to provide work, with pay, for every Canadian. It will do just that. It will, if applied by Canadians generally, show its effect almost immediately.

Put it this way: For example, suppose we spend only ten cents a day more per capita on Canadian goods. That is not much. But there are 10,000,000 Canadians. Then this ten cents a day would make a million dollars. In a year it would make $365,000,000.

Now, suppose labor forms 40 per cent. of the cost of the goods—and that is a safe estimate. Forty per cent. of $365,000,000 is $146,000,000.

For two words—"Where From?"—and ten cents a day, Canadian buyers can do that. They can provide jobs for 146,000 wage earners.

Moreover that $365,000,000 immediately becomes a vast, circulating and accumulative fund that helps support and expand its own market.

You exclaim: "If everybody would only do this!"

They WILL do it, if they are educated, coached and shown the advantages of a "Buy-Canadian-Goods" in? sistence.

And the one to take the lead in that educating and coaching is the Dominion Government.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Drive carefully over the week-end. Remember traffic on the main highways will be heavy.

The advertisement of the Highways Department in regard to one-eyed automobiles and glare lights is an admirable warning. So would a police court appearance for every offender.

Oshawa ratepayers have turned down a by-law to provide for a new police building. Probably they expect the Federal Government will erect the building as an unemployment measure.

After all, it may not be a compliment when the motor salesman keeps on assuring you the car is absolutely fool-proof.—Ottawa Journal.

This is the season of the year when you begin to realize that it isn't such a long time between Christmases, after all.—Border Cities Star

"By gosh! the old thing has spread herself," said Freckles. "There is a further vast instalment."

"Get on with it," cried Hugh. "It strikes me Miss Verney has her head screwed on in exactly the right way."

"Had a perfectly good night," she begins, "though I woke up once with that beastly dog baying at something outside. However, I soon fell asleep again, and did not wake till after eight. All of which matters not· I'll get on with it. I received his majesty's command to wait on him at ten o'clock. Now you know my watch has never been quite itself again since it fell in the river at Henley, and sure enough it had apparently gained about twenty this minutes morning. The result was that little Patricia, with pencil and paper complete, fresh and radiant in the morning sunshine, popped into the sacred room at twenty to ten instead of ten. Not, you would have thought, a very frightful crime, but you should have seen the result. His lordship was kneeling by the side of the fireplace, holding something in his hand. As soon as he heard the door open he thrust whatever it was back into a recess, which he closed. Then he scrambled to his feet in a fury.

"'I said ten," he stormed.

"'I thought it was ten,' I remarked amiably. 'My watch must have gained.'

"Then I sat down with paper and pencil, and waited for him to start. After a bit he calmed down and took a seat at his desk.

"'You must make allowances for me, Miss Verney,' he mumbled. 'Mhy health is not very good.'

"'That's all right,' I said. 'It was my fault for coming too soon.'

"And once more I waited for him to begin. At last he got under way, and dictated three short letters—all of them business, and all of them trivial to a degree. Then he stopped.

"'Is that all?' I said.

"'All for this morning,' he answered. 'As a matter of fact, Miss Verney, my correspondence is very small. Being the recluse I am, I know but few people.'

"'If this is a fair sample of a day's job,' I remarked, 'I shall certainly not be overworked. I will go and type these now, and bring them to you to sign.'

"I got up and went to the door and just as I was opening it I heard him muttering in his beard again· there are times when he talks exactly like a man with his mouth full of fish-bones. So I waited for him to get it off his chest, and if you can explain it I shall be glad, for I certainly can't.

"He first of all startled on the question of outings. He mumbled and he grunted, and repeated his warning of last night about the immediate future. Then without a word of warning he suddenly asked me if I'd like to go to London. I stared at him blankly and asked him if he meant alone, or was he going ,or what.

"'Alone,' he said. 'All alone in a nice first-class carriage.'

"Honestly, Tom, I don't think the man is all there. I half expected him to go on and say something about the pretty puff-puff. However, I waited, and let him get on with it in his own way.

"'You see, Miss Verney,' he said for the twenty-fourth time, 'I am a recluse. I dislike intensely going outside my own grounds. And one of the things that I shall wish to do for me will be to make frequent trips to London on very confidential business.'

"'That seems quite clear,' I said. 'But what sort of business? Because I have got no knowledge of anything except typing and shorthand.'

"'You won't require any knowledge,' he assured me. 'All that I want is a nice-looking young lady whom I can trust inplicitly.'

"And suddenly I remembered a thing which Miss Mudge had said when she told me of my being engaged. At the time I didn't think about it, but now it came back. One absolute proviso was that I must look a lady.

"'You see, Miss Verney,' he went on, 'My one hobby all through my life has been acquiring beautiful things. And recently a relative of mine has died, and left me a wonderful collection of old jewellery. Now this big place, as you will understand, costs a lot of money to keep up, and I fear that, much as I regret it, I shall have to sell some of my things. And that is where I want you to help me.'

"'You mean,' I said, 'that you want me to take them up to London and sell them for you?'

"'That's it,' he cried. 'That is just what I want.'

"'But why not send for a good man from Christies,' I said, 'or a first-class jeweller to come here? I should probably be badly swindled.'

'He shook his head cunningly.

"'No, you won't,' he said. 'Not if you do it the way I say. You see,' he went on confidentially, 'it is like this. If I send for a first-class jeweller to come to me here, and he sees all my collection or even half of it, it stands to reason that he won't give me as good a price as if I sold each article separately. At the same time I obviously cannot ask a man to make fifty different journeys down here and show him the things one at a time. So I want you to make the fifty different journeys up to London. There are scores of first-class jewellers either there or in the big towns like Birmingham and Manchester, and if you go to a different one each time you will get the maximum price for each article. Look, for instance, at that.'

"He produced from his desk a small box, and opened it. Inside was the most lovely pearl and diamond pendant I have ever seen. The setting was old-fashioned, but even I could realise how valuable it was.

"'Now,' he went on, 'if you took that to a good man, and told him it had been left you by your mother or a relative, I am sure he would give you a thousand pounds for it.'

"'I should think it more than likely,' I said. 'But why bring in the bit about it having been left me? Why not simply say that I want to sell it?"

"'He might want to know how you got it,' he explained. 'And the one important thing, Miss Verney, is that the news should not be passed round among them that a big collection is being disposed of piecemeal. Once that is known, down will go the prices.'

"'I had intended,' he went on, 'when I first engaged you for you to start on that side of your duties at once. But now certain things have occurred which render it necessary for you to postpone it a little. So that for a few days, my dear young lady—just for a few days—your duties will not be very onerous.'

"With that I lift him, and went and typed the letters. What is the meaning of it, Tom? One thing is perfectly clear· it is not for any secretarial work that I have been engaged. The main part of my job is obviously to sell his stuff for him. But it all seems so peculiar. Incidentally when I took him back the letters to sign, he was down again on his knees by the fireplace, and he had completely forgotten all about them. Moreover he was furious at my walking in, though I had knocked twice.

"Lunch time—so I will stop. What do you think? It all seems very funny to me."

"And to me," said Hugh thoughtfully, as Freckles folded up the letter. "But not inexplicable, once one thing is granted."

"And that is?" I asked.

"That the stuff to be disposed of is stolen," he answered. "If this collection he talks of was honestly come by, the simplest method by far of disposing of it would be to do what Miss Verney suggests, and have a really good man down from London. Obviously he dare not. So he has hit on this distinctly clever method. If Miss Verney walked into a shop with an ornament such as she mentions, it would arouse no suspicions. It is just the sort of thing she might have been left by a relative. And a good man would give her a fair price for it. If Granger walked into a shop with it they would probably ring up Scotland Yard after one look at his face. And if he took it to an ordinary fence he would get a third of its value."

He rose and began to stroll up and down.

"We are on the line," he said· "I am sure of it, though we are the deuce of a long way from spotting the whole thing. Our friend at Temple Tower is obviously in possession of a big lump of stolen property which he intends to sell. For that purpose he engages a lady secretary, who without suspicion can get a good price for it. Then suddenly along comes the bird at Spragge's Farm who puts the fear of God into Granger. He is probably a man whom Granger double-crossed, and who is entitled to his share of the swag. So that necessitates Miss Verney's activities being postponed until he is disposed of one way or the other. Does that sound feasible?"

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

News of Our Own Village

Vegetable growers from this section of this fair Province won a prize at the Exhibition in Toronto, west of here, this week. The lads know their onions, say we.

Villagers which helped a week or 2 ago to entertain a pleasant visitor who proposed to build a new mill in our midst ain't received no postcards or such from the same, your scribe hears.

The paving company which has been building streets in our progressive community since last May has departed for new fields, running outa local orders, so to speak.

They won't be no swimming marathons or sea flea races at the village fall fair, your scribe learns on good authority.

Ed. Peck, our worthy member, better get after the Government at Ottawa, east of here, to put up a new building here before all the available sites is taken for runt golf courses, some say.

Nagle Phelan, the finance minister of the village council, is a runt golf enthusiast, and the villagers expect to see him wearing kilts and a tam any day now.

Bill Edgar, of Montreal, east of here, who was once a member of the staff of this great family journal, has bust into the movies along with the R a hundred. Customers what seen the picture was able to distinguish the dirigible because it was tied to the mast.

Bill Peryer and Rupe Gliddon is practising up their musical organizations in reddiness for the village fair week after next. They'll be plenty of hot music when the boys break lose.

Mrs. Park and her girls was singing up at the Toronto Exhibition, west of us, Thurs. Its got so they can't run the fair up there without calling on the talent from this village.

The village schools has been all slicked up ready for the opening Tues. a.m. The paint won't make them any more pleasant for the kids when they answer the roll call next week, your scribe is willing to bet.

Sport ain't dead in the village yet, a horseshoe tournament being on the cards for Mon. Mebbe we'll have a checker contest this winter, too, hopes we.

Ross Dobbin, our Hydro manager, sez they ain't no shortage of water in this community, so folks don't need to wait until Sat. nite to take a bath, if any.

NEUTRAL PRESS SERVICE WELDS UNITED PEOPLE

Tribute By London Free Press Editor to Canada's Newspapers.

LESS BITTERNESS.

Links Canada and Other Parts of Empire By Cables.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—The great part which the Canadian Press, Canada's mutual and co-operative news-gathering and distributing association, has taken in developing a spirit of unity throughout the Dominion and in helping to obliterate sectional bitterness, was described here to-day by Arthur R. Ford editor of the London (Ontario) Free Press when he addressed the luncheon of the President and Directors of the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. Ford showed how the reports of the Canadian Press, used by all the newspapers of the country, were fair, accurate and devoid of partizan bias and, as such, were published by newspapers of every political stripe.

The form of co-operative news-gathering represented by such organizations as the Associated Press in the United States, and the Canadian Press, in Canada, proved economical and far better in every way than the haphazard news-gathering of individual newspapers at enormous expense, as had been the system pertaining before the development of co-operative bodies.

Impartial Reports

"The Canadian Press has made for greater independence in politics. The Canadian Press can claim much of the credit for the breaking down of the old political bitterness. The Canadian Press maintains a staff at Ottawa which reports fairly and impartially the proceedings of Parliament. It has meant that the reading public of Canada has secured that which they did not always get in the past—a dependable report of the debates of the House of Commons and the proceedings of committees. So even the most partizan newspapers take the Canadian Press reports.

"And finally," concluded Mr. Ford, "the Canadian Press has been the means of developing not only a better Canadian news service but a better Empire service. It is doing a real Imperial service. The fourth Imperial Press Conference was held this past summer. The Canadian delegates took the lead in urging the formation of an Empire news service on the principle of mutual and co-operative interchange of cable news between the Empire's different parts."

INDIFFERENT DEMAND IS BLAMED FOR SHARP CUT IN GRAIN VALUES

Combines Speed Delivery.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 30—(Canadian Press). — An indifefrent foreign and domestic demand, which was insufficinet to absorb heavy offerings, created by hedging on the part of elevator interests from the new crop now being harvested in the Prairie Provinces, was the contributing factor in a sharp decrease in grain values on the Winnipeg grain exchange during the past week.

For the week ending August 29, the net decline in wheat futures ranged from 2 3-4 to 3 3-4 cents a bushel, October closing out Friday at 88 cents, for the heaviest loss of the week, while December was quoted at 90 and May at 96 5-8, basis in store Fort William and Port Arthur.

At times there was export buying to absorb some of the offerings, but the foreign demand was not sufficienly broad to make much impression. Strength in Chicago corn prices was a sustaining factor in that it narrowed up the spread in wheat prices between Winnipeg and the Southern market but the hedging sales that naturally come at this time require heavy buying to keep prices from slipping.

Dry weather and the extensive use of combines in all the Provinces resulted in the rapid delivery of wheat from the farms and movement sales that naturally come at this time require heavy buying to keep prices from slipping.

Combines Speed Delivery.

Dry weather and the extensive use of combines in all the Provinces resulted in the rapid delivery of wheat from the farms and movement during the past week was double that of the corresponding week a year ago with takings running as high as 3,600,00 bushels of wheat alone, in one day.

The run of wheat is highly satisfactory with a good proportion of No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern but the rust infected wheat has not yet been marketed in any quantity and a good deal of low grade wheat can be expected when it does reach inspection point.

Exports of Manitobas have been fairly steady with shipments for the week ending August 23, the largest in any week for more than a year. Our export trade since the beginning of June has been fairly satisfactory and if maintained during the winter months a good deal of the weight will have been taken off the market.

It is now fairly well established that some European countries that were able to export wheat a year ago will be quite substantial buyers this season. Italy and France are among the countries expected to buy and already both have taken good quantities from Russia, Danube countries and from Northern America.

An important factor that cannot be overlocked in the international market is the serious loss of production in the corn belt of the United States which is expected to make a big inroad on the wheat supplies as a feeding commodity. Large mills are said to be grinding thousands of bushels of wheat daily to be sold as millfeed and it is the opinion of some authorities that the United States is almost on a domestic basis so far as gains are concerned.

Cash Demands Only Fair

Demand for the various grades of cash wheat during the past week was only fair, offerings generally were light and the volume of business was only small.

Actual sales of coarse grains were confined entirely to oats and barley for domestic use. Demand for these commodities was only fair and small scattered business was worked from bay ports. A fair inquiry for rye presumably for eastern Canada distillers was in evidence during the last half of the week, but no sales were reported in this commodity. Cash interest in flax was negligible.

STAFF CHANGES

most large centres and is felt to be a superior one in every respect. By placing the laboratories on the same footing as class-rooms, extra space is made available, while the necessity for finding storage space for equipment is eliminated.

Four staff changes have been made at the Collegiate this year, it was announced. Miss Gladys Moore, B. A., a native of this city and a graduate of P. C. I., is being added to the academic staff due to the crowded conditions. Miss Moore has been teaching in North Bay. M. H. Toole, B. A., is coming from Kitchener as head of the Commercial Department, filling a post which has been vacant for the past year since the resignation of Mr. Jamieson. Miss Amelia Thompson, B. A., has been added to the commercial staff to take the place of Miss Aiken who resigned in June. Mr. I. Clubine, B. A., a McMaster University honor graduate in mathematics and physics, is coming to teach industrial mathematics and science.

The Collegiate opens Tuesday morning, according to provincial regulation, while the public schools reopen at the same time under the "September 1st' 'rule.

CANNINGTON HOUSE BURNS

LINDSAY, Aug. 29.—Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed the residence of Charles Reynolds, of the village of Cannington, on Thursday at noon. The house, which was one of the oldest in the village, was owned by Mrs. H. Burgess, of Toronto, and was fully covered by insurance. Practically all the contents were saved through the efforts of the villagers.

Crash Kills Baby Mother Badly Hurt

KITCHENER, Ont., Aug. 30.—(CP)— Jean Elizabeth Foell, nine months - old daughter of Manuel Foell, third concession, Glenallen, is dead and her mother is badly cut while Norman Forwell of Kitchener is held on $6,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter, following a motor accident last evening.

In a car driven by Manuel Foell the victims were driving near the boundary of Waterloo and Perth Counties when they crashed into the car driven by Forwell. The baby's skull was crushed and she died instantly. The mother was badly cut and Foell suffered slight cuts, while Forwell escaped without injury. An inquiry has been ordered by Coroner Dr. Le Roy Wagner of Elmira.

DOCTORS FINISH MEDICAL MEET

OVER 1,600 ATTENDED.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 30.—(CP)—Winnipeg said farewell last night to the most distinguished gathering of physicians ever held in Western Canada. Nearly 2,000 delegates to the 98th annual meeting of the British Medical Association completed their four-day sessions, packed up their brief-cases and club bags, filed away homeward to every clime.

Last-day sectional meetings brought out their share of medical news. Dr. Howard H. Skinner, Kansas City, Mo. made the most sensational pronouncement when he estimated that annually 18,000 women in the United States died of cancer of the cervix, due to drastic obstetrics and laceration of tissue.

90,000 Women Sufferers.

"As nearly as we can judge," he said, "90,000 women are suffering right now from circinoma cervix. Treating that number at one time is impossible. There is no situation in medicine that has been conquered by cure. Every great disease in history has been conquered by elimination of its cause.

"We are somewhat slow in recognizing that we can elliminate many great problems by prevention and early recognition of their causes. Not much can be cured by large pieces of apparatus."

Dr. Skinner's remark regarding "large pieces of apparatus" was at direct variance with the opinion expressed by Prof. J. E. Gendreau, Montreal, who a few minutes previously had made a strong plea for higher tension in X-ray apparatus.

The Montreal doctor, in an illustrated lecture had shown that present X-ray apparatus was not strong enough for effective penetration of cancerous growths, and that larger cathode tubes, capable of standing 600,000 volts of high tension current were necessary.

Sleeplessness in Children.

Attention should be directed to mother and nurse when doctors try to ascertain the cause of sleeplessness in children, said Hector C. Cameron, London, in opening the children's diseases section. He mentioned that efficient management and proper feeding were the fundamentals, and that the nervous child reacted most to all forms of stress. A porous shawl is better for the infant, he said, than long swaddling clothes.

Babies should not be given a bottle of milk in the middle of the night in order to induce quietness, commented Dr. R. F. Rorke, Winnipeg, Physiological and psychological factors combined in inducing sleep disorders, mentioned Dr. A. H. Spohn, Vancouver. He thought that if the child was nervous, the parents should be examined for possible causes of complaint.

Toronto Paddler Nears End Of Long 12,000-Mile Trip In Peterboro' Canoe

Paddling a canoe built in this city by the Peterborough Canoe Company, Robert McCurdy, 21, of Toronto, has reached New York on a 12,000-mile canoe trip from Toronto to Baltimore, Maryland. He will complete the last 250 miles from New York to his destination within the next week.

"I have paddled every inch of the way," read a communication from McCurdy which the Peterborough Canoe Company received yesterday. "I have used a Peterborough canoe made by the Peterborough Canoe Company. It is a torpedo type, cedar strip canoe, about 100 pounds in weight, and is about 8 years old. I have only put two holes in it on the trip, and these are unnoticeable under a layer of marine glue. There are about 15 or 20 marine-glue patches on the bottom of it covering minor scratches."

McCurdy started on July 3 on the recommendation of his physician. He paddled from Toronto east on Lake Ontario, through the Murray Canal, Bay of Quinte, down the St. Lawrence River, shooting the fast rapids of Cardinal, Iroquoi, and Farran Point. He traversed the Richelieu up to Lake Champlain and to Whitehall. By the Champlain Canal he reached the Hudson and thus New York. Many newspapers and publications, including Forest and Stream and Field and Stream, have taken cognizance of his feat.

Through the efforts of Otto B. Schmidt, chairman of the Waterways League of America, a special pass is being secured for McCurdy's passage through the Raritan Canal on his trip to Baltimore. He is contemplating a trip by canoe from New York to Florida by the newly opened Inland Waterway. He will use his Peterborough Canoe.

SESSION'S COST MAY BE $500,000

HOUSE MEETS SEPT. 8.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—The cost to Canada of the special session of Parliament which Premier Bennett has summoned to met on Monday, Sept. 8, will total anywhere from $250,000 to $500,000, according to the length of time members of the Commons decide ot stay in Ottawa. There are 245 members of the House and 96 Senators. They are paid $4,000 indemnity if the sessions lasts more than fifty-one days, or $25 per day if their labors are completed in a shorter period. If the session continues for thirty days the salaries of members and Senators would total $255,750 if all of them put in an appearance, which is unlikely in the case of the Senators. Deductions are made for time off unless members certify they were absent on account of illness. Travelling expenses to and from Ottawa will run into another $15,000 or $20,000, and printing and stationery will account for something like $30,000.

If all the unemployed are to be given jobs for the winter season, it will run into $100,000,000 or more, on the basis of $20 per week each for the 250,000 persons Senator Robertson estimated will be out of work when the snow flies. This would have to be divided three ways, the Dominion paying one-third and the Provinces and municipalities the other two-third. Coming at it another way, the Dominion Parliament might appropriate $25,000,000 as an emergency measure to provide for the construction of the Trans-Canada Highway which has been so frequently mentioned, and for necessary public works, biuldings, bridges, subways and the elimination of dangerous level crossings.

CORN IS SCARCE ON FARM MART

CHICKEN 35 CENTS.

Corn was scarce on the market this morning in comparison with last Saturday...It went at 20 cents a dozen. A few baskets of apples, Duchess and Wealthies, were to be found here and there selling for various prices. On the open market they were readily bringing 40 cents a peck although they were being sold as low as 20 cents upstairs.

Eleven quart baskets of healthy large tomatoes were going for 60 cents and the smaller 6 quart baskets for 35 cents. Chickens were being sold at 34 and 35 cents a pound early in the morning but 30 cents was common between 11 and 12 o'clock. Hens, 25 cents a pound.

As high as 37 cents a pound was asked for butter during the morning but the price sloped off to 30 cents. A few bunches of immature celery for use in pickling were available at 10 cents a bunch; large cucumbers, 5 cents each; cabbage, 5 and 10 cents each; cauliflower ,up to 30 cents; gherkins, $1.25 a basket.

Retail Prices.

As far as can be ascertained from a check-up at the local retail fruit stores, the tariff levied on certain lines of American produce under an order-in-council dated August 20th, has not had the effect of causing any great fluctuations in price so far.

Below is appended a list of the prices ruling to-day on certain lines of fruits and vegetables—a price list which is subject to fluctuation from day to day.

Bartlett eating pears (duty has increased price, 50c. on case to fruiters, who are still selling locally at the old price)—14 for 50c.

Cantaloupes, $1 to $1.75 per basket (according to quality).

Apples (Canadian)—25c to 35c per peck (according to quality.)

Grapefruit—2 for 25c.

Oranges—35c to 80c per dozen (according to size). Oranges are somewhat high in price this year, it is stated, owing to a shortage in the crop which is general once in every three years.

Peaches (Niagara)—60c to $1 per basket (according to quality).

California peaches—6 for 25c.

Celery (local grown)—10c to 25c per head.

Tomatoes (local grown)—50c to 60c per 11 qt. basket.

Corn (yellow band)— 2 dozen for 35c.

Niagara eating plums — 10c per quart.

Grapes (best quality American)—20c per lb.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

the night class in aeronautics has been transferred from the boys' lunch room to some outside point. At present, classrooms are being utilized in several instances for laboratory and practical work and the question of what to do with these classes in the face of the rapid increase in enrolment is a serious one.

At the Queen Alexandra School galvanized gutters have been built on the roof to save the interior from the havoc caused by leakage in previous winters and the breaking away of bricks due to the encroachment of water. The lighting has been completely modernized in this school to conform with all the latest findings. Al wiring has been paced in conduits, and separate switches have been installed. A new cement wall and fire door have been built in the basement, while exposed pipes on the basement floor have been sunk to avoid accidents.

Improvements on the grounds of this school are promised for the near future, and work on the filling of the gulley at the northern end is to go on apace.

The fine lawns on all of Peterborough's six schools have come in for a good deal of favorable comment, as has the work of the various janitors in keeping their schools in order and getting them into proper shape for the coming year.

A "hammer fiend" has been at work during the past year or two on the exterior of the Prince of Wales School and has this summer commenced his operations at Queen Mary School. No reason for the wanton chipping of bricks and cement has been ascribed, but every effort is being made to check it and to discover the culprit.

"Peterborough has a fortune in school sites and equipment," declared Dr. J. J. Craig, Chairman of the Board, adding that vandalism of this sort bore the marks of a deranged mind.

Following a series of complaints from nearby householders, lights have been installed at the corners of the exterior of Queen Mary School to prevent young people from making a nuisance. These lights are worked by a time clock and will need no attention.

Prince of Wales School was declared to be in fine shape following last year's overhauling. Radiators have been repaired throughout the building. During the Board's inspection, the Kindergarten room came in for enthusiastic comment.

Many Windows Broken

A tremendous amount of glass has been broken in city schools since early spring, it was reported. Ball teams are held largely responsible and have been accordingly warned.

New wood-fibre blinds, made in this city, have been installed at King Edward School. It is proposed to make this type of blind standard equipment in city public schools here.

Need for landscape work on King Edward playground was seen, in view of the attractiveness of the grounds of nearby factories.

The seven acres of playground at King George School were found to be in splendid condition. This school was thoroughly overhauled four years ago and is slated to receive major attention next summer.

Great credit is given by James, Dutton, Chairman of the Property Committee, to John Taylor, the Board's Superintendant of Buildings, for his labors during the summer months. The Committee is composed of Mr. Dutton, Dr. Craig (ex-officio) I. P. McNabb, E. F. Reid, and R. J. Lillico.The work which has been done by this committee during the past ten weeks is almost all permanent construction, not mere patching, it was stated.

Boy Scouts of 8th Peterborough Troop held an enjoyable corn roast at Hiland's Wharf, Chemong Lake, on Thursday night. The boys gathered under the leadership of Scoutmaster Ernest Wolff to bid farewell to one of their oldest members, Felix Scollard, who left Peterborough to-day for college at Brockville.

S. M. Wolff, in a fitting little speech, pointed out the fine example which Felix Scollard had always shown in his co-operation with the Scout officers, which had reflected in the working of the troop as a whole. On behalf of the boys he presented him with a small gift as a token of the esteem in which he is held.

The program included night games, singing and other camp fire entertainment and the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow."

The arrangement for cars, refreshments, etc., was in the capable hands of the Troop Committee.

U.S. OFFICER IS JAILED IN PERU

H. B. Grow to be Court-martialled For Part in Dictator's Plot.

WAS TO BOMB CITY.

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 30 (C. P.). — Lieut.-Col. Luis Sanchez Cerro told the Associated Press that Harold B. Grow, United States Naval Reserve officer, acting as head of Peru's flying corps, would be court-martialled. Grow was arrested and imprisoned last week by the Arequipa Junta.

Sanchez Cerro declared "Grow is a mercenary who has been violating the rules of public right.

"Following the orders of the overthrown Dictator, he intended to fly over Arequipa and bomb the city without caring about the tremendous consequences of his action.

"As Grow violated the rules of the military code, we will prosecute him before a court-martial."

Lieut. Commander Grow served under ex-President Leguia as chief of the air forces.

AUSTRALIAN PRESS MAY BE CENSORED

Acting Premier Fenton Continues to Deny Suggestion of Repudiation.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 30. —(C.P. Cable via Reuters).—The members of the Federal Cabinet are not taking as a joke the talk of war debt repudiation which has been discussed by several non-official bodies. Such talk constitutes an active menace to the welfare of the country and her credit, it is felt.

The Hon. J. E. Fenton, acting prime minister and the Hon. J. A. Lyons, Postmaster-General, continues to denounce the suggestion of repudiation. Mr. Fenton today declared a censorship of news will actually be established if there is repetition of misleading statements concerning the question and if the Government's recent powers are inadequate to impose a direct censorship it will seek to arrange with the cable and wireless companies to have them exercise discriminatory powers.

HUSKY FISH LANDED OFF CHEMONG BRIDGE

Fishing from the Chemong Bridge last evening, G. Allison of 593 Bethune street, pulled out a real entry for The Examiner's bass competition. It tipped the scales at 5 pounds, 2 ounces and measured 19½ inches in length. Its girth was 15 inches.

Mr. Allison was using a light rod and line with a dew worms as bait. Fifteen minutes was required to land the beauty.

CROP YIELD BETTER

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 30. (C.P.) Threshing returns from many districts of the prairie provinces show a greater yield than had been anticipated in early forecasts, according to a crop report issued by the Canadian Bank of Commerce here last night.

BAR OUT POLITICS GET MORE POWER

REFERS TO CANADA AND U.S.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y.,—(C.P.) —Exclusion of politics in both the United States and Canada, Governor Roosevelt declared here, will result in the prompt development of the vast power resources of the St. Lawrence River and in construction of bridges spanning the boundary stream.

The Governor made the statement during an address at Watertown before a joint meeting of Chambers of Commerce in that section. His address heralded his entrance into the state's greatest waterpower section, since the executive left Watertown to motor to the St. Lawrence River at Alexandria Bay, there to meet two members of the Watertown Commission who arrived in advance of the main bodies of the power and bridge commissions.

The Governor did not apply his remarks relative to the barring of politics. For more than two decades waterpower has been a political issue in this State prior to creation of the commission by the last Legislature. The recent change of power from the hands of the Liberal to the Conservative Party in Canada has been watched with interest by those concerned with St. Lawrence power development.

"I am certain," the Governor said, "that if we can keep politics out on both sides of the border, the people wil get action on the bridge and the immediate development of all the greater water power resources."

COBOCONK BROTHERS GET WARNING FROM COURT

LINDSAY, August 30. — At a session of the County Police Court, yesterday, two brothers, Roy and Charles Weaver, o f Coboconk, appeared before Police Magistrate Moore, of Fenelon Falls, on a charge of threatening to shoot their brother, Edward Weaver. They were both bound over to keep the peace for one year, with Roy needing two securities of $1,000 each, and Charles two of $500. If they fail to secure these, they will each serve a sentence of three months in jail.

FORMER LINDSAY EDITOR COMES TO PETERBOROUGH

LINDSAY, August 30. — Mr. James E. Roberts, who has been editor of the Lindsay Post for the past eighteen months, has resigned that position to follow another calling with head-quarters, it is understood, at Peterborough. The members of the staff recognized his departure from the editorial chair by presenting him with a Parker pen. They presented Mrs. Roberts with a silver service.

BLUENOSE WILL NOT RACE.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—Further assurance that the Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose, champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleet, would not stake her title in a race off Gloucester, as set out in Newport, R.I., news despatches stating that a trophy had been donated by Sir Thomas Lipton, for the International event, was contained in a statement issued to-day by Captain Angus Walters, who sailed the Bluenose to her previous victories.

MAY BE A SUICIDE.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 30.—After a man had failed to return last night after having given a boy 20 cents to watch his car and enquired about the location of the deepest part of the adjoining St. Lawrence river, police opened the car and discovered letters apparently from one Bob Schlein, addressed to the Clermont Motors, Limited, 5363 St. Denis street, Montreal, and A. L. Sofsky, Montreal, in which the writer expressed the intention of committing suicide.

ABANDONS AIR TRIP.

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Aug. 30. —(A.P.) — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonal; arrived home to-day by train from London after having abandoned an airplane journey because of storms and fog.

FIVE MINERS DIE IN BLAST.

BLANTYRE, Scotland, Aug. 30. — (C.P.).—Five miners were killed and nine injured in an explosion in the Auchinraith Colliery here to-day. One of the injured is in a critical condition.

DUCK SHOOTING SEPT. 15.

Through an error it was recently stated in a news story in The Examiner that the duck shooting season in this district would open this year on September 1. The season does not open until September 15 in the region of Ontario south of the French and Mattawa rivers in which Peterborough district is included.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 30. (C.P.) The All-star Japanese English rugby team arrived here last night from the Orient on the S.S. Hawaii Maru. The Mipponese will play a series of games against representative teams of Victoria and Vancouver, the first of which will be staged here Monday afternoon.

FACTIONS FIGHT IN BUENOS AIRES

20 CUBANS ARRESTED.

Today's summary by the Associated Press of conditions in four American republics follows:

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 30. (A.P.)— Two persons were wounded, one a high police official, in street fights between adherents and rivals of President Yrigoyen. Military precautions against an organized revolutionary movement continued.

LIMA, Peru.—The new government had lodged the deposed President, Augusto B. Leguia and his son, Juan Leguia, in prison. Lieutenant Commander Harold B. Grow, American naval reserve officer who has been in charge of Peru's air forces, will be court-martialled for his support of Leguia during the revolution.

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil—the Government has denied rumors emanating from Uruguayan border towns that a revolution is imminent in the State of Rio Grande do Sul.

SANTA CLARA, Cuba—An investigation has begun of an alleged seditious plot to storm the army post at Cruces, seizing weapons there and starting a revolt. Twenty men are under arrest.

WHOLE VILLAGE MAY BE FLOODED

Harnessing of St. Lawrence Will Submerge Village of Iroquois.

OTHERS AFFECTED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., August 30 (C.P.). — Early action upon the remedial and restoration work which will be necessary along the waterfront of Dundas County in the event of the St. Lawrence Rapids being dammed for power development purposes, is recommended to the municipalities affected by H. G. Acres, appointed to act as consulting engineer in their behalf by the Provincial Government.

In a report presented to the municipalitise, Mr. Acres points out that under any one of the schemes proposed, flooding of the village of Iroquois will take place, and he recommends removal of the entire community to another site. To meet the situation at Morrisburg, part of which village would be flooded, he proposes the establishment of a dyke which would continue east to preserve the waterfront of Williamsburg Township, making provision for the preservation of the Lutheran and the Whitney Memorial Churches, as well as the manument marking the site of the Battle of Crysler's Farm, the latter being converted into a public park.

Mr. Acres' concluding recommendation is that this work be undertaken if possible, two years in advance of the letting of the main waterways contracts, "in order that the three Ontario municipalities involved may be in a position to serve the convenience of those engaged upon these contracts and profit thereby."

"If these municipalities are in a condition of general upheaval while the main contracts are in progress," he says, "other border towns would reap the bulk of the benefit from the heavy temporary activity which would be associated with the construction of the St. Lawrence Waterways."

SHERIFF KILLED SLAYERS ESCAPE

Posses Comb Country Following Battle With Rum Runners.

TWO ARRESTS.

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 30.—(Canadian Press). — Posses continued a search to-day for alleged rum runners who last night shot and killed Elmer L. Carter, 32, a deputy sheriff, and seriously wounded Joe Whitt, Altus policeman, when the officers attempted to halt their truck believed to contain a shipment of liquor for Borger, Texas.

Two brothers, Buster and Bernie Robertson, were held in Frederick, south-west of here, for investigation in connection with the shooting. wounds he had refused to explain.

The Robertsons were arrested at their home near Frederick, a short time after the shooting by officers who were searching for the slayers by Carter.

Whitt, shot in the head, was semi-conscious, but hospital attendants said he had a chance to recover.

KING AND QUEEN VISIT NEW GRAND DAUGHTER

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 30—(AP) —The King and Queen arrived today at Glamis Castle for the first view of their new grand-daughter, born to the Duchess of York Aug. 21.

They made the trip from Balmoral castle with the Duke of York, their second son, who had gone there early in the week to confer with his parents about a name for the baby Princess.

The King and Queen intended to return to Balmoral to-day.

A Greater Car in 7 ways

Reduced in price as much as $110, the New Series Pontiac Big Six is the greatest value on the market today. Pontiac, now listed for as little as $880 at factory, Oshawa, is a greater car because of these seven attributes.

Performance

There is a "zip" to Pontiac pick-up—a quick, even spurt that gets you away in advance of the pack when the green light blinks. Plenty of speed . . . as fast as you like . . . mile-a-minute or better. New Series performance—try it and see for yourself!

Safety

Because its centre of gravity has been materially lowered, Pontiac has a road-gripping ability, a road sureness and handling ease that would compliment a much bigger car. New Series performance—try it and see for yourself!

Comfort

The smoothness of the engine together with an improved four point insulated mounting reduces noise and increases comfort. Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers level out the roads. Weatherproof, rubber, draft collars, fitted to the steering column and pedals keep out the cold and dirt. New Series comfort—try it and see for yourself!

Ease of Handling

Pontiac's new worm and sector steering gear, adds immeasurably to the ease and accuracy of handling. Drive in ease and comfort—New Series style. Try it and see for yourself!

Dependability

Pontiac has always offered—and delivered—a long life of thoroughly enjoyable transportation. Now, more than ever, with great improvement in innumerable mechanical details, Pontiac Big Six gives true big car dependability and long life. New Series performance—try it and see for yourself!

Beauty

The Pontiac Big Six offers that beauty of line, proportion and color that is only possible in a really big car. New Series beauty—see it for yourself!

Economy

Pontiac owners everywhere write and tell us of the close economy which such features as the new intake manifold design have effected. New Series performance—try it and see for yourself!

The facilities of G M A C, General Motors' own time payment plan, are available to make purchase convenient. General Motors' Owner Service Policy assures your complete and continued satisfaction.

HASTINGS HIGHWAY IS SCENIC ROUTE

Roads Kept in Good Shape—Offers Splendid View of District.

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 30 (Examiner Correspondence)—Motoring from Peterborough county on the main highway through Hastings county by way of Marmora and Stirling the traffic is heavy during the holiday season. The roads are kept in excellent condition during the summer, road scrapers are operating continually at different intervals along the route. Along the highway leading to Belleville from the village of Stirling special mention might be made of the Oak Hills, on reaching the highest point one can command a panorama of the low lying lands below particularly Oak Lake summer resort where many summer residences are built. Chatterton and the village of Foxboro are en route before arriving at the bridge, (now undergoing repairs) leading across the Bay of Quinte to Prince Edward Island, the board walk on this bridge is being replaced by concrete and at the present time there is only one way traffic at Rossmore, the small village, at the approach of the Bridge in Prince Edward county, there is considerable activity in the way of new buildings under erection, there is one or two bungalows of Georgia Pine nearing completion. The highway through the Township of Sophiasburg commands a splendid view of the Bay of Quinte, the land at this part is not particularly good consisting of bed rock. Large quarries are in view in various places along the highway, where rock has been taken out and crushed for use in road repairing. On arriving at Bloomfield and leaving the paved road for the Sand Banks the first place of interest is the large Fox Farm; a number of Chinchilla rabbits are kept here. The owners of this valuable farm dispose of the fox fur not for breeding purposes, as heretofore. Throughout the route leading to the Sandbanks the farms are well cared for, the buildings of the best and the lawns deserve special mention. The farmers appear to be all progressive.

"West Lake View" is a popular resort before reaching the "Reforestration," where thousands of trees especially the spruce and willow are planted, this is the "Ontario Forestry Branch at Sand Banks Nursery." Reaching "Lake Shore Lodge" the popular resort at the end of the road one finds numerous summer houses with beautiful surroundings and Lake Ontario as a background. Tables and swings are at the disposal of picnic parties. The sand hills are particularly attractive. The huge waves from the lake continually wash up the shore line leaving small stones on the shore for some distance. The land surrounding the Sandbanks is not very good, a number of the nearby residents are often seen hauling pea straw and spreading it on the sandy loam to keep it from drifting.

There is a dance hall and refreshment booth on the "Lake Shore Lodge" grounds. The proprietor of the "Lodge" owns all the summer cottages at this resort and keeps them in splendid repair for the tourists.

WEDDING BELLS

HARRINGTON—O'BRIEN

WINDSOR, Aug. 30.—St. Patrick's Church, Railton on Saturday, August 23rd at 9:30 a.m. a very pretty wedding took place when Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edward O'Brien, Railton became the wife of John Joseph Harrington, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harrington of Ennismore, Ont.

The nuptial mass was conducted by Rev. Father Powell of Railton, assisted by Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore

The sanctuary was beautifully decorated with astors and gladioli. As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss May Joyce. She looked lovely in a dress of white crepe back satin made on long graceful lines with a jabot of white minon and Rose Point Lace. She wore a veil of white net embroidered in a pretty design, and a wreath of orange blossoms.

Miss Irene Callo, bridesmaid was charmingly gowned in a dress of yellow georgette with hat, etc. to match and carried a bouquet of mauve and yellow gladioli. The groom was assisted by his brother Mr. William Harrington.

Following the ceremony a sumptuous breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Later Mr. and Mrs. Harrington left for a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Windsor and Detroit. The bride travelled in a dress of green with fawn hat, hose, shoes, etc.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts including a number of cheques.

Radio night letters have been introduced in Germany this year.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Cattle receipts of 6,600 head on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week were 400 more than for last week. For the second consecutive week prices have held firm under fairly heavy supplies. The trend showed no weakening on butcher cattle, although the quality was generally poor. Butcher cows and bulls advanced slightly on Wednesday.

Heavy steers were plentiful, selling at from $4.50 to $7 a hundred with a top lot at $7.75. Handy butchers ranged from $5.50 to $6.50 for the bulk with a few choice at a higher level. Common killers sold downward to $3.50. Butcher cows closed at a top of $6.50 for choice lots. Butcher bulls closed at $4.50 to $5 with bolognas at $3 to $3.50.

There was a good demand for store cattle, but the bids were limited to around $5 for the best. A few good feeders sold up to $5.75 while the bulk of stores ranged between $4.50 and $5 a hundred. Milkers and springers were strong at $110 for the best. The market will be closed on Monday, September 1.

Calf receipts were 2,300 head, about the same number as for last week. Calves were 50 cents higher on Monday and Tuesday with tops at $12 cwt. The closing trade was weak at a top of $1 which was a loss of 50 cents for the week. Exporters were forced to bid lower on Wednesday owing to the weakness of American markets.

Hog receipts totalled 3,500 head, 300 more than for last week Hogs firmed at the opening and held steady at last week's close despite lower bids from packers. Prices were up a quarter on Wednesday, bacons selling at $10.50 f.o.b. or at $11.50 weighed off cars.

Sheep and lamb receipts were 8,600 head, 2,000 more than for last week. Trucks brought 3,000 lambs to the market. Lamb values were down 50 cents at the opening at $8.50 for good ewes and wethers. Tuesday's trade was steady with a quarter gain on Wednesday which was held to the close. Good ewes and wethers closed at $8.75 with culls and bucks mostly $5.75.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—The demand for all lines of cash grains here yesterday was fair, and prices were unchanged.

An easier feeling developed for rolled oats and values were reduced 10c per bag to $2.90.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the weakness that prevailed for bran and shorts and prices declined $2 per ton. Bran is now selling at $27.25 and shorts at $28.25.

The inquiry for butter was steady, and the undertone was firmer. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 28½c to 29c per lb. to retailers, solids were 31c and prints 32c per lb. Receipts were 3,069 boxes.

Dulness was the chief characteristic of the cheese markets, but values were unchanged. Quebec sold at 14½c, and Ontario's at 15c per lb. Receipts were 13,388.

A fair trade was done in eggs, and values were generally steady. Ontario grades. Montreal grading, sold at 35c to 36c per dozen for extras; 30c to 31c for firsts, and 24 to 25c for seconds. Receipts were 1,270 cases.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 30. — Wheat responded to a variety of bullish notes on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday strengthening in a final quarter-hour slump. Early gains in Chicago corn brought about the first upward swing, and later reports of better foreign buying of Canadian wheat and a decline in hedging pressure here, added to the drive. Selling pressure near the close wiped out most of the gains and the market finished unchanged to ¼c higher.

Local exporters were credited with foreign sales in excess of 500,000 bushels. Pit operations were in fair volume.

Cash wheat demand picked up, exporters, shippers, and millers all taking a hand in buying. Spreads were ¼c better. Coarse grains marked up substantial gains, mostly in sympathy with wheat.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Buoyancy developed in the corn market yesterday as a result of widespread belief that private corn crop estimates next week would show a sensational cut. According to current gossip, a leak indicated that one leading unofficial authority had reduced to 1,925,000,000 bushels his forecast of the 1930 crop, whereas the lowest predictions heretofore have been about 2,000,000,000 bushels. Flurried buying that ensued hoisted the corn market 3¼c a bushel, with some sales as high as $1 even, but then heavy profit-taking led to something of a reaction.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, 1 7-8c to 2 3-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed unchanged to 1 1-8c down, and oats 5-8c to 1 3-8c up, with provisions ranging from 10c setback to a rise of 5c.

Ever Charming, Ever New, the Glories of Rice Lake

Pen Picture Of Grandeur And Tragedy

By MAY McNEVAN
Keene, Ontario.

There is in Old Ontario no other lake of its size, approximately fourteen miles long and nowhere over six miles in width, which is of more romantic interest or which serves its people better than Rice Lake.

It forms part of the boundary line between Peterborough and Northumberland Counties and lies in a rolling farming country; its shore line is deeply indented; marshes extend into its waters and then again small, wooded islands rise like miniature mountains from its surface.

Along many parts of the shore the land gradually climbs upward until it reaches the crest of maple and oak-wooded hills; sprinkled lavishly amongst these trees are the sentinel pines. On one of these Northern hills the Serpent Mounds are located. These mounds stretch near the crest of the hill in serpentine-shaped ridges for a distance of at least one hundred yards. Within them are the skeletons and bones of the primitive settlers—the Indians.

As one stands on these Mounds with the sweet, fresh air blowing up from the lake and quickening the senses, one can imagine himself, waiting in ambush, behind one of the many nearby trees for the approach of the enemy; and again see the war-painted natives gliding noiseless and majestically up the lake in their birch-bark canoes. That this spot was the scene of an important battle of more than a century past, between the whitie settlers and the Indians, there is no doubt. Stories of this battle have been handed down from one generation to another, and about the beginning of the nineteenth century skeletons, Indian weapons, and many miscellaneous trinkets were excavated.

Two Indian Reservations.

Visible proof still remains, however, to show that the Indians were not entirely ousted from this district. There are two Indian Reservations, one on the Eastern and one on the Western side of the lake, and also the two Indian villages of Roseneath and Hiawatha, with their mission schools. Some of the natives live in log huts or black frame houses in the village, and others live in similar houses with an adjoining portion of land. As many of them are not fond of farming they usually rent this land to white people, living near by. Rice Lake affords them plenty of work, which they enjoy, without spending their time tilling the soil.

The land bordering on Rice Lake is very fertile and some very fine and valuable farms border its shores. S everal of thees are owned and operated by Americans who first visited Rice Lake as tourists They are modern and are equipped with running water, electric lighting and up-to-date buildings; they form a sharp contract to the Indian homes which are characterized by the simplicity of olden times.

The Rice Lake Indians belonged to Chippewa Tribe but the traits of cunning and war-like ferocity which were formerly characteristic of this people have entirely disappeared beneath the influence of Christianity and the Indians of today are peaceful settlers.

Expansive Rice Beds.

A leisurely paddle over the lake leaves one in no uncertainly as to the origin of the name, "Rice Lake" The rice beds are deserving of admiration and seen from a distance they resemble low green islands. When in flower, the rice has a beautiful appearance, with its broad grassy leaves and light waving spikes, covered with yellowish purple blossoms. Later the grain is produced in heads similar to oats. The stalk and root is often twenty feet in length.

Much black rice is reaped by the Indians ,each year. In the fall after the rice is ripe a canoe will be seen with its bronzed occupant knocking and bending over the stalks, so that the kernels of the rice plant fall into his canoe; later they are treated and the husks removed leaving the grain of black rice—long, and somewhat flat with a black surface and when cooked of a rich, mellow taste. Experimentation with the grain as well as the root of this rice plant is being carried on at present, and these are being shipped to far distant countries.

The muskrat has been called the cousin of the beaver, and here we find them both, especially the muskrat. The ideal home conditions, the large tracts of marsh, combined with plenteous food including the black rice, as well as a suitable climate—produce the best muskrat pelt found in the world. When milady buys her seal or muskrat coat it is well if the salesman can proudly boast, "Rice Lake skins, you know. The best possible."

The home of the muskrat—a dome shaped heap of reeds, mud and grass is to be found in the marsh; but it is impossible to distinguish these from the surrounding small trees, bulrushes and reeds. Indians as well as Whites, trap in the Spring for these little furry animals, with their long scaly tails.

Sportsmen's Paradise.

Rice Lake is a Sportsman's Paradise especially during the fishing and wild-duck shooting season. Of course, the Indian braves are so familiar with the lake that they are more at home here than on the land. As a result they are excellent guides and are much in demand by sportsmen and tourists. The lake is well-stocked with fish—bass, pickerel and maskinonge.

As soon as the ice breaks up, this lake is visited by numerous flights of wild ducks; some of these ducks have quite pretty plumage and are very finely flavored. They float tranquilly on the water for awhile and then rise and skim along the edge of the wooded shore, soon to return. They are in best condition during the early part of the Summer when the rice is green and later in the Fall when it is ripe. This they eagerly devour. Then during the still calm days of Indian Summer, Rice Lake reverberates with the shots from the Sportsmen's rifles.

Old Tragedies Recalled.

Many stories are told of the tragedies which this lake has witnessed. An old story which is fast fading from the memory ,of a sleigh-load of young people, returning home by way of the lake, from a dance, the horses unfortunately floundering into a large air-hole, the still further breaking away of the ice and only two or three returning to tell the tale.

Nor are the tragedies all, old ones. Every year the lake claims its toll of victims—usually, though not always, tourists, who are spending their vacation at Rice Lake.

A tragedy of a different nature in connection with our lake is also interesting—the building of a railroad across the lake some seventy-five years ago in order to cut off many miles of distance between Peterborough and Cobourg. Large gangs of men labored for months to build this track. For two or three months trains used this route and carried on one occasion, the late King Edward the VII. However, the road was unable to withstand the pressure and jamming of the ice, and thus all this labor and expense came to nought; all that remains to tell an old story of defeat is a dilapidated embankment, which projects in several places above the water.

Rice Lake has a charm all its own but for me to decide when its charms is the greatest is an unsolved problem.

Spring when the ice resembles a white honey-comb and later breaks up into blocks of various sizes and shapes. Later Spring—when the trees along the water's edge have budded and every little stream is carrying its contribution to the lake—when the music of rippling, running water and of the birds' sweet carolling is to be heard; when the wild-ducks in thousands are swarming the lake and as evening approaches the "Will-i-roo" of the frog soothes the ear.

The Glory of Summer.

Summer time! When a great golden sun and a light warm breeze causes a sparkle and ripple on its surface. Summer—when its wooded shores and islands are revelling in their cool green foliage, and small homey cottages flaunt their flags to the breeze and the Indian skillfully guides his canoe for the happy tourist. Summertime—when the black rice plant is in bloom, and the song and beauty of our Canadian birds, is to be heard and seen, amongst the trees and reeds of the marsh, and as evening approaches the occasional plaintive call of the whip-poor-whill.

Autumn—When all the reeds, small trees, and bushes of the marsh are arrayed in wondrous tints and a haziness and calm pervades the air.

Wintertime—The frozen lake, mostly sheer sparkling ice, with here and there small drifts of imprisoned snow, which the strong winds have been unable to oust from their resting place; or again patches of the rice plant, and every reed, bush and tree entangled and ladened down with a soft, white, glistening blanket. Winter—when a long narrow gap (air hole) in the ice appears and clear shining water stretches across the lake to a small island, shrouded mystically in white; or when the motionless figure of an Indian, fishing through the ice, is dimly discernible in the distance. Winter—when the smoke from the chimney of the lone cottage of the "muskrat island" ascends in a tall spiral column.

At which season do the Rice ake people love their lake the most? The problem still remains unsolved.

DUCK SEASON OPENS SEPTEMBER 15

Two more weeks and the duck shooting season will be open.

To the uninitiated that brief statement means little, if anything, but to many followers of the sport it is the beginning of things. That date, September 15th, has an imaginary or penciIled ring around it on many calenders throughout this district, and it is for that day that even now they are eagerly preparing.

Holidays have been so arranged that these men, with the love of the outdoors in their hearts, may have a day or two with the ducks. Not only is this true in Ontario, but also in the United States sportsmen are planning to cross the border around that day for a go at the ducks.

Peterborough and district is the mecca of duck shooters and along the marshes of Rice Lake, the Otonabee River and Pigeon Lake hundreds of hunters will again take up favored spots to await the birds. Contrary to that ditty, "they fly high in Mobile" it is a known fact that the ducks fly low in this neighbourhood. In fact for many weeks they fairly haunt the many marshlands in this district, feeding on the rice and other food that grow so abundantly. These waters seem to be a resting place on the long flight south.

Ducks at Chemong

Already it has been reported that a flock of wild ducks were seen flying about the south end of Chemong Lake. They passed several quiet nights and a few far-eyed sportsmen were hoping they would enjoy their stay and continue it until "opening day." But others whose sportsmanship was not so keen and who held small brief for an important ruling in the Ontario Game and Fisheries Law took down their guns and fired several volleys into the birds. It was sufficient to frighten away the flock and rise considerable ire among members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association.

Granted the fact that now there may now be some little poaching going on; September 15 is the opening date, and it is in the grey dawn of that day that duck hunters will be a-gunning. As the birds zoom up with the rising sun, there will be a bang, bang of shot guns along the river. Again as the dusk of evening falls Old Sol swings below the hills the birds will circle back to their haven of quiet water among the lily pads. Then, too, eager men will kneel in boats among the reeds with their eyes glued to the sky for the birds' flight. The guns will again belch lead pellets. This will go well into December, the season closes on the fifteenth of that month. Many will crouch and wait morning and evening while the wet veil of mist rises from the river in the hope of getting a bag of ducks.

Americans Attracted

Last year many Americans came to Peterborough especially for the duck shooting. These visitors are required to take out a special licence and Chris Graham, of the Empress Hotel, reports that some twenty-five were secured at his hotel alone. There are other places in the city were these licenses are sold and it is fair to estimate that at least a hundred and fifty Americans came here for the thrill of the ducks.

In other years many major league ball players came here at the conclusion of their season for a duck-shooting holiday. Such diamond stars as Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb, "the Georgia Peach," Coveleski, Roger Peckinpaugh and Nunamaker have shot over the water of the Kawartha Lakes.

POWELL SHUNS LOTHARIO ROLE

AVOIDS INTERVIEWS

Even an actor gets tired of talking about himself, says William Powell. But when he does talk he has a vocabulary that long. Though very dignified, he has the best dressing gown of them all, and a dimple in his cheek.

He never wants to play a ladies' man role on the screen. "Any man who sets himself up as one before whom women prostrate themselves," he said, "is taking a chance. He immediately sets up an antagonism, and most people are inclined to think, "Well, let him show us"

"I'll never forget," Mr. Powell remarked, when one reviewer in Hollywood wrote a story about me with the heading, "The Wittiest Man in Hollywood." I had the deuce of a time after that, I may be a wisecracker, but I'm far from a wit. My friends kidded the life out of me. 'Well, Will,' they would say, 'how about it? We haven't heard anything very witty from you tonight.' So, you see ,it's pretty bad to be put in a predicament where you are bound to fall short.

Business of Acting.

"But, as I have said before," the star continued, "I think that an actor's business is to act and not to talk about himself. That reminds me of a story John Charles Thomas told me the other night. It seems that a picture actor who had been holding out over himself for some while at last became a bit self-conscious and said, I have been talking about myself for a long time. Let's —well, let's talk about you now. What do you think of my latest picture?"

AMOS 'N' ANDY IRE PUBLICITY STAFF

Prefer to Remain Mysterious—Soft Pedal on Blurbs.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30.—Amos 'n' Andy are a nemesis to the publicity department at Radio Pictures. There are so many "don'ts" in connection with the blurbs going out about the comedians that the publicity agents have concluded there's little or no copy in the production or its principals.

Blackface team first refused to be photographed without their makeup, and the studio has learned that in the south and west it can't plant pictures of blacks and whites photographed with the team, but the pictures are lost for this reason.

Another sore spot is that the boys won't say anything about their personal lives, preferring to remain mysterious. Nor will they permit anyone not connected with actual production of the picture on the set. Fan mag writers are particularly peeved about this.

Colored people working in the picture, such as the Duke Ellington band, are also out of luck on publicity, due to the southern angle. About the only thing to be said about the entire picture, from the publicity office standpoint, is that Amos 'n' Andy are making a picture.

Another source of trouble to the studio is rehearsals of the Ellington band. Every time the boys get hot everybody on the lot stops work to get an earful of the music. When the boys play it looks like a mass meeting of studio employees, with the execs and stars in the front line.

SOVIETS WIRE 1,000 THEATRES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—The Soviet Government will wire 1,000 theatres throughout the United States of Soviet Russia, beginning in October.

For this purpose, Joe Koffman, representing the American firm of Audio-Cinema, has arrived to provide technical aid to the Soviets in the production of talkers, theatre wiring ,etc. Audio-Cinema has the U.S.S.R. wiring contract.

With Koffman's arrival the official channels of the Soviets made its announcement of the 1,000 houses.

BERLIN'S FILM'S START.

"Moon" Talker With Goulding Directing

Irving Berlin will soon commence production upon his talking "Reaching for the Moon," when shortly arriving at Hollywood. Edmund Goulding is reported having been secured by Berlin to direct the picture on the United Artists lot.

Ex-Moderator Elected

Rev. W. J. Clark, D.D., Montreal, Moderator of the General Assembly in 1922, is one of the senior commissioners sent to the General Council of the United Church of Canada at London, Ont., this year by the Montreal Presbytery. Dr. Clark was convenor of the Assembly's committee on union in stormies times.

THEATRE NEWS

'GRUMPY' OPENS CAPITOL YEAR

Followed by English Comedy Picture—Many Hits in Sight.

SOME OF THE BOOKINGS

The 1930-31 show world year opens with the return of September. For the Capitol theatre it brings the immediate prospect of some of the greatest pictures of recent creation.

Cyril Maude ushers in the new season with "Grumpy," which was presented here at the Grand some years ago by the celebrated actor himself. It will also be shown on Monday.

For Tuesday and Wednesday the Capitol is showing "Splinters" an English comedy picture now at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto. It is the intention of Paramount to include as many British-made "talkies" as possible

"Anybody's War" with Moran and Mack, famous radio team, and stars of "Two Black Crows". Moran and Mack have set a high mark for other black face comedians to shoot at. There is a vogue right now for black face comedy. Moran and Mack are dog catchers in Tennessee and doughboys in France in "Anybody's War." The hotter the fighting the faster the laughs. This feature comedy has been truly called "The Blackface Bombshell of Mirth."

"All Quiet on the Western Front". This production is too well known to require comment here, suffice to say, that it has just completed a phenomenal run at the Royal Alexandra theatre in Toronto, where it played to capacity business at $1.50 top prices. It will be seen locally in October.

'Animal Crackers" with the Four Marx Brothers, who will be remembered for their work in 'The Cocoanuts." The merry mad stars of "The Cocoanuts" are at it again. Sweeping the country with fresh gales of laughter. Annihilating old man gloom with volleys of joy, in the roaring big bertha of mirth "Animal Crackers." If you saw this picture three times you wouldn't catch all the laughs. It is said to be ten times funnier than "The Cocoanuts."

"Manslaughter", Paramount's big special, should make a sensation in Canada. It has all the elements that go to make good entertainment. Drama, comedy, romance, tense suspenseful situations. The story is full of human interest and the principals are ideally cast for their respective roles. They include, Claudette Colbert, Frederic Marsh, Emma Dunn, Natalie Moorhead and Richard Tucker.

"Common Clay" with Constance Bennett, is a Fox Movietone dramatization of the famous Harvard prize play of the same name, in which the distinguished actress Jane Cowl, scored one of her greatest stage successes. Fans whose tastes have turned a little from the musical type of sound picture, will find excellent entertainment on "Common Clay" which has proved to be one of the biggest hits of the new show world season.

"Song of My Heart" with John McCormack". A rare privilege will be yours when you hear and see on the audible screen the incomparable singer whose throbbing voice brings tears to the eyes and gladness to the heart. The story is tenderful of charm and beauty—young love—young passion — echoing back the beauty of the voice singing so grandly, so sweetly.

Greta Garbo in her second talking picture, "Romance"; Ronald Colman in "Raffles"; Richard Barthelmess in "The Dawn Patrol", and Ruth Chatterton in "Anybody's Woman" will also be seen locally in the near future.

MOVIETONE FOLLIES FEATURE AT REGENT

El Brendel Leads Star Cast, Beginning To-day.

Bookings for next week at the Regent Theatre include one of the latest screen successes. "The New Movietone Follies of 1930," which will be on the screen here commencing Saturday. The change of program on Wednesday next will introduce a Columbia all-talking romance featuring Jack Egan—an actor who enjoys the reputation of being one of the most amiable and even-tempered thespians in Hollywood. Others starring in this Columbia picture are Ernest Hilliard, Howard Hickman, Gertrude Short and Eileen Percy.

"The New Movietone Follies of 1930" is produced under the direction of Benjamin Stoloff and features such well-known stars as El. Brendel, Marjorie White, William Collier Jr., Noel Francis, Frank Richardson and Miriam Seegar.

Romance—there you have the keynote of the picture. It is a beautiful love tale, well told, filled with sentiment, balanced with comedy and concluding with a startling surprise at the climax.

ANNA MAY WONG'S RETURN.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—It remained for Vienna to be the scene of Anna May Wong's legit debut in a musical play, "Chun Chi," allegedly authored by an Englishman, Clifford, but who's suspected of having cradled not far from the Danube. Music is by Gardener. Miss Wong contributed her venture and will have five of his own Chinese lyrics.

ELSIE FERGUSON DEVELOPS PEEVE

Elsie Ferguson went to San Francisco for her production of "Fata Morgana" and brought with her a pet poooh. Dog didn't care for the train ride and got sick. This upset Miss Ferguson's good nature, and when she left the train and was met by a gang of dramatic editors, press photographers and sob sisters, she waved them aside regally and announced "couldn't be annoyed." Later she sent word to the papers that she wouldn't be in a mood to receive interviewers during her first week's engagement, but would see them the second week. Drama eds. got a pout of their own and returned word they weren't interested.

Several nights after the show opened a situation in the first act caused some of the audience to snicker. Miss Ferguson made a speech at the end of the act in which she reprimanded the customers.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

STAGE AND SCREEN NOTES

Al Jolson has been offered $12,000 a week to head Earl Carrol's new revue "Personalities", which Carroll proposes to make a winter annual.

"Cimmarron's" femme lead role of "Sabra" has finally been assigned by Radio Pictures to Irene Dunn, contract player. Opposite Richard Dix, the star.

Ann Harding's next picture is to be "Rebound," the screen version of the play by Donald Ogden Stewart. E. H. Griffith, who directed "Holiday" will serve in the same capacity for "Rebound." Hope Williams had the leading role when the play was seen at the Plymouth Theatre in New York last year.

Gloria Swanson is to be in New York for the premiere of her newest film, 'What a Widow!" which will come to the Rialto late in September. Vincent Youmans composed three of the songs she sings during the course of the story. They are: "Love Is Like a Song," "You're the One" and "Say Oui, Cherie."

Donald Henderson Clarke, who wrote the novel "Louis Beretti," from which "Born Reckless," in which Edmund Lowe had the leading role, was adapted, has written another story which will appear shortly on the audible screen. This new story, "Millie", will be made into a talking picture by Charles R. Rogers, a former stage producer whose affiliation with Radio Pictures was announced recently. "Millie" concerns the adventures of a titian-haired girl with an inferiority complex.

1000 VAUDEVILLE ACTORS HAVE QUIT

Heavy Casualties During Seven Months of 1930.

Close to 1,000 vaudeville actors quit the show business during the first seven months of 1930. All walked on account of eating.

Among them were around 200 former standard vaude teams and combinations, whose joint salaries on the stage ranged from $250 to $500 weekly when the small time flourished. They are now holding down commercial jobs at $25 or $50 salaries.

Last winter it was estimated that about 300 had departed from the vaude profession. Since then the number has more than tripled, with the summer driving most to other methods of gaining a livelihood.

Actors whose ages range from 25 to 40 are the most difficult to place commercially, in that a taste of show biz has soured them toward anything else, with the theatre life and commercial way of living and working miles apart. It's extremely hard for them to become accustomed to the hours and the work—and the salaries. After a short time the low salaries, in contrast to the vaude salaries they formerly secured, provoke a yen for the stage once more. The hope that some day they might get a break back in the show biz seemingly never dies in them.

TED LEWIS TO 'DISBAND'

Ted Lewis will organize a completely new orchestral personnel.

Lewis is voluntarily disbanding his old aggregation, many of the musicians having been with him for several years, but because of this they have become too tough to handle, according to their leader. Lewis may retain one or two key instrumentalists around whom to build up his brass or reed sections, but favors an altogether new and youthful collegiate personnel.

A BREAK FOR PAULINE

Pauline Garon's parlez vouz Francais is doing well by her. Hal Roach heard her French accent and promptly signed her to play opposite Charley Chase in a series of French comedies. No trick for Pauline to talk French for she was raised in Canada and she is of French parentage. She learned French before she learned English.

'HELL'S ANGELS' COST $4,000,000

Seventy-Eight Air Pilots Engaged in Howard Hughes' Picture.

JEAN HARLOW'S SUCCESS

"Hell's Angels" is said to have cost $4,000,000.

Besides the eighteen name parts in this film there are twenty players of minor roles. Seventy-eight air pilots and thirty camera men were employed to film the various scenes. The picture was directed by Howard Hughes, who is 26 years old. He was assisted in that end of the work by Reginald Callow, William J. Scully and Fred A. Fleck.

Five years ago Mr. Hughes inherited his father's prosperous oil tool business. Soon, the young man, who incidentally is a nephew of Rupert Hughes, turned over the management of the Hughes Tool Company to his associates and went to Hollywood to have a go at producing motion pictures. It might be mentioned that Mr. Hughes is one of the crack golfers of Southern California and also a licensed airplane pilot.

Mr. Hughes's first real pictorial venture was "Two Arabian Nights," which cost $460,000 and brought in nearly $1,000,000. He also produced "The Racket" and "The Mating Call."

To direct the silent version of Hell's Angels" Luther Reed was borrowed by Mr. Hughes from Paramount. Ben Lyon and James Hall, who head the cast of the presentation now on exhibition, were also in the mute film. Greta Nissen filled the role which was later allotted to Jean Harlow in the talking film.

Hughes' New Star.

Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde star of "Hell's Angels," is having a grand time on her first tour of Broadway. "A Kansas City girl in a big city," is the way she puts it.

Since the twin premiere of the Howard Hughes' talking spectacle two weeks ago Friday she has purchased thirty-one gowns and has seen a different play every night, not counting the 110 interviews, which seem to occupy her afternoons.

Miss Harlow, is a Missouri society girl who went to Hollywood merely as some place to go. Ben Lyon met her an "introduced her to the folks." Mr. Hughes was impressed And there you are.

Now she is under a five year contract, and, in a week, she returns to start work on the Jed Harris thriller, "The Front Page," the next Hughes' talking picture.

"I may not come to New York again in several years, so I am making the most of every incandescent hour," said Miss Harlow. As she spoke six photographer's were waiting to snap her picture. She continued:

'I am only a young girl, as you can see for yourself. My grandfather threatened to disinherit me for going into pictures, but since he has heard the good reports of the production, all is forgiven."

PUBLICITY SETS MARY NOLAN BACK

The Former Imogene Wilson in Narcotic Report.

Warners has postponed production on "Ex-Mistress," being temporarily unwilling to go up against the recently unfavorable narcotic publicity given Mary Nolan, who was slated for the top spot in the flim.

Scheduled to start on the 18th the studio officially alibied the suspension as due to dissatisfaction with the story. It is reported another girl may fill the part intended for Miss Nolan.

The break is unfortunate for Miss Nolan in view of the fact that she was completely exonerated by the Federal agents following front page blurbs founded on charges made by two nurses.

Bebe Daniels will replace Miss Nolan It will be the first time she has appeared opposite her husband, Ben Lyon, since their marriage.

It may mean that "Reaching for the Moon," the Irving Berlin (UA) picture, in which Miss Daniels is to appear opposite Douglas Fairbanks, has been temporarily postponed.

Warners may have to pay Universal $30,000, the stipulated loan price for Mary Nolan, U will exercise the play or pay clause following Warner's selection of Miss Daniels.

Latvia has bumper grain harvests this year.

CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCTS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Improvement in Cheese Quality Since Grading Introduced.

CREAMERY BUTTER SLOW

Revival in Dairying Started in Fall of 1928—Gained Since November, 1929.

Since 1921 the total output of dairy products in Canada has tended to rise, says a recent Canadian Pacific Railway bulletin. There have, of course, been year-to-year fluctuations in the relative amounts of the different products manufactured, but on the whole the increase has been steady, the bulletin adds. "Obviously, milk inclines to that line of manufacturing that is most profitable to producers," it continues, "so that the total production of milk becomes the index of the state of the industry as a whole. The following table gives the production from 1921 to 1927, the 1928 figures being not yet available:

	Total Milk Production. Milk	Fat	Equivalent Value
	Lbs.	Lbs.	Dollars.
1921—	9,863,324,358	345,216,351	205,436,350
1922—	9,847,932,218	344,677,224	197,717,345
1923—	11,765,564,229	411,794,743	233,629,038
1924—	12,045,076,272	421,577,734	234,659,368
1925—	12,539,076,384	438,867,661	266,901,705

"The above figures are compiled from the milk equivalent of the creamery butter, cheese and other manufactured products, and the milk and cream exported, the quantities of which are definitely known, together with the estimated quantity of milk and cream used for direct consumption, and that which is used for dairy butter. Because of these estimates, which can be verified only in the decennial census years, strict accuracy is not claimed for the yearly totals, but as the same basis of calculation is employed every year it is believed that the increases shown are reasonably reliable.

"Although, as shown above, the increase in the quantity of milk produced has been steady and substantial, it has not been large enough during the last two years to satisfy the greatly increased consumption of milk and its products. These home requirements in 1928 exceeded those of 1924 by the equivalent of 70,000,000 pounds of butter ,or 143,000,000 pounds of cheese. There has not been any large increase in the production of creamery butter in Canada during the last two or three years. The increases in some parts of the Dominion have been offset by decreases in others, due to the efforts of the farmers to specialize in big wheat crops. In the autumn of 1928, however, there was a revival of interest in dairying, and since November last year there has been a substantial gain. As an instance of this, from Jan. 1 to April 30, 1929, the increase in dairy products in Saskatchewan was 111 per cent. as compared with the same period of the previous year.

"Canadian cheese is much in demand in the world's markets, and there has been a wonderful improvement in quality in recent years owing to the grading system. In 1928 the percentage of first-grade cheese for the whole of Canada was 93.1, as compared with 78 per cent. in 1923, the year in which the grading system was inaugurated. This improvement in quality, coupled with a new demand in the United Kingdom for high - grade Cheddar cheese, owing to the decrease in the production of this type of cheese in England and Scotland, has placed Canadian cheese in the most favorable position it has occupied since the export trade began in 1886. This was proved by the substantial increase in the output of Canadian cheese in 1928 as compared with the preceding year."

Regular Picking Prolongs Blooms

Bloom can always be prolonged with both annuals and perennials where the flowers are picked regularly. In the case of Sweet Peas, this will mean every day, and almost as often with other things. Many of the perennials will bloom a second time and some of them three times in the same season if they are cut back. When the old flowers are past their best, shear away all stalks producing them. This may mean the removal of practically everything above ground in the case of delphiniums, and the columbine. With the phlox, simply shearing off the flowers will usually be sufficient. The same is true with borders of alyssum which, if cut down to within an inch of the ground and watered well, will bloom again in about ten days. Of course where intensive bloom is encouraged, it is important to supply extra food, and a good mixed commercial fertilizer is recommendde.

P.E.I. Cheesemakers Set Fine Record

KINGSTON, Aug. 30.—(Special to The Examiner).—There are four cheesemakers in Prince Edward County who have made 100 percent firsts and special cheese so far this season, John Hall, Quinte factory, Redneerville; Herb. S. Channel, Cloverdale; Roblin Dulmage, Elmbrook, and David Founder, Royal Street. This is an enviable record. To make 100 percent firsts and specials means that there must not be a single second grade cheese. A little too much acidity, poor finish of cheese, too much color, or flavor, etc., will put the grading down.

USE GROWING MASH

Be Sure There is Plenty of Roosting Quarters—Crowding Harmful.

September is here, and to get a large yield of eggs during the later fall and winter months we have to depend upon the pullet crop.

Too many poultrymen become a bit careless with the young stock at this stage, making them shift too much for themselves. They do not give the pullets half enough feed, nor the proper kind, and are inclined to over-crowd them. It is not giving the birds a fair chance.

Pullets are growing every day so consequently need more room in the colony house and on the perches at night as they reach maturity. Lack of proper roosting quarters results in their piling up in a corner. Crowding in a corner causes the birds to sweat and in turn makes them susceptible to colds, chicken-pox and kindred diseases. Many good pullets have been ruined in just that way.

A good growing mash should be available in hoppers, both on the range and in the colony house.

Be sure that there is plenty of hopper space so that the birds have unlimited opportunity to eat all the mash they want once a day—give them what coarse chick feed they will clean up in half an hour.

A pullet to stand up under heavy continuous fall or winter production must be well matured and in good flesh when she lays her first egg.

What little extra it may cost to properly house and nourish the birds the last month of the growing period will be more than offset by the extra eggs you will get when egg prices are exceptionally good. We urge you to give all the attention you can to the young stock this month.

GRAIN STORAGE IS NOT COSTLY

If Harvest is Threshed When Exceedingly Dry It May Increase in Weight.

REDUCE HANDLING COST

Farmers who plan to store grain, need not hesitate to do so because they fear that their crop will shrink in weight H. D. Hughes, in charge of farm crops work at Iowa State College, states that although grain may shrink a little in storage, it is almost as likely to increase in weight."

Shrink in small grain, when there is a shrink, seldom exceeds 1 per cent, but it may run up to 2 or 3 per cent if threshed damp or the humidity is high. In any case, Mr. Hughes points out, the shrink cannot be very much, because if much moisture is contained in the grain it will not keep.

If grain is threshed after it has been left out in the hot sun and is exceedingly dry, it may actually increase in weight from threshing time until it is marketed.

Considerations in cost of storing grain then, do not have to include any charge for shrinkage. A more important factor which is often the reason for farmers hesitating to store their crop, is the labor cost of unloading and loading again at the bin. Here is an expense which can be cut down. Various types of elevators will do the work easily and quickly. Portable outfits take the grain from the wagon and put it into any bin with an outside opening. A small gas engine or electric motor furnishes low cost power. In modern barns, inside cup elevators are a common fitting. These are always rigged up for use, and elevate the grain into the second story where space is plentiful. Spouts carry it back into the wagons. No extra scoopers are needed when an elevator is used.

EXPERIMENTS AID MUCH IN FARMING ACROSS DOMINION

Work on 26 Experimental Farms and Stations Credited With Big Accomplishments.

NEW KINDS OF WHEAT

Linking of West With East Meant Great Advance to Agriculture.

Announcements of the extension of the works of the experimental farms of the Dominion calls attention to the part played by these institutions in the development of agriculture in that country.

"Canada's basic industry, says a Canadian Pacific Railway bulletin, "has made great strides in recent years and the contribution of science to this progress has been substantial. The estimates for the Department of Agriculture presented to Parliament for the current year provide for the strengthening of the experimental farms in several directions. These include additions to the staff of field husbandmen, cerealists bacteriologists and other scientists. It is from the cereal division that perhaps the greatest services of science to agriculture have come, the most outstanding being the discovery of Marquis wheat.

"The work of the Dominion Experimental Farms, begun only in 1886, at the present time includes twenty-six experimental farms and stations with a total of 12,818 acres as compared with 3,472 acres on the original five farms. It would be impossible to enumerate, much less describe these operations here; but one outstanding achievement deserves special mention. Wheat of the Prairie Provinces is famous for its hard, dry, glutinous quality. Apart from the effects of the climate and soil, its success has been largely due to the excellence of the red Fife variety, which was discovered accidentally in 1842 by an Ontario farmer named David Fife.

Marquis Wheat Evolved.

"In 1903, however, an improved variety known as "Marquis" was produced by the cereal division of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. During the last ten years the success of this variety has been such that it has now almost entirely superseded the red Fife. The use of this new variety of wheat has increased by millions of dollars annually the revenue derived from wheat-growing by the farmers of Western Canada. Still more recent products are varieties called 'garnet' and 'reward.' These are now being tried and multiplied upon an extensive scale and great hopes are entertained for their future.

"A few figures will illustrate the immense advance made by agriculture in Canada. From 1890 to 1929 the area under field crops has grown from about 15,600,000 acres to over 59,000,000 acres, an increase of 282 per cent during the last forty years. It is in regard to wheat that agricultural progress has been most remarkable. For ten years after Confederation the wheat crop rarely exceeded 25,000,000 bushels and imports of wheat and flour exceeded by nearly 9,000,000 bushels.

"It was not until 1898 that the wheat yield exceeded 50,000,000 and exports reached what was then the record total of 24,500,000 bushels. Seven years later the production of wheat exceeded 100,000,000 bushels. In 1911 there were yields well over 200,000,000 bushels and in 1915 came the phenomenal record of 393,500,000 bushels, the average yield per acre being twenty-six bushels. During six of the last seven years the total of 1915 has, however, exceeded this crop, the record being reached in 1928 with 566,000,000 bushels. Last year there was a short crop of only 294,000,000 bushels.

East and West Linked.

"'In 1866 the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway,' states a history of agriculture issued under the authority of the Department of Trade and Commerce, 'linked East and West, made the Dominion for the first time an economic unit and opened up the great prairie lands of the Middle West, with their soils of virginal fertility. The prairie Provinces have since gradually come to produce all the wheat of the Dominion.'

"'Thus, in 1870, 85 per cent of the wheat of Canada was grown in Ontario; this proportion was little more than 6 per cent in 1929, while in Saskatchewan the proportion increased from 4 per cent in 1890 to about 53 per cent in 1929. A similar change is observable in the case of barley and oats. In 1929 for barley 78 per cent and for oats about 49 per cent of the total crop was grown in the Prairie Provinces. The first carload of Western wheat left Winnipeg for Montreal by the new all-Canadian railway only in December, 1885.'

"The value of the field crops of the Dominion as a whole reached its peak just after the close of the war, when prices were high. This was followed by a sharp decline, but recent years have again seen rising values. The value of the field crops of Canada in 1910 was $384,513,000. Their maximum value in 1919 was $1,537,170,000. By 1923 it had receded to $899,226,000. Recovery of prices, however, combined with excellent harvest, has brought the value of field crops up to $1,125,000,000 in 1928 and about $986,000,000 last year."

HEAVY INCREASE IN WORLD WHEAT

Production This Year Estimated at 712,000,000 Hundredweight.

COARSE GRAINS SHRINK.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 29. (A.P.) The International Institute of Agriculture announced to-day the world's 1930 production of wheat will be 712,000,000 hundredweight, compared with 677,000,000 last year.

The figure is 21,000,000 hundredweight more than the five year average of 691,000,000.

Rye is 1,000,000 hundredweight below last year's figure which was 140,000,000.

Barley and oats are below the 1929 figure.

Extreme dry weather has had a detrimental effect upon crops. Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, France, England and Italy are listed by the Institute as having suffered from drought followed by rainstorms.

Spain and Balkan and Baltic countries report excellent crops.

TOURIST TRAFFIC IS SLOWING DOWN

First Two Weeks of August Was Peak of Season With 400 Tourists Daily.

SEVERAL FROM CALIFORNIA.

Tourist traffic through the city is now rapidly slackening off according to reports from the tourist information bureau operated by the Peterborough Automobile Club at the corner of Charlotte street and Monaghan road. The peak was passed during the first two weeks this month.

The picturesque little building opened on June 30 and attendants recorded the passage of 500 cars bearing American licenses into the city during the first week of July. They estimate that an equal number of tourists from other sections of Ontario came in. The traffic continued at this rate throughout the month they report, and shortly after the first day of August the number of incoming cars jumped to a new high which remained until the end of the second week. About 400 tourists a day came through during the two weeks.

The average stay of tourists who have passed through this city from the Port Hope highway is set between 10 days and two weeks by observers at the bureau. Some they state have passed through to the lakes to the north for three or four days fishing but others come and settled for a month or more in cottages on the Kawarthas.

Most from Ohio

With regard to American tourists, the state of Ohio was the most heavily represented of the United States but closely followed by the state of New York. Pennsylvania has been a good third. However, at one time or another during the summer the attendants of the bureau have seen license plates from almost every state in the union. About seven cars have come through from California. This year eight cars from the Prairie Provinces in Canada came through.

The bureau is now kept open between 2 p.m. and 9 p.m. each day under the supervision of Harold Chadwick. It will be closed for the season this Sunday night.

TO AID RIPENING NIP MAIN STEM

Pull Onions Up and Let Be For Day or Two When Tops Wilt.

PUT BOARD UNDER MELONS

To encourage early ripening of tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, pumpkins, and similar rank-growing vegetables, nip off the end of the main stem. In the case of tomatoes, the stem should be pinched off when it has reached the top of the stake supporting them, as otherwise no ripe fruit will be secured from flowers opening now. It is also a good plan with all these vegetables or fruits to remove some of the leaf growth to let in the sun. To mature melons evenly, particularly in wet weather, it is often worth while to place a shingle or thin piece of board under the melon and to turn the fruit a little every day to prevent rotting and to insure even ripening.

When the onion tops wilt and turn yellow, it is time they were harvested. While the weather is hot and dry, pull up and let lie on the ground for a day or two, and then store in some place that is cool and most certainly dry. Sort well before putting away, removing any diseased specimens and setting aside those with thick necks which should be used up first.

If your beans are being attacked with the disease which shows itself in black spots on the pods, anthracnose is present. Keep out of the patch when the vines are wet with dew or rain, and remove all plants with affected pods and destroy.

While passing through Alton, England, recently, a thirsty circus elephant forced as much of his bulk as it could through the door of a saloon, extended its trunk to the bar and refused to move until given a quart of "the best."

SEVENTY-SEVEN ENTRIES IN FALL SCHOOL FAIRS SET NEW RECORD

2,000 LISTS MAILED

Two thousand prize lists have been mailed to students in rural schools throughout the county in preparation for the 1930 series of school fairs in the various townships. The first will be at Ennismore on September 15 and the last will be the Peterborough District School Fair at Peterborough on September 26. The championship fair is scheduled for October 14 and 15 at Norwood.

The fairs are organized and run under the direction of the Ontario Department of Agriculture through its representative, J. B. Nelson, in this county.

In part the announcement reads, "During the last twenty years school fairs have become an established institution in Ontario. Throughout that time they have been growing in interest and value and in so far as Peterborough County is concerned the 1930 fairs promise to be greater than ever. A record entry of seventy-seven schools as compared with seventy-two in 1929 shows that increasing interest.

Pupils Do Own Work.

"The value of school fairs is in direct proportion to the work done by the pupils in preparing their exhibits and showing them at the fairs. The pupil who learns the most from the school fair is the one who exhibits in a large number of classes and who does all the work himself.

"Parents are urged to allow the children to do all the work in preparing the exhibits. Encourage them in every way but remember that the work you do for them helps to defeat the object of the school fair which is to teach the boys and girls to do things for themselves."

The following program will be generally followed in the 1930 school fairs:

9.30 to 10.30 a.m.—Placing of exhibits.

10.30 to 11.00 a.m.—Races and sports.

10.30 to 2.30 p.m.—Judging of exhibits.

11.00 to 12 a.m.—Livestock and domestic science judging competitions.

12.00 to 1.00 p.m.—Lunch.

1.00 to 2.00 p.m.—Massed parade of schools.

2.00 to 2.15 p.m.—Judges comments on exhibits.

2.15 to 3.00 p.m.—Speaking contests and spelling match.

2.30 to 4.30 p.m.—Exhibits open for inspection.

3.00 to 4.00 p.m.—Judging livestock and explaining placings.

4.30 to 5.00 p.m.—Removal of exhibits.

No Admission Or Entry Fee.

No admission fee and no entry fee is to be charged in connection with the fairs. Pupils eligible to exhibit are those who are attending schools participating in school fair work and who have not passed the entrance examinations previous to June 1930. Fifth Book pupils may exhibit in classes specially mentioned in the prize list. All exhibits must be in place by 10.30 o'clock the morning of the fair and no classes will be rejudged to accommodate late exhibits. Exhibits must not be removed before 4.30 o'clock.

At all fairs, six prize ribbons will be awarded in all classes in the prize list. To the pupil in each school who wins the largest number of points at his school fair, the Ontario Department of Agriculture will present a handsome certificate of honor. A schedule of cash prizes will be followed.

Excellent shields have been provided for the school making the best showing in the parade and for the school making the greatest average number of points per pupil in the whole fair. Both are to be won three times.

The T. Eaton Company has again provided handsome first, second and third prizes for the champion pupils at each school fair.

Every pupil who wins a prize at a local school fair may compete in that class at the Championship Fair at Norwood when such a class is included in the prize lists. Prize-winning exhibits from the local fair may be exhibited or the pupil may prepare a new exhibit.

CORN EATING CONTEST.

The combined Young People's Societies of the Keene and Westwood Presbyterian Churches held a corn roast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wood on Wednesday evening The main feature of the evening was a corn eating contest, in which the winning side ate well over a hundred cobs. We extend our sympathy! Besides this, several other enjoyable games were played. Miss Helen Gillespie, who is leaving shortly to train for a nurse in Hamilton, entertained some twenty of her friends at her home on Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Misses Edith, Jean and Bertha Elmhirst, Ferne and Mabel McCarthy, Isabel, Wilena and Helen Nelson, Dorothy Kindree, Mary Hastie, Dorothy Chapman, Marjorie Francis, Olive McNevan, Dorothy Gainor, Lillian Bowie, Marion Comrie, Helen Weir, Reta and Zetta Wilson.

Miss Marian Gillespie has returned to the village after spending a few days with friends on Rice Lake.

Everyone will be glad to know that Miss Wilena Nelson has recovered from her recent operation.

Mrs. Morton Brown and her son Master Paul Brown, of Toronto with Mrs. George Miller of Ann Arbor, Michigan, have returned to their home after spending a day with their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Brown.

Mrs. James Wilson, with her daughters Viola and Reta and her son Harold, left Keene on Thursday morning to spend a few days in Toronto at the Exhibition.

FORMER LINDSAY COUPLE ON VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown, St. Petersburg, Vacationing Around Old Home.

RENEWS ACQUAINTANCES.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Brown of St. Petersburg, Florida, and formerly of Lindsay, are at present spending an extended vacation in tihs district, having motored from the south. They have already toured through Rochester, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. While in Quebec province they visited the famous shrine at St. Anne de Beaupre and in conversation with the Examiner, expressed their intention of revisiting the shrine on some future occasion.

Mr. Brown stated he was profoundly impressed with the Cyclorama at St. Annes, particularly with the tapestries and carved figures portraying incidents in the life of Christ.

It will be remembered by residents of this district that Mr. Brown was for a number of years asisstant postmaster at Lindsay. Owing to failing health he sought the healing clime of the south where he and his wife have resided for the past eight years. Annually since that time, with the exception of last year, they have revisited their native district.

When in Cobourg recently Mr. Brown met several American and Canadian friends with whom he had become acquainted in the south and also met one of his old school friesds, Judge O'Connor.

City Just a Playground.

"St. Petersburg is a playground," said Mr. Brown, "and attracts a vast crowd of Canadian people who winter there." He said that he met thirty-three Lindsay people in St. Petersburg last winter. The Canadian Club in that city has a membership of 2,000 people.

Almost every conceivable kind of sport is played in St. Petersburg and shuffleboard which has been popular for some years is now being played with ever increasing interest. There is a Shuffleboard Club with 3,000 members.

Always a baseball enthusiast, Mr. Brown spoke eagerly of the fact that the New York Giants and Boston Braves establish their winter camps in St. Petersburg and attract large crowds to witness their work-outs.

Hotel guests in St. Petersburg are not required to register, explained Mr. Brown, but all newcomers are expected to register at the Chamber of Commerce. Canadians are listed in a special register as also are the citizens of each state in the union. By this system it is possible to find the whereabouts of any friend whose correct address may be in doubt.

The cost of living, thought Mr. Brown, compares favourably with that obtaining in Canada, although he would not advise anyone to go to St. Petersburg in search of work. Work is practically unknown in that city, which is only a playground for the 'idle' rich.

Mr. Brown has two brothers in Lindsay, Mr. Harley Brown of the Watchman-Warder and W. J. Brown, also two sisters, Mrs. Shelly of Sturgeon Point and Mrs. Flagg of Lindsay.

NEW CIGAR STORE BEING FURNISHED

Contractor Renovating Premises Formerly Occupied By Riley and Hickey.

Fulfilling the urgent demand for additional accommodation, the Elite Sweets Cafe recently purchased the adjoining shoe-shine parlor and hat cleaning establishment and also took a lease on the store formerly occupied by Riley and Hickey.

The store is at present in the hands of the contractors and is undergoing complete renovation, in readiness for the early removal of the shoe-shine parlor, which will in future be known as Louis' Cigar Store.

Handsome gum wood fixtures, which will be finished in a walnut effect have been installed by the McDonald Lumber Company, while J. J. Turner, Ltd., is completing the signs. Incidentally the large electric flash sign outside the cafe was also installed by this well known local firm at a cost of $900.

Painting is in charge of J. L. Young of Rubidge street, while the handsome stucco effect plastering in the interior of the spacious double windows was executed by Harris and Boddy. It is understood that the contract for the alterations to the store, not including the cost of the beauty parlor which is being installed at the rear by Ed. Wright of Charlotte street, amounts to $6,000.

Opening early next week the Louis Cigar Store and Shoe Shine Parlor will constitute one of the finest establishments of its kind between Toronto and Montreal, both as regards the appointments and service, and will be quite an acquisition to the business section of the city.

Just as soon as the premises now occupied by the old shoe shine parlor are vacated the contractors will commence the work of remodelling the building to provide additional accommodation to the Elite Sweets Cafe.

JANET GAYNOR DROPPED $45,000

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30.—Janet Gaynor returned to the Fox lot Friday, August 15 and will undertake the part originally intended for her opposite Charlie Farrell in "The Man Who Came Back." This heals the breach between the studio and actress existing since last spring.

Miss Gaynor lost n salary $45,000 through her Fox revolt. She had been on the salary roll at $2,750, but dropped off in April, last.

LISTERIAN EULOGY ENDS CONVENTION

Lord Moynihan of Leeds to Speak For British Surgeons.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 29 (By the Canadian rPess).—Two of England's brightest medical luminaries shine to-day at the closing sessions of the British Medical Association's 98th annual meeting which brought nearly 2,000 doctors to the four-day convention. To-night hundreds of physicians and surgeons pack up their kitbags and move home-ward—to Australia, India, Ireland, Britain, to every part of the world.

Few of the delegates will depart before the night-session's Listerian oration by the celebrated Lord Moynihan of Leeds. The address is a triennial event to commemorate the debt that surgery owes to the late Lord Lister.

"The war on tuberculosis, conducted by health authorities over the world, is largely repsonsible for the better living and working conditions which we enjoy to-day," said Dr. A. S. M. McGregor, Glasgow's medical officer of health, before the tuberculosis section. Incidental to curbing the incidence and mortality of the "white plague" longer and happier lives have resulted, he remarked.

WHEN YOUR CHILD IS FEVERISH

Give Him Baby's Own Tablets.

The health of babies and little children is subject to rapid changes. Thus the mother must be on her guard. At the first sign of feverishness Baby's Own Tablets should be given—this may avert a serious illness.

Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Norman Lee, Uxbridge, Ont., says: "My little boy, now three years old, was not at all well. He was feverish and had no appetite. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets and he was soon well again. I would not be without the Tablets as long as there are young children in the house."

QUEBEC WOMAN PERISHES IN FIRE

THRILLING RESCUE.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)— One woman was burned to death by a fire which followed an explosion in a three storey building here early this morning The blast partl demolished the combination store and dwelling house, occupied by a branch of the Norman drug establishment and two tenants.

Mrs. Emile Trudel died at 7.30 this morning after suffering painful injuries. The fire and explosion occurred shortly after midnight. The victim's hands and face were practically burned black, her body and legs being scorched.

The firemen, aided by two or three citizens, staged a thrilling rescue when they caught a woman in their arms after she jumped from a second storey window. She was uninjured.

The damage was estimated at $50,000.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

MOUNT PLEASANT

Value of Vegetables in Every Day Diet.

The local branch of the Women's Institute is always interested in the object of the Institutes in the dissemination of knowledge relating to domestic economy, including a better understanding of the economic and hygienic value of foods.

There is nothing very complicated about the general dietetic value of common foods. Some women seem to have a sort of seventh sense which tells them what should go to make a balanced meal, but it adds interest as well as definitness to the planning to know why. There are roughly six classes of food to consider.

Protein, which is found in large quantities in meat, eggs, fish, milk, cheese, dried beans and peas and in cereals and nuts, is the food that builds and repairs tissue and is therefore important in the diet of growing children and people doing hard work.

The carbohydrate foods or starches and sugars found principally in bread, starchy vegetables, sugar and sweets of all kinds, serve the purpose of fuel to supply heat and energy. They cannot enter into growth or the building of muscular tissue, but if taken in quantities they become stored up in the form of fat which explains why white bread, potatoes, sugar and rich pastry are banned from the diet prescribed for people suffering from over-weight and why some of the patent baby foods composed chiefly of sugar and starch in some form or other turn out babies who are over fat, but seriously lacking in muscular development.

Fats are sometimes classed as reserve force foods. They serve the same purpose as the carbohydrates with the difference that an ounce of fat "goes about four times as far" as an ounce of starch or sugar. This is why such foods as fat pork, bacon, sausages and rich pastry can be used most safely digested fats like butter, cream, cocoa, olive oil and combinations of these in ordinary food dishes may be used freely to bring an under-weight person up to condition.

Then there are the minerals and acids. Those required as blood purifiers are found largely in fresh fruits and vegetables. Lime, which is needed especially to build bone and teeth, and is therefore most important in the diet of children, is contained in large quantities in milk and in cereals and along with the body regulators, or the foods that keep the system in perfect health, are the bulky or ballast foods. Feed a person on a steady diet of meat, milk, cheese, potatoes, and white bread or other foods that contain no coarse indigestable parts—crude fibre or roughage as it would be called in feeding livestock—and the working of the eliminative systems will be seriously affected. If the muscles of the walls of the intestines are to work normally, they must have a bulk of material to stimulate their action. Otherwise they fall into a state of chronic inactivity and the wastes that should be eliminated remain in the system getting in their work of slow poisoning.

Liquid foods also are important for the part they take in eliminating waste. The most recently discovered food principle of course is vitamine. No one seems to know much about vitamine, except that it is certain living principle found in milk, butter, green vegetables and the skins of fruit, nuts and other freshly grown things and that without a certain amount of vitamine there can be neither growth nor health. In garrisons, lumber camps and on mining and exploring expeditions, years ago, when the food was all salted or canned the men frequently suffered from epidemics of scurvy. In cases when fresh vegetables or fruit could be shipped in the disease would be arrested immediately and ultimately cured, so scientists gave the name "vitamine" to the life-giving principle in these foods.

(To be Continued Next Week)

MILLBROOK

"The Institute should sound a note of warning to the mothers to take care of their health," writes one experienced worker; "so many women will keep going until they simply cannot go any more, and in the end it often means one more home left motherless. If some farm women would do just one-quarter of the work they are at present undertaking they would be doing their fair share, and as much as the average woman does at any time. Bring the matter up for consideration, and discussion at your next regular meeting, especially your country women, and see if experiences related, and suggestions and warnings given, do not work out in some practical thinking and acting that will mean a great deal in the lives of some of the workers in the weeks and months ahead."

Pickling recipes are much in demand at the present season, and roll-calls in several W.I. meetings are answered with a proved recipe along this line in many instances during the current months. Here is one given recently at a special Institute gathering that was highly recommended:

Tomato Marmalade: 1 lb. ripe tomatoes; ½ pound brown sugar; 1 dessert spoon ground cinnamon; 1 teaspoon ground cloves; a little salt; boil until it thickens, and stir occasionally.

Another recipe recently given by a district president at an out-of-doors gathering, and one which she had personally tried and could recommend was:

Green Tomato Pickles, with Applesauce: 4 lbs. green tomatoes, cut up; 4 lbs. of apples, pared and cored; 4 large onions; 2 lbs. brown sugar; 2 cups vinegar; 2 whole red peppers, tomatoes and onions to stand over night, with salt; in the morning drain, and cook all ingredients, except apples, together. Make a sauce out of the apples, using as little water as possible; when all are cooked, add last the applesauce, stir well, and bottle.

Games for out-of-doors meetings are much in demand at the present time, and one that may be new, and that was lately tried out with much success was:

Game Bag—One player is it, or the chaser, and must try to touch all the other players, the one tagged then becoming chaser, or it. Whenever the player is touched, or tagged, she must place her left hand on the spot touched, whether it be the leg, back ankle, knee, elbow, or any other part of the body, and in that position must chase the other players. She may be relieved from this position only after tagging someone else.

If there are many to take part it is allowable to have several its at the one time, so that all may share in the jolly game without too long waiting time.

"Study your clothes," suggests one W.I. member who is often remarked for her good taste in dress; "you will find, if you look at yourself as though you were an utter stranger, and set about capitalizing your good and bad points, that even a different- shaped neckline actually has an altering effect upon your features. Learn what colors are most becoming to your type, and remember that different ways of dressing your hair may even make a consipuous nose become a less prominent feature. The work of having a smooth complexion, free from blemishes, is a large task and will take time, thought, and energy with patience thrown in, in good measure. Every woman, nine or ninety, likes to have her friends say, 'Isn't she lovely?' and feels well repaid for whatever has been involved in achieving that result."

WARSAW

Continuing, Mrs. Henry Batten's address, a part of which appeared in last Saturday's column:

Well my Solomon say: "A Wise man will hear and will increase learning." There is hardly any piece of learning which will not come in useful; hardly anything which is not worth seeing at least once. There are in reality no little things, only little minds. It is sad to remember in how many cases the authors of great discoveries are unknown.

Sad not on their account, but because we should wish to remember them with gratitude. Great discoverers have seldom worked for themselves for the sake of fame.

"For truth with tireless zeal they sought,
In joyless paths they trod;
Heedless of praise or blame they wrought
And left the rest to God.
But through their names no poet wove
In deathless song or story.
Their record is inscribed above,
Their wreaths are crowns of glory."

Attention and application to your studies are absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of life. If you give only half your mind to what you are doing, it will cost you twice as much as labor. The brain of man should be

"The dome of thought, the palace of the soul,
We are but farmers of ourselves, yet may
If we can stock ourselves, and thrive, uplay,
Much good treasure for the great day."

Emerson says, "There are many innocent men who worship God after the tradition of their fathers, but whose sense of duty has not extended to the use of all their faculties. What qualities are essential for the perfecting of the human being? A cool head, a warm heart, a sound judgment and a healthy body. Without a cool head we are apt to form hasty conclusions; without a warm heart we are sure to be selfish; without a sound body we can do but little, while even the best intentions without sound judgment may do more harm than good.

The true method of self education is to question all things, never to turn away from any difficulty; to accept no doctrine either from ourselves or from other people, without a rigid scrutinizing by negative criticism, letting no confusion of thought step by unperceived; to insist upon having meaning of a word clearly understood, before using it. These are lessons we all might learn.

If education has not been in all cases successful, this has been the fault, not of education itself, but of the spirit in which it has been too often undertaken. Men have entered into a desire of learning and knowledge, sometimes upon a natural curiosity, and inquisitive appetite, sometimes to entertain their minds with variety and delight, sometimes for ornament and reputation, but seldom to give a true account of their gift of reason to the benefit and use of men.

You know an emotion only when you feel it, a fact when you deal with it, a truth when you discover it. We learn by doing. The school of tomorrow is going to get away from mere reciting what has been gotten from books. In the school of the future, the child is going to live, really live that he learns, because he needs it then and there.

CAVAN

Institute members are always alert to find convenient ways of arranging their homes and work. A few "pantry pointers' 'gleaned from a description of a certain pantry might be helpful.

On the shelves of this pantry were cans and pails of different sizes, all with covers and painted white. There were large biscuit pails, ten pound lard pails, five pound lard pails, large-sized cans, coffee cans, baking-powder cans, besides several small cans, all sitting in a row upon a shelf at a convenient height to reach.

With an oil pencil, such as is used for placing the design on china preparatory to painting, had been printed the name of the supplies contained in the tins. For example, on the largest were flour, oatmeal, sugar, rice, tapioca, tea, raisins, macaroni, coffee, cocoanut, pepper and cinnamon—the size of the containers suiting the amount of the foodstuff ordinarily used. The arrangement was convenient and the result pleasing.

In one place I found a number of the square gum jars sitting side by side as containers for oatmeal, cornmeal, cream of wheat, rolled oats—thus one could see at a glance the nature of the contents.

One large gum jar, round in shape and large enough at the top to admit a small tea cup, was used as a container for sugar. In some homes quart gem jars are used as containers and one could see the contents, as they sat side by side, a long row of them—ginger, icing sugar, mustard, currants, prunes and many other things were conveniently at hand, and with the tops adjusted were kept free from air.

In some homes, gems that have slight cracks or defects which render unfit for canning are utilized as containers. In a certain pantry, there were shelves on two sides of the room; double curtains had been hung from a wire in front of those at one side, and behind these were placed articles not so continuously in use, like the meat chopper, potato ricer, surplus pans, medicine bottles, boxes of nails and household tools, thus they were not so exposed to sight and were not so likely to gather every chance bit of dust.

A handy device holding a wash basin and articles for use with it, where there is no sink, was described in a recent number of a farm paper. It was a small wash stand made by a blacksmith for use in a pantry. There was a hoop of iron to hold the wash bowl, and another below to hold a pie tin; three stout, flat irons formed legs and all had been given a coat of white enamel. Soap, brushes, etc, were placed on the pie tin below and an earthenware bedroom pitcher supplied water. A hand-towel was kept close by, and thus many steps to the kitchen were avoided.

Many conveniences can be made at home or with a very little mechanical help, which would prove a boon to busy home-makers.

In this age of rush and little help, every means should be made use of to save time and steps.

Some Simple Menus for The After-School Meal

BY EDWINA NOLAN
Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

IN the days of our childhood we all have heard the admonition, oft repeated: "No eating between meals!"

But times have changed. Today we have carefully supervised diets which include body-building foods for growing, healthy youngsters, who in school and play rapidly use up their energy and bodily substances. And we have new and scientific ideas about meals, foods and their values.

Growing children of school age, who play hard outdoors until dusk, should not go from noon until six or seven o'clock without food. Often, if he does, he overeats or eats too fast at the evening meal or he may be unduly fatigued and be too tired to eat the things his body requires. Hence, the after-school meal.

It doesn't need to be much, as the following suggested week's schedule indicates:

Tuesday—Milk and rice, fruit juice, oatmeal cookie.

Wednesday—Milk, sandwich of graham bread, raw carrot (ground) and raisins.

Sunday—Banana (ripe), oatmeal cookie.

Saturday and Sunday are as important in this schedule as school days if meals are to be regular. These four o'clock bites must be simple, both in the kind of food and in the preparation as the appetite for the evening meal must not be dulled. For that reason, very sweet foods, such as desserts, are best omitted on the after-school menu.

For Your Daughter's Toilet

Young girls approve of Baby's Own Soap. Its abundant and fragrant lather whitens and softens the skin and assures freedom from chaps and irritations.

What To-day Means To You

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU

If August 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., from noon to 1 p.m. and from 10.30 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. The danger hours are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.

The astrological influences on this date will be both mentally and morally paralyzing There is a danger of missing opportunities and of neglecting duties. None too good from a health standpoint. Creature comforts and pleasures sought.

The children born on this August 30th will be rather timid and nervous. They will suffer from a fear complex, which will make them dislike all rough games. They will require much more sleep than normal children. They will have gentle manners and very tender hearts.

Yours will be a life of sacrifices and achievements. When your eyes and your mind are focused on some definite goal, you are as an obsessed being to whom nothing else matters. You leave no stones unturned when you tackle a problem. You are both a fearless and constructive fighter, and your victims are usually felled. You have good judgment, and you are advised to rely upon it rather than listen to the advice of others. You are usually sorry when you do not obey your hunches. You have enough caution to foresee evil and safeguard against it, but not enough to make you a coward. You do not always play safe. You are willing to leave something to Fate, but you try to help your planetary influences by conscious effort. You exercise your will power so that you neutralize the evil and emphasize the good which comes to you.

You are rather whimsical and see the humorous side of things. Your ability to laugh when others might weep is one of your big assets — it helps you to keep your balance under any and all conditions. You have excellent control of your temper and it is seldom that any one else is able to make you feel small. You should have a great deal of vitality, which you must not misuse. You must keep a reserve for your later years. You are fond of those of the opposite sex and would make a good husband or wife and a splendid and understanding parent.

"Virgo"

If August 31st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11.15 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8.30 a.m. and from 1.30 p.m. to 2.30 p.m.

Astrological influences in this date will be of an appeasing nature, and will iron out many of the past week's worries and difficulties. Pleasant social intercourse is indicated. A friendship strengthened. Spiritual expansion.

The child born on this August 31st will have a good brain, which will be receptive to training. It will be openly displayed to the rest of the world. It will be extremely candid and outspoken. It will suffer through the jealousies of others.

Your character and life prove that "the gentlest gamester is the soonest winner." You are a clean fighter and never deliver a foul blow. You have a gentle touch and a silvery tongue. You realize that you can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar. You have an incurable habit of looking on the bright side of things, and the best side of everybody. You somehow can find a grain of gold in every stone. You see the world through tolerant, magnanimous eyes, and for this reason the world pleases you. You are never guilty of bickering and nagging, either in the outside world or within the privacy of your home. You may an unhymned hero or heroine, but there will be many whose lives have been made happier and easier because of you. Your hands are helping ones, generous one—your heart is a sympathetic one. You are neither a saint nor a sinner, just a simple, clean, moral, kindly being. You do not ask too little of religion, of morals, of marriage, or any other factors of life.

You have good business sense, and you are looked upon as a good adviser. You have enough imagination to give you vision and understanding. You have enough common sense to keep your head above water, although the under-current may be swift and strong. You have a very good head for figures and mathematics, although you would rather work with people than numbers. You are very devoted in your attachments, and no one could be more loyal and true.

BRIGHT EYES, ROSY CHEEKS

The Birthright of Every Girl.

Dull eyes mean misery and weakness — a sure sign of a bloodless condition. Anaemic girls and women have dull, heavy eyes with dark lines underneath. The bright-eyed girl or woman is always happy and well.

There is one way to make the eyes bright—to bring the glow of health to pale cheeks—that is to invigorate the body with new blood — rich, red health-giving blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this and they do it well. Concerning them Mrs. Robert Devitt, Brougham, Ont., says: "My daughter became so ill and nervous we had to take her out of school. She was pale and thin; her eyes were dull and the least exertion upset her. I began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in less than six months you would not know her. She gained in weight and strength and is now the picture of health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SOCIETY WORK IS REVIEWED

Warsaw United Church Women's Association Holds Regular Meeting.

MEMBERSHIP GROWN.

WARSAW, August 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the Warsaw United Church Women's Association was held in Mr. Tucker's grove on Thursday afternoon with a fair attendance —Mrs. Digweed presided. The opening hymn was "There is a work to do for Jesus." The idea of Labor Day was considered throughout the meeting. The Lord's Prayer was recited in unison. The flower committee had supplied flowers for the pulpit, and more when needed, and a vote of thanks was passed. The decorating committee reported prices as a little higher than expected, but was authorized to go ahead as they saw fit. Next meeting is to plan for the annual fowl supper.

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson and Mrs. Wilkinson were present, also Mrs. W. R. Batten, a member before she moved to Peterborough with her daughter, and Mrs. William Darling, who has not been able to attend for some time. Mrs. D. Taylor welcomed all Work Reviewed.

The subject was a review of the work since the society was organized by Mrs. Herrington in 1925. The roll call of 1925-1926 was read, and three who were then members have been taken by death, Mrs. Sneider Mrs. Somers, and Mrs. Stuart Miller. A few have moved away. Minutes of the first Aid meeting held on August 24, 1925, were read by Mrs. Weller. Mrs. David Taylor said a few words of appreciation of Mrs. Digweed's work, as she had been a member of the executive since organization. Mrs. Arthur Edwards read a paper on the progress of the society since August 14, 1925. Some points were that the membership had increased and much had been accomplished in God's work. Each one has worked, and with that work there has been a joyful and social time. The meetings were regular, and a good attendance, whether rain or shine.

Money Realized.

In 1925 the sum of $196.22 was raised from fees, donations, and the first fowl supper. Out of this amount $88.55 was paid as Warsaw's share of the parsonage roof, and $40.66 to other parsonage expense. In 1926 a play was put on, and with the play proceeds, fowl supper and fees the receipts for the year were $377.62. From this fund the new fence was put up and painted, new carpet and matting were put in the church, chairs were re-upholstered, velour curtain with rod was put on the choir, some alterations were made in the choir, $145.35 was spent for a new roof on the sheds, and six dozen spoons were purchased. The year closed with $25.12 on hand.

Work in 1927.

In 1927 the play was repeated several times; receipts netted $258.01. Out of this a new lawn mower, boiler, two fern stands, Coleman lantern and bracket were purchased, curtains and rods were put in the Sunday School windows, and a share paid on the parsonage new floor. The piano fund was started this year, and $207.15 was obtained towards it. In 1928 there was a membership contest which brought the fees up to $37.50. This, with the Twelfth of July dinner, the fowl supper, play, donation from the Sunday School, concert by Norwood choir, and an auto race, with the previous year's balance, brought the total to $560.03. Payments made were for bulletin board, Communion racks, six dozen each of knives, forks, plates, cups and saucers, cupboard for Sunday School kitchen, table scarf, piano mover. The piano was placed in the Sunday School Room.

Church Decorated.

In 1929 a concert was held, a play was put on by St. James' Church Dramatic Club, and these, with fees, donations and fowl supper amounted to $362.88. The interior of the church was re-decorated at a cost of $305.00, and $25.00 donated to the fire fund. The present year started with $105.84. To this have been added fees $10.50, from copper contest $5.00, and small sums to $2.76. New tea kettle, dipper, dishpan, pitchers, tray, play book, two lamps and rods, material for Easter gowns, and Easter flowers have been purchased, and there is on hand $67.93. Total receipts in the five years have been $1,557.47, total expenditures $1,489.54 Besides this there has been a special flower fund amounting to about $75.00 which has been used entirely to send flowers to sick and bereaved.

Tender Thanks.

The association is grateful to Mr. Anderson for a pie rack, to Mr. Herrington for work to save expense, to Roland Payne for free work and to Uriah Payne. These men, along with many others, have been of great assistance. Special credit is due the past-president and organizer, Mrs. Herrington. Mrs. A. Payne read the Scripture lesson. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson took the parable of the laborers, and showed that work was honorable and that people are better for it. The hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," was sung while all joined hands. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson pronounced the benediction. There was a nail driving contest in which Mrs. W. Anderson came first and a slipper contest where Mrs. McCauley won. A picnic lunch was served.

IDA.

The home of Miss Myrtle Hooton, of Ida, was beautifully decorated when a number of girl friends gathered on the afternoon of August 22 to shower Miss Mary Sanderson, who is to be married shortly, with a host of beautiful gifts, amidst a profusion of confetti and good wishes for her future happiness.

ROBERTSON CONFIDENT IN LABOR DAY MESSAGE

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—Striking a note of confidence and bespeaking the co-operation of all public organizations and private citizens in an effort to eradicate unemployment, Senator the Hon. Gideon D. Robertson, Minister of Labor has issued a Labor Day mesage to the people of Canada. The watchword of the Labor Department, he says, is "service" and he expresses his belief that in 1931 "Canada shall again be found marching confidently forward towards its future greater destiny."

The Minister point out there are approximately 2,500,000 wage earners in Canada of whom it is estimated 200,000 face unemployment this winter. When the normal seasonal unemployment is taken into consideration,' he says, the unemployment problem in Canada, though serious, is not insurmountable.

Switzerland reports the worst hotel season in yars.

FASHION SERVICE

A charming vacation frock whose small cost will surprise you.

A dress for many occasions with becoming softly falling cape collar proves the decided practcality of chiffon printed voile. It's marine blue colouring that is indeed flattering and wearable.

The fitted hip yoke that tapers to waistline at the center-front with bow trim gives it a distinctly new look.

Style No. 2595 comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Navy blue crepe silk with white polka-dots, daffodil yellow handkerchief lawn, turquoise blue shantung and nile green dimity with white pin dots display excellent taste.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

DROUTH

No wall the land lies parched beneath the fire
Of a relentless sun.
Now eager brooks have lost their glad desire
Seaward to leap, to run;
But lagging, stumbling, sink into the sand
With plaintive murmuring,
Too weak to paint green fields on either hand,
Too faint to laugh and sing.
So, too, the spirit suffers arid times—
It seasons when drouth rules
And all ithin its bounds seem desert climes,
No cloud or rainfall cools;
But as some day the bounty of the rain
Will bless the earth once more,
So faith and love will quench this doubt, this pain,
Again the soul will soar.

Rhoda Campney Wins Guessing Contest

Feature of Opening Sale at Silk Shoppe.

Results from the guessing contest, featured by the up-town silk shoppe during its opening sale, have just been determined, a large number of estimates having been put in. The contest question was, how many yards of dress goods were displayed in the south window of the store. The actual figure was 133½, and the winner of first prize, estimated that there were 133 1-3 yards. Rhoda Campney, of Havelock, was the successful one, with a guess of 133 1-3, and is awarded the dress length of 3½ yards of crepe back satin as her reward for acuteness.

Mrs. H. Turner, 554 Douglas avenue, thought there were 133 yards in the window, and wins the second prize, a dress length of 3½ yards of flat crepe.

Third prize, a pair of fall fashioned silk hose, goes to Mrs. McHowell, 689 Elcombe Crescent, whose estimate was 122 yards.

The prizes will be presented at 2.30 on Tuesday, September 2nd, or as soon after as the winners call for them.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

As Monday is Labor Day and will be celebrated in Canada and the United States, too, I decided I would discuss it in the column today.

• • • • • • •

In looking through the Encyclopedia I find the following explanation concerning this holiday: "Labor Day is a day set apart for labor demonstrations. Since 1890 the year of the Berlin Labor Congress, it has been held on May 1 in many European Countries when processions and demonstrations are organized and the aims of the labor parties are reiterated.

• • • • • • •

"The movement is becoming more general in the United Kindom. Labor Day is a legal holiday in United States and Canada and is held on the first Monday in September. It is a holiday in the Australian states on varying dates."

• • • • • • •

But what I really want to discuss is how this day should affect Peterborough's housewives.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps many of you are expecting to entertain guests on that day and that, of course, will likely mean extra work for you. And because the idea of work is somewhat stressed in the name, you feel as if it were only right that you should labor on that day.

• • • • • • •

But the meaning to the homemaker should be entirely different to that. It should be a day of rest for her, and not one filled with extra tasks.

• • • • • • •

If you are going to entertain guests, plan the day so that you will not have any work to do—by that I mean a lot of extra work. Plan a picnic perhaps and enjoy the day, just as the men folks will.

• • • • • • •

Or perhaps you intend to spend the day at the Canadian National Exhibition. Should this opportunity come to you, by all means take advantage of it.

• • • • • • •

The children too, will enjoy the day because it will be their last holiday before they start back to school and it would be a good idea to see that it is all that the name implies.

• • • • • • •

Labor Day seems to mark the season when vacations have ceased and everyone starts in to work with renewed vigor.

• • • • • • •

Many of you have not even enjoyed a vacation this summer so it would be a splendid idea just to observe this holiday. When everyone is enjoying this last period of relaxation, just rest yourself.

• • • • • • •

You may be planning a celebration because all the members of the family have returned from the various places where they have spent their vacations and there is to be a sort of family reunion.

• • • • • • •

If such is the case, it is wise not to forget the meaning of Labor Day and work so hard that the following day finds you worn out and certainly not much refreshed after what should have been a real holiday.

• • • • • • •

And if you intend to spend the day out-of-dors, at some lake or resort, you can prepare a picnic luncheon that will be simple and yet tempting and delicious.

• • • • • • •

In closing let me urge you to enter into the spirit of vacation, enjoy yourself and thus reap the full benefits the holiday which you have so well earned.

GANGLAND VICTIM.

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—Another murder, with gangland earmarks was that of Aohn Kruspe, 38 years old. He fell with five bullets in his head after he had answered an early morning knock at the door of his home.

CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Fair indications that conditions are improving throughout Canada lie in the fact that "SALADA" tea sales show an increase in the past five months of over 400,000 pounds in Canada.

Elaine And Her Ideas From Paris

Furs Come Into Ever Popular Place

Furs this year act as a synonym for all that is charming, feminine and alluring. In the picture at the LEFT above is a creation in clipped Hudson seal done in flared lines. In harmony with the willowy trend is the luxurious collar and uniquely placed cuffs of long-haired silver fox. In the autumn there is a general moving about. . . . women are returning from Europe, others are taking to the country for week-ends and young girls are journeying back to boarding-schools and colleges. Of course travel brings up two immediate interests, tweeds and trunks. At the left of the illustration at the RIGHT is a Molyneux costume in a tweed mixture of red and black with a hint of gray and is combined with gray silk crepe. The dress has the upper section of its tied bodice made of the crepe. The long jacket faced and lined with gray crepe has an elbow. The tendency in luggage is towards lightness, and therefore fabrics are rivalling leathers. The taxicab trunk shown in the background is of varnished linen with re-inforced edges of metal. It is slightly smaller than a wardrobe trunk, yet can be handled with the ease of a large suitcase. In the CENTRE of the group is shown a combination suit-and-shoe case which keeps a limited week-end wardrobe in compact neatness until arrival. This is of raw hide. The shoe case in the foreground is of leather cloth, lightweight and durable.

That Body of Yours

EGGS FOR SMALL CHILDREN.

I don't talk about infants very often for the reason that the family doctor and the children's specialist have worked together so wonderfully in the past few years that the lives of thousands of children are saved yearly, which in former times would have been lost.

And the biggest factor in preventing the loss of these little ones is the proper diet.

However, I came across something recently from Dr. Stoeltzner of Berlin and I think is worthy of being handed on to mothers whose children do not seem to be progressing very well, and yet are not in need of the doctor's services.

As you know, eggs are a good food with body-building qualities but even with adults there seem to be quite a number who cannot eat them without some stomach distress. For babies or young children, eggs have likewise been considered unsafe, despite their wonderful food value.

However, Dr. Stoeltzner recommends the following egg soup, which, in his hands, has given excellent results.

A gruel is prepared with three level teaspoonfuls of fine corn meal and a pint of water. To this is added a pint of fresh milk and four teaspoonsful of sugar. This mixture is boiled for a short time and after that is stirred into a beaten egg.

The use of this egg soup has brought good results, no harmful effects being noted.

None of the very small babies who received this egg soup developed rickets.

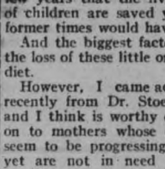
After this treatment the blood was rich in corpuscles and hæmoglobin, showing that it also prevented anæmia.

This was not considered a substitute for the mother's own milk, which, as Dr. Stoeltzner points out, is the child's best nutriment.

Another point worth noting, particularly during the warm weather, is that this egg soup was first used by a Finnish physician as a means of correcting or curing diarrhœa in young children.

Now we have known of the value of eggs as a food for years, the white of egg being rich in albumin, a body builder and a body repairer, and the yolk rich in fats and vitamins.

It is certainly gratifying to know that this wonderful food can thus be made available for young infants whose very lives for a time seem to hand in the balance.



OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

SPENDING AND SAVING.

Tessie, aged seven, helped herself to five dollars from her mother's purse and spent it like a gay young prodigal. Her mother was greatly distressed. To think that her child would steal. And from her own mother. And waste money like that. None of her family had ever done such a thing. Anxiously she scanned the family tree. No. There was no sign of a rotten twig upon it. Was Tessie to be the first?

Not at all. Tessie is not the first child, nor will she, unfortunately, be the last, that helps himself to what seems good. You see our moral code is purely adult and can not function in the self-control of children until they gain such power through experience. How can they have experiences about and with money?

Every child must have a weekly allowance, however small, and taught to use it. Little children of Tessie's age spend their full allowance. Saving is not for them. The first experiences must be with spending. There is no use working against nature. It is the nature of a little child to explore a field first and then adjust himself to getting whatever pleasure he can from it. Spending comes first always. If you give Tessie and Bubby a penny a day they are not to be asked to save a penny for church, or for any other adult idea.

They get their experiences out of spending. They will spend it all at one throw and come back for more. No more is forthcoming until next pay day. Hold strictly to that for therein lies the value of this lesson. When you spend your money you have no more to spend. That experience oft repeated instills the first notion of thrift. We will spend only a portion to-day that we may have something for to-morrow. Gradually that idea takes root and thrives so that the youthful financier manages his funds with some degree of care.

When a child reaches such a stage of discretion that his allowance reaches all the way he is ready for an extension of power. He is given a little increase of money and told that he is to buy balls, and marbles, or dolls and balls, whatever little toys are needed. A bit of suggestion, a little kindly criticism, a comparison of values, will help now. Keep teaching the spending of money until the child gets the idea that it is intelligent to get the most possible out of his money.

As the child grows his responsibility for buying things increases and his allowance keeps step with it. By and by he is permitted to earn money by working for strangers. Now we begin saving. Not to hoard in the bank, that is the adult's province, but in order to buy some coveted bit of clothing, an extra bit of equipment for the playground. Saving must be a happy experience and grow out of the child's desire to buy and own something extra.

By the time the child is ready for work, or for entrance into college, he is ready to handle his own money, to earn a little, to save for future needs.

Burns' Descendant Sings Poet's Ballads

Enid Gray, a brilliant young soprano of Toronto, who will be at the Highland Gathering at Banff, and will sing in the ballad opera "The Ayrshire Ploughman", incorporating songs of Robert Burns, has the additional distinction of belonging to the Burns family, being a great-great-granddaughter of James Burns, first cousin to Robert Burns.

James Burns went to Ireland to be bailiff on the estate of Sir Robert Gore. Here he married Mary Young and they had nine daughters, of whom Jane Burns was one. Jane came to Canada, where she married, and her youngest daughter Mary was a grandmother of Enid Gray.

It is interesting to note the strong physical resemblance as evidenced by comparison of photographs of Miss Gray and Robert Burns.

A BEDTIME STORY

Issued to Kids

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LOBSTER.

"Are you listening?" whistled the Sea Hawk to Uncle Wiggily as the rabbit gentleman sat on the sand near his summer bungalow and looked at the bed of sand where he had planted some flower seeds.

"I am listening," answered the rabbit. "What is the jolly secret?"

Uncle Wiggily's wife had felt sad because no flowers grew in the bare sands near the sea-weed bungalow so her husband, hoping to surprise her, had planted some flower seeds in the beach. But the Sea Hawk, being a wise bird, told Mr. Longears that no blossoms would ever come up from seeds planted in dry, salty sand. And the bird had offered to tell Uncle Wiggily a secret way of making his wife happy. This much you read in the story last night.

"What you should do, Uncle Wiggily," whispered the Sea Hawk, "is to go to the village and get some make-believe flowers. You know, the kind the ladies and girls wear on their hats. These flowers are made of paper and cloth, with stems of wire, and some of them look so much like real blossoms that if you sprinkled a little perfume on them from the five and six cent store, even a bee would be fooled."

"You mean for me to get some make-believe artificial flowers of cloth or paper on wire stems and stick them in my sand garden; is that it?" asked the rabbit of the beach bird.

"That's it," whistled the Sea Hawk, for that was his manner of speaking. "You can never grow real flowers in this sand and if your wife wants a garden you must give her a make-believe one. She will be just as happy over it."

"I think so," said the rabbit. "And when we go back to our hollow stump bungalow she can look at real flowers growing in the woods."

"Surely," agreed the Sea Hawk. "Lots of ladies like to be fooled if they don't know about it. Take my advice and buy some make-believe flowers, stick them in the sand and they will make the beach look like a real garden."

"I'll do it!" decided the rabbit gentleman. He hopped to the village and found a store where hats are sold. In the window were bunches of roses, violets, lilies, corn flowers and many other blossoms looking very real. Uncle Wiggily bought many bunches of blooms on their green wire stems and taking a back road, so his wife would not see him, the rabbit hopped to the seaweed bungalow, in front of which, deep in a bed of sand, he had planted many flower seeds that would never grow up and blossom.

"Those seeds are wasted," thought

He stretched out pinching claws.

Uncle Wiggily, "for I could never pick them out of the grains of sand. But when I stick the make-believe flowers in, on their green wire stems, Mrs. Longears will think she has a real garden."

Soon the strip of sandy beach in front of the seaweed cottage seemed to have burst into bloom. The artificial hat flowers were red, blue, pink, yellow, purple and white and they looked very beautiful.

"My wife will be very much surprised," said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped to and fro on the sands in front of the flowers which seemed as real as any growing in your garden. Only, of course, they had no sweet smells.

"Though, for the matter of that," said the rabbit, "I'll go get some perfume at the five and six cent store, I think, and sprinkle it on the cloth and paper blossoms. Then my wife surely will like them. Oh, I'll surprise her all right!"

"Yes, and I'll surprise you!" all of a sudden cried a funny voice and up out of the ocean crawled a big, dark green lobster with great, pinching claws. Oh, yes, I know some lobsters are red, but that is after they are cooked, and this lobster, being fresh from the sea, wasn't cooked. He was alive and he stretched out his big, pinching claws to catch the rabbit.

"Oh! Oh!" cried Uncle Wiggily, hopping around his flower garden. But the lobster was as lively as the rabbit and kept right after him, opening and closing his claws and almost catching Uncle Wiggily by his coat tails. The rabbit didn't know what to do, but all of a sudden the wind blew hard from the ocean and toppled over a tall, red rose. Uncle Wiggily saw the strong, green wire-stem and right away he knew what to do.

"I'll wind that wire stem of the rose around the lobster's claws and then he can't pinch me!" thought the rabbit. No sooner said than done. Quickly Mr. Longears twisted the wire of the rose around the largest claw of the lively lobster. A moment later the rabbit twisted the wire stem of a lily around the Bad Chap's other claw. Then the lobster couldn't nip anybody and wiggling his long whiskers he crawled back into the ocean where he belonged.

Toronto Divided Double-Header With Reading

LEAFS WINNERS OF SECOND TILT BY 3-2 COUNT

Successive Singles By Rabbitt, Burke and Ruble Wins Game For Series.

LOSE OPENER 2-0.

TORONTO, Aug. 30. (C.P.)—Their bid to dislodge the Rochester Redwings from the International League lead a distinct failure, the Baltimore Orioles cast an apprehensive eye behind them to-day to watch the oncoming third place Montreal Royals.

Beaten back in the first two games of the crucial series with Rochester, the Orioles now are three and one-half games out of the lead and a matter of three games in front of the Royals, a none too comfortable advantage.

Rallies in the late innings enabled the Redwings to beat the Orioles yesterday 7-3 for their fifth successive triumph. The Orioles ripped into Ira Smith for three runs in the first inning but were impotent thereafter against Smith and his successor, George Grant. Stewart Bolen, Baltimore ace blanked the Redwings for six innings but a series of hits and bases on balls gave them four runs in the seventh. Three more came across in the eighth, Worthington's triple accounting for two of them. Joe Hauser hit his 56th homer of the year in the first inning with one on.

Toronto and Reading divided a double bill, the Keys winning the opener 2-0 and Toronto the second 3-2 McAffee gave the Leafs five scattered hits in the first game. Phil Page pitched well for Toronto but was nicked for a homer by Earl Grace with Whitman on in the fourth. The nightcap, scheduled for seven innings, went eight before the Leafs broke through for a win. Hoot Gibson held the Keys hitless for six innings but in the seventh a pass and three hits enabled Reading to tie the count at 2-2. Successive singles by Rabbitt, Burke and Ruble won the game for the Leafs in the eighth.

Buffalo beat Newark 3-2 and strengthened its hold on fifth place. Joe Bloomer blanked the Bears for seven innings but had to have assistance from Henry Wertz in the eighth when Newark rallied for two runs, within one of a tie.

Mills Thomas pitched effectively for Newark but was touched freely enough to give the Bisons a victory behind such fine pitching as Bloomer turned in. Al Moore was the batting star of the game with three safeties.

EQUAL RECORD AT BELLEVILLE

Willis Grattan Paces Mile In 2.09 in Free-for-all Event.

LOU GRATTAN ALSO FIRST.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 30.—The track record for Belleville track was equaled but not broken at the last day's races in connection with the Fair. J. Hodgson, driving his own mount, Willis Grattan, paced the last mile of the free-for-all in 2.09 flat to equal the mark set by Sid Hal two years ago and which horse furnished the competition for the chestnut flyer. Weather conditions were against the breaking of records, for a heavy wind blew straight down the back stretch. Mr. Hodgson showed a very shifty pacer and won, that should win money wherever he starts. It was not necessary for Mr. Hodgson to try and break the record, for he had the race in hand in every heat and the little chestnut son of Grattan Royal, was looking for pacers at the end of his race. The only competition was in the last heat when Sid Hal came with a fine brush in the stretch, but he went to a break just before reaching the wire.

The family of the dead sire, Grattan Royal, had a field day, for Lu Grattan, piloted by Eddie Jones of Peterborough, had little difficulty in annexing the classified race after dropping the first heat to Jack Abbie another Peterborough owned pacer. Joe McGregor and Lady Isobel came on to furnish the competition, but were not equal to the bay wiggler. The time was good in this race. The summary follows:

Free-for-all; purse $300—

Willis Grattan, J. Hodgson, London	1	1	1
Sid Hal, Dr. Whitely, Goderich	2	2	2

JACK PURVIS WINS FROM JOHNNY SACCO

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Jack Purvis of Indianapolis, making his first appearance here since suffering a broken jaw in his bout with Billy Townsend, produced some of his hardest hitting to take the decision from Johnny Sacco, rugged Buffalo welterweight, in the final of the five bouts on the Shamrock A. C program at the Arena Gardens last evening. It was no easy victory for Purvis, but it was a well-deserved one over a boxer who is tricky when hurt most and who can mete out punishment as well as take it.

Starting rather slowly, the bout developed action as it went along. It provided little of the spectacular, but at all times was a gruelling struggle between two determined men. Purvis was slightly faster than his Bison City opponent and his punches carried the more weight and were somewhat cleaner than those of Sacco.

Three knockdowns, one of them a clean one for a count of six, made Purvis's margin on the score sheet a clear-cut one. But Sacco boxed determinedly, coming back strongly after taking Purvis's hardest blows and causing the Indianapolis representative plenty of trouble.

PACKERS VS. SCOTS TUESDAY EVENING

Another opportunity will be presented to the soccer fans on Tuesday evening, when the Canadian Packing meet the Scotsmen in the semi-final of the Gordon cup, on King Edward Park. Referee Alexander McKinley.

The Packers will introduce a new line-up for the important cup tie as follows: C. Griffin, goal; A. Downer and J. Cross, full-backs; A. Reid, J. Buchan and A. Bromley, halves; N. Downer, J. Willshaw, R. Preston, A. Beggs and T. Foster.

If there is no report of injuries, the Scotsmen will field the same eleven that defeated the Packers in the final of the Peck Cup.

New York Giants Regain Second Place

TWO OF BRAMPTON'S STARS

The biggest lacrosse attracion of the year are the Mann Cup games, emblematic of the Canadian championships, and are being held this year at Toronto. The games bring together the New Westminster Salmon Bellies and Brampton. Above are shown two of the Brampton stars, Teddy Reeve, on the left, and George Sproule, manager, and winner of the Murphy Trophy for the best lacrosse play in Ontario.

LACROSSE TEAM CROSSES CANADA TO BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

New Westminster, B.C. Salmon Bellies Play Brampton For Mann Cup.

WILL BE HARD FOUGHT.

(By Willis Entwistle)

TORONTO, Aug. 30. (Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1930). — Holders of the Dominion soccer championship—holders of the Dominion basket ball championship. And now in Toronto to-day to battle in the final series for the Dominion lacrosse championship. My word, these New Westminster people, who dwell in their igloos or spawning grounds on the banks of the Fraser River, British Columbia, are certainly hoggish. Of course the little city at the coast is not sending the same men to get this famous Mann Cup but there are one or two players who helped to win one or other of the other trophies.

Grumpy Spring, one-time famous home player, is the manager of the Salmonbellies just as he was two years ago when they passed through en route to the Empire Games at Amsterdam. And, let it be known right here, that almost without exception the same players who went to Amsterdam are in this series opposed to the Brampton Excelsiors or Mastodons.

The most important change is in goal where George Mackie has taken the place of little Johnny Stoddart. The latter had physical defects which hampered him although his ability was never questioned. The Salmonbellies swallowed a bitter pill when they lost the famous trophy to Oshawa in New Westminster a year ago, hence the determined effort to recapture it.

Standing out in the coast squad are Haddie Stoddart, Carl Grauer, George Feeney and Jack Wood. Stoddart is the fielder, Grauer the defence star, Feeney the home infielder and Wood the inside home. And there you have them. The four super stars all spread over the arena.

New Westminster has held its own in lacrosse for decades. Men may come and men may go but when the history of lacrosse is written it is not complete without a reference to New Westminster. Always in there, bumping the French or annoying the Irish.

Jim Cavanagh remembered them, so did Newsy Lalonde and the late Billy Fitzgerald. Yes and hosts of others experienced things they will never forget after battling with the famous Salmonbellies, who, even in their professional days never played on stipulated contracts but merely divided the spoils after all expenses had been paid.

And now here are the amateurs for a big series with Brampton, with Teddy Reeve and other big stars. Reeve played a big part in the all-star triumph in the exhibition tussle two years ago. New Westminster lost that battle 7 to 4 and then went on to beat Monreal 10 to 0 next in the Quebec city.

This series should be one of the toughest in twenty years and the Salmonbellies will have to be as good as they have ever been to cop this trophy. In fact I doubt if they can win it but if they don't they will make history with their gameness.

BROWNS BEAT DETROIT 9-6

Barrage of Seven Hits in First Frame Gives St. Louis Commanding Lead.

CHICAGO WINS 3-0.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30. (C.P.) — One of the outstanding pitching feats of the season turned up in the American League when Chicago and Cleveland battled for twelve innings before either could score a run. Pat Caraway of Chicago continued his shutout hurling through the thirteenth, giving only three hits in a 3-0 triumph in which his own batting played a most important part.

The game was only the second extra-inning shutout of the major league season. On May 3 the Cubs beat the Phillies 1-0 in ten innings but the winning pitcher, Root allowed nine hits and the loser, Elliott, five.

In the only other American league game on the day's schedule, the St Louis Browns kept pace with the White Sox by trouncing Detroit for the third straight time 9-6. A six run rally in the first inning decided the game almost before it started as Early Whitehill gave up seven hits before he could retire the second man.

English Tennis Star Beaten In Doubles

Betty Nuthall and George Lott Eliminated in Semi-finals.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 30. — Betty Nuthall's hope of winning the national mixed doubles tennis championship was shattered by the hard driving racquets of Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, and Frank Shields, New York, in one of the semi-finals of the mixed doubles title play yesterday at Longwood.

The British girl, who became the American women's singles champion and co-holder of doubles title last Sunday at Forest Hills, L. I., teamed with George Lott of Chicago for the defense of the mixed title they won here last year. They galloped through the lower half of the draw without serious opposition until today, when they were outplayed widely by Miss Morrill and Shields, who won in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 30. (C.P.)—Victor Adran, notary public, Jean Baptiste Loranger and John T. Tebbutt, all of Three Rivers, have been appointed as the new personnel of the Three Rivers harbor board. Mr. Adran will be chairman. The new body which replaces the members of the board which resigned two weeks ago, will begin to function immediately.

THRILLING GAME WON BY CUBS 9-8

Cardinals Beaten in 13th After Twice Holding Commanding Leads.

TWO STRONG RALLIES.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The struggle for supremacy in the National League is not showing any signs of a letup as the four first-division clubs approach the ends of their concurrent "crucial" series. Brooklyn and New York have only today's game left in their clash and are locked closer than ever in their fight for second place while the league-leading Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals are on even terms after two overtime struggles of their series of four.

Regain Second Place.

New York's Giants have regained second place, but they are not yet back to their starting point of a 1½ game margin of the Robins. A heroic struggle yesterday which ended in a 3 to 2 victory for New York only served to place the Giants a half game ahead of their Brooklyn neighbors with a strong possibility that they may lose this ground in today's final game.

After they had been shut out for six innings as Bill Clark made a great start toward pitching Brooklyn to its third straight victory and New York to its sixth successive defeat, the Giants pushed over a run in the seventh, tied the score on Ethan Allen's home run in the eighth and bunched two more hits after a Robin error for the deciding tally in the same inning.

Chicago made an even greater comeback to triumph over St. Louis 9-8 in a 13-inning struggle that put the Cubs 5½ games ahead of New York and six in front of Thursday's runners-up, the Robins. In eight innings, they made only seven hits off Jess Haines and not a run while the Cards piled up five tallies in the first four frames. The Cubs made up the difference in the ninth when they assaulted Haines and Herman Bell for five hits and as many runs.

St. Louis took another apparently safe lead in the eleventh when Jim Bottomley clouted a home run with two on base, but the Cubs again fought back and tied the game at 8-8 with a group of four effective hits. The final break came when "Old Hoss" Stephenson opened the Cub half of the thirtenth with a triple off Grimes and scored on Lester Bell's single to end the Cardinal hope of taking third place.

Rain checked the threatening gestures of the Pittsburgh Pirates against Cincinnati, leaving another extra inning game with Boston and Philadelphia as the principals to complete the National League's schedule for the day. The Braves pulled out a 9-8 victory after a hectic eleven-inning struggle which saw eight pitchers.

Well, Mac, we had 3 starters in sporting events Wed. and 2 come through, which ain't bad hitting.

Down at Point Anne, where they make cement, the C.G.E. crew got the jump on Mister Soup Goyer and his play boys by grabbing the 1st game in their intermediate O.B.A.A. playoff series. Mister Primeau's lads showed all and sundry a brand of fielding that had the Pointers open-mouthed, and although Mister Vinnie Utronki weakened in the closing frame and the Easterners made it a tight finish, the Electricians' big lead was enough to carry them through, and now they're sitting pretty with 1 game in the bat bag and the 2nd game at home. If the lads pull through this round they'll likely get Oshawa or Toronto Monarchs in the next tilt, which oughta produce some mighty smart ball, what I mean.

Up at the Central School grounds the same nite our mush ball representatives, the Sugar Bowl outfit, who foundered in the Bay of Quinte sands last Friday nite, evened things up with the Trenton team by winning a snappy game, 4 to 1. Mister Len Forsythe, besides pitching a fine game of ball, led his team's attack with 3 hits, 1 of them a Hack Wilson, and his teammates gave him fine support. The Peterborough mushers was in front from the 1st frame and the game was never in much danger thereafter, except in the closing inning when the invaders filled the bases but failed to score.

We didn't do so good in the junior O.B.A.A. playoff serious with the Toronto winners. The kids from the Queen City won 11 to 4, and on the day's play, according to all accounts, was the better team. The Peterborough kids are a lot superior to what they showed Wed., and if they can get off on the right foot in the 2nd game will yet make things interesting.

Well, Mac, what did you think of the big swim? Looks to me, old-timer, like this Nelson kid is a real champ. He come from behind like a big leaguer, and the way he finished showed the long grind hadn't took everything out of him. I'd of liked to have saw this young Mister Spondor, the Port Colborne butcher boy, bring home the bacon, but Nelson's win was clean-cut. Both the kids deserve everything nice that's been said about them; they're the real article. Mister Geo. Young again failed to finish, and a lotta folks who couldn't swim across the Jack Park creek sez the Toronto boy is yellow. Well, they may be right, but it looks to me as if any bird what hops into the lake and drives himself at racing speed for over seven miles shouldn't have his gameness questioned if he cares. Swimming that distance at any speed is punishment enough in itself, and when you figger them grease?clad speedsters was working along 48 to 60 beats to the minute, you can figger it's a grind. Some of the knockers might just try swinging their arms that fast for 2 or 3 hours without getting into the water at all and they'd change their tune.

Nothing more this week old bird. The fishing report is the same as last week, thank you.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SCHMELING PLANS TO IGNORE CONTRACT

Agreements Mean Little to Joe Jacobs and German Boxer.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 30. — Jeff Dickson, European boxing promoter, visiting in Atlanta yesterday said he would sponsor a match in London in November at which Madison Square Garden's contract for the services of Max Schmeling as long as the German is champion of the world will be tested.

Dickson said he talked with Joe Jacobs, manager of the German, over the telephone last night. Jacobs, in New York, agreed to a test of the Garden's contract, Dickson said, and gave him permission to go ahead with arrangements for a bout in London in November and another in Paris in December.

Jacobs, Dickson said, had conferred with attorneys who advised him that the German's contract, in their legal opinion, would not prevent Schmeling appearing in European contests and that on such an opinion Jacobs gave him permission to arrange bouts.

CALEDONIANS WIN PECK TROPHY IN HARD BATTLE FROM PACKERS

Excellent Brand of the Code Given By the Players Before a Large Crowd of Spectators.

SCOTS 3, PACKERS 2.

C.P.C. Revival in Second Half Brought Them Two Smart Goals—Gore Scored the Deciding Counter.

Excellent weather prevailed last evening, for the final of the Peck soccer cup, when the Caledonians beat the Canadian Packing by the close margin of three goals to two, in one of the best games witnessed this season, before a large crowd of spectators. No doubt the excellent calibre of the code is drawing the old reliables back into the fold again after many years absence and the players deserve credit for the sportsmanship shown on the field. The decisions of the referee being in accord with the spectators and players alike.

At the end of the encounter, President Stewart presented the trophy to Captain Dan Curtain of the Scots who replied in appropriate terms, also complimenting his opponents in putting up a great battle.

First Half.

The spin of the coin went in favor of the Scots who compelled the Packers to face the sun in the east. A break away by Gore on the left terminated when he missed an open goal when only a yard outside the uprights. The Scots went back again to have the custodian bewildered as they over-ran the ball in their anxiety to score. Introducing the snappy, close-pasing game, the Scots found the net when Craig rapped a hot drive away from Charlie Griffin into the far corner of the uprights, from a centre by McCracken on the right. Play of the cup tie character being the order of the tussle and the swinging of the sphere caused the half backs extra work in an endeavor to confine the play outside the shooting zone. Although the tactics were nullifying, time and again the forwards would penetrate the goal to test the ability of the goalies. A sigh of relief came to the Scots when Fowler, their custodian fumbled a shot and Lottie falling back in time to rob an opponent of the ball. At this point, the Caleys were the dominating factor in all attacks that forced Buchan and his halves to kick to touch to reduce the fast pace. Raid after raid by the Scots brought no fruit for their labor but brilliant work in the goal by Griffin, the Packers' custodian. Gore just about beat him when he rapped a hot drive for the inside of the post. Griffin managed to touch it around the upright for a fruitless flag kick. Give and take play continued until Ward gained the foothold of the situation and sending his right winger up into the corner of the field, he dribbled his way closer to his objective and placed Cook in possession to simply slip the ball into the far corner of the net past Griffin, for number two, three minutes before the interval. Caledonians 2, Canadian Packing 0.

Half Time.

A re-arranged front rank of the Packers brought them success in the second half. On a visit to the Packers' goal, the Scots forwards fired three hot drives at the custodian at point blank range. He received the applause of the fans when he tipped the ball to touch after saving three times in sucession. Taking advantage of the lull that Scots provided, Buchan took up the aggressive in real earnest to gain his desire. He opened up a long range swing onto goal where Beggs got the better of the defence when he ran the sphere into the Scots' goal to reduce the lead. Play ran from end to end without anything interesting transpiring, until Beggs repeated the same performance with the equaliser from a Newt Downer centre. As play progressed, the referee had to caution some of the players for infringements of the code. An excellent display of combination livened up the proceedings, which held the fans full of excitement as the players battled for supremacy. In fact, Curtain looked as he had the decisive goal at his toe as he broke through the defense but Griffin was his obstacle. He gave away a flag kick that McCracken placed into the centre of the citadel. All the players went up in the air to head the ball out of danger but Gore got there first with a first-time header to completely baffle the Packers' goalies who lay prostrate on the ground a second too late. Five minutes continued to be played and the losers put up a great effort to pull the tussle out of the fire. Caledonians 3, Canadian Packing 2.

GOLF NOTES FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE GREEN

By RALPH H. REVILLE

TORONTO, August 30. — It seems simply incredible, but the Department of Commerce at Washington, which Goverment-like is always careful in giving out estimates publishes the statement that since last January $125,000,000 has been invested in Tom Thumb golf courses, of which there are now over 30,000 in the United States. How much money has been expended in Canada in these little layouts it is impossible to ascertain but they have been built literally by the hundred during the past few months and millions of dollars must have been expended in putting them into play.

In Toronto it is reliably reported that 30,000 people a day are playing over the 75 "two-bit" courses on the sand lots in that city. It is estimated that with the money spent by members of private courses, Municipal courses and Pay-as-you-play courses, golf is costing the citizens of Toronto $15,000 a day, which is more than they spend on any other six sports combined. The whole world seems to have gone "golf goofy" and that too in the face of hard times.

Progressive Club

St. Catharines is another progressive Ontario city preparing to launch a Public golf course. A committee composed of Alderman J. D. Wright (chairman) Fred W. Beard and Walter J. Wellwood has been appointed by the City Council to secure the necessary information from other cities which the past few years so successfully provided golfing facilities for their ratepayers and visitors. St. Kits can make no mistake about launching such a project. "All the world and his wife and children" are playing golf these days and St. Catharines is big enough to easily support a Public Golf Links, which eventually will prove a Municipal asset and not a liability. That is the experience of all cities both in Canada and the States.

There are now 21 Municipal courses in the Dominion as follows In Alberta, Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat. British Columbia, Vancouver. Manitoba Winnipeg (2 courses), Brandon. Nova Scotia, Halifax. Ontario, Brantford, Fort William, Hamilton, London, Port Arthur, St. Thomas, Stratford, Sarnia, Toronto, Windsor. Quebec, Montreal. Saskatchewan, Moose Jaw, Regina. Next year from present indications there will be eight or ten more built.

I have been advised that Canadians wishing to compete in the U.S. Amateur Championship at the Merion Cricket Club, Pa. (handicap 3 or less) Sept. 22nd-27th, must have their entries in not later than August 30th, with Mr. T. J. McMahon, Executive Secretary, 110 East 42nd street, New York City. It is understood that Champion and Jack Nash, Ontario Amateur Champion, intend to enter for this stellar fixture of the season. Somerville in 1928 at Boston qualified in fourth place but was put out the second round at match play by J. Beck of the British Walker Team by 1 up. Ross is unquestionably playing strokes better than he did in 1928 and should go far at Philadelphia next month.

Gardiner White, of New York, well known golfer and financier holder of the trophy from last year's competitions, and runner-up in the Canadian Amateur last year will defend his title at the fifth annual totem pole trophy golf tournament at Jasper Park Lodge, Sept 13 to 20. He has been playing over the famous Jasper Park course for several weeks and promises to give the contenders a worthy battle. With the handicap match against par and a ladies' handicap match against the C. L. G. U. par, the tournament will open Saturday morning, Sept. 13 and will last until the end of the following week. This year's tournament will include events for ladies, mixed foursome competitions and "mixed greensome." Entries are already being received at the Lodge, including several golfers in the East.

It is understood that Col. J. H. Woods of the "Calgary Herald" will be the next Lieutenant Governor of Alberta. The Government could not possibly make a better selection. Col. Woods is one of the outstanding journalists of Canada. Incidentally he has always been a very warm supporter of the Royal and Ancient game, giving a handsome cup for competition amongst the smaller golf clubs of Alberta. He is a former President of the Calgary Golf and Country Club and a charter member of the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association.

The British Seniors golf team headed by J. B. Pease well-known English Amateur and Chairman of Lloyd's Bank, one of the world's greatest financial institutions, arrived in Canada recently and the past few days have been enjoying friendly games in Quebec, Montreal, and Ottawa. To-day they are at the Toronto golf club getting in touch with the course there preparatory to taking part in the outstanding Seniors' Tournament which opens Monday and will continue throughout the week. The high spots of this most interesting fixture are as follows: Monday, Sept. 1st, Rounds of 18 holes, medal play. Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, second rounds at 18 holes. Tuesday evening, Annual Meeting of the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association. Wednesday, Sept. 3rd Foursome Competitions. Wednesday evening 3rd, Annual dinner of the Association at which the Governor General will be present. Thursday Sept. 4th, Triangular Match between the British, United States and Canadian Seniors' teams. Friday, September 5th, International match for the Duke of Devonshire Cup, U.S. Seniors vs. Canadian Seniors. Saturday morning, Sept. 6th, Individual championship for cup presented by the U.S. Seniors Golf Association.

Many of the leading financiers, and business professional men of Great Britain, the United States and Canada will battle for Senior golfing supremacy all next week on the Toronto Club's beautiful course. Such a galaxy of golfing men of prominence has never before met on a Canadian or any other course, for that matter. There will be over two hundred entrants from Canada alone, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Hamilton, London, Brantford, St. Catharines and many other cities contributing their quota of leading lawyers, doctors, bankers, merchants and manufacturers—in all a goodly company bent on having the time "of their young lives."

BOSTON PUCK STARS FISH FOR SALMON

Hitchman and Clapper Enjoying Themselves in New Brunswick.

FREDERICTON, N.B., August 30. —Captain Lionel Hitchman, of the Boston Bruins, and "Dit" Clapper, of the Village of Hastings, Peterborough County, and one of the stars of the team which made a runaway race of the National Hockey League last season only to lose the championship they had won the previous winter, are the latest sports notables to come to New Brunswick to add Atlantic silver salmon fishing to their list of sports activities.

Although both are experienced anglers, they are having their first experiences at fly casting at Hartt's Island pool on the St. John River, six miles north of Fredericton, where they are to spend two weeks at Roland H. Wheeler's fishing lodges. They motored here from Ottawa, where Mrs. Hitchman is visiting her home, breaking the 700 mile motor trip with stop-offs at Montreal and Quebec to renew hockey acquaintances.

Return in October.

Captain Hitchman plans on returning to New Brunswick again in October for moose hunting with several members of the Bruins as preliminary to reporting for training on October 20 for the next National Hockey League season. He figures that two weeks of simple but strenuous life, tramping New Brunswick woods hunting moose and deer would put the Bruins' stars in the best of shape to take the ice and he hopes Manager Art Ross will give his approval to the plan and also personally join the party.

When not engaged in whipping the waters of Hartt's Island Pool, the Boston Bruins' captain and all-round star have been busy since arriving on the Fredericton Golf Club's 9-hole course, in which sport Captain Hitchman, a veteran in hockey in point of service, although only 28 years old, claims predominance. Captain Hitchman was born in Toronto and played first with the Aura Lee Juniors in 1920-21, then with the New Edinburgh, Ottawa City League, 1921-22; he joined the Ottawa Senators in 1922, and was sold to the Boston Bruins in 1926.

Aubrey Victor Clapper is listed in the Bruins' official roster as a defence player, but he starred as a forward last season and was a spectacular goal getter. He was born in Newmarket, and now lives at Hastings, Ontario. He went to the Boston Tigers of the Canadian-American League from Parkdale Canoe Club, Toronto, where he played in 1925-26 ,and after playing with the Tigers in 1926-27 was drafted by the Bruins and has become a prime favorite in Boston.

TRENTON CLAIMS NEUTRAL GROUNDS

Refused to Play Sugar Bowl Here Last Night.

Last nights's softball game between Trenton and the Sugar Bowl failed to materialize. This was caused by the Trenton team refusing to play on the Peterborough grounds.

After Wednesday night's game in Peterborough the officials of both teams could not come to an agreement as where the game should be played. Trenton wanted it on their home grounds and the Sugar Bowl on their grounds. The Peteborough entry offered to toss a coin to decide or play it on neutral grounds. This did not meet with the approval of the Trenton officials so it was decided to leave the decision to Mr. McCarthy of Kingston, the eastern convenor of the O.A.S.A.

At 1.30 Friday morning Mr. McCarthy had the Peterborough representative, Mr. Leether, and the Trenton representative, Mr. Smith, on the long distance telephone. He flipped a coin to decide where the game would be played, and Peterborough won the toss.

Friday morning at 10 o'clock Mr. McCarthy wired the Peterborough team, informing them that the game would be played here at 6.15 p.m. But Trenton decided at noon that they would not journey to Peterborough for the game, and informed McCarthy to that effect. After the game had been advertised and tickets sold it had to be called off, leaving the Peterborough entry in a bad position.

The Trenton team have appealed to the Ontario secretary and a decision, asking for neutral grounds. The eastern convenor has asked the Ontario body to award the series to Peterborough by default. If the Sugar Bowl are awarded the series they will meet the Agnew-Surpass team of Brockville for the championship of Eastern Ontario.

Speeds Air Mail

Flying from England to Africa one day, and back to London the next, Captain C. D. Barnard proved that a light machine—he used a Puss-Moth—could do 1,000 miles a day without stopping, therefore air-mail machines could make similar flights to obviate the necessity of landing at foreign aerodromes. He flew 2,500 miles at an average of 110 miles an hour.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

Another successful tournament was held last night, and it is evident that these Friday night games are increasing in popularity. The games were all more or less closely contested ,and finally resulted in first prize being won by C. H. Benson, M. Breckenridge, A. Ringer, and M. Bredin, skip; second prize, Dr. Long, A. Brown, G. Cairns, and G. East, skip; third prize, K. Fox, L. Lortus, G. Sorenson, and R. Fox, skip. These rinks were all successful in winning their three games.

Louis Loftus bowled a great game all night and the King of Hard Luck was Ev. Taylor, who was bowling in rare form, but facing the "breaks" all the time. Bob Hendry was showing some of the class he had three or four years ago, and there is going to be trouble for somebody when they meet Bob in the singles.

This is not a 1914 war try, but volunteers for our financial drive are few in number. Your King and Country does not need you, but your Club needs you, and if you believe in maxims, he is one—"By the hands of many, a great work is made light."

It looks like a long way to $6,000, but if we all tackle the job it can be made ridiculously easy. Take hold of YOUR corner, and while Newsie is not a preacher, a saying of Joseph Chamberlain's is in order: "Like a postage stamp, a man's value depends on his ability to stick to a thing till he gets there."

All ladies and gentlemen are invited up again to-night for the usual Saturday chocolate tournament. The season is getting pretty short, and we cannot afford to miss these fine evenings.

If it's club news you will find it in this column daily.

TORONTO SHAKEN BY SEWER BLAST

Street Torn Up and Windows Smashed For Blocks.

TWO PERSONS HURT.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30—An explosion of sewer gas in the east end here yesterday tore up sidewalks, smashed windows and terrified citizens for blocks around with a deafening roar.

Two persons were injured by the blast. A truck driver was heaved against the seat of a heavy truck loaded with three tons of asphalt which was tossed three feet in the air. Mrs. H. Head was hurled to the pavement by the force of the explosion; one little girl fainted with shock.

Total cost of replacement for the pavement and sidewalks is placed by city experts at $20,000, and individual property damage will add another thousand to the total.

Officials of the sewers branch of the civic works department were at a loss to explain the cause of the explosion. One theory advanced is that the blast was started by gasoline poured into the sewers by cleaning companies.

Big Increase Shown Pacific Grain Exports

VANCOUVER, B.C., August 30 (C.P.). — Grain exports so far this season are more than a million and a half bushels ahead of the same date last year, according to regular report of the Vancouver Board of Harbor Commissioners. The export to yesterday was 2,627,300 bushels, and at this time last year was 829,-399. Elevator stocks are 9,629,459 bushels, and bookings2for the balance of the month are 259,000 bushels, while the railways have approximately 1,000,000 bushels bound westward. September bookings disclosed to the present slightly exceed 2,000,-000 bushels.

MOSLEM CHIEF GETS TEN YEARS

Pirpagoro Convicted of Illegal Possession of Arms and Kidnapping.

FINED 2,000 RUPEES.

KARACHI, India, Aug. 30 (C. P. Cable via Reuters).—The Moslem chieftain, Pirpagaro, or "the Saint of the Turban," who has been credited with almost divine attributes by many of his followers of the Sukkur district, has been sentenced at Jukkur to imprisonment of ten years and a fine of 2,000 rupees on various charges including the illegal possession of arms and the kidnapping of a boy and keeping him in confinement.

The arrest of the Chieftain early in the year caused a sensation. The Police, in response to an urgent appeal from the women of "the Saint's" household, raided his fortress at midnight and rescued several unwilling members of his harem. The police later on searched Pirpagaro's fortess and found a large store of concealed arms and ammunition.

They also found a youth named Ibrahmin shut up in a box, in which he had been chained for four years. Pirpagaro was acquitted of a charge of murdering Ibrahim's mother.

Alged Bootleggers Supplied Convention

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 30.—James Cummings and George Woodman, of Detroit, are on bail of $1,125 to appear in Leamington police court on Thursday next on charges of illegal possession of liquor and keeping liquor for sale. The men were arrested by provncial police, on instructions of Inspector Sidney Oliver, in a large house near Kingsville, where some 200 United States' grain men were holding a convention.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Get learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia, prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drug store.

and, turning our backs reluctantly on summer, all of us must once more return to the routine of city life, there are many household details that must be looked after immediately.

In the matter of your daily supply of Milk and Cream, dairy products and similar necessities, may we suggest that you take advantage of the remarkably complete facilities of the province-wide Silverwood organization.

A phone call will insure regular delivery of Silverwood's Safe Milk and will place you in regular contact with one of our wagon salesmen, who will be glad to see that you are supplied with Cream or the famous Silverwood's Smoother-than-Velvet Ice Cream whenever your needs demand.

Fish Has Souvenir Of Drowned Sailor

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—A codfish with a toothbrush in its stomach was brought in here yesterday in the catch of the trawler, Wild Goose, from George's Banks.

The brush was inscribed with the name of William Whalen of Long Bay, Placentia, Nfld. Whalen was one of the twenty men lost when the steam trawler trawler Seiner foundered in a storm in January, 1929.

The Seiner was owned by the Portland Trawling Company of Croton, Conn., which also owns the Wild Goose.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 50 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When d'Arnot regained consciousness, he found himself lying in a little shelter of boughs. Soon he recalled the whole hideous scene at the stake; the strange white figure carrying him away. What fate lay in store for him now? . . . Outside the hut he saw the squatting figure of a man.

He called faintly. The man crawled in. D'Arnot spoke to him in French, then English, but he shook his handsome head. After examining d'Arnot's wounds he disappeared, coming gack with fruit, water, pieces of smooth bark, and a pencil. Squatting beside d'Arnot, he wrote, handing the message to the Frenchman.

D'Arnot read with astonishment: I am Tarzan of the Apes. Who are you? So d'Arnot wrote in English about himself. Thus conversing, he learned the story of the fight and found Jane was safe. Then for three days he was in a delirium. Tarzan feared to leave him long.

Days after, d'Arnot, very weak, but recovering, sat conversing with Tarzan by means of the smooth bark. He wrote: What can I do to repay you? Tarzan replied: Teach me to speak the language of man. Slowly he taught him to speak in French. Tarzan was a very eager student.

Soon Tarzan asked d'Arnot if he felt strong enough to be carried back to the cabin. Both were anxious to go, longing to see Jane again. DArnot wrote: You cannot carry me all that distance. "That's easy," Tarzan laughed. So they set out. Mid-afternoon, they arrived. The cabin was desert-

WOULD PROHIBIT TAKING OF BASS

Fisheries Societies Urges Game Fish be Taken Only for Propagation.

GUARD POLLUTION.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30 (C.P.).—Passage of a resolution urging all Provinces in Canada and every State in the United States to enact laws prohibiting the taking and selling of black bass and other game fish except for propagation or scientific purposes, regardless of where they are caught, was the highlight of the final session of the American Fisheries Society, which terminated its 60th annual convention here.

A resolution was also passed asking all communities and industries to install plants for the treatment of their liquid wastes because of the widespread pollution of lakes, streams and coastal waters from this cause. This pollution was described as the greatest enemy of fish life.

Destruction of fishery resources which often resulted from the erection of water imponding dams was deplored by the delegates, and a motion was passed urging the Government fishery officials of both countries to undertake a careful study of the effects of all such projects before a new project is undertaken.

1,474,610 TOURIST CARS ENTER CANADA

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30. (C.P.)—American automobiles to the number of 1,474,610 entered Ontario for touring purposes during the first six months of this year, and the amount of their occupants' expenditures while here is estimated by C. C. Hele director of publicity for the Ontario Government at $21,455 000.

Of these tourist cars 1,287,576 were admitted to the Province for a period not exceeding 24 hours, 186,730 for a period no exceeding 60 days, and 304 came in for tours ranging between 2 and 6 months.

Windsor, as usual, was the biggest port of entry with 448,701 cars of the first class, 58,937 of the second class and 95 of the third.

Bridgebury was second and Niagara Falls third.

Explorer Relates Finding Andree's Body

Arctic Gives Up Dead Held In Ice 33 Years Since Ill-fated Flight

Doctor Gummar Horn Tells World of His Recent Discovery.

AN EXCLUSIVE STORY.

Andree, Swedish Balloonist, Disappeared in Far North Long Ago.

(Copyright 1930, and all rights reserved in North and South America and Japan by the Associated Press).

Associated Press-Aftenposten Boat, Heimen at Skjaer Island, Norway, (By Wireless), September 2. — Dr. Gunnar Horn told the Associated Press to-day how two harpooners, seeking drinking water on bleak White Island, stumbled on the grim solution of the mysterious disappearance 33 years ago of the Andree Aerial Polar Expedition.

Leader of a Norwegian exploration mission, Dr. Horn reached this Arctic Ocean port to-day in his expedition ship Bratvaag with the bodies of Salomon-August Andree and one of the two men with whom he set out to fly over the North Pole in a balloon.

Dr. Horn's Story.

ABOARD MOTOR SHIP BRATVAAG, Skjaer Island, Norway, September 2. — The Norwegian expedition to Franz Josef's Land (now Fridtjof Nansen Land) in the summer of 1930 was made with the motor sealer Bratvaag of Aalesund. The skipper was Peder Eliasen.

It was planned that the vessel should at the same time hunt whales seals and ice bears.

We sailed from Aalesund on July 29, and in the marvellous weather, went northward along the coast of Tromsoe. We continued our voyage and by the next morning we were well out at sea, past Soroya Island.

We made our course from Hopen, our first stopping place. we arrived there on August 2. From there we proceeded to King Karl's Land (Spitzbergen) and arrived on August 4 at Able Island, which is the most westerly part of King Karl's Land.

10 Sailors Drown As Ships Collide

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 2.—(C. P.)—The captain and nine members of the crew of the Halibut schooner Orient drowned yesterday when the vessel sank in Seymour Narorws after colliding with the freighter Admiral Nelson, the Pacific Steamship Company office was informed in a message from Captain F. L. Stevens of the Admiral Nelson.

FATHER SEEKING SON IN WOODS SHOT FOR MOOSE

BOY GONE 3 DAYS.

SAUTE STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 2. —(C.P.)—Gordon Crowle, 40, a former resident of the Soo, but more recently of Oba, where he was employed by the Algoma Central Railway, is dead, the victim of a gunshut wound inflicted by his 15 year old son Melville who mistook his father for a moose while hunting on the Albany river at midnight Saturday.

Following the shooting Crowle was rushed to the hospital at Hornepayne, where he died at noon Sunday.

It appears that Melville asked his father Wednesday if he and John could go hunting for moose with an Indian trapper, whose first name is Isaac. As the Indians are permitted to shoot game at any time of the year the father gave his consent, and the trio went down the Albany river. When they had been absent three days the father became worried, as he did not understand the hunt was to be a prolonged one, and started out to locate the party. At some distance from Oba he heard their voices from the river, and made his way through the brush to the shore to intercept them. The party in the canoe heard the noise in the brush and finally made out the dark form on shore. The father wore dark clothing.

The Indian, according to the story, told Melville to take aim and he would tell him to shoot. The boy did so and on instructions from Isaac pulled the trigger. The father fell without a sound.

The provincial police are investigating the case to-day.

The Weather

The rainfall during August was only about half the average amount. The total was 1.67. There were only two heavy rainfalls, that on the 8th giving .70 of an inch, and on the 23rd, .68 of an inch. There were more than the usual number of warm days, there being 23 days on which the temperature was around 80 degrees or over. The warmest day was the 8th, it being 90 degrees in the shade. The lowest temperature was on the morning of the 13th, with 41 degrees. — W. P.

300 ARE INJURED IN BUDAPEST RIOT

Unemployed Battle Police, Attack Street Cars, Stone Windows.

ONE MAN KILLED.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 2.—(A.P.)—Three hundred persons were injured, 30 seriously, and one man was killed in a riot for food and work among the unemployed in Budapest streets yesterday. Communist agitation was blamed. Four of the seriously injured are policemen.

Police permitted the meeting of the unemployed, which had been highly advertised for weeks, on the promise that it would be orderly. The demonstartors stoned windows, halted street cars and automobiles, and attacked the police with revolvers, stones and iron rods.

Mounted police and armored cars finally dispersed the throngs.

BALLOONS FLOAT TOWARD ONTARIO IN BENNETT RACE

Six Huge Gas Globes Carried From Cleveland Toward Labrador.

SEEN OVER LAKE ERIE.

Annual International Contest—Belgian Veteran Reported in Lead.

SMITHVILLE, Ont., Sept. 2.—The Pierre Fisbach, a French entry in the Gordon Bennett balloon race, came down near here shortly after noon to-day. The ship was piloted by Albert Boitard, with Jeafi Berde as his aide. The balloonists left for Cleveland this afternoon by train.

Boitard was the only one who could speak English. Being told that he was near Smithville meant nothing to him, but when Canada was mentioned he said: 'Thank God we are in Canada. If I had known we were in this part of Canada I would never have come down." The answer was made to William Vail on whose farm the balloon landed.

CLEVELAND, September 2. — Six huge gas bags, bearing the bids of four nations for victory in the 19th International Gordon Bennett balloon race, to-day presumably were drifting in a northeasterly direction toward the Atlantic.

Definite knowledge of their progress was fragmentary since they faded into the night sky after the start of the race late yesterday, but early reports and a study of atmospheric conditions indicated that they would drift in a general northeasterly direction toward the Labrador coast or perhaps shift southward to Maine.

In the event they followed the St. Lawrence Valley they were expected to reach Toronto, Ont., this morning.

Predictions of brisk winds from the southwest promised a long race of from 600 to 800 miles that will keep the balloons in the air probably until to-morrow noon. The longest difference traversed from the starting point determines the winner.

Carried by Brisk Breeze.

Two of the bags were reported at 12.30 (E.E.T.) over Erie, Pa., heading out over Lake Erie, but their identity was lost in the darkness. It was considered likely that the others were blown out over the lake earlier in the race.

Previous reports placed the "Belgiva," piloted by the veteran Captain Ernest Demuyer, "The City of Detroit," with Edmund J. Hill in charge, and the "City of Cleveland," in the hands of Roland J. Blair., grouped within a few minutes of each other at Geneva, O., near Lake Erie at dusk. Earlier the other three were seen over East Cleveland, 35 miles from the take-off. They were the "Barmen," piloted by Dr. Hugo Kaulen, Jr., of Germany, the "Pierre Fishbach," piloted by Albert Boitard of Paris, and the "Goodyear," piloted by Ward T. Van Orman of Akron, O.

Cross New York State.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 2. (1.27 p.m.) —A huge silken bag identified as that of Captain Ernest De Nuyter of Belgium, the dean of the 19th international classic, was reported over Earleville, in the central part of New York, at 6.30 a.m., (E.S.T.) a distance of

CIRCUIT HORSES COMING TO FAIR

Race Meet This Year a Big Feature of Exhibition.

BIG CARDS ASSURED.

Probably one of the greatest race meets ever held in Peterborough will be part of the program in front of the grand stand during Exhibition Week. Previously Oshawa and Peterborough divided the horses, as these Fairs are held on the same days, but since Oshawa is substituting an athletic meet for horse racing this year, Peterborough is going to have the greatest field in the history of the Fair. The night races which recently brought together a fine lot of horses further advertised the track, and the best of these will be here.

Stan. Lowe, chairman of the committee, confidently states he will give to the public the best racing program ever seen here. A number of out-of-town horses are already here getting in perfect condition for the different racing events.

Victim of Mountie's Postol Succumbs Constable Faces Charge of Murder

DAUPHIN, Man., September 2 (C.P.). — Mrs. Sophie Light, 26, shot yesterday by Constable Piri of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, died early to-day, and a charge of murder has been laid against the constable. Piri was arraigned in Dauphin Police Court to-day, and remanded without pleading. Whether the trial will proceed on a murder charge or the count reduced to manslaughter has not yet been decided.

According to eye-witnesses of the shooting, Mrs. Light, with her husband and a friend, had attended an interprovincial picnic 65 miles from here. Constable Piri was on traffic duty at the picnic grounds. The constable is alleged to have accepted several drinks from the Light party, and to have been intoxicated. After some "kidding," the policeman is reported to have drawn his gun and fired one shot, the bullet striking Mrs. Light in the abdomen.

Gas in Sewage Plant Fatal to Three Men

Suffocated While Cleaning Sludge Tank at Kitchener To-day.

FOURTH MAY DIE.

Officials at Loss to Explain Sudden Rush of Gas.

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 2 (C.P.). —Three men lost their lives and a fourth is near death as the result of a disaster at the Mill Street sewer plant to-day.

The dead are: Jack Stevenson, Courtland Avenue; Jacob Eby, Mill Street, and Charles Zuch, Deen Road.

The men were cleaning a sludge tank on the sewer when the overpowering fumes seeped in. Watchers on the edge of the tank leaped in and were also overcome. Attempts to drag insensible companions up the narrow ladder were at first unavailing.

It is believed one of the victims may have been drowned when he fell with his head buried beneath the liquid several inches deep in the bottom of the tank.

The disaster was the first of its kind to occur here. Civic officials were at a loss to explain the sudden inrush of the gas which speedily overcame the workmen.

YORK TOWNSHIP REEVE FRAMED

Councillor Confirm Reports But Refuses to Divulge Information.

COME OUT AT PROBE.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2.—(C.P.)— Reports that further efforts had been made to "frame" Reeve W. J. Gilbert Dean of York Township, over the week-end were this morning substantiated by Councillor W. A. Toogood. Other than confirm the rumor the councillor would divulge no information. Efforts to locate the Reeve proved futile.

"It will all come out at the probe to-day," commented Mr. Toogood. "We have had too many reports of "framing," with little to back them up. I am not in favor of giving out any more information at this time. All I can say is that the report is true. I was talking to the Reeve yesterday.

At a meeting of the township employees Saturday, the Reeve asserted that several of their number had attempted to frame him along with several members of the Council.

Toronto Girl Shot Out Hunting Crows

TORONTO, Ont., September 2 (C.P.). — Wounds received when a gun accidentally discharged in the hands of her sweetheart, caused the death of Iona Moore of this city. The accident occurred when Miss Moore and her fiancee, accompanied by Miss Moore's brother and his wife, went to shoot crows near Uxbridge.

The young man had just loaded the shotgun when Miss Moore walked within range. "Be careful," exclaimed Mrs. Moore, and no sooner had she spoken than the gun discharged. She was rushed to the hospital and immediately blood transfusions were administered. Police are investigating the circumstances of the shooting.

Snowing In Alberta Cool Wave In West

POLICE ALLEGE LIQUOR SELLING

Young Men Found in North End Waterfront House.

ANALYZE 'BOOZE.'

Henry Booth, said to be its proprietor and dispenser of illicit liquid refreshment, appeared in Police Court this morning charged with keeping liquor for sale. Three local young men, who were gathered in during the raid, were also charged with breaches of the L. C. A.

Booth's establishment is located on Water Street across from the Auburn Woollen Mills, and police state they have had the house under observation for some time. Men and boys were frequenting the place.

Provincial Constables Harry Thompson and Arthur Sommerville descended upon it early last evening, arresting Booth and his guests. The charges followed.

The wet goods found in the place will be sent to the Government Analyst and until his findings are returned the case will not be heard. Booth did not plead and was allowed his freedom on $200 cash bail. The three youths also had their cases held over until September 10.

The court room was crowded and in the absence of Magistrate O. A. Langley, who is enjoying several weeks of well-earned holiday, Mayor Denne and Dr. T. W. H. Young occupied the bench and handed out justice in partnership.

Reckless Driver

Charged with reckless driving a local young man pleaded guilty and was fined $25 costs, having his driver's license suspended for ten days. It was stated that he had been drinking but was not drunk. He was in an accident last night, but no one was injured, was the other information given out.

Ten dollars for being drunk in a public place was the fine meted out to another local man. Alleged to have raised a turmoil in his home last night by shouting and raging, a local man appeared under a section of the Vagrancy Act. He shouted "Not guilty" to the charge and the case was adjourned until the tenth of September.

COONS BROTHERS SPECIALIZED IN RAIDING ROOSTS

MANY CHICKENS STOLEN.

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, Sept. 2.—Provincial officers Nelson and Porter put a sudden end to an epimedic of chicken thieving in this district Saturday when they arrested Harvey Coons, aged 26 years, and his brother Robert Coons, 19 years old. They were caught with the goods on them trying to dispose of 20 fine dressed chickens to a local butcher.

For a month past farmers within a radius of thirteen miles have been having their chicken coops raided, one farmer losing as many as one hundred hens and another fifty. Another farmer's coop was visited on two different occasions, with forty chickens taken one night and twenty-five the next time. The Coons brothers have been living in an old abandoned log house at 36 Division street, where they have two sisters. The brothers were caught separately and both admitted a string of thefts. The two sisters admitted cleaning the fowl and dressing them for sale. The police state that a number of paries have also been held at the house. Police also state that two Indians from the Reserve at Roseneath have been living in a tent near the log cabin.

The Coons were born and raised on a farm near Rosedale, in this county, and for a time past lived at Peterborough and Officer Nelon suspects Coons are responsible for the epidemic of chicken theft around Peterborough and Cobourg. Harvey Coons served a three year term in Kingston penitentiary, for chicken

BOY SHOT IN EYE MAY LOSE SIGHT

Joseph Anderson, Toronto, Was Chasing Snake Near Apsley.

RUSHED TO TORONTO.

Blinded, with a bullet lodged behind his left temple and suffering intense agony the youth was rushed by train at noon today to a Toronto brain specialist.

Yesterday afternoon the boy went out along the shore of Jack's Lake, near Apsley, where he had been holidaying, to pot birds with his rifle. Along the trail he came across a snake. It was in chasing the snake that he tripped and the rifle accidentally discharged. The bullet entered his right eye, passed over behind his left eye and lodged behind his left temple.

He was conscious today, but could tell little of what occurred except that "it happened when I fell".

Dr. T. P. McCollough attended him at Apsley yesterday and advised that he be conveyed as speedily as possible to Toronto.

Members of Pool Paid Back Interest

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 2. (C.P.) Cheques to the value of $778,-760.68 were mailed to-day to Saskatchewan Wheat Pool members from the head office in Regina in payment of the interest for the year ending September 1, 1930, on certificates of commercial reserve and elevator deductions for the first pool contract period which ended July 31, 1928.

The cheques are dated September 1, 1930 and represent interest on the total amount of reserves deducted from the proceeds of grain delivered during the crop years 1924, 1926 and 1927, standing to the credit of individual pool members at the head office of the pool computed at the rate of six percent on the elevator deductions and five percent on the commercial reserve.

Question Mark Is Last Seen Over Halifax

NON-STOP FLIGHT FROM CONTINENTAL EUROPE TO CONTINENTAL AMERICA IS FIRST IN HISTORY

HALIFAX, N.S., September 2 (C.P.). — The radio operator at Chebucto Head, at the entrance of Halifax Harbor, advised the superintendent of the radio signal service at Halifax that an airplane answering the description of the Question Mark passed that station at 12.25 p.m. (Atlantic daylight saving time).

When his plane flew over Cape Canso in Nova Scotia to-day Captain Dieudonne Coste achieved something new in aviation annals—a non-stop flight from Continental Europe to Continental North America.

There have been two other successful westward flights straight across the North Atlantic, but both started in Ireland and landed on islands off the American coast.

Breman First

The first was the German expedition in the Breman. It took off in Ireland and made a forced landing on Greenly Island. The other was the Southern Cross, which also started its ocean hop in Ireland and stopped for fuel in Newfoundland.

The German, von Gronau and his mates, who arrived last week in a flying boat also crossed the North Atlantic, but they kept far to the north and made stops in Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and elsewhere along their route.

Even if Coste and Maurice Bellonte his companion should be forced down short of their goal here they still would be credited with the best westward flight ever made across the North Atlantic, for they started in France and in passing Canso they reached the continent of North America.

FOURTH AIRMAN PAYS WITH LIFE PRICE OF SPEED

Capt. Arthur Page, Jr., Died Few Hours After Crash.

AT CHICAGO RACES.

CURTISS-REYNOLDS AIRPORT, Chicago, Sept. 2 (C.P.). — The 1930 edition of the national air races became history to-day with the names of four dead engraved on the records as martyrs to man's fight to master gravity.

Capt. Arthur Page, Jr., of Washington, D.C., noted marine flier, whose racing ship crashed down on the airport yesterdayl died a few hours later. He had been leading in the speed classic of the 10 days of competition—the Thompson trophy race.

More than 60,000 spectators saw Page's plane swing around the home pylon at a speed of 207 miles an hour, wallow crazily for a moment, then dive to destruction.

Speed Record of Races.

Flying at a speed of 201.91 miles an hour, Charles "Speed" Holman of Minneapolis swept on over the 100-mile triangular route to win the race and a prize of $3,000, and to set the fastest pace in the records of national air race closed course events.

A native of Minnesota, Page had graduated from the Naval Academy in 1917. He was winner of the Curtiss Marine Trophy race in Washington recently, and flying from Omaha to the navy field at Washington last June, he had set a record for "blind flight," guiding his ship entirely by radio and his instruments.

A determined effort to learn the cause of the crash was under way today. Samples of the flier's blood were taken to learn whether he had been overcome by carbon monoxide during the race.

At the same time Major R. W. Schhoeder, aviation authority and chairman of the air race competitions, announced that investigations of previous crashes during the meet had given invaluable information to an industry which seeks to advance flying in the United States.

GUY CURTIS SERIOUSLY ILL.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., September 2 —Advices from Delta to-day stated that Guy Curtis, former Queen's University football star and hockey player, who suffered a stroke a fortnight ago, has developed pneumonia, and that his condition is critical.

SEEN OVER MAINE.

BAR HARBOR, Maine, Sept. 2.— A resident of Hancock's Point, just east of here, reports a plane, believed the Question Mark, of Coste, passed at 3.55 p.m. E.S.T., a half-mile up. Expected to arrive at 7.15 in New York.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Madame Dieudonne Coste today waited confidently for word from her husband after his flight across the Atlantic ocean. She was sure he would phone well before midnight today.

Her vigil will have been far longer than that of her husband for she watched beside him while he slept before starting upon his flight and she has had no sleep since.

"I went to bed to dream of him, to be with him in the great loneliness of the black night over the sea," she told the Associated Press today, "but how could I sleep. I had a telephone beside me and every word from Maurice Bellonte's wireless and from the many watching ships came to me hour after hour."

Confident of Success

VIROFLAY, France, Sept. 2.—(AP) —Madame Maurice Bellonte said today that she is one of the happiest women in the world, because she is sure her husband will succeed in the first non-stop Paris-New York flight with Dieudonne Coste.

Madame Bellonte is an English-born girl and was Doris Stafford when she, like Madame Coste met her future husband at a flying field.

GREATEST ALBERTA MAN HUNT ENDS AS POSSE MEMBER SHOOTS KILLER

Bandit Who Held Up Berwyn Bank, Shot Constable and Escaped, Admits Deed and Tells of Killing Woman in Lonely Shack Before He Succumbs to Bullet Wounds.

PEACE RIVER, Alberta, September 2. (C.P.) — Ending one of the greatest man hunts in the history of this province a member of a sheriff's posse killed Mike Chonka late yesterday, according to meagre reports from the north to-day. Chonka is alleged to be the bandit who held up a Berwyn bank last week, and then ran the gauntlet here Saturday night, shooting Thorne Collison, chief constable, through the chest, as he sped away in a stolen power boat.

Chonka was overtaken by a farmer member of the posse yesterday, according to to-day's reports, and was shot down when he resisted arrest.

Before he died he allegedly admitted shooting the Peace River police officer, and told the police he had shot and killed a woman Monday morning when she refused to give him something to eat. A constable has been despatched over his route attempting to determine if his story is true.

BAILIFF HALTS BOYD'S FLIGHT; PLANE SEIZED UNDER GARNISHEE

MONTREAL, Que., September 2 a R.C.M.P. officer at St. Hubert Airport. (C.P.). — Prospect of a further delay in the projected trans-Atlantic flight of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia from Montreal to Croydon, England, loomed to-day as the giant airplane lay under seizure at St. Hubert Airport. The machine was attached on Monday on its arrival here from Toronto at the instance of Roger Q. Williams, aviator, of New York City, who flew the Columbia from New York to Montreal recently. With the Columbia is also seized the Triad, a sister airplane owned by the same company. The two machines are now in custody of

The writ of attachment under which the two planes were seized is directed against the Columbia Airways Incorporated and Charles Levine, of New York City. At the present time Levine is said to be in Europe. In the proceedings Captain Errol Boys and O'Brien, described as aviators of New York City, are named as garnishees.

In the affidavit accompanying the writ it is stated that the Columbia Airways Incorporated and Charles Levine are indebted to Williams in sums totalling $1,000 for service rendered as an aviator in bringing the Columbia to Montreal.

REV. DR. W. J. MARK RESIGNS ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, CAMPBELLFORD

Public Announcement Made at Services on Sunday—Came to Campbellford in 1928.

FAREWELL SERMONS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 2.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)— Preaching for the last time in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Campbellford, on Sunday last, the pastor the Rev. W. J. Mark, D.D., made public announcement at both services that he had tendered his resignation as encumbent of St. Andrew's to the Presbytery of Peterborough.

Dr. Mark was called to the charge in September, 1928, was inducted on November 9, and commenced his ministry on November 11 of that year. For many years he served the mission fields of Alberta, and later went to New Westminster, from which place he came to Campbellford.

Many people attended both services to hear their pastor's farewell addresses. At the morning worship he took for his text, St. Matthew X, verse 29, "For My Sake." In giving his text Dr. Mark pointed out that he did not want his hearers to misconstrue the thought that the text gave. These were the words of Jesus and were to be taken as such.

Taking the story from which the words of the text were drawn the preacher pointed out that Christ had refused the services of the rich young man because he was not willing to give all, although he had given much. Later Peter approached the Master on this matter emphasizing the fact that the disciples had given all, and Jesus had stated that those who had left all for His sake would be amply rewarded. The speaker went on to state that Peter had given all. Not only his boat and his nets and his living, but his mind, body, and spirit, in the service of the Master. Christ had made a great demand on his followers, and they had measured up to that demand. They realized that the Son of God had a claim on them, and that they had a claim on the Son of God. With the rich young man it was different. He only thought of the claim that he had on Jesus. He wanted the claim of association with Christ, and failed lamentably. Peter came nearer by giving perfect surrender, which after the Spirit had come to him, made him a true follower of Christ.

"For my sake," the word of Christ, said Mr. Mark, lays at the root of the disciples' actions and should lies at the root of all our actions." We find no difficulty in obeying those we love. It is when we do not love that obedience is hard. It is the same with the law. Those who respect and love it obey it. It is only those who do not love it and are always trying to break it that worry over it. And in the church it is the same. If we love God and the service of God we will obey the voice of God as He speaks to us through the church.

Support Sunday School.

Dr. Mark continued by making an appeal to the men and women to stand fast behind the Sunday school, which was the future of the church. "God is not dead, he said, but looking to us to measure up, and it is up to us to apply ourselves to the tasks He has set us to do." These tasks were many and varied, for in all our actions in the common tasks of our daily labor the performance of them should be for Christ's sake.

Do we dove Christ for Christ's sake? was the question that the preacher asked his congregation, and went on to state that Christ is the supreme motive in life, for where love is there is victory.

In conclusion Dr. Mark said that the parting of the ways between himself and the congregation was ahead, and there was no doubt that darkness and trial would confront all of them, and perhaps a hesitancy to go forward. "But," he said, "let us with courage rise and for His sake do what we can, let us be of good courage, and if we love Jesus for Himself, we are promised at the end of the day that we shall have our reward. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

A feature of the morning service was the presentation by the Rev. Dr. Mark of Bible class diplomas to Miss Dorothy Barnum, Miss Eva McKelvie and Miss Mary Macgregog.

Hamilton Officer Arrests Two After Being Downed in Street.

INTERRUPTED BRAWL.

HAMILTON, Sept. 2. — Constable Samual McGee, a stalwart of the Hamilton police, put up a plucky fight against heavy odds early yesterday on King Street, north of Catharine Street, when four men alleged to have been brawling turned upon him and had him pinned to the ground. After he got to his feet and arrested two of them, one had to go to the General Hospital for treatment.

R. C. M. P. OFFICER CRAZED BY JEERS SHOOTS WOMAN

Shot Fired in Front of Thousands During Premier Bracken's Speech.

AT MANITOBA PICNIC.

DAUPHIN, Man., Sept. 2. (C.P.)— Crazed by the taunts and laughs of several women and men who "dared him to shoot" a constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police drew his revolver and shot down a 26-year-old woman on the picnic grounds in the Assiniboine Valley, on the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary, 65 miles from here yesterday.

The woman, Mrs. Sophie Light, wife of E. J. Light, president of the Board of Trade of Egwich, South Dakota, is in hospital here, critically wounded, a bullet in her abdomen. Physicians, however, believe she will recover.

The constable, J. Pitt, of the Yorkton detachment of the R.C.M.P., was a prisoner last night in Dauphin jail, and will be arraigned in court here this morning.

The shooting, according to witnesses was the culmination of a drinking party, and marred the big meet which was the occasion of the linking of the Manitoba and Saskatchewan highway system. It occurred in view of 6,000 perons, including Premier John Bracken of Manitoba and officials of both provinces; as well as representatives from South Dakota, guest at the opening of the new highway.

"We were just fooling around" said Mrs. Light. 'He was standing by our own car and we were kidding him. He was getting smart with us and pulled his revolver.

"Then, I said, 'you wouldn't shoot me, would you, big boy,' and he said, 'you'd be surprised what I'd do. I'm tough'."

Mrs. Light said she told him he was "just kidding" and she laughed at him. Other members of the party laughed, too.

"And then" said the injured woman, "he shot, and I fell to the ground."

Hundreds of persons, on hearing the shot, dashed to the scene, while a doctor, attending the picnic, attended the the wounded woman.

According to eye-witnesses the constable had been drinking with Mrs. Light and members of her party. After the shooting he roamed at large about the field, his smoking revolver in his hand, until he collapsed, falling on the edge of the picnic fied where he was found by provincial police officers and arrested.

LAD IS DROWNED IN POOL AT FALLS

Hundreds of Swimmers Fail to Notice Body Lying in 8 Feet of Water.

STRUCK IN MOUTH.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 2.— While hundreds swam in the municipal pond here yesterday afternoon, the body of Ernest Neal, aged 10, of this city, lay unseen for more than three hours in eight feet of water under the diving-board at the deep end of the tank.

His four companions, leaving the pool at 7.30 o'clock, after swimming for four hours, remarked casually to Thomas Grobb, a life guard, that they had mised Ernest in the water. They showed him the boy's clothes still in the locker. The last time they had seen him, they said, was when he stood poised on the diving-board.

Through the merry swimmers in the crowded pool, the life-guard members began their search. A few minutes later they found the body lying on the tiled bottom. It is believed that the boy either struck his head or was struck by a swimmer when he dived in. His lungs contained no water, but his mouth was bruised. Coroner E. T. Kellem ordered an inquest for 5 o'clock this evening.

ONLY ONE PATIENT.

In Isolation Hospital With Infantile Paralysis.

Fully demonstrating the unrelaxing vigil which the local medical health authorities are maintaining, an infantile paralysis patient was yesterday admitted to the City Isolation Hospital. The patient, a two-year old child living in this city, is stated to be progressing favourably.

There is absolutely no cause for panic, states the Medical Officer of Health. This is an isolated case. The child has not been in contact with anyone outside the home of it's parents. There have not even been visitors to the house in the immediate past, and what is most important the case was suspected in the earliest stages.

It is stated by the authorities, that only two other infantile paralysis patients from this city who were admitted to hospital in July last made a complete and speedy recovery.

FERGUSON PLANS SCHOOL GRANT ON PER CAPITA BASIS

New Method Effective Next Year—1930 Rates Set Already.

RELIEVE TAXPAYER.

Col. W. Rhoades Appointed to Care For Burnt Out Warriors' Interests.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2 (C.P.).— Redistribution of the present general school grants by the Province of Ontario on a per capita and local expenditure basis and establishment of a new Government staff office to supervise and aid the procuring of positions for partially disabled war veterans not receiving adequate pensions, were announced by Premier G. Howard Ferguson at the directors' luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday.

The change in the method of distributing school grants, Premier Ferguson said, would not come into effect for another year, as this year's local school rates have already been set.

The appointment of Col. William Rhoades, who will assume the duties of the new office in the interests of indadequately pensioned veterans, will be made shortly, Mr. Ferguson said.

Premier Ferguson's address was given on the "Ontario and Labor Day" program at the Exhibition. He reviewed the position of Ontario in Canada and in the British Empire, emphasizing the importance of the Province in both.

In a province so generously endowed with natural resources, said Mr. Ferguson, in the unique extent and variety of its wealth, the responsibility of the Government lay in giving leadership in education, training and development, so that the best possible use of its talents could be made.

In recent months, he said, it had been seen there was something wrong with the prevailing system of school subsidies or grants, based largely on qualifications of teachers and equipment. The Government now proposed to change the method of giving grants based on two paramount considerations—size of the school and number of students.

At the present time, said Mr. Ferguson, departmental officials who have been making a survey of the Province with this change in view, expected that the present budget appropriation would not have to be increased, the change being primarily a redistributing of grants.

Ontario Suffers Most.

Turning to the position of war veterans who were partially disabled, he said that Ontario had suffered more than any other section of Canada, with one-quarter of the casualties and thousands still lying in hospitals.

"But there is another type," he added, "those who are living on pensions and the men who are not pensionable or receive small pensions entirely inadequate to their requirements. There are, too, a great number of men who are not considered even under the wide provisions of the new pensions act.

"The Government has reached the conclusion that particularly at this time when the inefficient are being eliminated and overhead reduced, that it is time to make special arrangements for these men," declared Mr. Ferguson.

After consultation with the Canadian Legion, with whom the appointee will work, it was decided to name Col. Rhoades, veteran of the South African and Great War, on the Government staff, Mr. Ferguson said.

Picture YOUR HOME with a COLOURFUL ROOF !

THE beauty and attractiveness of your house, and the impressions it leaves with your friends, depend more on the appearance of its roof than you would imagine. Today, colour is as important in the roof of your house as it is in the fixtures and interior trim.

Let the specialized study of Johns-Manville colour experts bring this modern touch of smartness to your home. These men have created charming effects that are not obtainable in most other roofings—and Johns-Manville has worked them into varying types of weather-proof and fire-proof shingles that are priced to suit every budget and designed to harmonize with every style of house.

Durable — Long-Lived — Economical

You may select either a Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingle Roof or a J-M Asphalt Shingle Roof—but whichever style and design you choose you may be sure that you are buying long years of perfect roofing satisfaction at the lowest cost per year. Johns-Manville has been a recognized roofing authority for years—and during these years J-M Roofs have proved themselves the most economical roof investment that can be made.

If you select a J-M Asbestos Shingle roof you will never need (or wish) to replace it. These J-M Shingles actually harden as the years go by. They give lasting protection against fire and weather, and unfading beauty for as long as your house stands. And because they may be laid over your old shingles, they are very economical to apply.

Roofs of J-M Asphalt Shingles also give you many long years of colourful protection, free from any worry about leakage and repair expense. They are lower in price than Asbestos Shingles, but they represent unequalled dollar-value.

Talk to your nearest building material or lumber dealer about the economy of re-roofing instead of maintaining your old roof. Ask these dealers to show you J-M Shingles in their matchless colour harmonies and to give you figures from which you may see how economical a new J-M Roof really is.

His desire to be done with roof costs for all time first led Mr. R. J. Conlan to consider a Johns-Manville roof for his house at 90 Woodlawn Avenue, Toronto. He selected a J-M roof, he tells us, because of the beauty of the shingles, their permanence, and his confidence in the name Johns-Manville.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

WE DO NOT hear so much about people dieting as we formerly did, although it is quite common yet, I understand.

• • • • • • •

There are many kinds of diets—anti-fat diets, blood-purifying diets, vegetable diets, orange diets, fruit diets, diets in which only certain kinds of flour are permitted, etc. through a long list of restrictions.

• • • • • • •

Many people who thought they could be cured of certain ills by keeping to one diet, have found they were mistaken—there was some little thing lacking in the diet.

• • • • • • •

On reading an article on dieting, I find that physicians are beginning to find flaws in the indiscriminate use of special diets and are mentioning the mixed or varied diet as promoting good health.

• • • • • • •

Before attempting to follow any special diet, a person does well to consult a physician and find out whether there is need for it.

• • • • • •

Reducing diets especially, without consulting a doctor, are sometimes fatal. I know of one case where a young lady, who was not fat, decided she would like to reduce, with the result that it was fatal to her.

• • • • • •

Reducing diets must be careffully studied to suit individual cases. Anemia may result from underfeeding or anyone of several troubles which come from some element of food being withheld from a constitution.

• • • • • •

There is one guide to diets that anyone can follow with safety. Whatever is found positively to disagree with a person should be eliminated at once.

• • • • • •

Whatever is found to agree can be eaten with freedom. The foods may or may not be the favorites of one's appetite, but we are not now considering likes and dislikes in foods, but edibles that suit constitutions.

• • • • • •

The study of foods and diets has lead to a better understanding of what each food does for a system. There must be some one of the various vitamins in each, for the vitamin is the life-giving element as the root of the word indicates.

• • • • • • •

Freely translated this means the nourishing element. Each food that is valued contains some nourishing element, or some element that the system requires.

• • • • • • •

Since this is true it will be seen that the varied diet would contain a better assortment of the needed kinds of nourishment for the normally-well person, than any specialized diet.

• • • • • •

It will also be seen that under a physician's direction, the particular kind of nourishment that a physique needed could be introduced into a specialized menu

• • • • • • •

To pick some certain diet because it appeals to a person as bringing desired affects, such as slimness, is most unwise, for without proper knowledge of what the system requires, the diet might be incorrect.

• • • • • •

Then instead of benefitting the system, it would harm it. Special diets for special purposes, and for persons who must have special treatment.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ANOTHER HELP IN EPILEPSY.

I believe every physician has within his care at least one patient suffering with epilepsy.

In fact these cases would greatly exceed that in number.

It is true that a remedy, luminal, has proven of great help in warding off, and lessening the severity of the attacks, but every physician in his heart greatly longs for the solution of the cause of epilepsy, as he does also for cancer.

And yet just as in the case of cancer they do not know exactly what it is or what causes it, yet they do know some of the things that predispose one to it, so also with epilepsy.

The fact that by having these patients do without food entirely—that is starve themselves, no epileptic attacks occur, points to food as a factor.

The fact that by increasing the fat in the diet, and decreasing the starches, attacks have been prevented, is another point learned.

Washing out the stomach two or three times a week is another preventive.

Removing the appendix, and also removing a portion of large intestine has kept some patients free of attacks for years afterwards. In other words, food, digestion, and wastes all seem to enter into the cause.

And lately another point has been learned that is worth passing on to those homes where this distressing ailment abides.

As you know all the cells in your body have to have moisture as they are like so many little fish in tiny pools of water. However, it has been learned that in epileptics there seems to be too much water in the tissues.

Dr. Temple Fay pointed out some four or five years ago that too much fluid got into portions of the spinal cord, and by exerting pressure on the nerves there, produces epileptic attacks. Removing some of the fluid from the spinal canal was found to be of help in these cases.

That is the reason that cutting down on food, cutting down on liquids, gives such good results in controlling the attacks.

Now most of us can drink plenty of liquids, an extra quart besides what we take at meals, but with epileptics, one more help in keeping down attacks is to cut down the amount of liquids taken.

A PRIVATE UNDERSTANDING.

Children love secrets and to share one with a grown-up is to double the delight. Sometimes one can turn that to good account.

A boy in his early teens is likely to speak too often and too well at times. An awkward pause in the day's occupations may ensue at any time. One cannot silence him. Threatening him does not help because he has no idea of the impending catastrophe. Something is said and before you can open your mouth he has ruined a perfect day.

Such a boy had an uncle, one of those irascible old gentlemen who flush up and bluster and push back their chairs for a sweeping stride to the doorway. "If you can't teach your cub any manners you have no call to invite gentlemen to your house."

That's a pretty kettle of fish, now isn't it? Mother is in tears, father is simply furious, the cub is grim and threatening. Uncle must be soothed some way. Some way it is done. But what can one do to avoid the crisis? You can't muzzle the boy. You can't shut him up once he starts. You can't change uncle. You can have a jolly private understanding with the boy.

You and he can have a confidential chat about the old uncle. Any good thing you can bring up about him is so much grist to your mill. If he fought in the wars, won a medal for anything, did some noble deed lay on the valors with a heavy hand and set the background for admiration. If you can.

Then proceed to be confidential. Admit that uncle has some mighty queer ways. Nobody would have dreamed of his flying into a rage like that over the simplest things—but he's like that. You have to humor him. Next time he comes we'll watch out. If I see him swelling up I'll give you the wink and if you catch him slipping tip me off. We have to help each other out or he will certainly be the death of mother.

That will put an entirely different face on the whole matter. You have not tried to make uncle out perfect. You have suggested that he may have a flaw here and there in an otherwise sterling character. You have shared a secret with the boy, gone into partnership with him in a combine against a common enemy—uncle's disposition—yet you have asked for sympathy and understanding too without slipping into sentimentality.

Many a time these little private understandings carry the family over hard places. A little chat off side, an accepted signal, a secret sign, averts many a crisis. And it cements the relationship between parents and children. The pedestal has been removed, the screen of adult aloofness has been removed and there is nothing between you but affectionate understanding that leads to co-operation.

Once you have shared a secret and carried through a difficult situation successfully you have arrived at complete understanding with your partner. Try it with the adolescents and know what real family fun can be.

HER FAT IS MELTING FAST AWAY

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free-from-fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning.

Kruschen daily means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body, and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

Chilled Soft Drinks That Warm the Heart

BY EDWINA NOLAN

HOT summer days and evenings bring the urge for cooling, refreshing drinks and there are many that are literally loaded down with minerals and vitamins, so much so that you might believe them little short of a doctor's prescription. Yet they can be made easily in the home and they add so much to a bridge party, tea party or an ordinary meal.

Bowls of electric-refrigerator fruit punches and tall pitchers of carbonated soft drinks, with the merry tinkle of ice cubes, help to drive away thoughts of sultry weather. The mixed fruit drink is enticing, but it should be allowed to ripen, which process takes about an hour or more. All ingredients, except the effervescent water and ice, should be mixed and placed in the refrigerator until the different fruits are assimilated. Instead of half a dozen distinctive flavors, the ingredients blend into a single surprisingly delicious flavor. Any beverage is successful that includes the juices of some of the tart fruits, such as lemons, sour oranges, rhubarb or cider from tart apples. Mint always adds much in flavor and gives the drink a cool appearance.

Cold punches and drinks lose their zest if they have too much sugar. And a bit of salt will improve the flavor. Drinks well shaken or well beaten just before serving have a better taste and a greater appeal to the eye. The best foundation for many fruit punches is lemonade or grape juice or a combination of both.

Milk, next to water, is the most important beverage and milk may be changed from the commonplace into a delicate novelty with chocolate syrup, caramel or fruit syrups, with a bit of strong coffee, a few drops of vanilla or other extract, or with ginger ale or root beer.

For a special milk drink, there may be added a beaten egg white, a cherry and the top powdered with chopped nuts. A milk shake takes on a company air if a sprig of mint is put into each glass. Sometimes grated orange rind may be added. Such drinks, though, must be served cold.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1930.

NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL.

Back from their two months' holiday, Peterborough's school staffs and school pupils began a new term this morning.

To young Canadians who through the long summer days have played to their heart's content with no lessons or school bells to bother them, the first day of school is not usually the most pleasant thing in the world.

But the mere fact that holidays come to an end and sterner tasks have to be faced is a valuable bit of education in itself.

It teaches the inevitable lesson that life is not all play, that there are responsibilities that have to be met, duties that have to be performed.

And fortunately for most children school after all is an agreeable place once the dread first day of the new term is over, teachers are mostly sympathetic and understanding, and the contact with scores of other children of their own age an experience that little folks like.

DAYLIGHT SAVING OVER.

Peterborough's period of daylight saving time came to an end last night when the hands of local time-pieces were moved to their normal position and the community's activities began to operate in accordance with standard time.

The close of the summer time era probably finds as sharp a divergence of opinion as to the merits of the plan as existed before daylight saving was adopted.

Possibly some of those who were bitterly opposed to it have found summer time not so bad as they anticipated, and likely a portion of those who were most heartily in favor have discovered that the benefits of the change were not so widespread as they expected, but on the whole the current of public opinion runs about the same as ever.

The only thing upon which there is unanimity is the conviction that if the system were generally followed instead of the patchwork method of the last few summers there would be less confusion and greater advantages.

Rural Ontario, for example, has consistently stuck to standard time, as have the railways, while the majority of the larger centres have been operating on a daylight saving schedule, with the result that confusion has been inevitable; this condition has been aggravated in some districts, such as Stoney Lake, where both systems were in use, according to the whim of different families.

RUSSIAN SLAVE METHODS.

Ghastly stories of conditions in Russia are told by refugees from Red prisons who have managed to escape into Finland and have been interviewed by newspaper correspondents.

They throw a light upon the slave labor methods by which the Soviet are seeking to capture a big share in the trade of the world that should make the people of other countries more determined than ever to do no business with a people so lost to a sense of what is humane and just.

A realization of the fact that hundreds of thousands of white slaves, men and women, are being worked literally to death in order that the dictators at Moscow may be able to undersell the products of the free labor markets of the world should, for example, cause a demand throughout Canada that regardless of the price at which it may be offered not another pound of Russian coal should be permitted to enter this country.

The same condition applies to lumber and other products.

"It is little exaggeration," writes one correspondent, "to say that every log represents a human life and more, that every log is the result of the deepest depth of human degradation and suffering."

One of the first acts of Mr. Bennett and his Government should be to stop the entrance into Canada of goods that have been produced at such a terrible cost.

COMPLETE THE CANAL.

In support of the movement among municipalities along the Trent Waterway to urge the completion of the canal by the construction of the necessary locks on the Severn River, the Toronto Star comes out wholeheartedly in favor of the scheme, and its endorsation of the project should encourage the municipalities to persist in their campaign.

"Many proposals have been put forward for public works in Ontario that would serve public purposes and also furnish the employment which will be necessary during the autumn and winter. Some grade crossing jobs are projected and others are being advocated. The Orillia Board of Trade has forwarded a resolution to Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, urging the completion of the Trent Valley Canal—that is to say, the completion of the locks on the Severn River, which would permit boats of a fairly good size to make trips back and forth between Lake Ontario and the Georgian Bay.

"The locks on the Severn River were being proceeded with by the then Conservative Government when the war broke out in 1914. For the past sixteen years the enterprise has been at a standstill. Something like twenty million dollars has been spent on the Trent Valley system and, as it stands, it is practically valueless, while, as the Orillia Board of Trade claims, the outlay of another three millions would complete the work and impart some real value to all the preceding expenditures. The resolution concludes as follows:

"'This would seem a favorable juncture to proceed with the work, which various Governments of both parties have pledged themselves to carry out, as the construction of these locks would involve chiefly labor and would give employment to a large number of men, thus materially relieving unemployment in this district. The news that the Government had decided to resume operations on the Trent Canal, for which, we understand, plans are already in existence, would have a most inspiriting effect over a wide territory.'

"It is not probable that the Trent Valley Canal will ever, when completed, fulfil the dreams of those who projected it and, since then, from time to time have championed it. As long ago as 1832 people indulged in visions of such a waterway busy with traffic. The railways have come since then; and now good roads and motor transport are outbidding the railways in cross-country haulage. But no transportation is as cheap as that by water. There is something to be said, too, for the contention that the completion of the work on the Severn, making a through way between the two great lakes, would give impetus to a valuable tourist trade. The high expenditure already made and the comparatively small amount needed to complete the work justifies the expectation that competent engineers will be asked to report on the case. Large public works, useful in themselves and warranted, must be set in motion. Here may be one of them."

As it says, in view of the small sum required to finish the work as compared with the large expenditure already made, and in view, too, of the fact that the construction of the required locks would provide jobs for many out-of-workers, it would seem good business on the part of the Bennett Government to include the completion of the Trent Canal in the program of public works to be launched.

In addition, there is not a doubt in the world that the volume of tourist traffic over the waterway, already of considerable proportions and of considerable value to the people of the Trent district, would be very materially increased were the Severn River locks completed.

Municipalities along the canal should unite their efforts in making an impressive demand upon the Government for action in that direction.

BIASED CRITICS.

While much of the comment on Empire affairs appearing in the American press is friendly and well-informed it is unfortunately the case that much of it is just the reverse. Some commentators never miss an opportunity of saying the unkind thing, and if the opportunity does not present itself, they twist the facts to suit themselves. The British public is long-suffering, but there are signs of impatience, and it is not to be wondered at. The glaring impropriety of the American protest against the British administration in India may be taken as an example. This appeal to prejudice and ignorance was signed by influential leaders of American thought, and created the worst impression, for its injustice, bias and inaccuracy. Now and again articles appear in widely-circulated magazines in the United States, wholly hostile in sentiment to the British and partial to the extremists of India. For the most part such effusions are treated with silent contempt; they are so grossly unfair it is not believed possible that any thoughtful reader will be deceived by them. Undisguised abuse may be left to defeat itself; but there is a subtler form of propaganda which is much more dangerous and of which it is necessary to take notice. Self-styled "authorities," while pretending to sit in judgment between the parties, have thoroughly made up their minds beforehand what their verdict is going to be, and present only the evidence favorable to that verdict. Most often the evidence itself is distorted, sometimes it is invented.

Mr. Edward Thompson, poet, novelist and lecturer in Bengali at Oxford University, who recently visited the United States and discussed Indian problems on the public platform there, has published in the London Times a series of articles dealing with some of the more glaring inaccuracies of American writers. Space does not allow of detailed reference, but the articles have been reprinted in booklet form, and it is to be hoped that they will have a wide circulation in the United States. The most amazing assertions have been made, which Mr. Thompson has no difficulty in disproving. Figures have been manipulated; economic "facts" turn out to be pure fiction, and the most absurd conclusions are drawn from entirely false premises. Not only is this so in the case of the more popular magazines, but some of the so-called serious works, purporting to be authentic treatises on Asiatic problems—one of the authors is credited in the "puff" with "unparalleled information"—are in reality the most ludicrous exhibitions of ignorance and prejudice. Mr. Thompson's rejoinder is made in no unfriendly spirit, but solely in the interests of truth. The Indian problem is regarded not so much as a British problem, but as a world problem, to the effective solution of which accurate information is a primary necessity. Well-informed, constructive criticism is not resented, but invited; but ill-natured vituperation should be recognized by the public for what it is, and given only its true value—which is nil.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Creeping like snail unwillingly to school."

Don't forget to invite your friends to visit you during the week of Peterborough's big Industrial Exhibition.

The success of Peterborough's Exhibition next week will depend upon you. The management has done its part and the responsibility will rest upon the shoulders of the public.

Comes From Northland

Rev. L. E. Atkinson, eight years a missionary among the Northern Crees at Oxford House, Man., a post one week's travel beyond the north end of Lake Winnipeg, is one of the commissioners elected to the general council of the United Church of Canada, meeting at London, Ont., in mid-September. He was born near Stouffville, Ont., and attended Victoria College, Toronto.

The Office Hound

Prominent among the group which returned to town this morning from the society colony at Blister Beach was Lady Matilda Arabella Dribble, who is not only the recognized leader of our most exclusive local set and society correspondent for The Office Hound but, is the holder of all long-distance marathon endurance records for endorsing cold-creams, cough drops, toilet water, arch-supporters, and cocktail shakers.

O—H

In the matter of cold-cream endorsements, she was four down on ex-Queen Marie at the beginning of the summer; but by displaying an amazing burst of speed and stamina which astounded the old world, she succeeded in endorsing a round half dozen of nationally advertised cold-creams inside of three weeks to establish a new all-time, all-distance, catch-as-catch-can record for dermatological endorsement.

O—H

"The beauty of advertising endorsements is that it makes cheque endorsements so much more significant," Lady Dribble is quoted as saying. "When my poor, dear husband, the late Sir Toby Dribble, K.C.B., F.R.S., B.V.D., K.D.K.A , C K G W , died all that he left me was a lot of bad debts and a sick headache. But to-day—thanks to my endorsements—I am able to maintain at my home a coterie of young scions of defunct Russian noble families and to preserve that air of naughty virtue which passes for divine authority among women's club intelligentsia."

O—H

This morning, as she stepped coyly out of her custom-built Rolls Royce, Lady Dribble had in tow the beautiful young man, Theodore, the Minor Poet from Port Hope. Theodore is destined to provide the sensation of the coming season here, according to Lady Dribble. He reads yards of idiotic verse in a soft musk-scented voice; while his long, sensitive fingers toy with his silken, mahogany hair. . . . At least, that was the description handed to the eager press by the redoubtable Dribble this morning.

O—H

Theodore—sporting a green carnation and a languid air—floated up Lady Dribble's stately staircase in the shadow of the Great Lady herself.

"I shall retire to solitude, dear Lady Dribble, he breathed from the head of the stairs. Pray, do not disturb me. I shall see you anon."

O—H

"Right-o, Teddy, old boy!" chortled Lady Dribble from behind the smoke-screen issuing from her imported cigarette. "Pop down when you've got over your bilious attack!" . . .

Dear Lady Dribble—despite heroic efforts—has not yet succeeded in substituting for her Cocktail Decade n.anner the new grand manner of the Elegance Renaissance.

O—H

As a sample of the dear boy's work, Lady Dribble handed us a sheet on which were scribbled signs which seemed to represent something like this:

O—H

The end?
The end?
Yes—thank God!—
It is
THE END —Andre.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 2. — The Ministry of Agriculture announces the area sown for cereals and flaxseed this season totals 34,50',55' acres, which is 1,363,150 acres more than last year.

The crops are distributed as follows. Wheat, 20,138,650 acres; flax, 7,536,550 acres; oats, 4,034,563; barley, 1,524,607 acres; rye, 1,141,602 acres, and bird seed, 78,578 acres.

The ministry reports the condition of the crops varies from good to excellent in all regions except the northern part of Buenos Aires Province. There the lack of rain has retarded early growth, without, however, having caused serious damage. The intense cold throughout the wheat belt has had a very beneficial effect.

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

And the more I thought of it the more it did, though, as Hugh said, there were still a lot of unaccountable things. Where, for instance, did the Vandalis come in? Were they also entitled to a share in the stolen property? And, if so, why had Granger not recognized them? And then last, but certainly not least, whose was that mysterious black figure that had flitted silently through the wood, and which inspired Granger with such ghastly terror? Was it the man from Spragge's Farm, or was it yet a further complication?

A sudden exclamation from Hugh interrupted my thoughts. He was standing with his eye glued to the telescope, and the instrument was focussed on Spragge's Farm.

"Activity," he remarked, "on one of the fronts. There is a car standing outside of the farm—a thing that looks like a tradesman's van. They are all three of them there, the two men and the woman, and they are putting something into it. By jove!" he went on excitedly after a moment, "I believe it is. It is just about the shape. They are putting the rope ladder on board, you fellows. Now the woman has gone into the house, and one of the men has clambered into the back of the car. They're off."

And now it was easy to see the car coming along the track away from Rye, and after a while we lost sight of it.

"I wonder what that signifies," said Freckles.

"It signifies that the ladder is finished,' said Hugh gravely. "And it also signifies, if I mistake not, that the game is shortly going to begin in earnest. That car can get to Temple Tower from the opposite direction. Come on we've got to take the road once more."

"But he surely won't try and climb that wall by daylight?' I cried.'

"No but it is more than possible that he is going to hide the ladder nearer the scene of action by daylight," said Hugh. "And if he hides it anywhere he is going to hide it in that wood. There is no particular hurry because it is going to take that car at least half an hour to get there going by that route. But I think we'll just stroll along and see what happens."

And so once again did we find ourselves lying up in our hiding-place opposite the gate of Temple Tower, only this time Hugh was with us. Moreover I noticed that he, every now and then, threw a glance over his shoulder into the gloom of the wood behind, as if he expected to see that mysterious black figure. But on this occasion there was no sign of it the wood was silent and deserted. And after a time I even began to wonder if the whole thing had not been a trick of the light, and whether we hadn't imagined it all.

Ten minutes passed, quarter of an hour, and then we heard the sound of a car in the distance. Very cautiously we peered out, and Hugh gave a little grunt of satisfaction.

"It is the one I saw," he muttered, and we waited breathlessly to see what would happen. Forty yards away from us it pulled up, and Spragge, who was driving, said something to the passenger hidden behind. And the next moment the ladder maker emerged.

I don't know about the others, but to me he seemed even more repulsive in the daylight than he had the night before. He peered up and down the road; then, seeing there was no one in sight, he hauled his ladder out of the body of the car. The rope part was wrapped round the central bolster, and its general appearance was that of a gigantic sausage. Then, putting it under his arm, he dived into the undergrowth.

We could hear him crashing about, and then, after a short silence, he emerged, and again went to the back of the car. This time he pulled out a wooden pole about the length of a hay rake. At one end he had constructed a sort of cradle, and its object was evidently to enable him to hoist the ladder into position on the wall. He went into the wood once more then, reappearing a second time, he vanished into the back of the car, which drove rapidly past us towards Rye. His preparations were finished he was ready for the night's work.

We waited till the car had disappeared, and then stepped out on to the road.

"There would be no harm," remarked Hugh, "in investigating our friend's handiwork. And there is one rather useful point If he makes as much noise moving about at night as he did then, he won't be hard to follow."

We found the ladder and the wooden cradle without difficulty. They had been roughly pushed under some blackberry-bushes, with but little attempt at concealment. Relying on the fact that there was no one about, all he had done was to put them sufficiently far from the road to escape the eye of a stray passerby.

"A sailor, I should think," remarked Hugh thoughtfully, as he examined the ladder. "That canvas and tarred twine seem to smack of the sea."

"Do we leave them there?" asked Freckles.

"We do, my lad," laughed Hugh. "Because unless I am very much mistaken to-night's entertainment is going to help us considerably to elucidate things. It is all right, young fellow," he went on reassuringly. "Miss Verney is not going to come to any harm—that I promise you. Let's stroll back and see if John has returned to the fold."

And even as he spoke he swung round with that characteristic movement I knew so well. He was peering into the undergrowth with every muscle braced, and every nerve alert. But, nothing moved the silence was still absolute. And after a while he relaxed and stepped out of the wood into the road.

"What did you see?" said Freckles eagerly.

"Nothing," he answered curtly. "I thought I did for a moment, but it was my imagination. Come on let's get back."

He said no more until we were in the house, and then he waited till Ffreckles had left us alone.

"Peter," he said gravely, "the plot thickens."

"You did see something in the wood, then?" I remarked.

"I saw your mysterious black friend," he answered quietly. "He is very good at concealing himself, but I happen to know a trick or two concerning that game myself. He was about twenty yards away from us."

"But then why didn't we go for him? I cried bewildered.

"There is one little point that I have learned in the course of my life, Peter," he answered, "that rather influenced the situation. A man without a gun is at a considerable disadvantage when opposed to a man with one. We were in the former category he was in the latter. Had we moved, we were for it he'd got us covered."

"But do you really think he would have dared to have shot the three of us close to a main road?" I objected.

"I don't suppose he wished to for a moment," he agreed. "At the same time had we gone for him then and there he might have been forced to. And I wasn't for taking the chance. Peter," he went on in a lower voice, "there is a damned sight more in this affair than is at present sticking out on the surface. We are up against something pretty big, and we have got to move warily. But there is one thing I can promise the gentleman in the wood two people can play at his game. My hand may have lost its cunning to a certain extent, but I think I can still guarantee to stalk the stalker. And next time he will not be the only one with a gun.

"Don't say anything to the youngster."

I did not, though I couldn't prevent myself from thinking over this new development. That Hugh was perhaps mistaken never entered my head he simply was one of those men who did not make mistakes on matters of that sort. He had the eyesight of a lynx, and if he had seen an automatic, then there was an automatic. And as he said, it put matters on a different footing. If the owner of the gun was prepared, if forced to it, to kill three men close to a main road, the affair was bigger than we had at first thought. But who was he what was he where did he come in? Was he acting in collusion with the ladder maker Marillard? Or was he another quite separate cog in the machine? One thing was certain, whatever he might be he was a very dangerous addition to the other side. And a further thing, too, was certain. The possibility that it might be Marillard himself who was masquerading in some disguise was disposed of that at any rate we now knew.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If September 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 3 p.m. to 4.45 p.m., and from 9.30 p.m. to 10.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8.30 a.m., and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

You are in the midst of shadows on this date, and are surrounded by hazardous influences. Do not run risks of any kind, materially or physically. Do not believe half you hear! Wicked tongues will be loosed.

The children born on this September 2 will be strong willed and stubborn, and will insist upon the whys and wherefores of everything. They will make excellent students, and take a pride in their work. They will be very unemotional as far as their affections are concerned.

You will receive and deserve many of life's bounties, for you are honest and honorable in your payments. You are anxious and ready to give more than you receive. You have many real friends, but your friendships are earned through your own loyalty, sympathy, understanding, and good palship with them. Your friends like you for what you are and not for what you have. You are ambitious, but are not a wishmonger. You probably have one or two overpowering desires, for which you will go without everything else if need be, in order to achieve them. In comparison, all other things are side alleys of interest. You are wise enough and strong enough to cut your losses, and to push on. You are not in the habit of looking back; your thoughts are usually turned toward the future.

You profit, but are not downed by bitter experiences—you soon rid yourself of any sips of gall. You are not too serious-minded to miss the laughter and fun which life has to offer you, but your pleasures are never allowed to interfere with your conscientious duties. To both work and play, you give your whole heart and mind—you are stupid and lethargic in no phase of your life.

You have ability for literary and scientific employments. You have to make yourself proficient in both spelling and mathematics.

A Thought

A TEST.

How can your character be tested if you separate yourself from those who can do you harm? It is separating yourself from those to whom you can do good.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

IS ART TO HAVE A TYRANT?

THO' the Robot can make no music of himself, he can and does arrest the efforts of those who can.

Though "music has charms to soothe the savage beast, to soften rocks or bend a knotted oak," it has no power to appease the Robot of Canned Music. Only the theatre-going public can do that.

Hence the swift growth of the Music Defense League, formed to demand Living Music in the theatre.

Every lover of music should join in this rescue of Art from debasement. Sign and mail the coupon.

WESTERN OILS LEAD MINING

While Base Metals Hold Steady Trend Under Leadership of Nickel.

CALMONT ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., September 2 (C.P.). — Western oils were very much in evidence on the morning market during the early period to-day, with gains practically general in this group. Under the leadership of Nickel, the base metals were firm Only the golds failed to react to slightly improved sentiment surrounding the market. Up 26 to $2.50 Calmont regained 19 to 65, Dalhousie 13 to 65, Alberta Pacific 7 to 40, and Chemical Research 15 to $5.25. Nordon eased a couple to 98, and Acme Gas was fractionally lower at 25.

International Nickel moved up another half to $24.50, and Noranda was steady around $21.25. Base Metals was turned over at $2.65, 40 above last Friday's close. Sherritt-Gordon advanced 4 to $1.30.

Lake Shore, selling ex-dividend, dropped 75 to $22.75. Teck Hughes was off 5 to $6.35, and Howey fell 4 to 36. Siscoe lost a point to 27. Oriole was active and strong, advancing 4 to 55, and Premier Gold sold up a couple at $1.05.

HOUDE ALLEGES PLEDGE BROKEN

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 2 (C.P.).—A request that an independent tribunal be appointed to render a final decision as to the merits of the Lancaster report and the Canadian National Railways plan for the erection of a railroad terminal in Montreal is contained in a letter sent to Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal. The letter was made public this afternoon.

In his letter to the Prime Minister, Mayor Houde charges the officials of the Canadian National Railways, after receiving a copy of the Lancaster report and agreeing to keep the contents secret, until members of the City Council had had an opportunity to study it, had started a campaign to discredit the report.

NIEMEYER TO VISIT NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 2 (C.P. Cable, via Reuter's). — Sir Otto Niemeyer, Bank of England economic authority, who has been advising the Government of Australia in regard to that country's economic and financial position, has accepted the invitation of the Government of New Zealand to pay a visit to the islands.

Sir Otto is expected here on Friday, September 5. His visit will be concerned primarily with currency and exchange problems.

OLD LORETTO ABBEY OPEN.

TORONTO, nt., Sept. 2.—(C.P.)—(C.P.)—Old Loretto Abbey, for many years Toronto's premier Roman Catholic Church educational centre, has again opened its doors to students. It is now a Jesuit house of religious philosophy, the second of its kind in Ontario.

MASSEY HARRIS FEATURE STOCK

Advances Two Full Points to Attain Total of 22 on Toronto Exchange.

GENERAL LIST FIRM.

TORONTO, September 2. (C.P.) — Prices all held well after an early advance on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Volume was about the same as in the previous session with the exception of a few of the leading issues.

Massey Harris was a feature of the morning selling up a full two points to attain a total 22. Other stocks in the group all remained firm. Cockshutt took on ¼ to 17¼ and Brazilian A ½ to 33¼.

International Nickel was firm after its sudden rise during the latter part of the preceding week, selling at 24¼, up ¼. Noranda was off fractionally to 21.25.

The oils were steady with British American advancing ½ to 16½, and Imperial and International Pete both going unchanged at 19 and 18 respectively.

Ford of Canada suffered a slight setback to go at 29½. Goodyear Tire common followed suit and dropped 1 to 135.

HORSE STRUCK BY CAR.

A horse was severely injured in a collision with a motor car at the corner of Park Hill Road and Water street early Saturday evening. A main artery on the left shoulder of the horse was cut by the impact and the animal suffered much loss of blood. Dr. W. T. Rogers attended the animal, stitching the deep cut.

The horse was being driven north on Water street by E. B. Nicholls, R.R. 4, Peterborough, and was struck by a car driven by Hector Williams, 263 Engleburn avenue. Williams was proceeding south on Water street and in making a left hand turn onto Park Hill Road struck the horse and buggy. Much of the glass in the car was broken.

STUDENT RECORD AT COLLEGIATE

4,000 IN LOWER SCHOOLS.

Young Peterborough returned to school this morning, and some three hundred and fifty of the city's children entered upon the great adventure, starting to school for their first time. At the same time more than four thousand students answered the bell and will commence a new chapter in their scholastic career.

Kindergarten, primary, lower, high, technical, commercial, and vocational departments in public and separate schools this morning resumed their work. All over Ontario the bells atop school houses announced the opening of the autumn. From town, city, farm and camp the great army of students came, and by the end of the week Ontario children will have settled down to the normalacy of school.

About two hundred entered for the first time the precepts of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational and St. Peter's High School. Some will take the matriculation course, others will take the wide range of "vocational arts" and still others, eager for business, chose the commercial couse.

Peterborough schools began pretty much where they left off, except that the public schools have all undergone a thorough house cleaning and renovating since the youngsters last tramped the halls. Everything about the buildings was spick and span and shone with newness of paint and varnish.

All of the 76 teachers on the public school staff were on hand to begin their duties, except one who was detained critically ill at her home. There will be three new teachers: Mr. Northey, Miss Staples and Miss Bonnycastle. The more than thirty teachers at the Collegiate and Vocational School were also ready for duty, except Miss Montgomery, who is ill.

Collegiate Institute.

The attendance at the Collegiate and Vocational School will reach a new high this year, eight hundred and forty-five pupils enrolling this morning. The record previously was 804. Numbered among the Collegiate students this year are many from villages and countryside of the county. Keene especially is sending quite a delegation of eager students.

The pupils assembled for only a short period in this morning's heat. They were together just long enough to be assigned to their places, and feel the thrill of walking up a grade. They also started to get acquainted with the "new" teacher. To-morrow the steady progress of learning will commence in earnest.

Meanwhile Inspector A. Mowat called the principals of the six public schools together this afternoon to complete the organization for the term. This evening the Board of Education will hold its first meeting of the new term to decide important matters dealing with the big task of managing the city's schools.

HOLIDAY FISHING YIELDS 'BEAUTIES'

Chemong and Rice Lake Muskilonge Are Biting.

There was some great fishing over the week-end and one of the most successful parties was that of Walter Fitzgerald and Orville McConkey who were spending the holiday at "Hillcrest" on Chemong Lake. These two fishermen had a real contest. Mr. McConkey caught a 3½ lb. green bass and a twenty-two lb. lunge. Mr. Fitzgerald came right back with a 3¼ lb. black bass and a seventeen lb. lunge. The big fish took fifteen minutes to land and the smaller lunge ninteen minutes. The men were casting about thirty feet from shore and report that fishing has been exceptionally good in this vicinity. Anything butter than this would be wonderful for one day.

Dr. M. J. Roche is not only an optometrist but also a fisherman, and if any of his friends might suspect him of overmuch enthusiasm in his narrative of Monday's catch, he has the fish to substantiate his exploit. It is a "Muskie" weighing between eighteen and nineteen pounds, and it will likely be entered in The Examiner competition.

Dr. Roche was fishing off the rice bed below Keene with Chris. Hughes, George Hickey and several others. He was trolling with a rod when he landed the big fellow that fought hard to get away. It broke the rod, but the line held, and the big fellow was hauled aboard.

A third and unidentified balloon passed over Cortland about 20 miles west of Earlville, at 8.10 a.m. The other three were unreported but presumably following the same general direction.

Observers of atmospheric conditions believed that the balloonists, instead of proceeding directly eastward across New York, as the latest reports indicated, had a good opportunity of striking cross winds which

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Stockholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway are officially advised by letter that under the authority of an act of parliament of Canada and pursuant to a by-law approved by the shareholders of the company the par value of the ordinary capital stock will, on October 2, be changed from $100 per share to $25 per share. Every person holding a share of the par value of $100 each will on October 2, be deemed to be the holder of the same aggregate amount of the stock divided into shares of $25 each and on surrender of the old share certificates will be entitled to receive in exchange a new certificate for the same aggregate amount of the stock exchange in shares $25. Stockholders are instructed to surrender their old certificates, shares registered in Montreal to be sent to the Royal Trust Company and those registered in London to 8 Waterloo Place, London. European shareholders holding certificates representing shares registered in New York or Montreal may lodge them with the registrar at London, who will forward them to the transfer offices in New York or Montreal.

Included in the dividend announcement this morning is that of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada, Limited, for the regular quarterly preferred and common dividends. In addition to the $1.25 per share on the common due October 1, a bonus of $2.50 per share has been declared on the common for the same date.

This follows the practise of the company inaugurated in 1926 of paying a bonus in October of each year, but it marks a reduction in the amount of the bonus from the $7 paid last year. Cut in the bonus occasions no surprise. President Carlisle is noted for his Conservative and sound business policy and he intimated earlier in the year that it would be the object of the company, to maintain an adequate working capital so that it would be under no handicap when business did begin to improve. The bonus was first paid in 1926 and then amounted to $1 share, being raised to $5 in 1929, so that viewed in comparison with 1926, this year's payment still shows liberal treatment to shareholders this year will be $7.50 which at the current market value of $135 share this morning. Gives a return of better than 5½ percent.

THE UNIVERSE ACCORDING TO ASTRONOMERS

Rotary Learns That Earth Occupies Minor Part in Scheme of Things.

DR. LLOYD HERE.

Members of the Peterborough Rotary Club must have felt at today's luncheon that this world and its affairs occupy a very small place indeed in the scheme of things for as they listened to Rotarian Dr. Frank Lloyd of Cobourg discuss the universe according to modern astronomy the university of the system of which our own earth is but a infinitesimal part was brought home with full force.

Introduced by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, Dr. Lloyd proved a most entertaining speaker with a thorough grasp of his most fascinating subject and he painted his picture of the universe with deft sure strokes that made a deep impression upon his hearers. Necessarily he had to delve into figures but his statistics were never dull and usually left his audience gasping as they endeavored to visualize the hugeness of the systems that made up the known universe. Pointing out that the system of which the earth joined a part was composed of many millions of stars. Dr. Lloyd explained that this system was but one of numerous system, similarly composed but distant from the earth so far that it was almost impossible for the mind to comprehend the extent of the intervening space. So immense were the distances dealt with by astronomers that a light year was the yard stick by which they measured. As light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, a light year of course means the distance light moving at that rate would move in 365 days. Long before there was any life on this earth, long before the ice age, light from some of the sebulaes at the edge of our private system of stars started to move in this direction, the speaker stated.

Dr. Lloyd explained that by the use of a 100-inch telescope astronomers had found out these amazing things about the universe, adding that the 200-inch telescope upon which they were now working would probably add considerably to the know of the scientists. It was possible that many of the so called stars were inhabited and that there existed a civilization far more advanced than is known on our earth.

Rotarian Doug Loomis back from the Rotary Camp reported that the year's camp had been wound up without an accident.

RECIPROCAL TRADE POLICY URGED FOR CANADA BY LORD MELCHETT

Dominion Must Buy British Goods in Order to Sell Her Wheat.

AT CLUB LUNCHEON.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2.—(CP)—A reciprocal trade policy between Great Britain and Canada was urged by Lord Melchett, member of the House of Lords and widely known industrialist, who last night addressed a large group of influential Canadian business men at the York club.

If Canada is to sell her wheat to Britain she must be prepared to buy British goods in return, the speaker declared. The British Empire, he proceeded, was potentially the greatest economic unity in history, but strength was being wasted through the individualism of its Dominions' trade policies. Integration, a rigid scheme of two-way trade between the various units, he thought, presented the only solution.

Nations compete with each other to sell to Britain, Lord Melchett continued. If Canada bought nothing from the Mother Country, who could blame Britain, he asked for entering into bargains to buy agricultural products "from other people prepared to make better terms with us."

European Wheat Pool

The speaker said he had been asked to consider a plan whereby Great Britain would enter a European wheat pool and buy all her wheat from Europe, none from Canada. He then referred to South Africa, a sister Dominion what wanted to sell more corn to the Mother Country, while at the same time she imported United States made motor cars in preference to those of British manufacture.

Lord Melchett recalled that some years ago, speaking before the Canadian Club here, he had pointed to the unequalled prosperity of the United States and the homogeneity of its people to Canadians. He had said then that United States prosperity must lead to a re-grouping of Europe, economically. He believed now Europe was finding the greater need of coming together economically.

ARCTIC GIVES UP DEAD

expedition that had been north earlier this year, we knew that ice conditions were unusually favorable, and up to now we had not seen one floating iceberg.

Therefore we decided that en route to Franz Josef Land we could visit the islands between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef Land, which usually are hard to reach.

So we continued, and early on the morning of August 5 we glimpsed a great island's white peak through the fog. We discovered that the map for this region is incorrect, as this island lies about 12 miles further to the west than on the British Admiralty map, and that the mapping done by the Worsley-Algransson expedition in 1925 is suite correct.

Landed on Island.

We first landed on the south-east side of the island, where the coast is quite bare. After that we were on the north-east side, where there is a great expanse of bare flat land.

Just on the beach there is a pole that marks the spot where a depot was established by the Italians in 1928 for Nobile and Roald Amundsen. Beside this depot we erected a hut that we had with us.

At 5 o'clock we weighed anchor and sailed eastward in ice-free waters. At the outset we were followed by our old friend fog, but it soon disappeared, and then we caught sight of the big white peak on White Island.

This island—Giles Land, as it is also called—is known to be one of the most unapproachable islands in the whole of the Spitzbergen region, and here we were going full speed toward it in ice-free waters.

We certainly were lucky, and our joy was great over the possibility of being able to land so easily at this rarely visited place. Little did we imagine then that our visit would lead to the final explanation of one of the most tragic and mysterious happenings in the history of Polar exploration.

It was quite still and there was a burning sun as we came to land. Very carefully Skipper Eliasen manoeuvred his vessel in through innumerable projections of land. Fortunately some stranded icebergs showed up where most of the dangerous projections wer located.

We landed and were soon on our way inland across the naked island. On it were mountains of granite and gneiss. Between them were stretches of gravel and sand. Only a shallow little lake broke the tediousness of the landscape.

Salen and Tusvik went to search for drinking water and discovered a little stream.

Beside the stream they found a mound of snow that was rather dark, and did not resemble the ordinary snow hill. They went over to it at once and saw a boat stocking up from the snow.

Find Engraved Hook.

In the boat they caught sight of the point of a boatswain's hook with a name engraved on it. The two men at once ran back to Skjelten and told him about their find, showing him the hook.

On it was engraved "Andree's Polar Expedition, 1896." Skjelten, Almestad and Myklebust then went to the mound, and in the boat they further found a book, which they took with them to the beach

Eliassen was immediately informed about the discovery and he went on alone to investigate it further.

Against the wall of a neighboring mountain he found a body leaning against the mountain slope with its feet half buried in the snow.

Eliassen realised at once that this must be the remains of the Andree expedition. He immediately returned to the Bratvaag, where I was. He showed me the book, and I saw that it was the Andree expedition's observation book, containing records of their sledge journey after they left the balloon.

Search for Relics

We took different implements on board the motor boat, and then all the expedition's members went ashore to try, as best we could, to dig everything out and then transport it on board.

It was with strange feelings that we stood on the beach where the brave Andree and his men, 33 years ago, ended their last polar wandering. In deep silence we went up toward the camp, which only too plainly showed us what had happened.

There lay the boat, half-buried in snow, with its nose pointing inland. Alongside it lay a sledge. The top of the sledge was level with the ice. On the snow a few yards away was a piece of black and red cloth, with crude squares cut in for windows, perhaps a part of a tent. And under the wall of the mountain was Andree himself.

We recognized him only by the monogram on his jacket. He was leaning against the mountain slope a few yards northeast of the boat. He had worn-out Arctic shoes on his feet, but otherwise was well clothed.

Stove Still Held Oil

Beside him lay a gun and an oil stove. There was oil in the stove, and when wep umped it the oil came out in a fine spray and gas came out at vent on the side.

The apparatus was quite in good order.

In Andree's inner pocket was his diary, but only a few pages appeared to have been written on. We also found in his pocket his pencil and a pedometer.

Between two mounds of earth a short distance away from Andree's body we found a little later another member of the expedition, who had apparently been laid there by one of the others.

The body was half-covered with small stones. It was "frozen down" and very hard to get up.

We also found in the boat some remains of bones, but we have not been able to decide whether they are human bones. Some other articles were found at different places in the camp and carefully gathered up.

BARNS AND CROP BURNED.

Heavy Loss to Farmer Near Roseneath.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—In a praiseworthy attempt to get all the stock from blazing barn buildings on their father's farm six miles from here, Alvin and Raymond Doxtator had their faces badly scorched, while Charles Bull received bad burns to his arm.

The fire which broke out in the middle of the straw stack just after threshing operations had commenced on Saturday afternoon took heavy toll, destroying practically all of the season's crop, four calves, nine pigs, wagon, seeder, scales, cutter and a number of hens while the barn was levelled to the ground. The building was partly covered by insurance

At times it seemed as if the farmhouse would share the same fate as the barn and it's contents, but by dint of great perseverance on the part of the voluntary firefighters the outbreak was confined to its place of origin.

IVANHOE INSTITUTE GUESTS AT MEETING

Good Program is Much Enjoyed at Madoc Society Gathering.

MADOC, September 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — The members of Madoc Women's Institute entertained the members and friends of the Ivanhoe Institute at Ozone Park, Moira Lake, on Friday afternoon, with a total attendance of 78. After a short business session, contests and sports were indulged in, and a picnic meal was served by the local members. The day was exceptionally fine and a pleasant day's outing was enjoyed. The winners of a conversation contest were Miss McMullen of Ivanhoe and Mrs. C. G. Moon of Madoc. In a modelling contest (gum) the winners were Mrs. Haggerty of Ivanhoe and Mrs. C. N. Whytock of Madoc.

The Madoc Institute decided to ask for a demonstration lecture course in nutrition and home cookery to be held during the winter months. This Institute has donated $20.00 towards the cleaning up of the cemetery and a great improvement is already noticeable there, though much more needs to be done before the close of the season.

Matters regarding the Belleville convention and the fall fair were laid over until another meeting.

DAIRY BOARDS

DROWNED AT TWEED.

Body of Frank Meraw Found in Moira River.

(Examiner Correspondent)

TWEED, Sept. 2.—The remains of Frank Meraw, aged resident of Tweed, were recovered from the Moira River in the vicinity of his late home at about 8:30 this morning.

The tragic discovery was made by an eleven year old boy, Joseph McIlroy as he was on his way to school at the opening of the fall term. He at once notified the authorities who had the body removed to John Queen's Undertaking Parlours.

Deceased it is understood had been under medical care for some time past, suffering from high blood pressure.

He leaves his sorrowing wife and four daughters and three sons. Funeral arrangements are not yet complete.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, September 2 (Examiner Staff Corresponience). — Many people from town were visitors to Peterborough on Saturday when the Campbellford Tennis Club clashed with Oshawa at that place in the tennis finals.

Campbellford lacrosse fans are saying "There ain't no knowing where we're going to finish up." Here's luck to the boys when they fight their next battle. There is a very big chance that we might go some and surprise the world yet. Of course, we mean the lacrosse world.

We notice from the ever open door of the office that Major J. E B. Belford of Codrington was a visitor to town on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Brennan of Frank Street have as their guest, while on holiday, their daughter, Mrs. William Cain and child, of Petrolia.

Miss Sophie Jones, who has spent the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lewis, Canrobert Street, left on Saturday for Peterborough, where she will spend a few days before returning to her home at Brandon, Manitoba.

And don't forget the Fall Fair on September 30 and October 1.

FEWER SAILS ARE SEEN IN OLD PORT

Three - Masters Still Call at Parrsboro, But No Full-Rigged Ships.

MANY RECORDS

PARRSBORO, N.S., Sept. 2. (CP) Parrsboro to-day is one of the last home ports of the wooden clipper. To this little town on the southern coast of Minas Basin, where Cumberland county splits the Bay of Fundy into a fork, has been vouchsafed the survival of a day when sail-driven commerce was the chief concern of Nova Scotia.

Now that years have passed over the sharp re-adjustment marking the transition from sail to steam, three-masters still call Parrsboro home; but they are mainly carries in the coastal trade. In the old days the town's ships sailed to the far ports of the world. Its shipyards ranked with those of other ports in the Bay of Fundy, and more vessels were laden at its piers than in any other harbor in Minas Basin. The whole record of sea-going experience—fast passages, shipwreck, fire and storm was written into the history of the town, where the building of three-master schooners was continued longer than anywhere else in the province—until after the war—and where all the port's wealth was derived from lumber and shipping.

The business started with the building of large ships for the transport of heavy timber to the United Kingdom, where vessels and cargoes were sold on arrival. When that traffic came to an end, brigantines were built for the West India trade, to be succeeded in their turn by ships, barques, barquentines, and three masted schooners. These finally went the way of the brigantines, until to-day there is not a full-rigged vessel on the shipping books of the port.

The first three-master ever built in the Bay was the J. E. Pettie, which ran between Windsor and New York until sold to Mexican owners.

A great many record trips were made by Parrsboro captains. Notable were the passage of the tern schooner Wentworth under Captain T. K. Bentley, from Spencer's Island to New York and return in eight days, and the voyage of the Margaret G., Captain Ashur Knowlton, from Spencer's Island to Havana, Cuba, in eleven days and two hours.

Carried Deals in War

During the war all Parrsboro tern schooners were engaged in carrying deals to the United Kingdom. Captain Wallace H. Smith, master of the tern schooner, "Minas Prince," made the run from Parrsboro Roads to Liverpool, England, discharged 598,000 superficial feet of deals and was back again to Parrsboro Roads in exactly two months, which was a remarkable trip.

Captain Harvey Randall also made a record trip in the tern schooner "Maple Land" from Parrsboro Roads to the United Kingdom and back to Shelburne. Captain Edmund Spicer, who was master of the tern schooner "Nova Queen" and sailed her until he met his death in an automobile accident, made a succession of very fast trips all the time he was in the vessel. Captain W. W. Loomer, who was lost during the war when his vessel, the tern schooner "Minas Queen" was torpedoed off the coast of France, had two record trips to his credit, both from Mobile, Alabama, to Antilla, Cuba, in the tern schooner "Margaret G."

This port was the home of the mystery ship "Marie Celeste." She was built at Advocate Harbor and was registered at Parrsboro. Wrecked at Cape Breton, she was sold to United States interests, repaired and put under the U. S. flag. Much has been written about the mystery of the ship's discovery abandoned at sea, but no conclusive evidence as to what happened to her crew was ever brought out.

Parrsboro was also the home of a Friday Hoo-doo ship. A schooner was built at this port to disprove and forever settle the idea of a Friday Hoo-doo. Work started on her on a Friday, the keel was laid on Friday and the vessel launched on a Friday. But the Hood-doo was not settled by this vessel, as she was wrecked on a Friday with a large loss of life in crew and passengers, including the owner who built her. She was repaired and sold and started out again, only to be wrecked on a Friday with the loss of all hands. After that she was repaired and converted into a water boat and plyed between Parrsboro and Parrsboro Roads and her bones are now on the beach at the latter place.

So many captains lived in Parrsboro that it was said to be safe to address anyone on the streets of the town by that title. More than one hundred family names are included in the list of Parrsboro ship commanders, and most families gave more than one to the service of the sea. early every family on the shore suffered the loss of some member through shipwreck.

During the boom in shipping, the total arrivals and clearances in one years at the Parrsboro Custom House totalled 1646 vessels. Now very few vessels are seen loading at this port. The bulk of the lumber, piling, laths and pulpwood is loaded at ports on the Parrsboro Shore.

"At 4 p.m. I stop" —says one doctor we know— "and take time for a cup of tea" "Glad to get it after a trying day. Any friend or patient with me at the time, gets one too. "It's a valuable refresher—has stood by me for years."

New Principal

The principal's residence, on Queen's University Grounds, is being greatly improved for the new principal. The property was bought for the University in 1854 and used as classrooms, laboratory, etc., and finally after 1881 as residence for the Principals. Here Principal Grant, Principal Gordon and Principal Taylor lived and here, from the end of September Principal Fyfe will live.

WEDDING BELLS

MEEHAN—CLARKE.

DOWNEYVILLE, September 2. — A pretty mid-summer wedding took place in St. Benedict's Roman Catholic Church, Detroit, Mich., on Saturday morning ,at 9 o'clock, August 9, when Mr. Charles S. Meehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meehan, former residents of Downeyville, and Miss Cathleen Nora Clarke, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Clarke, of Detroit, were united in marriage by the Rev. Father Rosebrook.

The young bride was very tastily dressed in robin's egg blue silk organdie, with bridal lace insertion for trimming. She wore a blue felt hat, with drooping brim, blue pumps, and long white kid gloves. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Evelyn Clarke, who was dressed in rose colored organdie, felt hat and shoes which exactly matched her dress, and she carried a bouquet of maidenhair fern and roses. The groom's brother, Albert Meehan, assisted him.

The happy couple left by motor for their honeymoon, going to Toronto, Ottawa and Downeyville. Mr. and Mrs. Meehan will reside on Crudder Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

"Charlie," as he was known, resided in Downeyville, until a few years ago when he moved with his parents to Detroit, and has a host of relatives and friends living here who will all join in wishing him and his bride a long and happy married life.

STOKES—BALDWIN.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 2.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. John's Church at 11 o'clock on Monday morning, when Muriel Alexandra Baldwin of Toronto was united in marriage to Francis Reginald Stokes, also of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., in the presence of the immediate friends of the family. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. C. C. Stenner, wore a very becoming frock of powder blue silk crepe, with picture hat to match and beige shoes and hose. She carried a sheaf bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by her aunt, Miss Maud Stenner, who wore a handsome black and white ensemble and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. Mr. Percy D. Stenner attended the groom. The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. W. Todd, organist of the church.

Following the ceremony the guests adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stenner, Ermitinger Street, where luncheon was served. The young couple left for a brief honeymoon, after which they will reside in Toronto.

The bride, who came out more than a year ago, has made many friends in the village, who join in wishing much happiness to Mr. and Mrs. Stokes.

Praises Vegetable Compound, Blood Medicine and Liver Pills

Birchtown, Quebec—"I live 13 miles from town on a farm, with all my home duties and churning to attend to. At the Change of Life, I became nervous and rundown. The Vegetable Compound helped my whole system. My nerves are better, my appetite is good and I am able to do my work. I have also taken the Blood Medicine and the Liver Pills and they helped me. I will answer letters from women asking about your medicines."—Mrs. Richard Charbonn, Birchtown, Quebec.

OBITUARY

RODERICK RICHARDSON

The death occurred suddenly at his late residence, Simcoe street, Lindsay, of a former resident of Downeyville, in the person of Roderick Richardson. The deceased suffered a stroke about a year ago but his death was unexpected, and came as a great shock to his friends and relatives.

The late Mr. Richardson was born in Downeyville 63 years ago, and resided here until a few years ago when he moved to Lindsay and retired from farming into real estate business.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning, August 27, to St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Lindsay, where the funeral mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Black, who afterwards conducted the services at the grave. He was a member of St. Mary's Church and Holy Name Society, and is survived by his wife (formerly Miss Minnie Gunn), one sister, Mrs. Richard Fox, Downeyville, and a brother, William of Lindsay.

A large number from Downeyville attended the very large funeral on Wednesday morning.

The pall bearers were Messrs Jos. Houlihan, Hilliary Fitzpatrick, Wm. Lehane, John McGuire, James Carroll and Alex. Burke.

AUTOMOBILE BURNED.

Mrs. F. O. Campbell of Toronto Injured In Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Sept. 2.—An automobile accident in which Mrs. F. O. Campbell of 97 St. Clemens Street, Toronto, was injured and a car totally destroyed occurred Saturday evening. Mr. Campbell, in company with Mrs. Campbell, was driving a friend from Rosedale to Lindsay, and at the corner of Colborne Street and the Fenelon road the car took to the ditch and turned over. The car took fire and was practically consumed, and Mrs. Campbell suffered a cut in her arm which required medical attention. The two men escaped unhurt.

Wins From C. G. E. 6-0

Bad First Innings for the Electrics Spells Their Defeat.

HEAVY HITTING.

Bun Frost Twirls Splendid Game For Losers in Role of Relief Pitcher.

That hardy crew of cement makers from Point Anne still remain to be quelled before the C.G.E. team can continue their quest of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. title.

Led by the Green brothers, of Belleville Nationals fame, the team from down east came to the Exhibition Park Saturday afternoon and thoroughly upset the dope by handing the Peterborough Electrics a 6 to 0 defeat, before more than a 1,000 fans. The result ties up the series in the first round of the Ontario playdowns and makes a third game necessary.

A flip of the coin gave Point Anne the choice, and they selected Belleville on Wednesday afternoon as the place for the final contest. However, other arrangements may have to be made and the C.G.E. may be called to take up the battle on the clay flats at Point Anne.

A bad first innings, which put the C.G.E. off on the wrong foot, spelled their defeat. Young Jack Crary was sent to the rubber to curve the Point Anners into submission, but it wasn't the youngster's day. He had nothing on the ball and two bunts followed by a double and a triple scored three runs and put a man on third, with none out.

Frost Fills In.

Bun Frost, veteran of C.G.E. ball outfits, was called to the breach right at that stage. A sacrifice fly by Goulin countered the other run. After that Frost settled down to his task and twirled a splendid game. He allowed but four hits and struck out five. In the sixth and ninth frames Point Anne scored again, but both runs were due to fielding errors.

The Electrics showed almost a complete reversal of form over their great display of Wednesday on the Point Anne home lot. Their fielding lacked that same finish and polish and their work at the bat was weak when hits would have made runs.

The one bit of work that smacked of Wednesday's performance was a swooping pick up by Red Hollinsworth. It was a hard smash by Goulin in the third inning and Sonny Green was prancing on third at the time. But Red speeded over second to glove the speeding bounder, the play bringing the fans to their feet.

Fred Ash Good.

At first base Fred Ash turned in his customary game and the final put out of "Soup" Goyer's line smash was almost the exact counterpart of his play that stopped the Point Anne rally in the previous game.

"Hoot" Gibson again pitched for Point Anne and backed by sterling defensive work of his mates he was never in trouble.

Starting off that disastrous first innings, Buck eased a perfect bunt down the third base line. Sonny Green followed with a short tap down to first and was safe, Buck making third. Gibson hoisted a two-base hit into right field, scoring both runners. "Soup" Goyer followed with a triple the plate. Then Frost relieved Crary. Goulin raised a sacrifice fly into left and Goyer scored. M. Green struck out and Kerr rolled to the pitcher.

A walk to Jones started the C.G.E. off in their half, but H. Hollingsworth rolled to third. Rose bounded to first and Swanston struck out.

Both teams were retired in order in the second on hit balls, but in the third an error on Jones put Sonny Green, first man up on the sacks. He went to second on Gibson's sacrifice bunt and to third on Goyer's rap to first. Goulin's hit over second was taken by H. Hollingsworth.

After Johnston had popped to second, in the third, Frost hit into left field for two bases. Utronki rolled to short and H. Hollingsworth filed out.

After issuing a walk to Sonny Green in the fourth, Frost whiffed Hutchings and Bennett, Kerr having rolled to first.

C.G.E. Lose Chance.

The C.G.E. had a great chance to score in their half. Rose, first up, rapped out a triple, but he was tossed out when caught off the bag on Swanston's rap to the pitcher. Ash followed with a hit, and then the rally ceased.

Point Anne scored in the sixth, Goulin hit a fly into deep centre which was taken by Beavis. M. Green tripled into left and scored when Johnston erred on Kerr's roller to third. Hutchings struck out. Bennett was hit by a pitched ball, but Buck rolled to the pitcher.

In the ninth Bennett secured a life on H. Hollingsworth error of his grounder. He was advanced to second Buck's sacrifice. Sonny Green flew to left. Gibson doubled and Bennett scored. Goyer cracked a liner into Ash's glove.

After H. Hollingsworth and Rose had rolled out in the ninth, Swanston singled and was followed by a single by Ash. Beavis drew a walk. L. Hollingsworth struck out and the game was over.

ESTELLE IV. FAILS TO FINISH COURSE

"Gar" Wood Retains Harmsworth Trophy With Miss America IX.

DETROIT, September 2. — The third and final attempt of Marion Carstairs, courageous young English sportswoman, to beat "Gar" Wood in a Harmsworth Trophy race, ended in a failure when Wood piloted his Miss America IX. to an easy victory in the final heat of that classic yesterday . As was the case in the first heat of the race on Saturday, the British challenger, Estelle IV., came to grief when its fuel tanks collapsed and Wood was not even pressed by the British boat.

Wood, heading a team of three boats, covered the 30-mile course at an average speed of 77.390 miles an hour, which betters his former record for the Harmsworth of 75.287 made last year.

BAILIEBORO TO PLAY HASTINGS FOR CLARKE CUP

GAME ON SATURDAY.

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 2.—The third game of the semi-finals of the Northumberland league play-offs, between Bailieboro and Alderville was played at Harwood on Saturday afternoon in a 7-1 victory for Bailieboro.

Bailieboro have now defeated Alderville two out of three games and will next clash with the Hastings nine for the Sam Clarke trophy.

With the exception of the third inning in which Bailieboro scored five runs, the game was close throughout, Alderville scoring their one run in the fourth and Bailieboro getting their other two in the sixth.

Smoke and Bigwin on the mound for Alderville were poorly supported, while Bailieboro hammered out nine clean hits. Wild throws accounted for two of the Bailieboro runs. Deyell on the mound for Bailieboro held Alderville down to two hits and struck out eight men.

SOFTBALL FINAL AT PORT HOPE

Trenton and Peterborough to Battle it Out on Neutral Grounds.

PLAY TO-NIGHT.

This city's softball enthusiasts descended upon Port Hope with colors flying high this afternoon. They rode, hiked and took tally-ho to the lakeshore town to be on hand to cheer the Sugar Bowl team, city champs, to greater efforts in their game with Trenton.

This game means everything to George Dormer and his hustling aggregation. It is the third and final game in their series with Trenton in the first round of the Ontario playdowns. Needless to say, the Bowlrites will carry their strongest lineup into the fray. Len Forsythe will be sent back to the rubber with orders to curb the Trenton stickers into submission.

It should be a great game. And coming, as it does, after five days of anxious waiting caused by delays in arranging the contest, every follower of the game is agog.

The teams will be sent away sharp at 5.15 Standard Time. By that time the clans of both opposing camps will have gathered, and the lid will be off.

In Trenton the locals lost out in a tight game, but in the return game here they smothered the Trentonians in the finest softball game glimpsed here in many a twelvemonth. The Sugar Bowl nine are confident that they can turn the trick again.

The winner of this game will play Brockville on Thursday. Should the victors be the locals then the first game with Brockville will be here on Thursday with the return contest in Brockville on Monday.

Two Port Hope officials will handle this afternoon's fray.

LONE CONSTABLE PUTS 4 TO FLIGHT

Cappella, MacNab Street North, charged with assaulting a police officer, and Tony Mororiluis, address unknown. Police say they know who the other two men are, and their arrest is looked for.

Constable McGee was patrolling his beat when he heard sounds of the brawl. He approached the four men and threatened them with arrest if they did not disperse and keep the peace. He was about to separate two of them when Cappella, it is alleged, shoved the constable and knocked him to the ground. The four then set upon the patrolman and he was having a rough time of it until he regained his feet. The four men fled along an alley, but the constable pursued and overtook two of them. He proceeded to give them a taste of their own medicine and they soon were glad enough to submit to arrest.

Constable McGee also had to go to the General Hospital to have minor cuts dressed. Cappella had a severe wound on his head, and later was taken back to the cells.

CHICAGO DROPS DOUBLE BILL TO CINCINNATI REDS

Howley's Team Deals Stunning Blow to Last Year's League Champions.

CARDS MOVE UP.

St. Louis Only One of Four Leaders to Win Double—Giants and Robins Break Even.

NEW YORK, September 2 (C.P.) —Labor Day efforts have failed to do much in the way of settling the National League pennant problem. The senior circuit swings into the last month of the 1930 season with the Chicago Cubs holding a four-game lead over the Giants in second place, but with the Cardinals looming as the most serious threat, only a half-game further back in third position.

St. Louis was the only one of the four leaders to win a double-header yesterday, the Giants and Robins breaking even and the Cubs dropping both of their encounters. As the result, the Cards jumped into third place, shoving the Robins back into fourth.

In moving ahead of the Robins, the Cards walloped the Pittsburg Pirates 11-6 in the morning and then repeated with a 5-1 trimming in the afternoon. Flint Rhem was the winning pitcher in the morning contest, while Grimes had an easy time with his former teammates in the afternoon session. Kremer was out to win his 20th game in the second, but had to be relieved by Spencer.

The Reds took the opener 5-1 with Lucas pitching three-hit ball, and the nightcap 2-1 as Frey set the champions down with five blows. The Cubs had the second game won 1-0 with two out in the ninth, when Sukeforth's hit to centre bounded over Hack Wilson's head for a triple, scored Stripp and Crawford, who had drawn a base on balls.

27 Hits for Giants.

The Giants were cracking the ball at a terrific clip, getting 27 hits in two games, but they lost the nightcap to the Phillies 4-3 after taking the opener 8-4. With Carl Hubbell holding the Phils to seven hits and Leach and Hogan hitting homers and Terry pounding out a triple, double, and two singles, the first game was easy. Thirteen hits rang off the Giants' bats in the second encounter, but Bill Walker's wildness in the early innings gave the Phillies a lead which the McGraw men were unable to overcome.

Wally Berger's thirty-second home run was instrumental in dropping the Robins into fourth place, the circuit drive accounting for three of the Braves' runs that beat the Robins 5-3, in the first game. Hollis Thurston pitched good ball and drove in two runs with a double to give Brooklyn a 4-2 decision in the second contest. Lopez's homer scored all of the Robins' runs in the first game.

COONS BROTHERS

theft around Peterborough and Cobourg. Harvey Coons served a three year term in Kingston penitentiary for chicken thefts, having been sentenced at Whitby. Robert Coons was sent to Mimico industrial school for three years on a similar charge.

The brothers peddled their stolen chickens around the Chinese restaurants and hotels in Lindsay and vicinity, selling particulary to the Big 20 Cafe, the Central Hotel, the Elsmure and the Capitol Cafe in Lindsay.

They were travelling in an old car and were under suspicion for some time. Evidence of the stolen fowl could be seen at the Coons' house on Division street. The Coons were remanded for a week and are now in the county jail.

YANKEES SPLIT WITH ATHLETICS

Ruffing Holds Macks to Two Hits in Second Game—Grove Fans Babe Ruth.

SENATORS WIN TWO.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2. (C.P.) — While lacking much of the color of the National league race, the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees drew a crowd of 72,000 into the Yankee stadium to see an even split in the feature games of the American league. The world champions took the opener 3-2 because of Al Simmons' thirty-second home run but Charlie Ruffing set them down with two hits to five, the Yanks won a 2-0 victory in the second. Lefty Grove stopped a Yankee rally in the first game by relieving Mahaffey and striking out Babe Ruth in the ninth with two men on base. Ruffing fanned Simmons three successive times in the second game.

Cut A's Lead

The Senators cut the A's lead to five and one-half games by taking the Boston Red Sox into camp twice, 2-1 and 6-3. Lloyd Brown was largely responsible for the second victory, he relieved Marberry with two men on base and none out in the seventh but retired the Red Sox without a score and then drove out a home run to put the Senators out in front. Cornin's spectacular catch in the ninth inning of the first game with the tying run on third saved the opener for the the Senators.

Wesley Ferrell won his twenty-fourth victory of the season and his thirteenth in a row as the Cleveland Indians downed the St. Louis Browns 13-8 and 9-5. Ferrell hurled the second game while Willis Hudlin was the winning pitcher of the first encounter.

The Chicago White Sox were the victims of Detroit's wrath, the Tigers taking both ends of the holiday bill, 6-5 and 4-2. Earl Whitehill got his fifteenth victory of the year in the second after Ted Lyons had failed in an effort to win his twentieth. Alexander and Reynolds hit home runs in the opening contest.

AARABS OF OSHAWA DEFEAT MONARCHS

OSHAWA, September 2. — Improving as the game progressed, the Oshawa Aarabs slowly cut down a three-run lead, annexed early in the game, and finished strongly to win the second game and the series from the Monarchs of Toronto, by a score of 7 to 4 at the Motor City Stadium yesterday afternoon. This defeat the Monarchs of Toronto, but a score as they lost the first game in Toronto on Friday.

The Monarchs got to Frink, the Oshawa hurler, early, scoring two runs in the first frame. They got one in the fourth and one more in the eighth. They used three pinch-hitters in their half of the ninth, but failed to score a run.

The Aarabs were slow in getting to Jacobs, but when they finally succeeded, they hit him hard. Smart fielding on the part of Richardson and Dean held the Aarabs in check, but they broke away in the eighth, with three runs, one a homer by T. Elliott. The Monarchs outhit the Aarabs by 11 to 9, and they gave Jacobs almbost as good support as Frink received. Timely hitting was the secret of the Oshawa victory and lack of interest on the art of some of the Toronto players, also helped. The game was witnessed by a good crwd. Score by innings:

CANUCK TEAMS WIN HONORS IN LABOR DAY BILL

Frank Barnes Blanks Leaders With Brilliant Mound Display in First Game.

ORIOLES FALL.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP)— The two Canadian entries, Montreal and Toronto walked off with most of the International League's honors over the holiday.

Toronto walloped Rochester twice and Montreal won two games from Buffalo, Baltimore and Reading split two games while Jersey City beat Newark in the only game the weather let this New Jersey rivals play.

The net result of the warefare was to leave Rochester four and one-half games ahead of Baltimore in the pennant race with Montreal only half a game behind Baltimore.

Double Victories

Toronto's victories over Rochester were registered by scores of 1-0 and 12-7. Frank Barnes gave up only eight scattered hits in the opener, one in each inning after the first and won his own game with a single in the fifth. Tex Carleton also was in good form, giving up only six hits in the seven innings he pitched but three were bunched in the fifth when the Leafs scored the only run of the game. The second game was a sew-saw affair until the eighth when the Leafs bunched four walks, five hits and one error for seven runs. Ira Smith had given only six hits in the first seven innings but was very wild, passing nine men. Art Herring was driven to cover in the ninth when the Redwings scored four runs. Ruble drove in four Toronto runs with three singles in the nightcap.

Montreal stopped Buffalo by scores of 6-5 and 10-3. Buffalo held a lead for the first eight innings of the opening game but the Royals bunched hits for three runs after one was out in the ninth to win.

Jersey City clouted out 17 hits to trounce Newark, 12-9, in the afternoon but rain forced postponement of a scheduled night game. The Skeeters treated Faulkner, Mooney and Brennan with scant respect and plied up seven runs in the first five innings. As it turned out however these were not enough for Newark rallied for five runs in the eighth to go ahead, 9-7. Jersey City then battered Cooney and Brennan around in the ninth for five more runs and the old ball game.

Baltimore won the opening game from Reading, 9-2 but could do nothing with Leroy Herrmann's pitching in the second game played at night and won by the Keys, 3-1. In the opener, four home runs accounted for all the Orioles' runs. Joe Hauser getting two of them to bring his season's total to 58. Barton and Heffner also hit for the circuit. Richmond pitched effective ball for the flock in the night game.

LOCAL ENTRY LOSES SECOND FIXTURE 8-4

Walks and Loose Infield Hitting Accounts for the Downfall.

PETES LEAD HITTING.

Loose fielding and nine Annie Oakleys issued by Woods in the first five innings were responsible for the local Kiwanis juniors 8-4 downfall in the Queen city on Saturday afternoon. The result eliminates the Peterborough entry from the O.B.A.A. playdowns. Wood was relieved by Cripps in the sixth frame who thereafter held the homesters in check but Toronto had too big a lead for the visitors' to overcome.

The local team outhit the homesters 11 to 6 with Joe Dunkerley leading the batsmen, having to his credit a double bagger and two singles

The Petes started off well, Foley connecting for a long hit into centre field with two out but the side was retired when Hall flied to the centre fielder for the third down. The homesters' turn at bat was featured by two walks and two strikeouts.

Toronto scored two runs in the second on errors, King walked and was advanced to second when Tobin was given a free ticket. The first runner got on third when Saunders muffed the ball thrown to catch him out Tobin followed up advantage and rested safely on second. Cavanagh grounded past McCullough who missed an easy chance and King romped home with the first run of the game. Tadman hit through short and Tobin scored, leaving a man on second, when Armstrong made a neat drive down the infield, scoring another runner.

Deannard's nine did not score in their half of the second but Dunkerley, Miller and Wood connected for three nice hits. The locals failed to get either a hit or a run in the third but Toronto did. King chalked up another counter after gaining first on a walk while Tobin got the hit on a neat drive into left field but he was thrown out trying to steal second.

Connect in Fourth

The Petes continued their hitting in the fourth Saunders and Wood again wiping the old sphere into the outer garden. The Toronto turn at bat was featured by a home run from the willow of Goodal with a runner on the bases. Kryinscky came home for the third run of the frame on an error through Saunders' part.

The visitors scored all their runs in this frame when four straight hits caused the retirement of Stock in favor of "Lefty" Purfitt who thereafter held the Kiwanis in check. McCullough gained first on a hit into right field. Foley grounded to short and Kryinscky muffed the ball. McCullough stole third and romped home for the first run for the locals when Armstrong muffed the throw out ball. Hall hit into centre field scoring Foley while Dunkerley connected for a two bagger. Wood hit into left field and Dunkerly and Hall romped home.

Tobin countered another run for the homesters in their half of the fifth when Cripps entered the fray and held the winners in check for the remainder of the game.

The local Kiwanis connected for hit in the seventh, Dunkerley gaining first on a neat drive into left field. No more hits nor runs were registered by them.

OSHAWA WINS GROUP TENNIS FINAL WITH TWEED SATURDAY

LOCAL TOURNAMENT.

The largest and most successful tennis gathering that has been held in Peterborough for many seasons took place Saturday afternoon, Aug. 30th on the courts of the Peterborough Bowling Club. All four teams in the Eastern section of the Central Ontario Tennis Assn. were present, Oshawa and Campbellford playing off for first place in the section and Peterborough and Bowmanville for third place.

The match between Oshawa and Campbellford was extremely close—and produced some splendid tennis. With the first six matches completed and the score 3-3, the match was decided in favor of Oshawa when Mr. Hainer took the measure of Capt. Free in a hard fought 3 set match. Oshawa will now play Tweed for the league championship, the match to take place Saturday, Sept. 6th on the courts of the Belleville Club.

The match between Bowmanville and Peterborough proved much more one sided, Peterborough winning by the score of 6-1. The detail results were as follows.

Men's singles—Mr. Strike, Bowmanville defeated G. C. Scott, Peterborough, 6—4, 6—4.

Men's singles—Mr. H. Wilson, Peterborough defeated Mr. James Bowmanville, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5.

Men's doubles—Mr. Sturgeon and Mr. J. Wilson, Peterborough defeated Mr. Dudley and Mr. Sissons, Bowmanville, 6—4, 6—3.

Men's doubles—Mr. Foster and Mr. Langley, Peterboroough defeated Mr. Jackman and Mr. Oliver, Bowmanville, 6—0, 5—7, 7—5.

Mixed doubles—Mrs. W. E. Jackson and Mr. Sills, Peterborough defeated Miss Werry and Mr. Smith, Bowmanville, 6—4, 6—1.

Ladies' Singles—Miss Sorby, Peterborough defeated Miss Osborne, Bowmanville, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3.

Ladies' Doubles—Mrs. Cruthers and Mrs. Langley, Peterborough, defeated Miss Bonnycastle and Miss Vanstone, Bowmanville, 6—2, 6—3.

Following the match tea was served at the club house to the members of the teams and their friends. Tea was poured by Mrs. Dr. Hewitt, assisted by Mrs. G. R. Langley and Miss Hewett, Miss Sharp, the Misses Peggy and Betsy Scott and the Misses Foster and Miss Sorby.

The entry lists for the various Peterborough city championships have been closed and the draws completed. The following matches must be played on or before Tuesday, Sept. 9th.

Ladies' Singles, preliminary round: Miss Hewett vs. Miss Sharpe; Miss Nixon vs. Mrs. W. M. Cruthers; Miss Sorby vs. Mrs. W. E. Jackson; Miss Scott vs. Miss McKenzie.

Players shall arrange their own playing time within the limit set by the tournament committee. If an agreement cannot be reached by the players, the matter must be reported to the committee before Friday noon, Sept. 5th. Owing to the large number of matches to be played, it will be necessary to rigidly enforce the time limits. Players should consult the general tournament rules posted at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club House.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

While yesterday was Labor Day, it was a holiday for Newsie. As our village scribe would say, "several of our boys took a trip yesterday to Cobourg and Port Hope, south of here, for a day's bowling." So far as we have heard all the pothunters came home empty-handed, and our trophy cupboard remains like Mother Hubbard's.

Hope to have more news tomorrow, and members are requested to keep Thursday's dance in mind. —Newsie.

MUCH ENJOYED.

To the Sporting Editor of The Examiner—

Sir: As an old cricketer, who has enjoyed many a good game, I want to say how thoroughly I enjoyed the game Oshawa v. Peterborough yesterday. It was good cricket played in the true cricket spirit — and what more need be said. The attendance of both sexes was large and appreciative.

There used to be a water tap at the Oval, but now there is nothing for the poor kiddies. Considering the number of teams of all kinds playing there, surely there ought to be at least a horsetrough.

'Nobleman' of Belgium Killed By Waitress

BRUSSELS, Sept. 2. — Young Count de Broeckhoven, 22 years old, was shot in a Brussels cafe yesterday by a waitress 20 years of age, in what was alleged to be a fit of jealousy. The victim, a widely - known young Belgian nobleman, got three bullets in his body. His assailant, whose name was given to police as Marie Scheer, tried to commit suicide but was only wounded in the thigh.

MOVEMENT OF FISHING VILLAGE IN NORTH PROVES NOVEL SIGHT

Indian Fishermen Take Their Wives, Children, Dogs and Possessions With Them When Netting Cold Water Trout.

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 2 (Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1930).—The sight of one lone angler patiently casting for fish that don't bite, often creates more interest than a story of fishing operations on a big scale. With commercial fishing the sport is in the discard, but where the Indians of the Northwest are concerned, fishing on a fair-sized scale is a colorful picnic for entire families and for an entire season.

The movement of the Moose Lake band of Crees from Keller's Portage to Pickerel Channel was one of the most picturesque of northern sights, but it was so far away from the beaten track that there was not one summer vacationist or a tourist to return to the "outside" and tell the novel fish story.

Keller's Portage is on Moose Lake, about 110 miles east of The Pas. Tom Lamb has a trading post there and also operates a fish camp. From this camp he supplies the Chicago market with fresh fumbo whitefish and other big cold water fish such as trout and pickerel.

Tom Lamb hires the Indians to net the fish. They take with them their entire families, their sled dogs, which have to be taken care of through the summer, their tents and canoes. There are about two or three hundred Indians in a fish camp and about as many dogs.

When fishing at Keller's Portage did not net the expected tonnage recently, Lamb decided to move to Pickerel Channel. He took his fish tug to the portage and the Indians broke camp for the 28-mile trip to Pickerel Channel.

Each family of Indians prepared bannock, cooked fish and meat for the trip. Although only 25 miles by water, there would be no stops en route.

When a start was made a tourist would have seen the fish tug, Premier, hauling two barges and trailing one behind, thirteen canoes filled with men and women, Papooses and dogs. They left Keller's portage at 10 a.m. and arrived at the new fishing grounds at 6 p.m.

While crossing the lake they ran into a squall. Heavy seas broke right over the fish tug and nearly foundered a barge load of ice and one of fish. The canoes, however, all manned by Indians who know how to beat "white" water, rode merrily through the gale. By dusk that night the new village was in order and the Indians were feasting.

Good Sports Program In Bridgenorth Park

As part of a splendid Labour Day program several keenly contested games of softball were played yesterday, resulting in a win for Westclox in games with Harrison's and Sugar Bowl.

The results were as follows:

Wesclox (Darling and White), 4 vs. Sugar Bowl, (Simmons and Mahood) 2. Westclox vs. Harrison (Dundas and Woods.)

The junior game, Chemong Park vs. Bridgenorth, resulted in a win for the former, with a score of 17-12.

Creighton Captures Nickel Belt Honors

SUDBURY, Sept. 2. — Creighton nine won the championship of the Nickel Belt Baseball Association when they defeated Copper Cliff 11-5 in the second game of the playoffs for the pennant. Hackett on the mound for Creighton Mine subdued the Copper Cliff squad who have been strong contenders throughout the season. Creighton began to show their supremacy early in the game when they tallied once in the first frame and got three more in the second.

A big session in the seventh gave them four runs and a majority large enough to ensure them of the game. Smith was on the hilltop for the Cliff but lacked his usual speed and control and the Creighton batsmen found an easy mark.

Creighton will now meet the Southern Ontario champions in the play-offs for the O.B.A.A. championship.

NEW WESTMINSTER TIES THE SERIES

Salmon Bellies Come From Behind to Down Brampton in the Second Game.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—With a desperation born of impending defeat, New Westminster Salmon Bellies battled Brampton to the last yesterday afternoon at Varsity Stadium to win by a 5 to 4 score and tie the three game series for the Canadian lacrosse championship and Mann Cup. The third and deciding test will be fought out on Wednesday afternoon on the same field, and from past performances the ultimate result is a toss up.

From out of the depths of an 8 to 1 drubbing on Saturday and the shadows of an imposing deficit, yesterday the far Westerners put on an inspired onslaught with their captain, Haddy Stoddart, setting the pace. The veteran member of the far Western staff put on the added spurt when both teams tottered in the torrid tussle and he rose to heroic heights with three straight scores, which erased an Excelsior lead and put his team on top.

It was the last desperate dashes of Stoddart that swept his team to victory when it was a frantic fight for the odd goal in the last period of play. The game was just as close as the weather, a keen, clever exhibition of the national sport, just the reverse to the runaway win for Brampton in the first game of the series Saturday. Excitement was intense most of the way, although at first the Excelsior advantage from Saturday still lingered with the fans for it was hard to realize that the same men could so greatly improve over the week-end.

A TRUE FABLE

There was once a very old-fashioned man who hopefully relied on a letter to bear important news. It missed its intended receiver and sat for two weeks on an office desk. When the old-fashioned man discovered this, he was extremely annoyed—with himself. He made a solemn vow to thereafter use the Long Distance telephone.

FISHERMEN JOIN MODERN ADVANCE

Many New Wrinkles Added to Lobster Catchers Bag of Tricks.

LATEST IN POWER BOATS

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The days when a lobster fisherman could be identified by his habit of standing in his dory and pushing on the oars, progressing along the sea something like an inchworm, are gone forever. Lobster fishing, like other industries, has felt the pressure of modernism and the putt-putt of the power boat is only one item in the advance.

The modern lobsterman is likely to have a 28 foot power boat, with a specially rigged clutch on the engine that can be thrown out leaving the motor running and the propellor idling. In a boat like this, there is a davit on the starboard rail with a snatch block on it. This is luxury, for, by its aid the lobsterman picks up his buoy, passes the slack of the line over the snatch block and leads it to a drum on the engine. All he has to do then is to take a turn on the drum, tighten it, and the engine will fetch his gear to the surface—If the gear holds.

Practically all the lobstermen to-day have power, but the majority favor the small dory with engine astern, a working compartment next and a bait pen next forward to this. They need to be weatherly boats and they are. It has to be a pretty rough day when a lobsterman refuses to pull his traps. In the opinion of many, the cost of these boats and the cost of upkeep is a good explanation of the present lobster prices.

Traps Modernized.

Traps, too, have been modernized. The old semi-cylindrical trap no longer is the fisherman's principal reliance. If one were to look at the traps piled about an old lobsterman's door, he would find they were mostly of the rectangular type and, as a general rule, factory built. That is, the equipment is constructed piecemeal and can be purchased in bundles ready to assemble. There are also three "ends" nowadays instead of the old time two to attract the crustaceans to the more or less delicious bait.

The bait is now strung on a short piece of cod-line, and the end passed out between the slats and made fast on a cleat outside,—thus insuring against a premature opening of the trap and eliminating the hook which invariably stuck the lobsterman as he reached in. Ends and lines are now treated with an anti-fouling compound, which gives them a nice green tint.

The lobster in itself is known as one of the most ill tempered brutes in the sea, never licked and ever ready for a scrap even when resting on a cake of ice in a store window. This propensity led to the pegging of claws, as restaurant owners who wished them for broilers would not accept specimens which had come off second best in some encounter minus a claw or some other vital part. Resorted to at first as merely a method of saving profits, pegging is now a standard manoeuvre with the lobstermen. To-day one buys the pegs just as any other gear.

With all this talk of modern improvements it might appear that the present day lobsterman leads a life of comparative ease—A trip to sea with one of them would soon dispel this notion.

The Crowd: We want a touchdown! We want a touchdown!

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CRAB.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he skipped around on the sand of the shore near his seaweed bungalow. "I'm glad I made the make-believe flower garden for my wife. And I'm glad the artificial paper and cloth flowers have such strong wire stems. That's the only way I could stop the lively lobster from pinching me in his claws."

The rabbit gentleman had stuck up in the sand some paper and cloth flowers that he bought at a store where they sell the blossoms on hats to trim them. The reason Uncle Wiggily had to plant make-believe flowers in the sand near his seaweed bungalow was because no real flowers will grow in sand.

Just as Mr. Longears was going to call his wife to come out and look at his sand flower garden a lobster tried to catch the bunny.

"But I tied his pinching claws with wire stems!" chuckled Mr. Longears, "and he crawled back into the ocean. And now," went on Uncle Wiggily, as he looked at the paper and cloth blossoms, "I think I'll hop to the store and buy some perfume to spray on them. Then my wife will surely think they are real."

It did not take the rabbit gentleman long to hop down to the seashore village, where there was a seven and eight cent store.

"Do you wish to buy a new gold piano or a diamond dishpan?" asked the little mousie girl clerk who stood behind the counter.

"Neither, thank you," answered Uncle Wiggily, with a jolly smile beneath the twinkle on his pink nose. "I want a bottle of perfume."

"What flavor?" asked the little mousie girl, "lemon, vanilla, strawberry, chocolate or banana?"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I guess you are thinking of ice-cream cones, my dear."

"Oh,so I am! Excuse me!" squeaked the little mousie girl clerk. "I used to work at the ice-cream counter before they put me over here in the perfumes. Do you want a bottle of rose, lily, carnation or violet perfume for your make-believe flowers?"

"I think I'll take a bottle of each," answered the rabbit. "Then my wife can smell four nice perfumes all at once."

With the bottles of perfume in his paws Uncle Wiggily hopped back to the seaweed bungalow, in front of which, on the sand, he had planted the paper and cloth flowers that looked very real.

"Now, I'll sprinkle on the perfume and call my wife," thought the rabbit gentleman. "She has been wishing for a sand flower garden."

It so happened that a little while before, up out of the ocean had crawled a big pinching crab. A crab is much the same as a lobster, sort of dark green, and both sea animals turn red when they are cooked. But this crab wasn't cooked. He was alive and could crawl sideways and backward over the sand with his big blue and white claws held out in front of him, ready to pinch hard.

"Well, this is a pretty place," hissed the crab as he crawled in among the flowers Uncle Wiggily had stuck in the sand. "It isn't as nice as the bottom of my ocean, but it will do very well. And I shall soon catch that rabbit who tied wire stems about the claws of my friend, the lively lobster." It was the lobster who had told the crab to crawl up on the sand to pinch Uncle Wiggily.

"Here he comes!" whispered the crab as, all of a sudden, he heard the rabbit gentleman come hopping along. "Now for a good pinch!"

The crab hid himself beneath a big, red cloth rose and waited with his claws open. Along came the rabbit, with a bottle of strong perfume in his paw.

"This is a rose, so I will pour some rose perfume on it," said Uncle Wiggily. The crab reached up a big claw to pinch and a moment later would have nipped Mr. Longears. But just then the bunny poured out the perfume and a lot of it splattered in the eyes of the crab! Oh, how the alcohol in the perfume stung the pinching fellow.

"Oh, clam shells and periwinkles!" yelled the crab. "Oh, I can't see! What happened? Oh, I wish I hadn't come out here to pinch a rabbit! I'm going back in my ocean. Let the lobster do his own work!"

Away scuttled the crab, sideways and backward, plopping into the ocean and swimming away. Uncle Wiggily was much surprised, but he was glad the perfume had stopped the sea Bad Chap from biting him.

"And now I'll perfume the rest of the flowers," said Mr. Longears. And when he had done this he called his wife to come and look and smell. And as she saw the cloth and paper flowers Mrs. Longears thought they were real.

"Oh, Wiggy!" she said, "what a lovely sand garden you made for me!" And even when she found out the flowers were only make-believe she was happy.

The men turned and looked at one another. D'Arnot knew that his people thought him dead but Tarzan thought only of the woman who had kissed him in love, then fled. A great bitterness rose in his heart. He would go far into the jungle and rejoin his tribe.

As Tarzan stood on the threshold brooding, d'Arnot entered the cabin. He found many comforts left behind. There were two notes addressed to Tarzan of the Apes. One, in a woman's hand, was sealed. Turning toward the door, he found Tarzan had gone. He called aloud, but there was no response.

To be left alone in the jungle, a prey to solitude and hopelessness! Brave man that he was, d'Arnot was frightened. He closed the cabin door. . . . Far to the east Tarzan was speeding back to his tribe. . . But he couldn't escape his thought. He should not have deserted one of his own people.

D'Arnot read the unsealed letter to Tarzan. It told how the rescuing party had been forced to give up in despair. Also of the gifts they were leaving for him, of their eternal gratitude for his protection and service, and ended: "We sail in an hour—never to return."

D'Arnot threw himself face downward on the cot. An hour later he started up, listening. Someone at the door . . . trying to enter. . Dusk was falling. His hair rose on his scalp . . . He reached for the loaded rifle. . . . And then d'Arnot pulled the trigger.

GLASGOW LONDON TRAIN WRECKED

COACHES TELESCOPED.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (C.P.).—Twenty persons were injured yesterday when the night train from Glasgow crashed into the buffer stops at Euston Station. The first of two locomotives drawing the train smashed into the buffers and damaged the second engine, while several coaches telescoped, the third coach penetrating six feet into the second.

Passengers were thrown in every direction; woman fainted and screamed and helpers had to use hatchets to release them. Doctors and ambulances were on the scene within a few minutes and conveyed the injured persons to the University Hospital, where many were treated for head wounds and shock.

WEDDING BELLS

SCOTT—CRONK.

OMEMEE, Sept. 2. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—The wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, July 16, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. T. H. Henderson, Third Avenue Northwest, Moose Jaw, of Mrs. Blanche Cronk of Port Rowan, Ontario, formerly Blanche Henderson, of Omemee, to Mr. John T. Scott, of Willow Bunch, Sask. Rev. R. D. Tannahill officiated.

The bride entered the flower-filled drawing room to the music of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, played by Miss Florence Phillimore and joined the bridegroom before the open fireplace which was banked with a profusion of pink and white roses and fern.

She wore an imported ensemble of shell pink georgette, the coat was embroidered in dove blue and shades of rose and opened over a high-waisted gown, the skirt of which fell in soft folds to the floor. Her bridal bouquet was a shower of ophelia roses and valley lilies tied with streamers of pink and ivory maline.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, only the immediate relatives and friends being present. The bride's sisters, Mrs. T. H. Henderson, in an imoprted gown of Dewkist pink crepe de chine relieved only by a large corsage of valley lilies, and Mrs. J. E. Hallonquist, in a French model gown of pale pink crepe de chine with a large corsage of pink roses and valley lilies received with the bridal party.

The bridal table was covered with a cloth of cluny lace, and centred with the wedding cake in white and silver, topped with a vase of valley lilies, while the cake was almost concealed in a cloud of ivory and pink tulle, held in place by pink rose buds and lilies of the valley. The table was candle-lit by tall white tapers sconced in silver junior candelabras, and small silver bud vases of valley lilies completed the charming table arrangement. Mrs. Henderson was assisted in serving by Mrs. J. E. Hallonquist, and Miss Jean Corrine, Regina.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left during the evening by motor for Banff and Lake Louise, where they will spend a three weeks' honeymoon.

The birde travelled in an ensemble of navy blue canton crepe with hat, bag and shoes to match. Upon their return they will reside in Willow Bunch, Sask., where Mr. Scott is prominently known.

PARNEM—McMILLAN

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 2.—A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, August 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McMillan when their youngest daughter, Audrey Naomi, became the bride of Mr. Percy Parnem, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Parnem, of Orillia, the Rev. John Lennox officiating.

The ceremony took place in the large drawing room, which was beautifully decorated with summer bloom and cut flowers. The youthful bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked very dainty in her wedding gown of coral crepe georgette, with coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of sweetheart roses. She was unattended. After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served to about twenty guests, relatives of the bride. The happy couple left later for a honeymoon trip to Kingston, Ottawa and other Eastern points, the bride travelling in a monet blue ensemble, with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside in Havelock.

SUGGEN—CLARK

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday, August 29th at the home of the bride's father, when Jennie, only daughter of Mr. A. Clark and the late Mrs. Clark, became the bride of Mr. O. H. Suggens, youngest son of Mr. G. Suggens of Norwich, England.

The bride wore a becoming ensemble of pale rose georgette with hat, hose and shoes to match. She wore a corsage of cream roses and white heather.

The groom was attended by Mr. W. Crisp.

The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a leather purse and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

The happy couple left on a short honeymoon to be spent in Toronto and upon their return will take up residence on Antrim street.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

SMILES AND EFFECTS

Dashing breathlessly through the barrier at Charlotte street crossing Saturday, just as the 8.20 a.m. Lindsay-bound train was pulling out, two young ladies were the innocent cause of the loss of a few minutes, which would doubtless have to be regained by a somewhat disgrunted engineer. He was a handsome man too. A fact which probably played a major part in the comedy of errors.

The girls reached the barrier at about the same time as the engine, from the cab of which the engineer smilingly peered. They waved to him—a friendly gesture, misinterpreted as a signal that the damsels wished to board his train. The brakes screeched. The trainman and conductor appeared at the open doors of the cars willing to assist the late arrivals. The two young innocents kept walking alongside the train. Their leisurely gait betrayed no undue excitement. They passed the first door. The second and third, and finally the last door, and much to the amusement of the onlookers and the embarrasment of the train crew, continued on their way up the platform, absolutely unconscious of the stir they had caused.

CLASS OF ITS OWN.

If The Examiner's competition for bass and muskies had included a prize for minnow sizes, Mrs. Huggins, 249 Wolfe Street, would have the bass class all to herself. This morning she submitted a fingerling a couple of inches long and much less than that amidships, certainly the smallest fish in local captivity so far as The Examiner's records go.

Possibly, Chris. Graham and some of the members of the Fish and Game Protective Association might look upon this item as good cause for collecting some of the money that is offered for breaches of the Fish and Game Act, but The Examiner was assured that this little malodorous fellow was of the rock bass family, one of those characteristics is that it never exceeds bait proportions. Piscatorial experts will know whether this statement is correct. As a miniature member of the bass family, it certainly had a potent and pervasive smell.

SOUTH AFRICA OPENS TRADING

First Shipment of Scoured Wool and Oranges Lands in Montreal.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.— Apparently a new turn in the trade between South Africa and Canada is represented in the arrival of the Elder-Dempster freight liner Calgary, which docked here over the week-end. The first shipment of scoured wool to come to the Port of Montreal direct from South Africa was brought in this ship, there being 26 bales in the consignment placed in her holds at Port Elizabeth.

A fair quantity of oranges from the Union, as well as from Rhodesia, were brought to Montreal by the Calgary. There were 1,000 cases of the Union product and 1,130 from Rhodesia.

Discussing the question of trade between the two countries, Dr. Philip Botha, Trade Representative of the Union, stated that the trade prospects between Canada and the Union were of the best this year, and that the results would be better than last year, which was in turn 360 per cent. higher than the previous year. This goes to show, he said, that the movement for reciprocal exports of these two parts of the British Empire was decidedly on the increase.

Dr. Botha said that, the fruit seasons of the West Indies and South Africa being different, there as no serious clash between these two countries in this market. The West Indies oranges would be coming in mainly between December and May, while those from the Union woud be shipped to Canada from June to November.

TWENTY PLANES TAKE PART AT KINGSTON AIR MEET

KINGSTON, Sept. 2.—Three thousand people attended the air meet held here Monday under the auspices of the Kingston Flying Club. Twenty planes took part in various manoeuvres. The program consisted of races for amateur pilots, cross country race with landing and climbing competitions. The entire program was run off without an accident of any kind and the event was favored with fine weather.

YOUTH GIVES LIFE TO SAVE FRIEND

Feared Chum Would Drown.

WALKERTON, Sept. 2.—Realizing that he was about to drown and apparently fearing that his would-be-rescuer would likewise perish unless his grip was relinquished, Charles Smee, 22, of 51 Howard Street, Toronto, forced his friend Alex Shaw to give up the attempt, and met death in the waters of the Saugeen River here yesterday.

The two were swimming a few yards apart when Smee was seized with cramps. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Farquhar Shaw of Walkerton, made for the spot where Smee had gone under. Shaw dived two or three times and succeeded in getting a grip on his friend. But the effort exhausted him. Still gripping his chum, Shaw felt himself weakening. Smee, in his last moments, tore away Shaw's grip in a manner that left no doubt it was a conscious act.

Unable to swim because of his cramped limbs, Smee sank out of sight, leaving his chum to battle for his own life. His cries for help were heard by two boys on shore and they went to his assistance.

Smee was prominent in the activities of St. Bartholomew's Church, Toronto, and had been employed as supervisor at Bedford Park during the Summer. His body has not yet been recovered.

FEW ACCIDENTS MAR LABOR DAY

Speeches By Labor Day Leaders Mark Quiet Celebration.

FOUR DROWNINGS.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2.—(CP)—Labor Day, the annual holiday for all working classes—was celebrated quietly throughout Ontario. Speeches by prominent Labor leaders in the various centres followed by athletic programs were the main features.

A pleasing phase was the lack of motor car fatalities despite the heavy influx of United States motorists who visited Ontario by the thousands on the last general holiday of the summer.

Four drownings marred the day's record somewhat. Ernest Neal, 10, Niagara Falls was drowned in the swimming pool of that city; Kenneth Blair, Brantford school teacher, was a victim of the currents in Rideau River, while Glen Shiver, Port Burwell, drowned in Lake Erie at Port Stanley; Charles Smee, Toronto perished in the Saugeen river near Walkerton.

Drowns in North

Gordon Yates, 38-year-old game warden at Herridge Lake, near Temagami, Ontario, who fell from a cliff and was drowned in 15 feet of water. The drowning is looked upon is some quarters as mysterious, there being some hint of foul play.

U.S. ARMY FLIER KILLED IN OCEAN OFF NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—One army flier was killed and another injured, perhaps mortally, when the Curtiss Falcon plane in which they had flown from Bolling Field, Washington, encountered a curtain of fog off Sandy Hook and crashed in the ocean last night.

The dead man is Lieut. William Harbolt. Lieut. Daniel Baxter, who was injured, was taken to Fort Hancock Hospital in an unconscious condition.

DARLING.— In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Sept. 1st, 1924:

She is gone, but not forgotten,
An das dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of her are always near.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
All earthly trials and troubles are past.
In silence she suffered; in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

IN MEMORIAM.

ROOTES.— In fond and loving memory of husband and father, Herbert Rootes, who passed away September 1st, 1929:

God knew that you were suffering,
He knew you were in pain,
He know you never would get better
In this world again.
He saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb,
So he closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered 'peace be thine.'
You left behind some aching hearts,
That loved you most sincere,
We never did, we never will Forget you, father dear.

GOODWIN. — In loving memory of our dear and only son Tom, who passed from the Battlefield of France to the higher life, September 2, 1918.

Gone beyond the darksome river,
Only left us by the way;
Gone beyond the night for ever,
Only gone to endless day.
Gone to meet the angel faces,
Where our lovely treasures are;
Gone awhile from our embraces,
Gone beyond the gates ajar.

Gone where every eye is tearless,
Only gone from earthly care;
Oh! the waiting, sad and cheerless,
Till we meet our loved ones there.
Sweet the rest from all our roving,
Land of light and hope afar;
Lo, our Father's hand so loving
Sets the pearly gates ajar.

HIGHGATE BAKER TAKES 2 BANDITS SINGLE HANDED

London Youths Found Robbing Store Remanded For Sentence.

THIRD ESCAPES.

Prisoners Run Down After Exciting Early Morning Chase.

CHATHAM, Sept. 3.—(C.P.)—Two London young men, Howard Pierce and Clifford Branbridge, who were caught single-handed by Norman Brown, Highgate baker, early this morning, were arraigned on charges of robbing the J. G. Crosby hardware store in that village, pleaded guilty and were remanded to jail for a week for sentence by Magistrate Arnold in the County Police Court early this afternoon.

Called on Hired Man.

Brown, while on his way to his shop about two-thirty this morning found three men in the Crosby store. He secured his gun and summoning his hired man, Brown went to the store. He arrived there just as the three men ran out. Brown immediately gave chase and caught one of the trio, whom he turned over to his hired man. After another long chase he managed to catch one of the other two. The third man succeeded in getting back to the store and getting away in a motor car that was parked in front of the building. Brown replenished his ammunition supply from the store stock and started after the fellow in the car and although he fired several times, none of the shots found their mark.

Tossed Knives Into Store.

The third member of the gang after getting into the car drove past the store four or five times and on one occasion tossed a couple of large butcher knives stolen from the store into the doorway, presumably in hope that his companions would be able to get hold of them.

Provincial Officer Peters was notified and when he and Officer Sheff arrived Pierce and Brandbridge were being held in the store under the cover of guns in the hands of several Highgate citizens.

CYCLIST INJURED ON THE HIGHWAY

Keith Stewart Collides With Farmer's Wagon—Suffers Fractures.

BLINDED BY GLARE.

Thrown from his motorcycle as a result of crashing into a wagon on the Port Hope highway about two miles south of the city at 8 o'clock last evening, Keith Stewart, a resident of the highway, is in Nichols hospital with a fractured right shoulder, face abrasions and back injuries.

I. S. Allin, R.R. 1, Ida was driving his team of horses south on the highway last evening. There was no light on the wagon. Stewart, going the same way, overtook the wagon, but failed to observe it in the glare of approaching headlights.

The motorcycle struck the left rear corner of the wagon, skidded 84 feet along the pavement; and then piled up on the shoulder of the road.

Leslie Plunkett, corner of Aylmer and Princess street, passing at the time, picked up the injured cyclist and conveyed him to the Clinic. Stewart is being attended by Dr. T. P. McCollough.

Allen will face a charge in police court this morning for failing to carry a light on his vehicle.

Moose Bests Horse In Forest Battle

Sudbury, Ont, September 3——(CP) — An unusual accident is reported from Markstay where a horse owned by Henri Talbot of Loughran Township, was so severely injured by a moose which attacked it in the pasture, that he had to be killed On going to the pasture the other morning Mr Talbot found his horse with several broken ribs and a fractured jawbone as a result of its combat with the invader from the forest. It was clear from tracks in the sod and the nature of the injuries that they had been inflicted by a moose.

DRY OFFICIAL DOUBTS.

Believes Appeal to France Would Not Influence Rum Interests.

LONDON, September 3 (Special Cable by Henry Somerville, Copyright). — I have interviewed the French diplomatic representative in London concerning employment of French islands near the Canadian coast, St. Pierre and Miquelon, as rum-running bases, thus nullifying the effort of Canada to aid prohibition law enforcement in the United States.

The French diplomat told me he feels confident the French Government, if approached by Otawa, would co-operate with Canada. He said the medium of communication would be the Canadian Minister in Paris.

The Examiner also interviewed the Secretary of the United Kingdom Alliance for the Suppression of the Liquor Traffic.

Dubious of French Aid.

"This secretary had no belief that the French Government would adopt a helpful attitude. France, he said, had always showed herself very antagonistic to prohibition. The International Wine Office in Paris was under the wing of the French Government and subsidized to the extent of 300,000 francs.

Six years ago the French Wine Commission had said they must keep an eye on England, Canada, the United States, and Sweden in the matter of prohibition, and only last year at a meeting of the wine officers Mr. Douarche said a propaganda campaign must be waged against prohibition as it exists in the United States and Finland.

He said the Wine Office was in touch with the editor of a great American newspaper and indicated they intended to use the press on a great scale in their propaganda.

CUPID'S ARROWS MISS THEIR MARK AMONG CITY'S YOUTH AND BEAUTY

Twenty-seven Fewer Marriages Recorded in Peterborough Up to End of August—Ma y Be Moon, or Money.

Is the moon losing its enchantment? Are the girls less beautiful or the men more bashful? Or is it just another sign of hard times and the absence of ready cash? Whatever the cause, there is no getting around the fact that marriages in Peterborough have dropped off during the past eight months.

Figures at the City Hall disclose this decline in nuptials. Up to the end of August this year, there have been twenty-seven fewer weddings than for the same period in 1929. To date, this year wedding bells have rung but 127 times, while in the previous year they chimed 154 times. Last month there were 16 marriages as compared with 21 in the same month last year.

Births last month maintained the high level being reached by this year, there being 54 as against 35 in August, 1929. In July this year the stork flew 59 times.

There were 26 deaths last month and 16 in July.

JOHN R. CORKERY IS APPOINTED CITY SOLICITOR BY COUNCIL

SALARY IS $1,200.

John R. Corkery was officially appointed at a meeting of the Council last night to the City Solicitorship made vacant by the recent elevation of Joseph Wearing as Judge of Middlesex County.

Meeting as a Committee of the Whole the Council took a vote on the candidates for the office, and the by-law ratifying the appointment subsequently passed the third reading.

The applicants considered at last night's meeting were Joseph O'Brien, Alexander E. Elliott and J. W. Stevenson.

Mr. Corkery was present in the Council Chamber shortly after his appointment had been made known, and was greeted with a spontaneous outburst of hand-clapping.

'I wish to express my deep appreciation for the honor conferred upon me by the city in which I was born, and have lived for the last forty-two years," said Mr. Corkery addressing the assembly. "I have heard read the many duties of City Solicitor, nevertheless I am at your service, and I trust I will always be able to do the office the honor it requires. To you as individual members of the Council I would say that if at any time day or night you require any information I am to be privileged to give, I am at your call."

In conclusion he paid tribute to the sterling qualities of S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, 'the oldest servant of the city, whose example I shall try to follow in the future."

In offering his congratulations His Worship Mayor Denne recalled the fact that Mr. Corkery's father was at one time Mayor of the City of Peterborough.

The dead are:

Cassius (or Cassins) M. Lawson, 60, Legrangeville, N.Y.

Mrs. Lawson, 65, believed to be his wife.

Arlene Page, 18, of Lakewood, Ohio.

Dying of a fractured skull, doctors said, was Stanley Wismerski, 22, of Legrangeville.

BUILDING RECORD HIGH FOR SEASON

Permits Few in August—Fifteen Issued.

Although building in the city during the month of August was almost at a standstill, as shown by figures at the City Engineer's office, yet the total building for the first eight months of the year is more than double that for the same period in 1929. Building to date in the city has reached $639,090, as compared with $314,643 to the end of August last year.

In August only 15 permits were issued to a total value of $14,720, as against 40 permits in the same month for the previous year for a total of $35,939.

Four moderate priced homes are in course of construction at the present time and these make up almost the whole of the building for the month.

72 HOUR WAIT ALLOWED BEFORE FLIGHT TO DALLAS

PARIS, September 3 (C.P.). — Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte must take off from New York for Dallas, Texas, within 72 hours of their arrival from Paris in order to win a $35,000 prize offered by Col. Easterwood. Authorities of the Aero Club de France, where the contract was deposited to-day brought it out to verify the time limit. The contract specifies that the flight from New York to Dallas must be made in a single jump.

150 YOUNG FARMERS FAIR COMPETITORS

Splendid Development of Junior Department Peterborough "Ex."

The increasing interest that the young farmers of the county are taking in the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is clearly shown in that more than 150 have already enrolled as exhibitors in this year's big show.

The Boys' Pig Club introduced in this district last year by the Exhibition Board, Canadian Packing Company the Agricultural Department was a big feature at the 1929 fair. Boys from the four counties in the district exhibited their pair of pigs which they had purchased early in the spring. This year the membership of the club has been doubled and in this department the boys should make even a finer showing.

The Exhibition Board has this year emphasized the boys' department of the show and bigger prizes are being offered to induce the coming farmers to take a keener interest in their work and compete in the show. The boys are answering the Board's invitation with enthusiasm.

CHILD CROSSING STREET STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Eleanor Kingdon Suffers Fractured Skull and Left Leg Broken.

IN FRONT OF HOME.

Driver Not Held Responsible and No Charge Against Him.

Struck down by a motor car yesterday afternoon, Eleanor Kingdon, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kingdon, 544 Aylmer street, lies in the Nicholls Hospital, with the base of her skull fractured, and a compound fracture of her left leg.

The little girl was playing in front of her home about 5 o'clock yesterday ,when she suddenly darted from the east side of the road, and began to run across to the west. She ran in front of a car being driven north by Wm. Cinese, 312 Louis street.

Cinese ,to avoid hitting the child, swung over to the left. His effort was not successful and the child was hit by the right hand fender and knocked with great force upon the pavement. The car jumped the curb on the west side and crashed into a tree.

Attended by Dr. J. M. O'Brien, the child was conveyed immediately to the hospital.

No chrages have been brought against the driver, since police who investigated the accident, state that he was not to blame.

GUIDE ACCUSED OF TIRE THEFT

Herbert Beaver Remanded Until Return of Magistrate Langley.

TODAY'S POLICE GRIST.

Herbert Beaver, 49, an Indian, well-known as a guide on Stoney Lake, faced a charge of theft in Police Court this morning. He was arrested yesterday, following investigation by Provincial Constable H. Thompson of recent tire thefts at McCracken's Landing.

Police allege that Beaver stole tires from a car, owned by a Cleveland man, parked at the summer resort, about August 3. The tires were found in his possession by the officer, but Beaver explains that he secured the tires in trade for a canoe.

The case was considered too serious to be tried by Mayor Denne and Dr. W. T. H. Young, who are sitting on the docket in the absence of Magistrate Langley, and it was adjourned until September 17.

Unless friends gather quickly around Jos. Long, North Monaghan, and pay his fine of $50 he will spend the next thirty days in jail. Long pleaded guilty to being drunk on Dublin Street last night. Further, he admitted it was his second offence under the L.C.A. "I can pay it if you allow me time to get in touch with my friends," he told the J.P.'s.

Maxwell Dixon, Harvey Township, on the same party, was more lucky. Previously he had been found guilty of driving a car while intoxicated, but that does not come under the same section. So his drunk charge was considered as a first offence, and he was fined only $10.

For driving with faulty brakes, C. L. Turney, of Colborne, was fined $10 and costs.

English Monastie Order Represented In House of Lords

LONDON, Sept. 3. (C.P.)—For the first time since the days of Queen Elizabeth, a member of a monastic order will receive a summons to attend the Imperial Parliament when it is called together in the Autumn. The Rt. Rev. W. H. Frere, Bishop of Truro, has become entitled to a seat in the House of Lords, following recent changes on the episcopal bench.

Dr. Frere is member of the Community of the Resurrection, a celibate order of the Church of England living under a rule and having a common purse. He was its superior for 17 years prior to being appointed to the Bishopric of Truro in 1923. He is a scholar of the highest rank, his knowledge of ecclesiastical history being profound.

ANNE NICHOLS JILTED SUITOR

Decided Marriage Would Mean End of Her Career.

FIANCE AT HER RANCH.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—Asserting her erstwhile fiance, the Marquis William de Lignemare, was suffering a nervous disorder developed after she had broken her engagement to him, Anne Nichols, playwright, author of "Abie's Irish Rose" today disclosed she had sent him to her Encino (Cal.) ranch for a rest cure.

"It was my fault for breaking our engagement," Miss Nichols told newspaper reporters as an ambulance waited at a San Pedro pier to take the Marquis to the ranch. "I feel morally responsible for what has happened. I must do what I can to make up for it. That is why I have arranged for him to stay at my ranch as long as necessary, in hope rest and quiet will bring about a cure."

The Marquis, former attache at the French Embassy at Washington, for several years was Miss Nichols's business manager, then her fiance.

"Our business association led to romance," Miss Nichols said. "We became engaged. And then I realized that if we were married it would mean the end of my career. All my life I have been associated with the theatre, either as an actress, producer or writer. I have been free to work as I wished. And I knew that marriage would make a difference, so I broke the engagement, althought I have the greatest respect and admiration for him. He is a wonderful man, but I don't want a husband."

CONSTABLE SLAIN WITH SHOT GUN BY DRUNKEN MAN

Tragedy Follows Phone Calls of Frightened Crowland Citizens.

FOREIGNER RUNS AMUCK.

Drink Crazed Killer Lies in Wait Inside Verandah With Weapon.

WELLAND, Ont., Sept. 3 (C.P.).—Constable J. C. McNicoll of the Crowland Police Department, was slain here last night by John Kovah, aged 45, whom the former was about to place under arrest for carrying firearms.

McNicoll received the full charge of a doube-barrelled 12-guage shotgun in the face, his head practically being severed from his body. His assailant was later found cowering in the basement of his home. He was placed under arrest by County Constable N. O. Finger, and after being charged with murder was committed to the police cells.

Residents Frightened

It was a phone call from residents in the neighborhood of the Kovah dwelling that sent the constable out on a mission of duty and to his death.

SIR G. FOSTER, NOTED STATESMAN CELEBRATES HIS 83RD BIRTHDAY

Veteran Administrator Proud of Canada's Advance Since Confederation.

RECALLS FORMER DAYS.

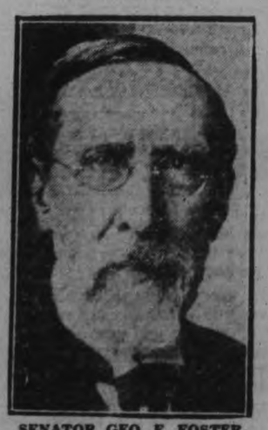
OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 3.—(CP.)—The tremendous advance which Canada has made since Confederation and the fact that even now those who are most intimately associated with the development of the Dominion have hardly penetrated to a complete realisation of Canada's great future were the two outstanding elements which struck Sir George Eulas Foster, the veteran statesman and administrator, most forcibly to-day. Born on thtis day 83 years ago, Sir George, who had just returned from a three months' holiday in British Columbia, was spending his birthday at home, the recipient of many congratulatory messages. In spite of his four-score years, Sir George continues to enjoy excellent health and has lost little of the vigor which characterized him in the days when he fought many a doughty campaign and broke many a lance in the political lists.

Contrasts Transportation Ways.

Spanning the past eighty years Sir George contrasted the somewhat primitive methods of transportation of those days with the luxury of the present. Luxury ,however, was only a relative term, for each improvement in the past was hailed as something considerably in advance of what had been previously enjoyed and it was correct that even the relatively in-different methods of travel eighty years ago were at their inception regarded as quite luxurious.

"The greatest contrast noted," declared the veteran statesman, "is the fact that in Western Canada particularly you have a country of homes. When I travelled across the Dominion many years ago one acclaimed with joy the sight for farm shacks, some ten, fifty and even one hundred miles distant from their neighbors.

HIS BIRTHDAY.



SENATOR GEO. E. FOSTER.

LAVERGNE MADE DEPUTY SPEAKER OF LOWER HOUSE

Organization of Parliament Proceeding For Special Session Next Week.

BLONDIN IN SENATE.

Senator From Montreal is Speaker of Red Chamber.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 3.—(CP) — Senator Pierre E. Blondin, Montreal, has been appointed Speaker of the Senate. Official announcement of the appointment of Senator Blondin was made this afternoon by R. B. Bennett.

The new Speaker of the Upper Chamber who will preside over the deliberations of that body, during the coming sixteenth Parliament, is a former member of the administration of Sir Robert Borden and served in the Meighen cabinet. His selection was forecast as far back as the period during the formation of the Cabinet of Premier R. B. Bennett three weeks ago. His appointment follows the long established custom of having a French Speaker in the Senate when an English-speaking Speaker holds office in the House of Commons.

George Black, Conservative- member-elect for Yukon, will be Speaker of the House of Commons. Today Mr. Black was in conference with the Prime Minister following his arrival from Vancouver. Another practice of long-standing which will be followed will be the appointment of a French Deputy-Speaker of the Commons. Armand Lavergne, Conservative-member elect for Montmagny, Que., will be Deputy Speaker to Mr. Black.

Blondin's Career

Senator Blondin was elected to the House of Commons for Champlain in the general election of 1908, re-elected for that constituency in the reciprocity election in 1911 and defeated in 1917. He was Deputy Speaker at the first session of the twelfth Parliament opening in the fall of 1911. On October 20, 1914 Senator Blondin was appointed Minister of Inland Revenue under Sir Robert Borden and on October, 1915 was appointed Secretary of State.

He was appointed Postmaster General on January 8, 1917 and tendered his resignation in the spring of that year to raise a regiment for service in the Great War. His resignation as Post-Master General was not accepted, however, but he proceeded overseas and during his absence was appointed to the Senate. Upon the formation of the Meighen Administration, Senator Blondin was reappointed Postmaster General.

SAFE IS BLOWN $700 MISSED

Bandits Escape Empty Handed After Gagging Falls Watchman.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 3. — Two masked bandits gagged and bound two men at the Sky View Lines at Oake's Airport yesterday and blew open the safe, but got nothing, overlooking $700 in bills left in a corner of the safe. So great was the force of the explosion that the safe was torn apart.

The two men entered the pavilion and overpowered Edward Davis, night watchman, and took the keys of the office from him. They then discovered that a mechanic, John Iouffaer, lived in a cottage adjacent to the office, and him also they bound and gagged. Provincial Police are investigating.

NELSON SENDS SHARE OF PRIZE TO HIS MOTHER

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 3 (C.P.). — Sudden wealth has not affected Marvin Nelson, 19-year-old winner of the C.N.E. marathon and 15-mile swimming champion of the world. When he received his cheque for $7,400, his portion of the prize, his first thought was to get a draft for that amount of money and send every cent of it back to his mother in Fort Dodge, Iowa. Nelson will remain in Toronto for the invitation races to be held on the closing days of the Canadian National Exhibition.

RHODES IS ACCLAIMED.

ST. PETER'S, N. S., September 3. (C. P.) — Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Fisheries, was elected by acclamation yesterday to represent the constituency of Richmond West, Cape Breton, in the House of Commons. No other candidate had appeared to contest the byelection when the time for receiving nominations closed.

All of the members of Hon. R. B. Bennett's administration have now been elected without opposition following their appointment to the Cabinet.

PLANE CRASHES IN LAKE ONTARIO PILOT IS KILLED

Thousands Watch as Ship Plunges Into Lake in Smother of Foam.

MECHANIC RESCUED.

Captain Sutton Hurled From Cockpit and Drowned—Body Not Found.

TORONTO, Ont., September 3 (C.P.). — Dragging operations proceeded here to-day for the body of Captain Charles Sutton, well-known Toronto pilot and Canadian war veteran, who was killed yesterday when the Fokker seaplane he was flying in the Efficiency Challenge Trophy race at the Canadian National Exhibition, crashed into Lake Ontario from a low altitude.

The accident occurred in full view of thousands of spectators who lined the Exhibition waterfront and under the eyes of the judges, the plane, skimming the water at about 130 miles an hour, was seen to dive in a smother of spray, at the moment the judges were commenting on the precision with which Captain Sutton was flying.

Plane Bottom Side Up.

When J. A. Wilson, Comptroller of Civil Aviation, Ottawa, and Col. Joy, accompanied by lifeguards, reached the scene of the wreck, they found the plane floating bottom side up, and the youthful mechanic, Claude Mills, clinging to a shattered wing in a semi-conscious condition. Sutton could not be found and it is presumed he was hurled unconscious from the cockpit and drowned..

Mills, after recovering in a hospital, stated the motor was functioning perfectly. Sutton was banking with the left wing down, he said, and was very close to the surface. "We were travelling wide open about 120 or 130 miles an hour when something happened and we hit and bounced, then hit again," Mills proceeded.

"It seemed as though the left wing tip touched the water," he continued. "It happened so quickly I cannot say for sure. But we seemed to touch, bounce, then turned completely over. I was thrown clear and must have gone a long way, because when I came up I was about 40 yards from the plane."

Flying Too Low.

Captain W. Roy Maxwell, Director of the Ontario Air Service, commenting on the crash, said he believed Captain Sutton, to get greater speed, was flying a bit too low, and that, moreover, he was flying into the sun.

Sutton was considered one of the best known fliers in Canada, particularly in the north, where he had flown nearly 100,00 miles. He was formerly chief pilot of Dominion Explorers, and had superintended the placing of gas and provision caches along the rout of the flight made by Col. C. D. H. McAlpine and his party which later became marooned.

NO SPECIAL COURTS WILL BE HELD FOR HEARING OF DIVORCE TRIALS

Initial Action is Set For Sept. 15 in Non-Jury Sitting.

NOT CONFINED TO TORONTO.

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—Trial of actions for divorce provided for by the Dominion Parliament at its last session, an entirely new feature of legal proceedings in Ontario, are to take place in the non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice in two weeks.

Contrary to the general opinion expressed at the time the debates took place in Parliament, no special court will be convened for the trial of actions to set aside marriages. The first of these actions entered at Osgoode Hall will bet set down for hearing at the City Hall in the non-jury court, commencing September 15.

Judges Are Named.

Mr. Justice Logie has been named as the presiding Judge for two weeks, after which Mr. Justice McEvoy will be on the bench for two weeks.

The ordinary legal procedure in civil actions will be generally followed, although important rules have been drawn up for the guidance of the legal profession.

Trial of divorce cases will not be confined to Toronto. Every county has its Assize Courts where non-jury cases may be heard, and also sittings of non-jury courts, and at any of these divorce suits will be brought up for trial according to the place where the writs have been issued.

Sittings have been arranged for the latter part of this month for Kingston, Chatham, Woodstock and other county centres. Divorce actions will not take precedence over ordinary civil cases. They will be placed on a list which will be posted on the door of the courtroom, and are taken in their turn, although a peremptory date may be fixed for the trial of certain actions.

Much Personal Data.

In the statement of claim, which must be filed in a divorce suit, considerable material of a personal character regarding the parties to the action is required to be given. In certain cases the Attorney-General of Ontario may be made a party to prevent connivance or collusion between the parties.

In undefended actions the trial Judge will give consideration to the record when the cases are reached in the ordinary way, and will satisfy himself that the person suing is entitled to the divorce. Judgment may be given at once, or if there is any doubt there may be a stay for three months before a divorce is made absolute.

Special interest in the legal profession attaches to the trial of the first divorce actions in Ontario.

$40,000 OFFERED REEVE OF YORK TO GET IN GAME

Dean Hurls Charge at Strathearn—Denies He Offered to Quit For $10,000.

STATEMENTS CONFLICT.

Victory Bonds Accepted Two More Deputy Reeves Admit.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 3. (C.P.)—Sharply conflicting statements from Reeve W. J. G. Dean and D. K. C. Strathearn, were the local points in the probe of York Township contracts, sittings of which were resumed before Judge J. H. Denton.

Flatly denying he had offered to "drop out" for $10,000, Mr. Dean hurled a counter-charge at L. K. C. Strathearn with the statement that the latter had offered to make him $40,000 next year if he would 'play ball:"

Dean claimed that Strathearn had made another proposal. "If you'll give me $8,000," the Reeve reported Strathearn as saying, "I'll give you information that will make the foundations of the Township crumble."

Two other members of the 1929 Township council admitted having received a $500 victory bond and cash from Basil Holden of the Nelson River Construction Company. Former Deputy Reeve A. E. Baker admitting taking $200 in cash besides the bond and former Deputy Reeve Armstrong said that, apart from the bond, he got $2,000 in cash.

This leaves only one man, ex-Reeve E. G. Westbury, now in England to affirm or deny the charges made by Holden against six of the seven men composing Westbury's 1929 council. Five have admitted taking bonds or cash or both.

PERFECT FLIGHT BY COSTE ENDS OVER NEW YORK

French Adventurers of the Air Enter Hall of Fame.

WARMLY GREETED.

From Paris to New York in 37 Hours.

NEW YORK, September 3 (C.P.).—Having made the first non-stop flight from Paris to New York, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte were acclaimed to-day on two continents. In 37 hours 18 minutes 30 seconds the French aviators travelled 4,100 miles.

At 4.4 a.m.5 (E.S.T.) last Monday they pulled thier little Scarles Sesqui plane labelled "2" off the historic turf of Le Bourget, and 37 hours later they waggled its wings in greeting over the transatlantic runway of Roosevelt Field. hen they flew nine miles farther and set their wheels to arth at Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, at 6.12.30 (E.S.T.) last night, and behind them 4,10 0miles of ocean and fog and storms.

Master airman to the last, Coste flashed twice around the field in the deepening dusk, then banked sharply and slid in to a three point landing.

$25,000 Texas Prize.

At the moment it seemed an end to an epic adventure, but later it was announced they would take off in their scarlet plane to-morrow morning for Dallas, Texas, and the $25,000 pot of gold that has waited for three years at the end of the great circle rainbow connecting the Texas city and the capital of France. he prize is that offered by Col. William Easterwood for the first Paris-Dallas flight, with a stop permitted at New York.

A crowd estimated as hign as 10,000 persons, many of whom had waited for hours at the field, was grouped along the guarding fences as the clouds which had erupted hail and rain but two hours before, cleared away and the half disc of the moon showed its faint outlines in the southern sky.

Greeted by Lindbergh.

The flyers' fatigue was forgotten when they reache the hangar and found there to greet them a tall, rather stooped young man, white teeth flashing in a face burned almost as red as their own.

"It was a great flight, Captain," said Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh,

BALLOON MEETS SNOW ON FLIGHT

One of Belgian Entry's Crew Slides to Earth on Rope to Lighten Load.

FIVE OF SIX ARE DOWN.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—Five of the six balloons that started from the Cleveland Municipal Airport Monday afternoon to complete in the nineteenth Gordon Bennett international race were down in New York and Massachusetts, while the Goodyear VIII was believed sailing over Vermont last night.

A balloon, believed to be the Goodyear entry, piloted by the veteran aeronaut, Ward T. Orman of Akron, passed over Bennington, Vt., at 4 p.m. Eastern standard time and was moving north-eastward.

Belica Lands Safely

ADAMS, Mass., Sept. 3.—The Belica landed safely at the foot of Greylock Mountain here yesterday, almost twenty-four hours after it had taken off from Cleveland in the international Gordon Bennett baloon race. Its crew estimated they had sailed almost 1,000 miles.

Captain Ernest de Muyter and his aide, Leon Coeckelbaerg, said the supreme effort was made on the other side of Greylock when Coekelbaerg slid down the drag rope and dropped off on the tree-tops as the basket almost was caught in the branches.

Man As Ballast

It was a case of getting rid of the heaviest ballast aboard immediately, so one of the men had to go.

Coeckelbaerg was not injured by the drop and found his way to a farm beside the field where the balloon landed, after four hours spent in wandering about on the forested mountain.

Over Lake Ontario a thunderstorm broke around the Belica, Captain de Muyter lightened his load and the balloon shot up 15,000 feet. There it struck a blinding snowstorm.

NORWOOD HIGH SCHOOL RE-OPENS WITH ONE HUNDRED STUDENTS

R. G. Lawlor, B.A., and Staff Welcome Assembling Classes.

NEW TEACHERS.

NORWOOD, Sept. 3.—(Examiner Staff Reporter). — Norwood High School, one of the oldest grammar schools in the district, in common with all other institutions of learning in this locality, re-opened yesterday for the commencement of the fall term, and like all other schools, welcomed new scholars to the lower forms to replace those whose high school days ended with the close of the mid-summer term—those who have now entered upon a business or university career and who are about to put to the acid test all the long and patient years of character building and scholastic training.

Opening exercises were of a formal character and after the scholars had been assembled and familiarized with the working of the newly prepared time tables and texts, they were briefly addressed by their venerated principal, R. G. Lawlor, B.A., who congratulated them on the splendid results attained by the school as a whole at the mid-summer examinations. He afterwards declared a holiday for the remainder of the day and intimated that studies would recommence in earnest the following morning.

Principal 21 Years

Mr. Lawlor has been principal of Norwood High School for the past twenty-one years having succeeded John Davidson, M.A., Ph.D., a native of Peterborough who occupied a simlar position for a period of twenty-six years.

Marked Progress

During all the years of Mr. Lawlor's unstinting service and capable administration as head of the school it has maintained steady progress, notwithstanding the fact that school accommodation and facilities for learning have advanced rapidly in that period. The present number of pupils on the roll is one hundred, which has been the average attendance for many years past.

New Teachers

Two new teachers bearing the highest recommendations and academic standing are welcomed to the staff this term in the persons of Miss Maude E. Fleming, M.A. of Toronto who succeeds Miss Lockie. She has had wide teaching experience at Rigby, Goderich and Ridgetown Collegiate Institutes, and is to teach English and Moderns. Charles Walker, B.Mus., succeeds the late Professor Edwards, F.R.S.T., as music teacher at the High School and Public Shools of Norwood. Mr. Walker has also accepted an appointment as organist and choirmaster at Norwood United Church.

Other members of the teaching staff in addition to the principal, who teaches science and mathematics, include Miss Verna Munro B.A. assistant teacher of science and mathematics; Miss Countess Twiss B.A., classics and history.

Cadet Corps

The school possesses a small, but snappy and efficient cadet corps which is under the command and instruction of Mr. Lawlor. His keen interest in the cadet movement is but added evidence of his versatility and youthfulness of spirit and of the close personal contact he has with his pupils, which has won for him such a high place n the esteem of the whole community.

Recent Improvements

During the summer vacation a much needed improvement has taken place under the supervision of the Norwood Board of Education of which E. C. Squire is chairman with Armar Weir secretary, namely the installation of a complete water system which includes drinking fountains, lavatory accommodation and certain improvements to the existing water supply in the laboratories.

These installations now place the school in first class condition, as regards the condition of the property, which is painted periodically and which was declared to be structurally sound when last inspected by the Department of Education inspector.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 3. — Heavy selling of wheat future deliveries, induced by extreme weakness at Liverpool, sent Chicago wheat prices reeling yesterday, and all deliveries struck new bottom prices for the year. Declines were 2c or more a bushel, with little support for the market noted. Liverpool prices collapsed before the Chicago market opened, weakened by anticipated bearish news from this side of the Atlantic. This was borne out by private unofficial crop estimates, which placed the 1930 spring wheat yield at 237,000,000 bushels, or 14,000,000 bushels greater than the official Government forecast in August, and compared with 228,000,000 bushels actually harvested last year. The visible supply of wheat also showed an increase of 5,230,000 bushels for the weak, and is now 187,505,000 bushels, against 182,400,000 bushels last year.

Wheat closed weak, 2c to 2¾c a bushel lower than Friday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1¾c off. Oats, 1c to 1⅝c down, and provisions from 5c to 18c advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 3.— Offerings in large volume were too burdensome for the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday, prices easing to touch new low points for the season at the close . Hedging sales by elevator interests was believed to have constituted the major bearish pressure. The market closed down 3⅝c to 3c.

At 84⅝ cents a bushel October wheat had dropped to within striking distance of the seventies. Some support came from commission houses and shippers, but was not aggressive enough to turn the market upward.

Cash wheat demand improved, though offerings continued light. Spreads were ¾c better. Coarse grains values dropped somewhat, following the trend of wheat.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, September 3. — An easier feeling developed for several lines of cash grain here yesterday, and values for wheat were reduced 2 cents per bushel, and barley and oats 1 cent per bushel. Feed wheat is now selling at 62c, No. 4 C.W. barley at 44c, and No. 5 barley at 42c; No. 2 C.W. oats at 48c, and No. 3 C.W. at 44c per bushel.

A feature of the flour trade was also the weakness that developed and prices for spring and winter wheat grades declined 20c per barrel. Spring wheat first patents are now quoted at $6.50, second patents at $6.90, and bakers patents at $5.50 per barrel.

British Columbia and Prairie eggs were advanced 2 cents per dozen. B.C. extras on spot sold at 37c, firsts at 34c, and pullets at 32c per dozen. Prairie grades sold at 35c for extras, 32c for firsts, and 26c for seconds. All prices delivered Montreal.

Ontario eggs were steady. Receipts were 314 cases.

The butter market was quoted at 28¾c to 29c per pound for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter in wholesale channels, prices to retailers were steady. Receipts were 97 boxes.

The cheese market was quoted nominally unchanged at 15c for Ontario cheese and 14¼c to 14⅝c per pound on Quebec cheese. Receipts were 2,372 boxes.

Potatoes were steady at 90c for new local stock and $1.00 to $1.05 for New Brunswick Cobblers per 80-pound bag.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, September 3. — Local dealers quoted cheese, butter, and eggs at unchanged levels yesterday. The market is in a stalemate with retailers stocked to the limit, having laid in a heavy supply some time ago in anticipation of Exhibition business, and little activity is anticipated until they deplete these holdings.

No. 1 creamery is quoted at 29½ to 30c, No. 2, 28c to 29c; eggs, ungraded, fresh extras, 29c, fresh firsts, 27c, seconds, 22c; cheese, No. 1 large, colored, 15c pound.

Cold storage holdings of all three produce items are heavy and no marked upturn is looked for in the immediate future. Fresh eggs are still moving into market and wholesalers are still worried over their large holdings of storage eggs. It is pointed out, however, that with normal consumption restored all eggs should move out to market within a reasonable time.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, September 3. —Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards yesterday morning were: 3,868 cattle, 961 calves, 913 hogs, 2,044 sheep and lambs. Sales were few at mostly steady prices. Good butcher cattle sold at 7 to 7½ cents a pound. Fed calves brought 10 to 11½ cents a pound. Butcher cows were weak at 5 to 5½ cents a pound, with some for export at 5¾ cents a pound. Good bulls sold up to 5 cents a pound. Trade in store cattle was very dull. Calves sold 50 cents higher at 11 to 11½ cents a pound for choice. Common grassers ranged downward to 5 cents.

Hogs were strong at 10½ cents a pound f.o.b. or 11½ cents a pound w.o.c. for bacons with prospects of higher sales to outsiders. The lamb market was unsettled, with prospects of 8¾ to 9 cents a pound for good ewes and wethers. Sheep were slow at 5 to 5¼ cents a pound for best ewes.

CAMPBELLFORD FALL FAIR OFFERS MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR THIS YEAR

Wide Range of Exhibits, Horse Racing and School Fair Among Features.

LACROSSE AND FLYING.

(Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.— The Seymour Agricultural Society Fall Exhibition which is to be held on September 30 and October 1, gives evidence of drawing large crowds and being an outstanding success. Covering as it does every sphere of town and country activity, it will offer many attractive awards among which is a large list of special prizes.

The usual booths and stands will be on the grounds, and it is hoped that the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion will have control of these. Another attractive feature will be a lacrosse match in which, if arrangements carry, Campbellford and Oshawa will clash in an exhibition bout.

Horse racing is also to the fore, and purses amounting to $400 will be offered. All races, which will be mile heats, will be the best three in five, the purses being fifty, thirty and twenty per cent. There must be four contestants in each race, and all contestants must be members of the Association.

In the prize list the horses are divided into six classes. Heavy draft, general purpose, agricultural purpose and pure bred draft horses, all supervised by Charles Macoun, and roadsters and carriage horses by Dr. S. L. O'Hara. In the cattle group, E. A. McCook is in charge of the Shorthorns, Herefords, and Aberdeen Angus classes, and in the dairy classes Robert Innis handles the Holstein, Jersey, Ayreshire, and grade cattle classes.

Sections covering sheep which include Cotswold, Leicester, Lincoln, Short Wool, Shropshire, Oxfords, and South Downs classes are controlled by Frank Lee, as also are the three classes of pigs, Yorkshire, Tamworth, and Berkshire.

Poultry lists include a great variety of classes, all of which come under the direction of W. J. Abernethy and W. S. Milne. Prizes are given for cock, hens, cockeral, and pullet in each class, turkeys and geese being single, ducks and poultry single and hares and rabbits in pairs. The classes are American, Asiatic, Mediteranean, English, Polish, French, Continental, Games, Bantams, miscellaneous, ducks, geese, turkeys, and hares and rabbits.

G. S. Van Volkenburg and J. A. Murray have a large list of produce to superintend. This includes grain and seeds, all of which must be 1930 produce, vegetables, including early and late potatoes, field roots, miscellaneous vegetables, orchard and garden products, apiary and dairy products.

Mrs. Charles Macoun and Mrs. John Locke are the lady superintendants of several large classes including: Domestic science and home baking, fruits and jellies, domestic needlework, ladies' work—fancy, dining room furnishings, bed room furnishings, ladies' personal wear, library or living room colored material, infants wear, fine arts, oil paintings, water colors, pencil drawings, crayon drawings, and a miscellaneous class.

The special prize list covers sixty six awards and is distributed over all classes. In connection also the Champion School fair will be staged on the second day of the Fair.

This will include the judging of exhibits, sewing competition, live-stock naming competition, and a parade of school at 2 p.m. Special prizes of firsts and seconds will be given for prize schools in singing and for the Strathcona exercises. Regular prizes will be as per Rural School Fair prize list.

Work is now being carried out on the grounds and it is expected that they will be in first class shape by the end of the month. The race track is also receiving some attention and some fast and well run events will afford the spectators many thrills.

Among the features also there will be a novelty stunt by Campbellford's local pilot, who will drop from his machine a $25.00 watch while flying over the grounds, a donation from the local jeweler, P. Tweedie, and which those attending the fair will have a chance of winning.

Officers of the Association this year are: President, W. M. Stephens; 1st vice president, Dr. S. L. O'Hara; 2nd vice president, W. J. Abernethy and secretary-treasurer, J. W. Stone.

REV. W. J. MARK PREACHES LAST SERMON SUNDAY

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Came to Campbellford From New Westminster, B.C., Two Years Ago.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3. — (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—After two years of faithful ministery as pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, the Rev. Dr. W. J. Mark preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening last, when a filled church listened to a stirring and uplifting address.

Basing his theme on the words of St. Paul in 2 Timothy, 4:7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept to faith," the preacher drew a vivid word picture of the life of Paul, showing how he was a failure from the wordly point of view, although he was a man who had undergone the hardest experiences of life. Nevertheless, Paul was a man who was calm and submissive, and a glorious hero in the eyes of God. And so to-day, a minister must reprove and rebuke, although he gets into trouble for it. But it must be the endeavour of every minister as it was with Paul ,to get men consecrated to the service of Christ. For Christ is the centre of all life. As the vine is Christ and we the branches, and as the strength of the branches comes from the vine, so our strength comes from Christ.

As Christ was the leader of all activity, so there must be leadership in the church, for church life centres on this. If there are two or three heads, there is always trouble.

Paul knew his life was hard. He struggled to proclaim the message of Christ even when he knew it would go ill with him. And so it was with Jesus. He told His disciples that it was no easy task He was giving them to do, yet that He would give them power over their enemies.

Life is a battle, said Dr. Mark, and in it we sometimes become unhorsed. There are only two ways, the right and the wrong, and we must go forward to the right, knowing that God is with us, and knows the inner life of mankind. The difficulty with Paul was that men did not understand him for they had not the light. All men who stand for justice will be misunderstood. They will be abused, for people are but human, and they take statements and believe them without reasoning round them and getting to the very root of the matter. Paul and Timothy had to endure this, but knowing their mission went on.

"Where would we be without a guide?" asked the preacher, and went on to say that we all need one. Jesus told us that the way would be narrow and round, that we would meet adverse forces that would strive to turn us back, but by the grace of God we go forward. Paul said, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course," and his word is doctrinal, everything is based on his experimental knowledge, and he consoled his own heart that he preached Christ the victor over sin and death.

And in conclusion Dr. Mark said: "This body of mine is going away, I physically am going away, but am I?" and continued to explain that it is only the unseen that is real in life. "I have nothing on my conscience, he said, I am quite happy and contented. I have fought, struggled, kept within my limits, been true to the gospel of Jesus Christ and preached it a faithfully as I know. I am therefore satisfied and contented. God bless you a thousand times, God bless you."

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1930

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

There will be no quarrel with the avowed intention of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, as announced by the Acting Minister, Hon. George S. Henry, to establish certain standards for milk and cream with premiums for exceptional quality to be paid by the consumer.

This step will be received as a move in the direction of improving the quality of Ontario's dairy products.

The new regulations should ensure dairymen whose milk is above standard grade an adequate return for their success in surpassing the average, and a better price when they turn in cream of better than ordinary quality.

Other sections deal with standard minimum equipment for creameries and cheese factories, the basis of grading cream for butter, qualifications for licensed cheesemakers, buttermakers and milk graders, and other important matters.

Only those who are short-sighted will resent this attempt of the Government to improve the quality of milk and cream products; the experience in such countries as Denmark and New Zealand has been that the greatest success is scored in dairying wherever a Government interests itself with the quality of dairy products.

As a contemporary remarks, it is surprising how much butter is made which is not quite right because of carelessness in the handling of cream before it gets to the creamery, and anything the Province can do to relieve this condition is worth while.

IT IS UP TO THE PUBLIC.

Although the admission price of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has been reduced for this year's fair, it should be understood that there has been no slashing of expenditures, no cheapening of the program to correspond with the lowering of the gate charges.

The directors of the Exhibition have taken the people of the city and district at their word.

For a number of years it has been argued that smaller admission charges would result in a largely increased attendance, and that in the long run the revenue would increase rather than fall as a result of slashing the admission prices.

This year the management is putting that theory to a practical test.

With the expenditure on prizes, entertainment and other features as large as ever, the admission charge has been dropped to 25c.

It can readily be seen that at this price the attendance will have to materially increase to bring the gate receipts up to the normal level, and that if the revenue is to show a gain the patronage will have to have to reach a new record.

It is up to the people themselves; their demand for cheaper admission has been answered, and it now remains for the public to show the directors that it was right when it contended that lower prices would mean a much greater attendance.

In all departments Peterborough's Exhibition will be found worthy of patronage, and the crowds next week should be the greatest in the history of the event

PER CAPITA GRANTS.

People of school sections where there are many children and where the expense of providing facilities for education is proving a burden on the shoulders of the taxpayers doubtless heaved a sigh of relief as they read of Hon. G. H. Ferguson's Labor Day announcement that a new system of apportioning provincial school grants is in the offing.

According to the Minister of Education, the Ontario Government in the near future proposes to fix its grants in accordance with the number of pupils and the amount of money put into the school plant by the people of the various school sections.

At first glance that radical change in method looks like a life-saver to sections whose school bills by reason of a large population of school age has become an intolerable load.

The Province apparently has decided to give the bulk of its help where that help is most needed, a new policy that may not meet with approval in sections where school expenditure is light, but that is certain to draw cheers in other parts of the Province where the school population is numerous.

"Why should a school with a dozen pupils," asks Mr. Ferguson, "be treated approximately the same as another similar school with forty pupils?"

The obvious answer is that there is no sound reason why such a condition should exist, and that the plan of putting provincial grants upon a per capita basis as is proposed is a decidedly sounder and more business-like method than that at present followed in this Province.

UNIFORMITY NEEDED.

In the line with The Examiner's references yesterday to daylight saving is an editorial article in the Toronto Globe which endorses the suggestion of a more uniform adaption of the summer time.

Says the Globe:

"It should be emphasized again that next year there ought to be more uniformity about the duration of daylight saving time. The present haphazard method results in quite unnecessary confusion, especially for the travelling public. For example, a number of cities and towns reverted to standard time on the reopening of the schools, some make the change next Sunday, while Toronto continues its daylight saving until Sept. 28.

"This means that automobile travellers leaving this city at, say, 8 o'clock in the morning may be in Hamilton about the same hour, 'which is ridiculous.' There should be no difficulty in arriving at unanimity on this subject. A week is neither here nor there, so far as setting of dates is concerned, and it might be well, for the sake of harmony, that Parliament should take a hand in the clock-changing business."

With these views The Examiner is in thorough accord, but so far as expecting Parliament to clear up the confusion is concerned our opinion is that little can be expected in that quarter.

Rural opinion is still almost unanimously opposed to any tinkering with standard time, and the politicians who keep a keen eye upon the farmers' vote are not likely to take any chances of losing prestige by interfering in anything so controversial as a daylight saving argument.

Uniformity is needed, but there will be nothing gained by looking to the politicians for action.

The municipalities which follow daylight saving during the summer months will have to do the regulating themselves, and there does not seem to be any formidable obstacle in the way of coming to an arrangement by which all centres adopting summer time should put the system in force for the same period.

Possibly the Union of Ontario Municipalities or the Associated Boards of Trade might be able to solve the problem.

PROTECT THE VOTER.

How far should the manifest intent of a voter be destroyed by some act or omission on the part of a deputy returning officer? This is a point which has come up in two constituencies in connection with the recent Dominion contest and no doubt there would have been many others had the results been more close. Reference has already been made in the Expositor to a neighboring constituency in which five ballots which one D.R.O. was asked to mark and did mark, but in ink, were rejected on a recount because a pencil had not been used, thus nullifying what would otherwise have been a tie. The rule against the use of ink can well be understood because of a possible offset on other ballots, but in these instances the intent of the voter was clearly disclosed, not alone in the presence of the deputy officer, but also his clerk and probably the agents of the candidates.

Another illustration has been furnished in Yamaska, Quebec, where there was a close fight for federal honors. As the result of a recount the riding was given to one candidate by a majority of one. Mr. Justice Allard, of the Court of Appeal, ordered the matter to be re-opened on the ground that a number of ballots not initialed by a returning officer had been thrown out and should have been allowed according to their intent. These, the unsuccessful candidate claims, would show a majority for him. All that aside, the query once more presents itself: Should a voter whose specific choice is not denied be disfranchised because of the negligence or incapacity of an official to whom he entrusts his ballot in all good faith? Common sense would seem to dictate an emphatic "no."

The Ontario election law is far better in this respect, for one clause reads, "No word, letter, or mark written or made or omitted to be written or made by the deputy returning officer on a ballot paper, shall void the same or warrant its rejection."

That looks like a very reasonable proviso and it should be adopted for Dominion elections in the interests of all candidates, no matter what their political stripe. Experience has abundantly shown that all returning officers are not fitted for the task and the voter has a right to be protected from those who do not properly carry out the work for which they have been appointed.—Brantford Expositor.

SUCCESS ON THE LAND.

Sir Richard Winfrey, an inveterate globe trotter who pays Canada periodical visits, gives his impressions of his last trip in his home paper, the Boston (England) Guardian. He was a member of a party which toured New Zealand this year and made the homeward journey across Canada, when he embraced the opportunity of visiting some of the British settlers on the land whom he had visited in 1920 and in 1927.

Sir Richard compares his notes and finds that the settlers whom he had previously seen have achieved real success on the land, have had few reverses and have greatly added to their store of world's goods. The story covers the operations of several families who were established by the Soldier Settlement Board on what was formerly the Piapot Indian Reserve in Saskatchewan. He enters into detail which may be summarized. Sir Richard visited Mr. Clifford Thompson in 1920, 1927 and 1930. Mr. Thompson was granted loans and privileges by the Soldier Settlement Board, having practically nothing of his own to put into the enterprise. In 1927, when Sir Richard visited him the second time, he had broken up 210 acres and his crop that year was 100 acres. He had 10 horses, 4 cows, 4 pigs and 25 head of poultry, as well as a Ford tractor, a radio and a full set of threshing tackle.

Visited in May this year the same settler evidenced further progress. Being a carpenter by trade, Mr. Thompson had erected a modern house, had bought another half section of land and had 100 acres of this new land cleared for sowing. So that the farm now comprises a whole section of 640 acres, fully equipped. He has increased his herd of Holstein cows and is now milking six, with several heifers coming on. His last harvest (1929) was the worst he had had in 10 years and he had to buy oats for his horses. But one failure in ten years was not bad and Thompson had no complaints.

Sir Richard continues: "Thompson has made remarkable progress in 10 years and is now a substantial farmer. I question if I can find any soldier settler in the Old Country who has done better. With his motor car, telephone, wireless (radio) and a new school nearby he appears to have all the amenities of life, except good roads, and they will come at no distant date."

Two other settlers were mentioned by this historian. One had broken 220 acres of his brush half section, the other 160 acres, transforming virgin brush land into profitable farms.

The experiences of these settlers were typical of many of the 51 families originally settled on the Piapot Reserve by the Board. Frequently we hear remarks tending to disparage the policy of bringing Old Country people to Canada and placing them on farms, but Sir Richard Winfrey is a live witness that many worthy individuals from the Old Country have done surprisingly well in Canada in bringing land under cultivation and adding to the national wealth.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sir Thomas Lipton had better look out or the Vedas will crowd his Shamrock off the front page.

The outstanding trio in athletic sports, says the Vancouver Province, comprise Bobby Jones in golf, Don Bradman in cricket and Percy Williams in sprinting. But why discriminate against the miniature golf champion?

Gar Wood has saved the reputation of mere man. If Betty Carstairs had won the speed boat championship the female of the species would have never let the men forget the feat.

Attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition has shown a marked decrease, which tells its own story of economic conditions in Canada at the present time.

TEMPLE TOWER

John James had appeared on the scene in time for dinner, eager to hear if any further doings had taken place. And having been posted up to date, there was nothing further to do but to wait for darkness before once again treading the familiar road to Temple Tower. Hugh was unusually silent as we sat outside finishing our brandy, and I guessed that he was trying to piece together the jigsaw in his mind. And it came as a feeling of relief when, at a quarter to ten, he got up and said it was time to start.

"Come into my study for a moment, Peter," he said to me. "Look here, old boy," he remarked when he had shut the door, "here is one for you. I daren't trust either of the other two with a gun, but you are used to them."

I slipped a vicious-looking little Colt into my pocket, and I could see the outline of another in his.

"Needless to say, don't use it unless it is absolutely essential," he warned. "But also, needless to say, don't forget that our friend of the wood carries one himself."

We rejoined the others, and Hugh looked at them critically. Freckles was obviously on edge with excitement, and Hugh smote him on the back.

"Easy does it, young fellow," he laughed. "And don't forget—not an unnecessary word, not an unnecessary sound. And if I tell you to do something jump to it. Now we'll go in two pairs. I'll go first with Scott, and we'll go beyond the spot where we know the ladder is hidden. Peter, you follow with John, and go to ground where we were this afternoon. Give us two or three minutes' start."

It was practically dark when we reached our hiding-place. We had passed no one on the road, nor had we seen any sign of the other two who were some three or four hundred yards ahead of us.

"How long are we likely to have to stop here?" whispered John James to me.

"Ask me another," I answered. "Presumably until our friend from Spragge's Farm considers it safe to start work."

Half an hour passed, an hour, and then quite suddenly from inside the grounds there came the most terrible sound. It rose and fell in a deep-throated snarling roar, savage beyond description. For perhaps a quarter of a minute and it continued: then it ceased as abruptly as it had commenced.

"Good God! What was that?" muttered John James in a shaking voice.

"The Pekinese," I answered, none too steadily myself. "I've heard the brute once before."

And at that moment I heard Hugh's voice, low and urgent.

"Peter, where are you?" He loomed out of the darkness. "We have been stung," he said. "The ladder has gone. We have been sitting here all this time like damned fools, and the enemy is inside."

We scrambled to our feet, as Scott joined him.

"When I heard that hound," he went on, "I began to wonder. So I had a look. It is not there. Our friend is inside the wall. Moreover," he continued grimly, "the dog seems to be aware of the fact."

"What do we do now?" I asked.

"Go round the wall," he answered, "keeping your eyes skinned for the ladder. We ought just to be able to see that bolster thing against the sky. If we can't we are done, because the ladder itself will be inside. I'll lead: Peter, you bring up the rear."

We started off in single file, keeping to the road. As Hugh had said, it was possible to see the top of the wall outlined against the sky, and there had been no sign of the canvas sack when we reached the corner. There we struck away from the road at right angles, still following the wall. And as luck would have it we had come the right way. Not fifty yards from where we had turned we saw it on top of the wall.

"Now," said Hugh, "which of you two is the lightest? Scott, I should think. Up you go, young fellow, on my shoulders: get astride that bolster and pass the ladder over to this side."

It proved easier than one would have thought, and ten seconds later Freckles was sitting astride the wall and Hugh was climbing up the ladder. Then he threw it over to the other side and disappeared down it, leaving Freckles to pass it back for us. John James went next and I followed, and three minutes from the time we had found it, we were all inside.

There was plenty of cover to conceal our movements as we crept cautiously forward. The whole place was unkempt and badly looked after. Thick undergrowth grew between the trees, and there was no semblance of even the crudest track or footpath. At last we came to an opening. Ahead of us, some fifty yards away, lay the house, and a light was burning in one of the ground-floor windows. Then suddenly another light went on, this time the figure on second floor, and outlined against it was the figure of a girl. She was peering out, and Freckles gave a quick exclamation.

"Shut up," growled Hugh. "Not a sound."

It was Miss Verney, and after a time she put out the light again. Once more the house was in darkness save for the ground-floor room.

"I want to see into that room," whispered Hugh. "Skirt round to the left, keeping under cover."

We followed him, dodging from tree to tree, until he halted before another open space. In front of us was what looked like an old ruined wall, as far as one could see in the darkness. It was broken down and crumbling, and in some places was on a level with the ground.

And we were just on the point of going on when there came the sound of voices from the house. It was too far off to hear what was said, but they were loud and angry. Both were men's, and it was obvious that a quarrel was going on. And then, just for an instant, I saw the two of them silhouetted against the servant Gaspard. Granger was shaking his fists in the air, and Gaspard was standing sullenly with his hands in his pockets. Then they disappeared, and the light went out.

"Damn," muttered Hugh. "However, let's go on and have a look at the chapel. Careful where you put your feet: it is going to be awkward if someone sprains his ankle."

We crept on till we came to the crumbling stonework. It was grass-grown and afforded treacherous walking, rendered all the harder by the darkness. Twice did I dislodge a stone with my foot, and I was just beginning to wonder what good Hugh hoped to do when I heard him give a gasp of surprise. I peered ahead: he was bending over something on the ground.

"Peter," he muttered, "look at this."

"This" was the dog—stone dead. It was an enormous brute, and its body was arched, and its great fangs gleamed white in a last death snarl. And in the air there hung the smell of burnt almonds.

"Prussic acid," he said. "I wondered what had silenced it so suddenly."

And then he straightened up, and his hand went to his revolver pocket.

"The dog is dead," he muttered grimly, "but the man who did it—isn't. Keep your eyes skinned."

Instinctively, we closed up; there was something terrifying about that gloomy, silent house and the rank undergrowth, even without the additional knowledge that we were not the only watchers. The whole place smelt of decay, and I was on the point of suggesting to Hugh that we should go, when there came from the house the sound of bolts being drawn. Someone was coming out.

The door opened, and in the dim light from the hall we saw for a moment the outlines of Granger and the servant. Then it clanged to again, and we heard the bolt shoot home.

"Nero; where are you, you brute?"

Gaspard's voice came through the darkness: evidently he had been shut out of the house to find out what had happened to the dog. He went plunging into undergrowth, calling and whistling whilst we still stood there undecided what to do.

"Nero. Nero."

His voice was coming closer, and Hugh signed to us to move back under cover. And then quite suddenly there came a shrill scream of terror, followed by a horrible choking noise. The calls for Nero ceased abruptly: and after a moment or two the choking noise ceased too. The same thought was in all our minds, what was happening in the darkness close by? What had caused that sudden scream of mortal fear?

Like a shadow Hugh glided away in the direction of the sound, and we followed. Every now and then he paused and peered ahead, but in the gloom of the undergrowth it was impossible to see anything. And it so happened that it was my lot to make the discovery. I was the last of the four, and quite by chance I was staring at a bush to my left. And it seemed to me that something moved.

I went nearer, and only by the greatest self-control did I chedk a cry myself. A great black object was lying on the ground, and as I approached it suddenly rose. It seemed to unwrap itself, and I felt instinctively that it was staring at me. Then, with a sort of snarling hiss, it vanished, and I saw what it had left behind.

"Hugh," I said shakily, and in a second he was with me.

"Good God!" he muttered, and pulled out a tiny electric torch. Gaspard was lying there, his face red and swollen, and a glance showed that he was dead. He had been throttled: the marks on his throat were plain to see.

A Thought

GOOD CHEER.

Be of good cheer, brave spirit; steadfastly serve that low whisper thou hast served; for know, God hath a select family of sons now scattered wide through the earth, and each alone, who are thy spiritual kindred, and each one by constant service to that inward law, is weaving the sublime proportions of a true monarch's soul.

Beauty and strength, the riches of a spotless memory, the eloquence of truth, the wisdom got by searching of a clear and loving eye that seeth as God seeth. These are their gifts, and Time, who keeps God's word, brings on the day to seal the marriage of these minds with thine, thine everlasting lovers. Ye shall be the salt of all the elements, world of the world.—Emerson.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If September 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Upsetting influences are predicted for this date, and a series of mistakes are liable to be made. Fight against being led into cleverly concealed traps by unscrupulous friends. Neither seek nor listen to advice. Be careful of all investments, and search for snares in legal papers.

The child born on this September 3rd will have well-awakened critical faculties—neatness, precision and carefulness. It will have a love for intellectual pursuits in general, but it will somewhat lack initiative, activity and hopefulness.

The world is prejudiced in your favor because of your many Pucklike qualities. You hide the serious side of your nature, your determination to win, by your light-hearted demonstrations over the ups and downs of the game of life. You improve upon the dour qualities of the struggles in which you engage, by getting a laugh or two out of them. No matter how fierce, how perturbed, how ill, you may feel inside, your exterior expressions are usually in a light and cheerful nature or tone. You are quite alone in your heartaches, for you hide them too deeply for the world to know of them, or to sympathize with you. It is always ready, however, to romp with you, and that is what is expected of one of your temperament.

Some people are born punctual, but you were not, and will never achieve that state. Time means absolutely nothing to you, and you are invariably late for business or luncheon appointments. You are not deliberately discourteous, but your "no-idea-of-time" complex is not always accepted with good humour by your waiting friends. The charm of your personality, your own good nature and clever alibis, usually get you pardoned for most of your sins.

You are not a tidy worker, but you have both ingenuity and originality. You are a splendid co-partner in any job, for you are hopeful and of such good cheer, and never seem to fatigue. Cupid will wound your heart many times.

BURWASH EXPEDITION WILL BE CONTINUED

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 2.—(CP)—A radio message today revealed that the far north exploration trip of Mapor L. T. Burwash has not been abandoned. Assumption here that Burwash and his pilot-companion W. E. Gilbert would not leave Fort Hearne for King Williams' Land because of the lateness of the season was shattered with word that the pair left in their giant plane on August 25 for the region where 83 years ago Sir John Franklin and his exploration party of 129 men perished.

The report was sent by W. A. Buchanan, Western Canada Airways pilot who carried a gasoline supply to Major Burwash at Fort Hearne. Buchanan is standing by at Hinter Bay, a trading post on the shore of Great Bear Lake, in case the exploring party should need assistance.

Goes to General Council

Bishop H. A. Boaz, recently transferred from Arkansas to Dallas, Texas, is to be the fraternal delegate of the Methodist Episcopal Church South to the United Church's General Council, meeting in September in London, Ont. Dr. Boaz was formerly bishop in Japan and Korea.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

Tuesday brought an inflow of children returning to school after the long vacation. By train and car they came in, and many looked better and darker for their holiday. It is expected that the Campbellford schools will have a record attendance this year.

Mr. H. Lapp, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has started his holidays, and during his absence his chair is being filled at the bank by Mr. E. M. Lockie, Toronto.

Mr. D. Maybee of the Royal Bank staff attended the wedding of his cousin at Port Hope on Monday.

Mrs. E. H. Lewis and baby son are spending a few days with relatives at Peterborough.

The Rev. N. Clark Wallace, Mrs. Wallace and baby daughter left on Tuesday to spend their vacation in Quebec. They will make the trip by car, and will take advantage of a short stay at Ottawa during the opening of the special session of Parliament. Services in the Anglican church during Mr. Wallace's absence will be taken by the Rev. Thomas McKim, M.A., of Colborne.

Mr. R. M. Dickson of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff spent the holiday with his parents at Napanee.

Miss Hazel Labrash spent the past week at her home here returning to Rochester, N.Y. on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ivey spent Labor Day at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

The Rev. R. C. and Mrs. Tait have returned from their vacation, and Mr. Tait will resume his duties as pastor of St. John's United Church, being the preacher for Sunday.

Mr. S. A. Maguire has returned from a trip to the Toronto Exhibition.

OLD LANDMARK AT DOWNEYVILLE IS DEMOLISHED

MODERN DWELLING.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 3. — Mr. Charles Downey has put up a fine house to replace the old one. The old Downey house was the only landmark left in the township, and is in the village, which is called after the old pioneer.

The old house was torn down about three weeks ago, and in its place is a beautiful red brick dwelling, and when finished will be one of the finest houses in this part. It will include all modern fixtures, and is all finished inside in oak. When the house is completed, Mr. Downey will have one of the finest places in the township, for he recently erected a very fine barn on a cement wall. Mr. Joseph Gosselin is the carpenter. The place is in the village and will add to the beauty of the place.

Personal Notes.

Mrs. John C. Lucas is at present the guest of her sons in Detroit, Mich.

Miss Nellie Downey of Flint, Mich., is at present the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Downey.

Mr. Louis Donoghue of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is at present the guest of his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Harrington.

Miss Clara Galvin has returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Scully have returned to their home in Detroit, Mich., after a pleasant two weeks' visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Costello.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Perdue and family of Peterborough spent Sunday the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Lillie Lucas.

Miss Teresa Clancy of Rochester, N.Y., is at present on a visit with her mother, Mrs. Michael Clancy, also her brothers and sisters.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

Weak cables extremely disappointing export business over the holidays and heavy deliveries throughout Western Canada the past three days, all combined to make a weak wheat market yesterday, with prices getting sharply under the close of last Friday, when due about unchanged. There was practically nothing done in export circles since last week, while country deliveries for Friday, Saturday and Monday were close to 15,000,000 bushels. All things considered the market gave a fairly good account of itself. On the first decline yesterday morning a little export business was met, but it was principally durums that was taken, outside of some buying of Nos. 1, 2, and 3 Northern by American mills. The average report on corn by the American private experts estimated the new crop of 700,000,000 or 800,000,000 less than last year. The figures, perhaps, were not unexpected and had been largely discounted as the market was not affected to any extent. The weather throughout the West had continued fair, cool nights with frosts at a few points, but no serious damage anticipated. There was a fairly good demand for all grades which were trading at ⅛ to ¼ better than the previous closing spreads, but offerings generally were quite moderate. Foreign demand for flour just fair.

With world shipments last week totalling 16,133,000 bushels, the on passage stocks increased only 1,440,000 bushels. Weather quite favorable in Europe, and French crops reported as threshing out somewhat better than expected in some districts. The Canadian Visible increased, 1,182,000 bushels, which does not include country elevator stocks and the U. S. Visible increased 5,230,000 bushels. The market acts heavy but must advise caution in selling on further declines. Winnipeg futures closed 3 3-8 to 3 lower, practically on the bottom.

Coarse grains — There was no change in the Coarse grains situation the markets being dull and uninteresting. The weakness in wheat was reflected in the Coarse Grains all of which were lower. The cash demand is still confined to the odd cars from eastern Canada. Oats closed from 1 to 1 1-8 lower. Barley 1 3-8 to 7-8 lower. Rye 2 3-4 to 2 lower.

Flax—No feature, lower in sympathy with the general weakness and Liverpool due 2 1-8 to 1 7-8 lower on Winnipeg.

MINING TREND LITTLE HIGHER

Higher-priced Stocks Receive Considerable Favorable Attention From Speculators.

NICKEL IN DEMAND.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 3 (C.P.).—The trend was again irregularly higher on the Mining Market during the early period to-day, with the higher-priced stocks receiving considerable favorable attention.

Dome was well taken from the opening, touching a high of $8.65 and standing at noon at $8.50, a half above the previous sale last week. Construction of the new mill at the property is progressing rapidly and there seems little room for doubt operations will be resumed next month. Lake Shore recovered a quarter to $23 and Teck Hughes was turned over at $6.40, up 5 from last night.

The good demand for International Nickel was again in evidence, the price moving fractionally upward to $24.75. The high-grade ore from the frood is understood to be significantly affecting metal production, with both nickel and copper output showing important advances during the first part of the year over the corresponding period last year. Noranda was up a half at $21.75. Base Metals was turned over at $2.50, 15 below yesterday's level.

Acme Gas was the active member of the oil group, reports from Oklahoma stating the company's well had reached a depth of 1,000 feet. Though yesterday's softness was not repeated, the price failed to materially better its position. Home Oil continued to improve, gaining another 5 to $2.65, but Calmont, due to soft profit-taking eased a little amount to 60.

CRICKET

LONDON, Sept. 3. —(CP)— Play started in two cricket matches today, one being England XI versus the Australians at Folkstone and the other between Yorkshire and the Marylebone Cricket Club at Scarborough.

Tea time scores were: England XI versus Australians at Folkstone: England XI 153 runs for two wickets.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(C. P.) — Prime mercantile paper 3-3¼ per cent.

Great Britain 4.86⅛, France 3.93¼, Italy 5.23½, Germany 23.85.

INQUEST ORDERED IN TWEED DROWNING

Aged Resident's Body is Recovered From Moira River.

TWEED, Sept. 3.—(Examiner Correspondent.)—Dr. Eagleson of Madoc, county coroner, has ordered an inquest into the circumstances attending the drowning of Frank Meraw, sixty-five year old resident of this town, whose body was recovered from the Moira river at eight-thirty yesterday morning, as was reported in the Examiner yesterday.

A jury was empanelled and after taking preliminary evidence before Dr. Eagleson, the hearing was adjourned to Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

KING TO BRAEMAR.

Royalty Will Attend Highland Games.

LONDON, Sept. 3 (C.P.). — The King and Queen are expected to attend the Highland Gathering at Braemar on September 11. His Majesty takes a keen interest in this event, and relishes with obvious pleasure the spectacle of the feats of strength, skill and daring which are then displayed. The famous march past of the clansmen, carrying Lochaber axes, pikes and halberds, attracts thousands of visitors.

NEW YORK MART HOLDS ITS OWN

CALL MONEY 2 PER CENT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (C.P.)—Bears found the stock market ripe for a technical reaction to-day, but by early afternoon, the adjustment appeared to have been completed, and bulls once more gained the upper hand.

The indecisive action of the market yesterday indicated to the bear crowd that many traders long of stocks were anxious to take profits after the rise of last week, and the continued lack of public buying was evidently somewhat discouraging to operators for the rise. The selling movement failed to gain any velocity, however, and few pivotal shares sold off more than a point, although a few were depressed 2 to 4. Publication of Iron Age's weekly review of the steel situation apparently helped to turn the tide in the early afternoon.

Firm features were Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, and Bethlehem Steel, up 2 to 4 points. A new development of the day's trading was an upturn in the baking shares, particularly the ward issues, practically inactive of late. The class A stock traded 12 points above the last transaction. The Continental Baking shares also gained a couple of points. United Aircraft, U.S. Pipe, International telephone, Electric Auto Lite, were also firm. Shares selling off 2 to 4 during the morning included Radio, Air Reduction, Loews, Standard Gas, American Power and Light, American Tobacco B, Johns Manville, and Case.

That cash money still remained plentiful at 2 percent however, was probably due primarily to lack of demand. The banking demand for funds, resulting from the Sept. 1 settlements, appeared in an increase in the rate for federal funds to 2½ percent, indicating that there has been considerable borrowing from the federal reserve this week.

French theatre owners have just decided that silent films are passe, and that talkies are here to stay.

FEATURE STOCK TORONTO MART

Firmness Throughout List in Evidence Despite Lack of Trading.

BRAZILIAN STEADY.

TORONTO, September 3. (C.P.) — International Nickel featured trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, advancing a point to 25. Trading was not heavy; in fact the whole list was dull despite a very apparent firmness. Brazilian was holding well above 35. Massey-Harris was keeping its recent gain. Ford of Canada, Walkers, Service Stations and the Oils were all firm. The Oils made slower progress than yesterday but the general tone was better than last week. There were individual cases where stocks were quoted under the price at which they had closed last night but such were the exception. Bell Telephone and Gypsum were well known issues down fractionally, although their losses did not represent liquidation.

Plan Reception For Governor General

LINDSAY, Sept. 3.—Mayor Stewart brought up the question of the visit of the Governor General to Haliburton on October 3rd at to-night's council meeting. The Governor General will be in Lindsay on his way home from Haliburton on this date with Viscountess Willingdon from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and a guard of honor from the 45th Victoria and Haliburton Regiment and a committee was appointed to make arrangements for a royal welcome. The committee consists of the Mayor, Colonel R. I. Moore, T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P., and Mrs. R. M. Beal, Regent of the Daughters of the Empire along with others to be appointed.

PARALYSIS TAKES FOURTH VICTIM IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 3. (C.P.) Another death occurred in Toronto to-day from infantile paralysis, making the fourth victim in this city since the outbreak of the disease. Seven more cases were reported yesterday and two to-day to the city department of Public Health. Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, deputy city medical officer of public health, to-day told the Board of Control in a letter that there was no need for alarm as there was no epidemic.

Another case of infantile paralysis has developed in Stratford, with the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thompson, Erie Street, as the victim. The case is not considered serious.

This is the third case in Stratford.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 3. (Special to Examiner.)—Though current prices for lead and zinc are against such an action, sufficient ore has been developing to date on the property of Base Metals Mining Corporation to warrant an increase in mill capacity from the present 300 tons per day to 500 tons daily, J. P. Watson president of Mining Corporation, stated to-day. He was of the opinion condition did not justify the increase at present as it would make for a larger depreciation of the company's assets. Mining Corporation owns a third interest 700,000 shares, in base metals. Work is proceeding smoothly, Mr. Watson said, and excellent progress is being made in the development of new ore.

Rumor around the street, has it an important deal is in the background of the recent strength in Western oils, but circles usually well informed claim they have heard nothing new so far. Oils, such as Home, Calmont, Dalhousie A. P. Con and other operating in the Alberta field, were stronger all last week on exchanges in the west is pointed out, and while the renewed demand has not assumed unusually large proportions Stockholders are showing a marked disinclination to let their holdings go at current levels. It is thought the possibility that higher production will be reported for August may have had a beneficial effect on the market and several companies particularly Home and Calmont, are momentarily expecting new produce. Strong American interests are understood to have secured a large block of A. P. Con lately and the acquisition by that company of an extensive acreage in Texas is perhaps due to this development.

An area receiving considerable attention at the present time is the red coulee international border field where drilling of wells is relatively inexpensive and a good grade of crude is secured by pumping. British Oil Corporation, headed by E. H. Cunningham Craig well known British geologist has been formed to operate on this structure. The company has a capitalization of $5,000,000 and is understood to have been financed entirely in Great Britain. Mr. Cunningham Craig was in Calgary recently investigating the Dewinton structure and obtained extensive acreage for British Oil Corporation. This project marks the first attempt of a purely British association of capitalists to enter the border oil territory.

Reorganization of Bidgood Mines, which has been the subject of reports on several occasions of late, is understood to be nearly completed, with an announcement pending. The plan it is believed, will involve the formation of a new company with a capitalization of 2,000,000 shares. Some 1,200,000 will probably be issued on the basis of one of the new for one of the old. Leaving the company free of all indebtedness and with 1,800,000 shares in the treasury, plus extensive development and well equipped mining plant.

PROBE TRUCK PURCHASE.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 3 (C. P.). — Revelation that the Corporation of Ottawa last year paid $2,400 more than was necessary for a motor truck is to lead to a judicial investigation of the transaction. Mayor Frank Plant made this announcement to-day after receiving the final report of the accountants who have just completed a thorough going check of civic accounts and expenditures over a lengthy period.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Application has been made to the Federal Government by James McLaren Lumber Company, for a charter to operate a power plant on the Lievre river and it is expected that this request will be favorably received. This development will bring another 120,000 horsepower of electric energy to the service of Ontario and Quebec industry The James McLaren Lumber Company is one of the oldest in the Ottawa valley and two years ago secured a Quebec lease to develop High Falls on the Lievre some miles above where it joins the Ottawa thirty miles below the capital. Original plans have been entered and a federal charter is now sought, the power development to be undertaken by the "Buckingham Power Company" originated for that purpose, it is reported that the newsprint mill is practically ready for operation. Two newsprint machines have been installed. Cost of the power development is calculated at $10,000,000 and special financing will likely be arranged to take care of this.

St. Lawrence Exchange.

Shareholders of St. Lawrence Paper Mills Co., Ltd., are reminded by President Earnest Rossiter, that the offer of exchange of shares made by St. Lawrence Corporation Limited, on a charge for share basis is open for acceptance only until September 9. A large majority of holders have already exchanged their shares, it is stated and those wishing to do so are asked to deposit their certificate so that the capitals set up, may be completed immediately after the expiration date. It is pointed out that stock of St. Lawrence Corporation has been listed on both Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges. St. Lawrence Corporation is the result of an amalgamation of St. Lawrence Paper Mills, Bompton Pulp and Paper Co. and Lake St. John Power and Paper Company.

The most encouraging aspect of the Canadian exchanges at the moment, is the action of the two most popular leaders, International Nickel and Brazilian Traction. Nickel was held back by the issuing of rights, but with the rights out of the way, the stock has acted better. Brazilian traction met with considerable liquidation due to a drop in the value of the milreis and what appeared to be forced selling driven down to a new low for 1930. Brazilian Traction has since recovered practically 5 points. Interest in the local market for the days past has been centered on these two issues with accumulation going on elsewhere as a reflection of month end dividend and interest payments. Leadership was lacking for a long time and if Nickel and Brazilian continue to perform satisfactory, a broadening out of activity can be looked for. In the meantime securities are being purchased in small lots apparently for cash by investors of moderate means who are taking advantage of the opportunity of diversifying holdings of dividend paying stocks. In this way the floating supply of the well-seasoned dividend paying shares have been depleted and in due course, the lists will be further combed for other issues that offer security of principal with income return and possibly capital appreciation over an extended period.

Brokers letters from New York this morning speak of a probable technical reaction and the fact the Dow-Jones averages have again reached the resistance point on the up side without breaking through. At the close of the month of August, the average agani reached the level that prevailed before newsof the drought in the farming districts of the United States was made public, bringing a sharp dip in security prices. It is said the markets are facing another test and day to day traders are told to take matters easy for a day or so and waitdevelopments.

GEE, DOESN'T THIS WATER LOOK INVITING?—WHEN I WAS A KID THEY CALLED ME "FISH" BECAUSE I WAS SUCH A GOOD SWIMMER—LET'S GO IN—I WANT TO BE A KID AGAIN

GOSH, HOW MANY TIMES I DID THIS WHEN I WAS A KID—HURRY UP, JUNIOR, THE LAST ONE IN IS A MONKEY

CAN YOU DO THIS, JUNIOR—HOLD YOUR NOSE AND DUCK YOUR HEAD UNDER WATER?

DESE ARE NICE CLOTHES—I HOPE DEY FIT ME—I'D HATE TO HAVE TO USE SOME OF DE MONEY IN DE POCKET TO HAVE DEM ALTERED

SAY, MISTER, I JUST TRADED CLOTHES WID YOUSE—DERE'S ONE NICE TING ABOUT MY CLOTHES—YOU CAN CRAWL IN 'EM ANY PLACE—TANKS

LOOK AT THE RAGS!—HURRY AND DRESS AND RUN HOME AND GET MOTHER TO PACK SOME CLOTHES AND HURRY BACK WITH THEM—I CAN'T WEAR THESE

GEE, THAT'S SOME GAME

OVER THE FENCE! THAT'S A HOMER ALL RIGHT—EVERYBODY COME IN!

I WONDER WHAT'S KEEPING THAT KID?—I'VE BEEN WAITING ABOUT 2 HOURS FOR HIM—I SUPPOSE I'LL HAVE TO PUT THESE ON AND SNEAK HOME

JUST WAIT TILL I GET THAT KID—I'LL GIVE HIM PLENTY!

THAT LOOKS LIKE THE TRAMP THE CAPTAIN TOLD US TO PICK UP—PEOPLE BEEN CALLING UP THE STATION COMPLAINING ABOUT HIM

SO YOUR NAME'S NEBB?—AND A TRAMP STOLE YOUR CLOTHES? THAT'S A FUNNY STORY—YOU BETTER TELL IT TO THE CAPTAIN—HE AIN'T HAD A LAUGH FOR MONTHS

THERE'S MY WIFE NOW! FANNY, WILL YOU TELL THE OFFICER WHO I AM

WELL, WHAT ARE YOU LAUGHING AT?

FORGOT SWITCH TRAINMAN SAYS

Moment of Forgetfulness Caused One Death on C.N.R. at Pembroke.

STORY TOLD JURY.

PEMBROKE, September 3. (C.P.)—Forgetfulness on the part of Walton Featherstone of Smith's Falls, C. P. R. freight trainman, caused the death of one man, injury to two others and the wrecking of the trans-Canada passenger train last Friday, he testified last night at a coroner's inquest. Featherstone, who was a switchman in charge of making up a train at a spur line near here, opened the switch leading to the main line when the crack train was only a few hundred yards away. It was not until he saw the headlights piercing the darkness that he realized his tragic error.

Sprinting along the rough spur line he made a gallant but futile attempt to reach the switch before the passenger train

When still several yards away he was horrified to see the huge engine jump the track and plunge down an River embankment flanking the Ottawa River. The tender, the baggage cars and two sleeping cars were dragged from the track by the plunging engine and were saved from following it only by the presence of a row of telegraph poles ceived a call to the effect that a crazed man was running about the vicinity menacing residents with a shotgun.

CONSTABLE SLAIN

The constable and his friend hastened to the scene, but Kovah had retired to the glass incased verandah of his home and was sitting in a chair when the officer reached the house.

As McNicoll was about to open the gate, Kovah jumped to his feet and pointing the muzzle of a shotgun direct at the officer told him to "beat it" unless you want to die." McNicoll did not heed the warning and had only taken a few steps when the man fired at point blank range. He crumpled up at the feet of Mr. Spencer, who narrowly missed a similar fate.

Francis: I feel like a nice, cool malted milk. How about you?

Frances: I dunno. What's a malted milk feel like?

"Make Up" Stars

The interesting business of putting make-up and cosmetics on some of Hollywood's brightest screen stars is that of Lillian Gibel, Canadian girl, who has just returned to her home at Toronto. She has been associated with the largest maker of cosmetics on the west coast for come years, and has done work in all the major studios.

Police Go Digging After Confession

Kitchener, Ont., September 3.—(C.P.) — The Kitchener police are doing a little digging at an unnamed bush near the outskirts of the city to prove or disprove a murder confession.

Jacob Ginrovich, alias Jacob Tender, came from Montreal to Chief of Police O'Neill, and claimed he murdered a girl in Kitchener five years ago, and buried her body beside a large tree on the outskirts of the city. Beside her he buried her purse, and a ticket to Detroit in a tin can.

CONNOR TO ACCOMPANY BOYD

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 3.—(CP)—When Captain Errol Boyd, Canadian aviator, takes off from St. Hubert Airport, Que., for London, England, in the Columbia he will be accompanied by Lieut. Harry Connor, an expert navigator and a reserve officer of the United States navy, and the undertaking will be known as the Boyd-Connor flight, it was announced here. In the meantime the trip was held up by legal entanglements.

BRITISH TORIES RETAIN BROMLEY DESPITE SPLIT

Edward T. Campbell, Baldwin Candidate, Elected in Field of Four.

ELECTORS APATHETIC.

Only 39,383 of 54,000 Voters Used Their Franchise.

BROMLEY, Eng., Sept. 3. (Canadian Press Cable) The Conservative party has retained its hold on Bromley Borough, Edward T. Campbell, the Baldwin standard-bearer, having headed the poll despite a split in the Conservative vote caused by the candidature of V. C. Redwood, United Empire party.

Mr. Campbell, who succeeds the late Colonel the Hon. Cuthbert James, second son of Lord Northbourne, obtained 12,782 votes. W. G. Fordham, the Liberal candidate was next with 11,176. V. C. Redwood, backed by the Rothermere newspapers, was third with 9,483 votes and the Labor aspirant, A. E. Ashmore, footed the poll for the third time in the constituency. He obtained 4,942 votes.

Vote Was Small

A surprising feature of the polling was the unexpectedly small vote. Only 39,383 people registered their preference while 54,000 voted at the last general election. In view of the nation-wide interest in the result was confidently anticipated that there would be a record turn-out.

The victory was hailed to-day by the Conservative newspapers as one of no small merit considering the difficult situation which the Conservative nominee had to face. Mr. Campbell, who has been an East Indian merchant and planted, British Vice-Consul in Java, a commander on the Scotland Yard headquarters staff, and a member of Parliament for N.-W. Camberwell, has demonstrated a versatility of gifts of occupation and his unswerving support of Conservative doctrines combined with a sympathetic attitude towards Empire free trade is given a large part of the credit for the triumph.

Analysis of Vote.

Little significance is attached to the smallness of the Labor vote as the Labor candidate has never done very well in Bromley. An analysis of the total poll, however, would appear to show that the United Empire candidate gained his support not only at the expense of the Conservatives, but from Liberals and Labor as well. While the vote total was about five-sevenths that of the general election the Liberals only obtained 11,000 as against 18,000 votes last time and Labor's strength was almost cut in half, declining from 10,105 to 5,942. The Conservative slump was only to be expected owing to the Redwood campaign.

The vote in 1929 was: James, Conservative, 25,449; Fordham, Liberal, 18,372; Ashworth, Labor, 10,105; and in 1924 it was: Conservative 20,272. Liberal 11,380, Labor 5,875.

MAXWELL HOUSE COFFEE

"GOOD TO THE LAST DROP"

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

TWO KINDS OF CURIOSITY.

Without curiosity the world would still be populated by dull and witless people.

It was the desire to know that started the advancement of the race.

And that original curiosity, which led men to find things out concerning the world they were living in, was the same curiosity which now sendthe explorer to the ends of the earth and leads the scientist through endless and highly useful experiments.

That is a form of curiosity which is worth having.

It is to a large degree native. It is the curiosity which makes children wonder what is in the lot back of the house, and send them there to find out.

It is the curiosity which sent Columcus over the ocean, and Peary and Byrd to the poles, and Livingston and Stanley to darkest Africa and Magellan and Drake on their world voyages.

The child, simple and straightforward, and unspoiled by snobbery and convention, is curious to know not only what is beyond his limited horizon, but what kind of children are to be found in the next yard.

He has no curiosity as to their social position, or how much money their father is making, or whether their mother belongs to the Woman's Club.

He wants to know whether the children are good company, if they play fair when they play games, and if they can stand a little hurt without whining.

By and by, if he continues to play with the same children, he knows all about them, and when grown up willunderstand the playmates who grow up with him better than any new acquaintances can ever understand them.

The curiosity of the other type is the snooping curiosity which is eager to pry into private affaits—whether the woman next door is paying for her refrigerator on the installment plan, how much wages she gives her cook, and whether she is "beneath" or "above" her husband in fortune and birth.

That kind of morbid desire to ferret out things that are none of one's business is a wicked waste of a perfectly good instinct, which is the instinct to get information.

All inventors are curious—intensely curious. That is why they make the discoveries that bring them fame.

Benjamin Franklin was one of the most curious persons the world ever knew, and became one of the wisest and most useful of men.

Don't be ashamed of good, honest curiosity. Don't be ashamed of asking questions in order to gratify it.

As long as you only want to know what you have a right to know, your curiosity will add to your mental growth.

But when you begin wondering about other people's business you are due to become an unmitigated nuisance.

Walter Stocker, it was decided that the chairman of the Property Committee be authorized to have sanitary conveniences installed as recommended by the local Board of Health in the following houses: 532 Rogers street; 36 Ware street; 284 Rogers street; 236 Euclid avenue; 390 Mark street; 225 and 217 Euclid avenue, and 349 Dublin street.

Applications for eatinghouse licenses were received from John H. Econs, George street, D. Rice, 550 Armour Road, and the Tom Thumb Golf Course, Reid and McDonnel streets. They received the approval of the council. Three eating house licenses were also renewed in favor of E. M. Austin, 380 George street, Mrs. M. Fowler, 20 Water street and S. S. Kresge, Ltd., George street.

Board of Works.

Recommendations by the Board of Works were adopted, that a request from Mrs. J. W. Fitzgerald that when the sewer is being laid on Geraldine avenue, sewer connections be not laid to the vacant lots.

It was ffurther decided that the city combine with the Chamber of Commerce in taking a half-page advertisement in a number of the Financial Post, in which Peterborough will be featured at a cost to the city of $125.

Alderman Stocker questioned a recommendation contained in the Board of Works report that a cheque for $200 be issued to the Chief of the Fire Department to pay his expenses in attending the Fire Chiefs' convention. 'On account of strenuous times ——" he began.

Mayor Denne—'An accounting will be made of it."

The following reports were read and adopted: Your committee received a letter from Joseph Wearing enclosing the reasons for judgment of Mr. Justice McEvoy in Ackerman vs. City of Peterborough, in which Judgment was given against the city; and also enclosing a letter from G. Grant, K. C., counsel for the city. We recommend that the necessary steps be taken by the City Solicitor to appeal the case.

We recommend that the City Engineer have the bus stops marked on George street from Charlotte street to Brock street inclusive.

Property Committee — That the Mayor and the chairman of this committee be a committee to interview the executors of the N. T. Laplante estate in regard to a lot on Lock street, and the McDonald estate regarding an adjoining lot.

That a review of all property owned by the city be made by this committee and a report made.

In answer to a resolution from the City Council forwarded to Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, a letter was read in which he stated —'your municipality is having every consideration regarding the new highway."

Following a request to the Council from Tom Stinson, M. P., of Lindsay that a resolution be forwarded to the Minister of Highways regarding the completion of the work on King's Highway No. 7, it was resolved that this measure be undertaken

Evan S J. Martin, manager of the Water and Simcoe street branch of the Bank of Montreal, waited upon the City Council with a suggestion that to facilitate the work of the bank in handling the business of the various city departments, including the Public Utilities Commission and the City Trusts, he would urge closer co-operation. He spoke at some length of the numerous out-of-pocket expenses which the bank is at present bearing in connection with the balancing and handling of coupons from the City Trust.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Bridgewater also waited upon the council and made enquiry concerning the bricks recently removed from between the old street car tracks and which are now on the city dump.

The Mayor pointed out that while the bricks are placed on the city dump they are piled and are in good condition, intended for future use. If agreeable to the City Engineer and Council His Worship said he would offer the applicant a certain quantity of bricks at $35-$40 per thousand. The offer was not accepted.

PERFECT FLIGHT

and although Coste probably did not hear or understand the words he could not mistake the meaning and his face lighted with a happy smile as he grasped the hand of the most famous flier of the United States.

"Lindbergh was there at the field", he said smiling broadly. There was a heartache as well as joy for Coste last night, for his boyish idol and companion laid down his life in attempting the feat he carried through so successfully.

Three years ago last spring Capt. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli started from Le Bourget for New York. They passed over Ireland and headed out over the North Atlantic into eternity. Nungesser was Coste's idol. He flew three quarters of the way around the world in a plane named for the two French aces—first man to dare the North Atlantic gales in a non-stop flight from Paris. Little wonder that his face was grave as he set his wheels to earth and realised, as one awakening from a dream, that he was safe, his journey ended. He had won through where Nungesser had failed.

Hoover's Congratulation

From the presidents of the United States and France congratulatory messages came for the two fliers.

"The news of your successful flight thrills the people of the entire American nation and upon their behalf and my own I send to you and your gallant companion our heartiest congratulations." President Hoover messaged Coste. "Happy to send you my warmest congratulations for your magnificent exploit," wirelessed President Domergue.

HOUSEWIVES now order their Bon Ami several packages at a time. In the old days, when Bon Ami came only in cakes and was used only for windows and mirrors, a cake at a time was all right. But now that this magic cleanser is made in powder form, too, and women have discovered so many uses for both Powder and Cake, they like to keep a reserve supply always on hand.

Bon Ami speeds up housework. The way it blots up dirt and impurities is really magical. There's nothing like it for cleaning bathtubs and tiling, painted woodwork, windows, mirrors, fine kitchen utensils and dozens of other things. And it never reddens the hands.

SHE THOUGHT:
"You mean to be kind, but I hate to have you come so close."
Yet, to be polite,
SHE SAID:
"It's so nice of you to help a beginner at bridge."

Friendly...but no friends!

...people can't excuse "B.O." (Body Odour)

SHE'S NICE—but let's not invite her!" That's what people said about Mrs.....Everybody knew the reason. Everyone but Mrs.....herself!

Then by chance she overheard, "B.O."

"B.O."—the polite term for something people seldom mention...body odour. She was horrified. But that very day she adopted a simple safeguard. Now she is popular, happy, invited everywhere. Never again will she let "B.O." offend!

We don't notice it—in ourselves

That's the tragic thing about body odour. The offender is always the last to suspect his fault, because our senses quickly become deadened to an ever-present odour.

Yet everyone perspires. Pores give off a quart of odour-causing waste even on cool days. To play safe—to be sure of not offending—adopt this simple precaution. Wash and bathe with Lifebuoy.

This delightful toilet soap is a joy to use. Millions of enthusiastic Lifebuoy fans will tell you so. Its bland, abundant, gently antiseptic lather cleanses, refreshes, purifies pores so deeply that not even a trace of "B.O." remains.

A new complexion secret

Want a fresh, clear, radiant complexion? Use Lifebuoy. Work its pure, creamy, deep-cleansing lather well into the skin, every night. It frees clogged pores of stifling impurities — promotes healthy, glowing beauty. Its pleasant extra-clean scent — that vanishes as you rinse —tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

Men! Try LIFEBUOY SHAVING CREAM
Its rich, creamy, double-form lather lubricates the skin. No tenderface after shaving with this soothing lather. Sample free.

MRS. PARK'S PUPILS WIN AT TORONTO

Soprano Classes Judged at C. N. E. Competition.

Once again two brilliant young singers from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park have won laurels at the singing competitions held in connection with the C.N.E. this week.

Dorothy Sager will be remembered as the student who was awarded the Toronto Conservatory of Music medal last June for obtaining the highest marks in Canada for the junior singing examinations. This was obtained from hundreds of candidates. This clever seventeen-year-old girl has added to her honors by winning the silver medal in the dramatic soprano class at the C.N.E. against keen competition.

Grete Schoni pursues her studies with Mrs. Park in Toronto, and sang at a recent recital here, gaining much attention by her brilliant technique and charming personality. Her feat in winning the silver medal in the coloratura soprano class at the C.N.E. is all the more remarkable when it is realized that she has spoken English for only one year, and that this class was one of the finest ever heard in connection with these competitions.

New Woollens Showing For Fall

Horsehair is the material used to fashion the smart turban at the left above. It is trimmed with a satin bow. The autumn brings to us glorious days that are neither cold nor warm, crisp days that forbid summer silks yet demand a top-coat. For these in-between days there are interesting new woollens, jerseys disguised by lacy knit, by ribbed effects, and by pin dots and checks all over their soft surfaces; wool voiles, wool crepes and reps, as well as new chiffon worsted and serges. The wool crepe at the left in the illustration at the right has a jacket with rounded edges and no collar, while there is a round yoke that closes with two scallops. The costume is in crow blue, which is navy blue that is almost black. At the right is a coat of dark green rep with collar of galyak, double breasted and with narrow buckled belt.—Sketch is by Vogue.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Gas—Indigestion.

Strict diets are often unnecessary in stomach trouble. While some foods do produce excessive acidity and many stomachs do generate "too much acid" causing gas, sourness, bloating and after-eating pains, the trouble may be safely and quickly corrected by the use of a good alkaline. Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets—is ideal for this purpose. Just a little after meals neutralizes all the excess acid, prevents souring, breaks up gas and ends indigestion. favorite foods no longer upset stomach and digestion is easy and painless. It will do all this for you or money back. Reliable druggists everywhere sell Bisurated Magnesia with this guarantee.

That Body of Yours

By James W Barton, M.D.

YOUR ADVERSE LEGIONS.

"The experience we call disease is just like a quarrel; a conflict between a particular set of qualities of a human being, and an equally particular set of adverse forces in his surroundings or environment.

These forces may come from the four corners of the universe in the form of physical violence, violence from organisms, chemical violence, and violence due to misguided or misdirected thinking."

In the above vivid words, Dr. Geo. Draper, gives a simple, but striking picture of disease.

Now the word disease is unpleasant to the ear, but it means simply that one is not at ease. And you and I despite the above "adverse forces" of health were meant to be at ease, and to be free from disease or illness.

Now all we can do in regard to physical violence is to look before we cross a street, in fact "watch our step" at all times.

Similarly with chemical violence whether that comes externally from burns or internally from wrong eating habits.

In regard to organisms; they are in the air in immediate neighborhoods of those afflicted with various illnesses, and it is up to us to keep beyond range of these organisms. Or organisms may be in the food we eat.

And wrong and unhealthy thinking can so affect the whole body that it cannot be in a normal condition.

However, despite these legions of adversity, and despite their tremendous activity and power, you were given forces with which to fight them, and so be free from disease, and enjoy life.

It of course, is wonderful to be wel born, to have had parents who werel strong physically, mentally and morally This gives you a fighting front to the legions of adversity, that "fends" them off to a great extent.

However, this very heritage of good health may be the means of having you take chances—eat anything, anywhere, anytime; go on working or playing without proper sleep; or because you were born strong, take little or no exercise.

For this very reason the individual who always has had to watch his health, because he wasn't strong, often outlives and outworks the one born strong. He recognizes his "adverse legions" and prepares to defend himself.

The thought then is that as your most precious possession is your health, if you are going to retain it, to enjoy life to the full, you should not only recognize these adverse legions about you, but remember gratefully that you were given the forces with which to combat them—the will to watch food, sleep and exercise.

These are your only weapons, but they are really all you need.

Westwood Cheery Chums Put On Corn Roast

WESTWOOD, Sept. 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—The corn roast, held on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the "Cheery Chums" Sunday School class of the United Church was largely attended by the young people.

By the light of the bon-fire, which did double duty while cooking the huge kettle of corn, and by several car lights, the time quickly passed in playing out-door games. When the corn was pronounced ready for eating there was a lull in the sports, while many hands dived hastily into the steaming cobs. Apples and candy were also plentiful and thoroughly enjoyable.

The evening closed with hearty community singing around the dying embers of the fire.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

NIGHT AT SEA

If you would sense eternity,
Sail through the night upon the sea,
Beyond the bar, beyond the bay,
Until the land falls far away.
With only day's remembered light
Sail on through starless, moonless night,
So deep, so dark the ocean's gloom
It seems no dawn can ever bloom.

There as the unquiet waters flow
With some vast throbbing heart below,
That tireless pulse becomes the force
Which beats from being's secret source
And moves in harmony, throughout all time.
No light, no chart, no boundary;
Drift through the night upon the sea,
If you would sense eternity.

Ideas for Serving Unexpected Guests

BY EDWINA NOLAN

Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

ALL housewives at some time or other have experienced that sinking feeling when unexpected guests arrived at the dinner hour, on a day when nothing special was planned for the table. If the guests stayed to dinner, it was a case of their "taking pot luck" or of having someone dash quickly to the corner grocery or delicatessen.

But, thanks to new ideas, new recipes and modern facilities for food preservation, a simple family meal may be transformed into a gala affair in short order. Here are some of the ways of doing it:

Start the meal "with a bang." That is, have an appetizer of some hors d'oeuvres or a canape or a tomato juice cocktail, served icy cold. Any of these will add a touch of festivity and the supplies for them may be kept easily on hand in the refrigerator.

Garnish the soup you were planning with some whipped cream and finely minced paraley or chopped pimento, which it is possible to keep for two weeks without molding in a covered jar in a modern refrigerator.

Pinch off some of those "refrigerator rolls," let them rise and bake them at the last minute.

Dress up your salad course as follows: While the rolls are baking, roll out some pastry, sprinkle with salt or grated cheese, cut into sticks or "straws," bake in the same oven. Make cream or grated American cheese into balls and roll in chopped olives, minced parsley or nuts.

Then make one of the quickly prepared frozen desserts.

These preparations can be made in very little time; and, as a matter of fact, while the hostess is chatting with her guests. And they add so much to the success of the meal.

Trenton Eliminates Sugar Bowl in O.S.B.A. Playoffs

BOWLRITES DROP THE THIRD GAME BY 9 TO 6 COUNT

Locals Pound Out Five Run Rally in 8th But Are Unable to Overcome Lead.

FORSYTHE HIT HARD.

Three Errors on Part of the Losers Contribute to Their Defeat.

The Sugar Bowl nine passed out of the Ontario Softball arena last evening in Port Hope, losing the third and deciding game to Trenton 9 to 6.

The Dormer-led clan went down to defeat manning their guns to the last. With the score 8 to 1 against them, they entered the eighth frame and pounded out six hits to score five runs. They couldn't push across enough, however to overcome that lead piled up by the train herders in the early stages.

Trenton literally hammered their way to victory. They went to work early on Len Forsythe's offerings and during the whole melee totalled up 15 safeties, one being for the circuit, and another going for three bases. Against the winner's array the Sugar Bowl amassed 13 hits, but they failed to pack them together, except in the eighth.

The field was greasy from the recent thunder shower and the Bowlrites kicked in with three errors, which were contributory to their defeat.

Jim (Shires) Gillespie turned in far-and-away the fielding feature of the game. Gillespie, roamed centre field, and gathered in a total of five flies, but he handed in his best effort on a screamer by Filion in the fifth. The drive was breaking speed records as it sifted between right and centre, but Gillespie raced over and picked off the slippery horsehide in one hand.

Score in First

The Bowl broke into the score column first, getting one in the first scored on Forsythe's two-base hit into right field.

It was in the third that Trenton chased across three runs. With one out, Bowler singled and was followed by another safety by Cook. A wild pitch sent both runners along, and then Filion singled to score Bowler. Cook walked in on a wild pitch. Long was out on strikes. Scarlet was safe and Filion scored when Maudsley let Bradshaw's throw get away from him. It ended when Towle raised a fly to Gillespie.

In the fifth Trenton enjoyed their greatest success, obtaining four runs. It opened with a single by Cook. Then Gillespie did his star act on Filion's hit. Long scored Cook with a triple into deep centre. Scarlet raised a sacrifice fly to score Long. Towle doubled and was followed by Kennedy's single. Kennedy drew a bad throw by Connors in stealing second and Towle scored. A single by Steenburg countered Kennedy. Larry was tossed out by Bradshaw.

A homer by Towle in the seventh accounted for another Trenton run.

Rally in Eighth

In the eighth the Bowlrites opened up. Westbrooke singled and so did H. Dormer. Gillespie's double chased both runners across. Forsythe struck out, and G. Dormer rolled to second. Weese singled to score Gillespie. Bradshaw singled. Then Connors poled out a long hit into left to score both runners, but he was thrown out at the plate.

Trenton secured their other run in their half of the eighth. Larry singled but Bowler flied to H. Dormer. Cook singled for his fourth hit and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Filion walked. Long hit to first and Larry scored on the play. Scarlet went out to left field.

The Bowl bunched two hits in the last after two were out, but failed to counter.

TWO SOCCER GAMES ON SATURDAY

Semi-final Games of G. N. Gordon Cup on King Edward Park at 1.30 and 3.30.

Last night's meeting of the P. and D. F. A., was of short duration. Arrangements were made so that the semi-finals of the G. N Gordon Cup will be played on Saturday afternoon on King Edward Park.

No More Evening Games.

The Board decided that there would be no more evening games owing to the reverting back to the Standard time which robbed them of an extra hour's daylight.

On Saturday afternoon, the first game scheduled is Caledonians versus Canadian Packing, with the kick off taking place at 1.30. Referee Jack Hodson; Linesmen, T. Stewart and W. Harrington.

Brinton vs. the Canadian General in the semi-final of the G. N. Gordon Cup. Referee, James Hawthorne. Kickoff at three-thirty prompt. Linesmen, T. Stewart and Vincent Stewart.

Charity Money Divided.

A handsome sum was divided between the St. Vincent Orphanage and the Children's Aid from the proceeds of the Father Phelan Charity trophy. The secretary was instructed to send the cheques to the respective organizations.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Bill Tilden and his old rival from France, Jean Borotra, were seeded first on the United States and foreign lists respectively when the draw was made yesterday for the national tennis championship, starting Saturday at Forest Hills. Borotra's entry was received at the last minute after he had indicated business duties might keep him from competing.

Brampton Confident Of Winning To-day

BRAMPTON, Sept. 3.—Stunned by the wonderful comeback of the New Westminster Salmonbellies, the Western hopes for the Canadian amateur lacrosse championship and the Mann Cup in their Labor Day engagement with Excelsiors, local fans are making a slow recovery to their normal poise. Their enthusiasm suffered for a time and the dyed-in-the-wool quota took it out on the Excelsiors, blaming over-confidence for the startling reversal within 48 hours. Others, and they are many, "hot" over the work of the Western official, whom they allege has shown a marked partiality in both games to the Western visitors, and, while it went down on Saturday, was far from pleasant to digest in the holiday game.

KEYS HINDER BIRDS' FIGHT FOR TOP PLACE

Orioles Break Even With Reading, Baltimore Winning 14-8 Decision.

BLOOMER HOLDS ROYALS.

Buffalo Wins Third of Series at Montreal Tuesday By 6-3 Count.

TORONTO, September 3 (C.P.)—Once more the Baltimore Orioles have found the Reading Keys a serious obstacle in the path of their drive toward the top of the International League standing, where the Rochester Redwings have been perched for some time.

On Labor Day the Orioles picked up one game on the Redwings, but could have gained two had they been able to do better than split two games with the Keys. Yesterday rain halted Rochester's game with Toronto, and the Orioles aagin muffed a chance to pick up some valuable ground, as Reading took the second game of a double-header, 14-8, after losing the opener 5-3. The net result was to leave Rochester's margin of four and one-half games intact.

A third contender, Montreal, also suffered a setback, losing to Buffalo 6-3 to drop to point one full game back of the second place Orioles.

Faulty support and his own wildness led to the undoing of Johnny Welch in the first Baltimore-Reading game. Welch held the Orioles to seven hits while his mates were getting nine off Stewart Bolen and Harry Smythe, but two walks and a fielding error gave Baltimore three runs in the second inning, and the Keys never were able to catch up. The second game was a slugging affair, with Reading pounding four Baltimore pitchers for 16 hits. Pete Scott, who had collected a homer in the opening game, drove in seven runs in the nightcap with two more homers and three singles. Davis also hit for the circuit for Reading, while Stroner kicked in with two drives over the fence for Baltimore and Joe Hauser with one, his 59th of the season.

Joe Bloomer held Montreal to six hits as Buffalo won in easy fashion. The Bisons nicked Classet and Griffin for nine hits, of which Miller and Moore got three apiece, and had the benefit of ten bases on balls, Classet giving no fewer than seven.

Split Twin Bill.

Jersey City and Newark split a double bill, both games being decided by 5-4 counts. The Skeeters won the opener in 11 innings after a great battle. Myles Thomas started for Newark and allowed only six hits in eight innings, but four errors behind him enabled the Skeeters to keep in the fight and send the game into extra innings. They won out in the 11th on Scheffiott's single a passed ball, sacrifice and Pittenger's single. Speece was the losing pitcher. The night game was another hard fought duel with Harvin outlasting Walsh and Miner. The Skeeters scored one run in the first but Newark tied it up in the third. Then in the seventh, the Skeeters broke loose for three runs only to have Newark come back with four, enough to win. The Bears got only five hits, but made full use of them.

SCOTS LEADING BY ONE GOAL; GAME STOPPED

Teams Played For Forty Minutes—No More Soccer Games in Evenings.

CURTAIN GOT GOAL.

Old Players Turn Out Again After Absence of Years—Very Late Start.

Standard time played havoc on the soccer teams, last evening, when the Caledonians and the Packers tried to stage a game in the semi-final of the G. N. Gordon cup on King Edward Park, before a large attendance of spectators. The Scots were leading by one goal to nothing when the official referee stopped the tussle through darkness. Both teams agreed to play thirty five minutes but they only got into the second period by five minutes.

Harry Mann, for many years a playing member of the C.G.E. trotted out in the Packers' colours. Another enthusiastic player donning the colours of the C.P.C. in Art Read of the Canadian Woollen fame.

The valuable services of James Buchan, the popular centre half of the Canadian Packing is confined to the hospital with fluid in his knee and will be out of the game for this season.

The Game

Both teams were minus players and started half an hour late. Captain Dan Curtain broke through twice in succession to be held in check the first time. He returned again to do the same thing and the fans looked for a counter but they were disappointed as he rapped the shot over the bar from close range. Preston tackled in mid-field and carried the attack to the Scots' goal to miss by inches. Exchanges continued for a while in the Packers' favour with Newt Downer harassing the defense at close quarters, Preston trying hard to pick up one of the centres as the opposing full backs closed on him to prevent a shot at goal. A flag kick placed by the Packers outside right looked promising as it landed in front of the Scots' citadel. Fowler ran out of goal and punched the ball off the opposing players' heads. Gore transferred the play to Packers' goal, he slipped a nice cross to Cook who sent in a rising drive that Griffin handled with ease. The Scots added pressure at this point to find a stubborn defense. On a raid the Scots succeeded in notching a counter through Curtain who took advantage of the opposing full backs' error in clearing. He touched the ball to the side and slipped it into the net away from the reach of the custodian. The Packers took up the attack in real earnest to have the edge on the successful scorers, Preston endeavouring to get the equalizer which was followed by erratic shooting. Play was of a ding dong character thereafter, although desperate raids by the Packers confined the Caleys to their own half of the field. Just before the interval, Fowler in goal for the Scots, had a busy session in stopping shots ranged from long distance. Caledonians 1, Packers 0.

Half Time

No sooner had they started the second half, the referee announced the game ended through darkness, with the Scots leading by the odd goal score, after ten minutes' play.

Caledonians—H. Fowler, goal; D. Houston and A. Bogie full backs; A. Graham, J. Ward and J. Emmery, halves; W. McCracken, W. Cook, D. Curtain, D. Best and J. Gore, forwards.

Canadian Packing—C. Griffine, goal; J. Cross and A. Downer, full backs; A. Reid, H. Mann and A. Bromley, halves; N. Downer, A. Beggs, R. Preston, T. Foster and J. Grant, forwards.

Referee—Alex. McKinley. Linesmen —T. Stewart and J. Hodson.

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—Heavy training for Montreal's Big Four football squad looms only a week away and last night the Wheelers, after a long holiday weekend, swung back into the last days of their conditioning workouts.

The list of players who were in action comprises Gordon Perry, "Huck" Welch, Johnny Bennett and Charlie Delahay, halfbacks; Ernie Hempey, George Pigeon, "Tiny" Guthrie, Smith and Higgins, linemen; Wally Shepard, "Buster" Fletcher and Bert Nichols, quarters; Stevie Stevenson and Masson, flying wings, and Kenny Grant, Eppie Epstein and Bill Opzoomer, outsides. Two of them were out for the first time this season. Bill Opzoomer was an outside wing with last year's team, but was prevented from participation in any of the games due to a painful finger injury.

TORONTO RETAINS ROBERTSON TROPHY

Queen City Cricket Team Beats Montreal West Indian Eleven.

TORONTO, Sept. .—Defeating West Indians of Montreal, by a margin of four wickets, Toronto Cricket Club team yesterday retained the John Ross Robertson Trophy. The Toronto score was 99 and 112 for six wickets as compared with West Indians' two-inning total of 210.

CHICAGO BREAKS CINCINNATI HOODOO BY TAKING 8-2 WIN ON THE HOME FIELD OF REDS

First Game Cubs Have Won at Redland Field Since April Last.

SHUTOUT FOR BRAVES.

Cleveland Takes Fourth Straight Victory Over St. Louis in American League.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (C.P.)—The month of September is appropriately called the "home stretch" of the baseball season. The teams of the two major leagues have, roughly speaking, one complete round of their circuits left on the schedule and that round probably will decide the two pennant races this season.

With the National league struggle in its present state, it appears that the decision will be reached during the final intersectional series which starts next week. The Chicago Cubs, who lead by the rather slim margin of four games, have won 42 of their 78 victoris so far at the expense of Brooklyn, Boston, and Philadelphia and the coming series brings them eleven more games against these "easy" victims.

If the Cincinnati-Chicago hoodoo continues to perform as it has all season, the Cubs should add enough victories there to make up for any ordinary deficiencies they have suffered in the east.

When they pulled out an 8 to 2 triumph at Redland field yesterday, the Cubs defeated the Reds in their home town for the first time since April 21 and for the third time this year. But to make up for this supremacy at home, the Reds took almost as bad a beating Chicago', losing five of seven games played there.

The New York Giants didn't even have a jinx working against them at Philadelphia and they displayed the supremacy that has given them 14 victories over the Phillies in 20 games by slamming out a 18 to 5 victory. The Giants rang up 25 hits, including home runs by Hogan and Terry, a triple and six doubles. The Phils added seven more doubles, just half the number of hits they made off Fitzsimmons and the total of 13 fell one short of tying the National League record.

Shutout for Brandt

The Brooklyn Robins found enough bad luck in Ed Brandt, Boston southpaw. He shut them out completely, giving only four scattered singles, while the Braves made the most of six blows, five of them of the scratch variety, combined with a few Brooklyn lapses to win by a 6 to 0 count. The defeat cost them a half game in their relation to the third place St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle, and a full game where the victorious leaders were concerned.

Single In American

The one game on the American League schedule was of little importance except that it gave the Cleveland Indians their fourth straight victory over St. Louis, 4-3. Cleveland had to go eleven innings for this final triumph after gaining a tie in the eighth. Blue's home run and Johnny Hodapp's single which drove in Porter with the winning run were the high spots of the game.

BOWLERS PLAY ALL NIGHT IN COBOURG TOURNAMENT

COBOURG, Sept. 3. — Forty-eight rinks coming from Kingston to Toronto, and from almost every town in the district, took part in the Scotch doubles tournament at the Victoria Park bowling green, which opened on the morning of Labor Day and was not concluded until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, when some of the rinks tossed up for the finals. Treadgold of Kingston won first in the primary with Martin and Thompson of Cobourg second. Maynecrd of Peterborough was first in the Consolation and Captain McCullough and C. Scoops were second, a toss-up deciding the honors in this event. Another toss-up gave the first in the hard-luck competition to Colonel A. E. Hopper and George Mitchell, with a Peterborough rink, Bennett and Howden, second.

C.G.E. PLAYS POINT ANNE ON FRIDAY

Game Originally Slated to be Played at Belleville To-day is Postponed.

The C. G. E. will not play Point Anne to-day because the Belleville diamond selected for the final game, is not available. The Belleville Nationals are busily engaged on their home lot this afternoon in trying to take a win out of the Toronto Bell Telephone squad in the first round of the senior playdowns.

Friday afternoon Point Anne and the local Electrics will clash at Belleville.

Since the upset Saturday in which the Cement makers blanked the C.G. E. to 0 to tie up the round, Art Primeau has had his athletes out practising hard for the third contest. They should be in great form for the crucial fixture.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS REPORTED TO BOARD OF EDUCATION

Increase of 129 Over Last Year —All Departments Gain.

DENTAL DISCUSSION.

A record first-day attendance for the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School was hung up yesterday when 845 students entered the portals of that institution for the initial session of the new term. Not only is there an increase of 129 over last year's record, but a substantial gain is aparent in each of the three departments of the school, according to figures presented to the Board of Education last night by H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate.

With a gain of 64 students, the academic department heads the list with a first-day enrollment of 468. The Commercial Department gained 28 to bring its total to 243, while the Industrial Arts Department stepped up 34 to an attendance of 115.

According to Mr. Kenner's report, all teachers were present for the opening, except Miss M. Montgomery who is expected to be absent a day or two onaccount of illness. The new teachers were all on the job; including M. H. cole, B.A., new head of the Commercial Department; Miss Gladys M. Moore, B.A., an addition to the Academic Staff; Miss Amelia Thompson, B.A., who succeeds Miss Eakins; and I. W. Clubine, B.A., teacher of Industrial Mathematics and Science.

Last night's meeting of the Board of Education concerned itself principally with the consideration and acceptance of reports from the Property Committee and the Finance Committee.

Considerable discussion of the system of school dental inspection, free dental work, and tooth health education followed the announcement of Dr. J. C. Green that the work along this line was too onerous for any one man to handle under the present arrangement. Dr. Moir questioned the necessity or advisability of giving free dental work to children whose fathers have employment, while Mr. Mowat felt that the method of selecting deserving cases would be facilitated if the School Attendance Officer were consulted. The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Three Local Teams Still in Title Hunt

O.B.A.A. Lists Drawing to Conclusion As Youngsters Enter Finals.

Peterborough still has three teams in the running for the Ontario baseball championships, and it is likely that all three clubs will swing into action within a week.

Definite word has been received from O. B. A. A. headquarters that the East City Leafs, city bantam champs, will go to Toronto this Saturday to engage the Toronto champs at Stanley Park. This is in the final round and the return game will be staged here the following Saturday.

The situation is slightly more clouded as far as the juvenile playdowns are concerned. Hamilton and Toronto are still in their series, and the winner will earn the right to meet Peterborough. It is likely that a winner will be declared this Saturday and Peterborough will then go into action against them on September 13.

Friday afternoon in Belleville the C. G. E. play Point Anne for the right to continue in the hunt for the Intermediate Ontario title.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Oshawa Lose On Holiday

A splendid game of cricket was played on the Oval on Labor Day between Oshawa, St. George's C. C. and the local team.

Capt. F. Larmouth wnnng the toss, elected to bat; the opening pair was himself and J. Chappell, to the bowling of J. Wade and F. Dyer.Larmouth did not stay long, being bowled by F. Dyer, with a beauty in the second over taking the leg cricket.

G. Mann came out to take the place of A. Larmouth and drove Dyer to leg for a three and with the last bowl of the over driving him again for a four. Chappell appeared to be playing the bowling confidently when Mann was given out lbw to Dyer after scoring 7.

R. Drummond followed on scoring one run when he was neatly caught behind the wickets by Rhodes. T. Train came out with the intention of staying with Chappell, who is playing a steady game, only hitting the loose ones as they came along. F. Wade does not appear to find his length, and Captain Dyer made a change by placing C. Elliott in his place with his slow deliveries. Train is playing cautiously being satisfied with 3 singles and then hits Dyer for a boundary and also does the same with Elliott's bowling, getting a 4 and a 2 and in playing forward to a slow one, misses, and was smartly stumped by Rhodes, after scoring a useful 13. Train and Chappell carried the score from 22 to 42 before being parted.

Star Injured.

H. Howarth was next man, Oshawa's star bowler, who not many weeks ago took seven wickets with seven consecutive balls, which is believed to be a record in Canada. He had not been at the wicket very long before a rising ball bowled by Dyer, hit him in the stomach, and he had to be taken off for a while. G. Dewberry came along to take Howarth's place; he hit one to square leg and called for a run; Chappell came a little way, then turned back and then ran again, a quick return by Coombes to Rhodes, the stumper, who flicked off the bails in smart fashion, caused Chappell to be run out.

F. Prosser joined Dewberry, who was playing lively cricket. Jefferson was put on to bowl in Dyer's place, and in the second over Prosser was caught out by Smith at point. At this stage of the game the players adjourned for lunch, which was partaken of at the Paragon.

Resuming the play at 2 p.m., W. Howarth came back to replace Prosser and his partner Dewberry. Each set about to master the bowling as they realized that Oshawa's total score was very low, six men out, and only 42 runs on the board. Howarth started into the bowling in great style. Peterborough changed bowlers, putting C. Thorpe and E. Stott. Dewberry played forward to one from Thorpe and lifted it up into the hands of Stuart, thus breaking up a partnership which had carried the score from 42 to 70. His contribution of 17 runs comprised 3 boundaries, 2 twos and a single.

Adds to Score.

B. Anthony was next. Howarth was out a little later to a fast one from Wade, taking his middle wicket; he had played a delightful innings for 26 runs. The last four batters did not add any more to the score, all being caught out by Rhodes, F. Smth and Dyer. Oshawa's innings closed at 85 runs. Rhoces is to be congratulated on his fine display behind the wicket, catching two and stumping one and only letting four pass him.

Peterborough opened their innings with F. Gore and R. N. Stewart to the bowling A. H. Howarth and G. Mawn. Stewart collected 2 singles off the first over, then 7 maiden overs was sent down before Gore scored a single. They had been at the wickets for thirty-five minutes when Gore was caught by Anthony. Jefferson followed and was out the second ball, l.b.w. J. Wade was next man and the spectators settled down to see some nice cricket, the last game he played in, his score was 63 not out. The third ball he played into the hands of Sergeant at point, a very bad stroke. It was looking bad for Peterborough, 3 men out and only 4 runs.

C. Thorpe joined Stewart and played steadily for a while when R. N. Stewart lifted one up from Mawn into the big hands of A. Dewberry. A. B. Rhodes went out to Thorpe and the first ball drove it for a 4. Thorpe was playing nicely, the first lose one he drove also for a 4, then Rhodes gathered a 2 and a single, each were playing with confidence, Larmonth seeing this made a change, putting on Pickup for Howarth. He delivered 3 maidens in succession and then Thorpe hit him out of the ground for a 4 and Rhodes collected a 2. The score was mounting up rapidly until Rhodes' mistimed one was caught out by Chappell for a well played 26, taking the score from 11 to 65. F. Dyer was clean bowled with the first ball.

F. Smith followed and dug himself in. Thorpe was playing brilliant cricket, wanting only two runs to register 50 and set about getting these in a masterly way, getting runs all around the filled. Smith was playing beautiful. Larmouth (Oshawa's captain) was trying all the bowlers he had but not one could find the way to Thorpe's wickets. The Oshawa boys were all on their toes, quick at fielding and returning the ball but it was of no avail, Thorpe was unbeatable and gave no chances. Larmouth had used nine different bowlers, the tenth was Chappell who sent a moderate paced ball. Thorpe opened his shoulders to leave it out of the ground, but it just crept under his bat and hit the wickets, thus ending a magnificent innings, totalling 64, comprising of 10 boundaries, 10 twos and the remainder in singles, a truly wonderful performance.

Binks played long enough to score 12. Smith was joined by Elliott, the former still playing with confidence until he was smartly caught by Pickup for a well played 32, getting the ball to the boundary twice, 5 twos and 14 singles. E. Scott notched 1; Elliott got 3, being bowled and caught by Chappell; W. Davies, not out, none.

JACK SHARKEY THROUGH AS GARDEN ATTRACTION

Campolo, Dempsey, Carnera R anked By New York Corporation as Schmeling's Leading Challengers —Stribling Discarded.

DEMPSEY MAY HAVE TO RETURN TO GLOVES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Let me take you for a turn back-stage in Heavyweight Productions, Inc. Momentuous events are impending. Big deals are in the making. A complete change of cast is being prepared for 1931.

Right now, as the result of hotel room developments of the past forty-eight hours, it can be safely asserted that Jack Sharkey, of Boston, who has been the leading man or his understudy in the past four years of the championsnip revue, is to be given his notice.

Sharkey has had his last billing in the top spot, no matter what the outcome of his approaching match with Victorio Campolo. The interests that govern the show are agreed that he has outlived his usefulness. They believe he has lost his box office appeal.

Young Stribling has been discarded for the same reason. It took him too long to reach his peak. The color cracked and faded under ten years of campaigning.

Reading from left to right, in the order of their importance, the three men who will fight it out for the right to meet Max Schmeling in 1931 are Primo Carnera, of Italy; Jack Dempsey of America and Victorio Campolo, of Argentina.

The Madison Square Garden corporation would rate them from right to left, with Campolo first, Dempsey second and Carnera third. The Madison Square Garden owns Campolo.

Runyon's Rating

Damon Runyon, who had more to do with putting Max Schmeling where he is than any one in the boxing game, would rate Campolo first, Campolo second and Campolo third. Runyon saw Campolo for the first time against Ricardo Bertazolla, and he has been under the care of Dr. Brennan ever since. His heart almost gave way.

Runyon and the late Tex Rickard were alike in their devotion to heavyweights. If they had their way, all males weighing less than 180 pounds would be suppressed at birth. To their way of thinking, no one should want to live unless he had a chance to be heavyweight champion. This twaddle about every American boy having equal opportunities to become President irritated them for years. They thought the Presidency should go with the championship, or else be abolished entirely.

Runyon has spent his life seeking the perfect heavyweight. He thinks he saw him when he saw Carnera. In his few coherent moments yesterday, he exclaimed over and over again:

"The best big guy that ever lived, I'm telling you. A flyweight, I'm telling you. A 275-pound flyweight. No wonder Sharkey wouldn't fight him!"

Finally, there is the rating of Joseph Jeremiah Jacobs, the manager of Schmeling. Jacobs rated them as we have above, Carnera, Dempsey and Campolo. The inclusion of Campolo is merely a friendly gesture for "Bill" Carey and Frank Bruen. Actually, Jacobs had only two opponents for Schmeling in mind, Carnera and Dempsey. What Jacobs thinks is important, because Jacobs has the champion, and history tells us that the champion has more than a little to say about the challenger. Dempsey picked Carpentier, Firpo and Tunney, although Jack probably would not brag about the last one. Tunney most certainly picked Heeney.

No Sharkey

Nowhere in any of these lists will you find any mention of Jack Sharkey. The Garden does not want him because he stuck them up for $1,000, and because they own Campolo. Jacobs and Schmeling, too, are bitter at Sharkey and would like nothing better than to see him ignored. Runyon, looking forward to another Milk Fund show, thinks Carnera will eliminate everyone with his fists.

You may be surprised to hear Dempsey mentioned with any seriousness, but Dempsey may have to fight. He invested $600,000 in Ensenada, a Mexican resort. Unless business picks up, it's either boxing gloves or a pick and shovel for Jack.

Campolo may make Sharkey's championship demise complete by smacking him into oblivion on September 25. The tall South American certainly must think he will, anyway. He is fighting for the smallest fee ever paid a heavyweight in an important match. He offered to fight for $5,000, and he would have taken $3,000. He is getting $7,500. You have to respect a fighter who is sure of himself, and you have never seen one so certain as Campolo. He will tell anyone that he will knock out Sharkey.

But if he shouldn't, and if Sharkey should be matched with Young Stribling at Miami, the situation is unchanged. Sharkey and Stribling will be going through the motions. Schmeling will not meet the winner.

Sharkey must have been peeping into the future when he said a week after his bout with Schmeling:

"I'll never get that title now. It wasn't meant to be."

SPORTS EVENTS CHILDREN'S DAY

Reduced Admission Price For Peterborough Exhibition Pleases Public.

OPENS TUESDAY NOON.

Changes made by the directors of the Exhibition Board this year have been greatly appreciated by the public and the outlook for a record attendance is better than for any previous fair. The change in price of admission from 35c to 25c has been well received and will be an ducement to hundreds to repeat their visits to the Fair.

Changing Children's Day from Tuesday to Wednesday,when the Fair has been under way for a day, is another change made at the suggestion of the School Boards of the city and district.

The admission charge to children on Children's Day is only 5c and for the grand stand only 5c. A record crowd is expected on this day.

The show will not open to the public until Tuesday noon, although on Monday night the Midway will operate with a band in attendance, bu no charge will be made to enter the grounds. The buildings will not be open until Tuesday noon, when everything will be in readiness.

Boys—

Boys, 8 and under 25 yards.
Boys, 9-10 years, 50 yards.
Boys, 11-12 years, 50 yards.

TORONTO VESSEL CRUISES TRENT

Howard McNamara Delighted With Scenery of Lake and River.

A 64 FOOT CRUISER.

Silverheels II., possibly one of the snappiest and best appointed cruisers to visit local waters this season, locked through here yesterday forenoon en route to Orillia.

Her owner, Howard McNamara, Toronto contractor, left his home port on Sunday morning, and is proceeding at a leisurely pace to his destination where he has some large paving contracts to fulfill.

Accompanying him on the cruise is his wife and Angus Carss of Orillia. All without exception expressed themselves as pleased with the charm and beauty of the Trent Waterway, which they are traversing for the first time.

The craft, which is 64 feet in length, has a draught of 4½ feet and a speed of 14 miles per hour. She carries a crew of three, who are berthed "for'ard," while three palatial staterooms astern provide ample accommodation for her master, his wife and guest. Powerful gasoline engines situated amidships separate the sleeping quarters from the dining-room and galley. The boat is equipped throughout with electric light, running water, including shower baths, wash bowls, etc. A powerful radio ensures the reception of broadcasts from all principal stations.

It is interesting to note that Silverheels completed the voyage from the Bahamas this spring, calling at Miami, Florida, Albany, N.Y., and New York City, then proceeding to Oswego to Cobourg and across Lake Ontario to Toronto.

Mr. McNamara paid an extended business visit to the Bahamas, where he supervised the carrying out of some large construction contracts he had secured there.

It will be recalled by hockey fans that Mr. McNamara and his brother George were at one time prominent in pro. hockey circles, having played some years ago for Sault Ste. Marie, and earning the flattering title the "dynamite twins."

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

Rain checks were the order last night and the only activity around the Club was a bridge game in which the "profeasor" received a good trimming at the hands of Herb Martin and Eb. Taylor. All Doc. Long could do was sit and hold the cards.

Congratulations to Jack Maynecrd and Jack Fitzpatrick on winning the consolation event at Cobourg and to Joe Bennett and Johnny Howden in catching the hard luck.

Percy Williams is not a member of our Club, but the way Everett Sackville raced to the telephone the other day makes us think we have a coming sprinter among us. It must have been his wife calling.

Doubles are on the program tonight.

GOLF NOTES.

BEAVER MEADOW GOLF CLUB.

Following is the first round draw for the Bowness trophy. This round is 18 holes match play, and must be played on or before Monday, September 8th. Stymies must be played. Players take two-thirds of their handicap:

F. Bowness vs. W. Prest.
A. F. Inch vs. J. C. Donnelly.
E. J. Ruiter vs. A. E. Weir.
M. G. Hardill vs. P. B. Munroe.
F. G. A. Tarr vs. J. E. Girvin.
P. A. Johnson vs. S. O. Shields.
T. Pitchford vs. W. Jones.
D. McIntyre vs. P. W. Johnson.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

LACROSSE FINALISTS WILL FIGHT IT OUT

With a desperation born of impending defeat, New Westminster Salmon Bellies battled Brampton to the last at Toronto to win by a 5 to 4 score and tie the three-game series for the Canadian lacrosse championship and Mann Cup. The third and deciding test will be fought out to-day, and from past performances the ultimate result is a toss up. Photographs above show (1) George Sproule, captain of Brampton team. (2) One of the fair New Westminster supporters. (3) All set to drop the sphere at the face-off. (4) Capt. Harry Stoddart of New Westminster team, and (5) Another gay New Westminster fan.

FARMER DROWNS FISHING

ST .CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 3—(C.P.) — Nicholas Sar, who operates a small farm in Louth township, was drowned in Fifteen Mile Creek, three miles west of Port Dalhousie, late yesterday afternoon. Tired of fishing with rod and line Sar waded into the creek to catch fish with his hands. He accidentally stepped into a deep hole, and being unable to swim, sank.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHIPWRECK

"Will anything happen?" asked Baby Bunty, as she held fast to the coattails of Uncle Wiggily.

"What do you mean—anything happen?" spoke the bunny gentleman, looking down at the little orphan rabbit.

"I mean will we sink or be drowned or have a shipwreck or anything like that?" went on Bunty, taking a firmer hold of Uncle Wiggily, for they were pitching and tossing in the ocean waves

"'Ipweck! 'Ipweck! I 'ants a 'ipweck!" sang Tootsie, one of the newest little baby rabbits who had come to Uncle Wiggily and his wife in the summer seaweed bungalow cottage at the shore. "Daddicums, make 'ice 'ipweck!" begged Tootsie.

The raft pitched up and down.

"Pooh! She dosen't know what it means!" cried Buster. "None of you girls know what a shipwreck is!" he went on, looking at Baby Bunty and his older sisters.

"I know what a shipwreck is!" cried Jingle.

"So do I!" said Jangle. "It's when your boat falls down an' goes boom on a rock, or something in the ocean, and it gets all busted an' you go and live on an island and eat coconuts an' oranges an' play with monkeys; isn't it, Daddicums?"

"Well, some shipwrecks are like that," Mr. Longears answered, looking down the side of his pink, twinkling nose at the pitching, tossing raft on which he and many of his children were riding the salty waves of the ocean. "And, to answer Baby Bunty's question, I think something is going to happen, and it may be a shipwreck."

"Oh, goodie!" cried Bunty. "Then I want a coconut!"

"I want an orange! I want an orange" sang Jingle.

"Pooh! I'd rather have a monkey. Then I'll get a hand organ," said Buster, "and we'll go around and I'll play music and my monkey will take the pennies and we'll get rich."

"Maybe there won't be anybody on the desert island where we're going to be shipwrecked to give you pennies," said Bunty. "It's best to take oranges or cocconuts."

"All right! Then I'll take a coconut!" cried Buster.

"No, you can't. I choose a coconut first!" cried Bunty.

'Oh, Daddicums! Is Bunty going to have all the coconuts?" shouted Jangle. "Oh, I think that's mean!"

"Now, hush, please! All of you!" begged Uncle Wiggily, reaching out and catching hold of Tootsie just in time to stop her from rolling off the raft into the water "I don't think what is best to do. I didn't expect our raft would take us on a sea trip. But, since it has, we must make the best of it."

"And get shipwrecked on a desert island!" said Buster.

"I hope we do see a lot of monkeys!" murmured his brother Custer.

"Dear! Dear!" sighed poor Uncle Wiggily, who was all upset with the raft having gone adrift from its anchor. What with that and seeing that Tootsie, Wootie and the other little rabbits didn't fall off, and with trying to keep peace among the older children who wanted coconuts and oranges, Mr. Longears had his paws full I can tell you!

Soon after coming to live at the shore in the seaweed cottage, Uncle Wiggily had made a raft of driftwood so the little rabbits could have some safe place to play without being knocked down by the big waves. The raft was anchored off shore by a rope of twisted seaweed fastened to a big stone. But Buster had lossened the anchor rope when he and his father and a lot of the bunnies were playing on the raft, and away they sailed on a sea trip, all unexpected.

Yes, they sailed, for Uncle Wiggily, who had been resting on the raft, had a big sun umbrella and this catching the wind, was like a sail. The rabbit gentleman now held fast to this open umbrella and away floated the raft boat. And Uncle Wiggily awaited anxiously for what was to happen next, at the same time watching to see that none of his little bunnies fell overboard.

"Hurray! This is lots of fun!" cried Buster as the raft rolled and pitched up and down on the waves!

"Lots of fun!" shouted Jingle. "I hope we get shipwrecked soon so I can have an orange to eat or maybe a banana. Do bananas grow on islands where you get shipwrecked, Daddicums?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, I guess so," answered Mr. Longears. "Look out, Wopsie!" he suddenly called to a little baby bunny. And then, all of a sudden, there was a bump and a thump and Bunty cried:

"Oh, what has happened? What? What? What?"

"I guess we're shipwrecked," said Buster, "for we have bumped into an island." And, surely enough they were. The raft had gone aground on an island or little blob of land in the ocean.

And what happened after that you shall hear in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's island. But will you please stop the rain from dropping in the eye of the needle when it is sitting on the head of the pin.

Lakefield

"Reyden Manor" continues to be the mecca for Peterborough's smart set and tea under the trees is becoming more and more popular, especially as the trees are beautiful and the weather man has been especially beneficent this summer to the lovers of the outdoors. The manor is equipped with everything for indoor parties but who wants to be indoors when we can entertain outside on one of tefraces which are still beautifully green..

On Thursday Mrs. Harold A. Morrow of Peterborough, entertained Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Suckling, Miss M. Archer and Miss H. Hugel at a bridge luncheon.

Mrs. F. L. Robison of Peterborough, entertaned Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jackson and Misses Charlotte Crossley and Mary Wilgar of Cleveland, on Thursday.

Mrs. J. A. McNab, of Peterborough, entertained Mrs. N. C. Staples and Miss Mayme Montgomery of Peterborough, Miss Dorothy Hill of Orillia and Miss Lila McPhee of Barrie at afternoon tea under the trees at "Reyden Manor" on Thursday.

Mrs. W. H. Pretty entertained a party of three, Mrs. W. Blackwell, Mrs. N. D. Seaton and Miss Linden Hall, all of Peterborough, on Thursday.

"Pal o' Mine," a picturesque and popular cottage on Strickland's Point at the place where the Otonabee emerges from Lake Katchewanooka, was en fete on Thursday last, as the Bank of Commerce staff were hosts at a jolly corn roast. Their friends all had a delightful time and hope for a repetition of the party.

Deaf Hear Again Through New Aid

Earpiece No Bigger Than Dime Wins Enthusiastic Following; Ten-Day Free Trial Offer

After twenty-five years devoted exclusively to the manufacture of scientific hearing-aids the Canadian Acousticon Ltd., Dept. 4360, 45 Richmond St. West, Toronto, Ont., has just perfected a new model Acousticon that represents the greatest advance yet made in the re-creation of hearing for the deaf. This latest Acousticon is featured by a tiny earpiece no bigger than a dime. Through this device, sounds are clearly and distinctly transmitted to subnormal ears with wonderful benefit to hearing and health alike. The makers offer an absolutely free trial for 10 days to any one person who may be interested, and a letter will bring one of these remarkable aids to your home for a thorough and convincing test. Send them your name and address today!

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 52 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

With the gun's report, d'Arnot saw a man pitch headlong into the cabin. In an instant he realized he had shot his friend and protector, Tarzan of the Apes. With a cry of anguish, d'Arnot sprang to the ape-man's side, lifted his head, calling Tarzan's name aloud. There was no response.

Placing his ear above the man's heart, he heard to his joy its steady beating. D'Arnot, relieved, set about bathing Tarzan's face. He saw there was an ugly flesh wound. Soon the cool water revived him, and d'Arnot explained the terrible mistake. Laughing, Tarzan said: "It is nothing. Forget it."

For a week they did little but rest. Now they could converse quite easily in French. Tarzan, heart-broken, read Jane's farewell letter. Where was this America to which she had sailed? It took a long time for him to understand, even imperfectly, d'Arnot's explanations. He resolved to follow and find her.

So on the following morning they started north along the shore, carrying rifles, ammunition and food. For a month they traveled, with no signs of natives, nor were they molested by wild beasts. One morning they came to a clearing. In the distance were several buildings surrounded by a strong stockade.

Tarzan, followed by d'Arnot, struck across the field, his head held high, the tropical sun beating on his smooth brown skin. It proved to be a French mission. They were welcomed, remaining until black women made them clothes to continue their journey. Thus came Tarzan of the Apes to the first outpost of civilization.

OBITUARY

ROBERT MORRISON.

The death occurred at Ribstone, Alberta on Monday evening, Aug. 26 of Robt. Morrison.

Mr. Morrison was a former resident of Cavan township and was in his 63rd year. He went to Alberta with his wife and family 22 years ago. The deceased had been in poor health for the last three years, but his death will be a great shock to his many friends. He is survived by his sorrowing wife, three daughters and five sons, all in the west, namely: Mrs. Roland Clifford, Ethel and Lillian, Harry, Clarence, Jack, Allan and Wilbur, also three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Robert Clifford of British Columbia, Mrs. John Heasman of Springville, Mrs. Wm. Preston of Lakefield and John Morrison of Cavan.

ROBERT CAREY.

Robert Carey, a native of Otonabee Township, and former resident of this district, who passed away in Detroit, was buried this morning at St. Peter's Cemetery, following requiem mass at St. Peter's Cathedral.

He leaves three brothers: John and Redmond of Otonabee and Joseph of Detroit, also five sisters: Mrs. Thos. Henry and Mrs. David Moher of Toronto, Mrs. Cleary of Calgary, Mrs. Torpey of this city, and Mrs. Wm. Bowman of Detroit.

HERBERT ALLEN HARRON.

The death occurred on Tuesday night of Herbert Allen, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harron of 305 McDonnel Street, City, who was taken ill suddenly on Sunday last.

The child is survived by his parents and two sisters: Helen Ruby May, aged four years, who is at present critically ill, and Mildred Madeline.

Funeral services will be conducted on Thursday at 2 p.m. from D. Belleghem and Sons' Funeral Home. Rev. David Wren of Trinity United Church will officate. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

APSLEY

Mr. Forte, the student in charge of Stoney Lake Mission conducted services on Sunday in the Apsley Mission and Rev. C. A. G. Spence took charge of the services at Young's Point, Buckhorn and Haultain.

The scholars of St. George's S.S. had their annual picnic at Loon Lake on Thursday afternoon, spending a pleasant time in sports, swimming and boating afterwards having their tea at Fairy Glen Falls.

Ilford, England, has prohibited the carrying of radio accumulators and batteries in the new municipal street cars.

WEDDING BELLS

PEARL—QUINLAN

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock on Saturday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral by the Rev. P. Costello, when Myrtle Lily May Quinlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Quinlan, became the bride of William Arthur Pearl of Rochester, N. Y.

The bride wore a very pretty gown of blue crepe romain with matching hat, black pumps and white hose and bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served to thirty guests, at the home of the bride's parents. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl left for a trip to Rochester. They will reside here on their return.

The young people received many handsome gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a string of pearls, to the bridesmaid a white gold compact and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

GRAHAM—BULMER

The marriage took place quietly at twelve o'clock noon, on Tuesday, at St. John's Church, of Mary Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mrs. Lillian Bulmer of Buffalo, and George Kennedy Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris G. Graham. The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave performed the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Graham left by motor for a trip through New York State. On their return, they will reside at 370 Monaghan Road.

CHARRON—GUERIN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock on August 14th at the Church of the Sacred Heart, by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, when Eva, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Guerin of 82 Gladstone avenue, became the bride of Claudomir Charron, youngest son of Mr. Francis Charron of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white satin with matching shoes and hose and bouquet of Butterfly roses and maidenhair fern.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Charron and his bride left later for a trip to Montreal and St. Hyacinthe. They will reside at 82 Gladstone avenue.

BODIES RECOVERED FROM ARCTIC IDENTIFIED AT NORWEGIAN PORT AS ANDREE AND HIS COMPANION

Swedish Professors, Representing Government, Examined Bodies From Ice Grave.

NEW DIARY FOUND.

Third Group of Bones Brought Back Were of Polar Bear.

(All Rights Reserved in North and South American and in Japan by The Associated Press)

TROMOSE, Norway, Sept. 3.—The two bodies found by Dr. Gunnar Horn on desolate Hvitvoen (White Island) last month were definitely identified to-day as those of Salomon August Andree, Swedish balloon explorer and Nils Strindberg, handsome youthful companion who followed into the Arctic and preceded him in death.

A group of bones, which it was thought were those of the third man in the Andree expedition of 1897, Kunt Frankel, were found not to be those of a man at all, but of a Polar bear, possibly one which Andree and Strindberg killed for food in the days preceding their demise on Hvitvoen.

Speculation as to what happened to Frankel developed several possible solutions. He may have died in the descent of the balloon at latitude 83 north, about 180 miles north of White Island and about 470 miles from the North Pole. He may not have survived the long trek back across the ice from the place of descent to the island haven, either dying of exhaustion or falling into an ice crevice, or his body may still be on White Island, covered by the snow and ice which kept the bodies of Andree and Strindberg hidden 33 years.

Identified By Professors

Identification of the two bodies was made by the Swedish Professors, Hedren and Lithberg, experts sent here to examine the expedition's remains. One of the bodies, the better preserved and headless one, already was known to be that of Andee from a monogram on the Arctic suit clothing it, but the discoverers had been unable to identify the other, or tell whether the bones were those of a human being or not.

The two professors announced also that a new diary had been found in one of Andree's pockets. The document, they described as a sad record to that period of the expedition passing before he started writing the diary which was previously found. The new diary has not yet been examined carefully by the experts but it is believed that it, the previously discovered diary, and the expedition's log and observation book will tell a fairly complete story of the expedition's tribulations.

Return to Island Unlikely

There has been considerable discussion here of the value of another expedition to Hvitvoen to reclaim possible other relics of the expedition and to make a search for Frankel's remains.

It is felt generally that success of such an expedition would be problematical since some snow already has fallen, and even slightly adverse weather conditions make the island, which is east of Spitzbergen, unapproachable. It may be years before as favorable conditions as existed this year and led to the Horn discovery exist again.

Radio "Phantom" Device to End Broadcasting Distortion

A MYSTERIOUS new radio device, which it is hinted will wipe out tone distortion experienced in broadcasting large musical groups, has been perfected by Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Leopold Stokowski, noted conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, it was learned today. The new broadcasting equipment will be given its first trial during the radio concert of the orchestra to be broadcast under the auspices of Philco on Sunday, October 12.

Deep mystery surrounds the apparatus designed by the orchestra leader. He will allow no photographs to be taken of it, nor will he describe how it works. So jealously is he guarding the secret of its operation that he plans to bar both the press and the public from the four broadcasts of the orchestra sponsored by Philco this season during which it will be in use.

The new device was perfected after months of work on the part of Stokowski in cooperation with the National Broadcasting Company and Philco. The need for improvements in broadcasting methods was felt by Stokowski last year, when officials of Philco persuaded him to overcome his distrust of the radio and appear before the microphone in a series of three concerts. At the close of the last concert he announced publicly that he would seek to remedy technical deficiencies in studio broadcasting so as to give radio listeners the true, clear tone of his orchestra just as it sounded in the concert hall.

Although he refuses to divulge the functions of the device, sources close to Stokowski intimate that it places the orchestra conductor in the dual position of baton wielder and listener, and enables him to correct broadcast tonal deficiencies at their source, permitting as nearly perfect symphonic broadcasting as has ever been achieved.

Rev. William Allan At Bible Conference

Under the head, Faith is Stressed as Key to Success," the New York Times carries a despatch from Stony Brook, L. I., quoting at length from an address delivered at the 21st annual General Bible Conference there by the Rev. William Allan, Minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough. The Rev. J. Campbell Morgan, internationally renowned orator and teacher, is also among the speakers at Stony Brook.

"If the course of history shows anything, it shows that God is prepared for every emergency," The Times quotes the Rev. Mr. Allan as saying: "God has demonstrated this fact again and again," declared the speaker. 'He did it when he raised up Moses to be deliverer of His people; He did it at the time of the Reformation when he raised up Luther, Calvin and Knox; He did it in the nineteenth century, when the state of religion in this country was anything but satisfactory.

"If He had consulted men as to where he should look for His man, no doubt it would have been suggestsom othr grat univrsity. But H ed that He go to Harvard or Yale, or some other great university. But He went to a Boston shoe store and laid His hand upon an uncouth New England youth, called D. L. Moody, and made him the greatest evangelist of that century.

"The times are out of joint, but don't let us make a theme song our of it. We can't impfove matters by whining about them. Let our faith be in God. He has more at stake than we have. And He is prepared for every emergency."

The New York Times has quoted the Rev. Mr. Allan on several occasions this season; and in the Metropolitan area he is regarded as one of the outstanding speakers at the Stony Brook Conferences, which he has attended for many years

BIRTH.

MILLARD.—At Nicholls Hospital on Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1930, to Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Millard, 497 Murray Street, a daughter.

IN MEMORIAM.

McBRIDE.—In loving memory of our dear father, Mr. T. H. McBride, who died September 3, 1927.

"As we loved him, so we miss him,
In our memory he is dear;
Loved, remembered, thought of always
Bringing many a silent tear.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to no one;
The Heavenly gates were open wide
And a loving voice said, 'Come.'
We cannot tell who next may fall
Beneath His chastening rod,
One must be first, but let us all
Prepare to meet our God."

TEACHER OF SINGING

Edward Wodson, ("Yenmita") in Toronto Telegram, April 16th, 1930 "Dorothy Allan Park's singing was beautiful. Her voice is purest soprano, like Hempel's in its planetary steadiness, and like Curci's for its "edge" of pathos. And her song was never seeking to dramatize itself or to stress the obvious. Her "Come Unto Him" was clear and sweet as the notes of the lark on a dewy morning. Not a tone forced or dark-coloured, nor a phrase that was ever less rounded than perfection. And she sang "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth" just as you have heard the very greatest artists sing it—so calmly and dispassionately, and yet so sweetly and courageously that its lovely cadences seemed to enshrine the faith of all the martyrs and the strength of all the warrior saints that have ever been. And the best of her beautiful singing was its unaffected directness and simplicity."

LINDSAY WOMAN HIGHWAY VICTIM NEAR BROOKLIN

Mother of Dr. H. J. Gleeson Instantly Killed in Auto Crash.

AFTER MIDNIGHT.

Car Crashed Into Truck Standing on Roadside.

LINDSAY, Sept. 4 (Special to The Examiner).—A truck parked without lights, it is alleged, early this morning near Brooklin on the Lindsay-Whitby Highway caused a motor accident which resulted in the death of a woman and serious injuries to the truck driver.

Dr. H. J. Gleeson, of Lindsay, was returning from Toronto with his mother, of that city, and Miss M. Dean, of Newport, Ky., by car. Near Brooklin at 12.30 this morning the car crashed into a parked truck, and Mrs. Gleeson was almost instantly killed.

The truck driver, bending over his vehicle to repair some mechanical trouble, had both legs broken in the crash.

Early yesterday Dr. Gleeson had taken a patient, Miss Ruth Shannon, of Lindsay, niece of Fred Shannon, of Peterborough, by car to a Toronto hospital. Miss Dean accompanied. Returning last night, the doctor was bringing his mother home with him for a visit when the tragedy occurred.

Dr. Gleeson escaped with only minor injuries, as did also Miss Dean, but both are suffering from shock and prostration.

COMMUNIST PLOT IS FOUND IN TIME

Adelaide Fence Electrified to Kill Police in Case of Raid.

STRIKE ACTION TAKEN.

ADELAIDE, South Australia (C.P. Cable via Reuter's).—South Australia has been selected as the centre of a Communist plot owing to the exceptional financial difficulties of the State, declared the Hon. Lionel Hill, Premier, to-day. The Premier introduced a bill which would empower the Government to deal with the carters' and drivers' strike, which started in protest against the employment of volunteer laborers at the docks.

"A raid conducted by the State police," stated Premier Hill, "has revealed interference with the electric light supply of Adelaide and the electrification of a fence with the intention of causing fatalities among the police, and we have evidence that these things have been done, or incited, by the Communist agents.

NEW YORK COURT FREES ALBERTAN

Lumber Company Head Wins Out on Grand Larceny Charges.

CASE STARTED IN 1927.

NEW YORK, September 4. — Four indictments, charging grand larceny, which were filed in 1927, against Henry M. Sereth, president and manager of the Southern Alberta Lumber Co., were dismissed yesterday in the General Sessions Court.

Last May, when Sereth's bail of $15,000, was dismissed, an Assistant District Attorney said the cost of bringing witnesses from the West and Canada was prohibitive, and that 'conviction was utterly unlikely."

It was charged that Sereth wrote cheques on the National Bank of Commerce of Seattle, Wash., depositing them with the Hamilton National Bank here to cover obligations. The cheques were returned by the Seattle bank marked "insufficient funds." A representative of the Chase National Bank, which absorbed the Hamilton National Bank, said the bank lost over a quarter of a million dollars in the transaction, and was not disposed to throw good money after bad in paying the cost of bringing witnesses to New York.

An Assistant District Attorney said Sereth contended he had an arrangement with an official of the Hamilton Bank, now dead, by which he was permitted to draw cheques as he did.

Exeter, England, will scrap its municipal street cars and substitute motor busses.

"Bronk" Riding

Patrons of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are in for a real western treat. The committee in charge of attractions have added to their already long list of fine acts by contracting the famous Welsh Bros. Stampede and Rodeo Show of Calgary, Alberta, to appear in front of the Grand Stand. This organization is composed of several of Western Canada's finest riders who will thrill the public with their genuine western bucking horses and daring horsemanship.

Bronk riding, with saddle, will be one of the many feature events and will be governed by the rules laid down by the American Association of Stampedes and Rodeo's, which are as follows—no bridle (halter and halter shank only); the rider's are not allowed to touch any part of the animal or equipment with both hands during the time of the ride, which is approximately twelve seconds from the time the horse leaves the chute until the judge fires the revolver, pulling leather, touching the mane, loosing a stirrup or being bucked off will disqualify the rider.

Louis Welsh present holder of the world's high jump record will jump his horse "Miracle Man" over an automobile while his brother Josie will be seen jumping a pair of horses standing erect with one foot on each horses' back.

Bareback bronk riding, trick riding, trick roping, high jumping, steer riding, wild horse race, chuck wagon racing, Roman standing racing pony express racing and double deck bronk riding, all in all a real wild, woolley and western stampede with real outlaws sunfishing and corkscrewing in an attempt to unseat their riders.

Never before have the residents of Peterborough and district had a chance to witness our own western Canadian cowboys at work and play.

Ride em' cowboy! Hook em' Cow! and let er' buck! will be in order as slogans at the Exhibition next week.

Atlantic Fliers Once War Enemies Meet As Friends At Luncheon Table

New York, September 4. — (C. P.) — Two transatlantic fliers who faced each other across battle lines of the Great War, were friends to-day, bound together in the fraternity of their conquest of dangerous ocean air lines.

Dieudonne Coste, French war ace and first to fly from Paris to New York, and Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau, German naval aviator during the war, who recently flew a seaplane here from Germany, met last night at an informal dinner given for Captain Gronau and his crew of three, by the German-American conference.

As the last course was served and speeches were about to begin, the French fliers were announced. Accompanying them were the Lindberghs and Mayor Walker.

They were accorded a tremendous ovation by the several hundred guests and were welcomed by Captain Gronau in a short speech in German. Coste, replying in French, said aviation knew no border lines, and flyers were all members of one family.

ANDREE'S DIARY REMAINS SEALED BY GOVERNMENT

Swedish Commission Sworn to Silence and Room is Padlocked.

NO DETAILS OF FATE.

Text of Andree's Not Divulged —In Hands of Authorities.

ROMSCOE, Norway, September 4. —(C.P.) — Examination of the bodies of Salomon August Andree and Nils Strindberg, resumed this morning by the Swedish experts, Prof. Hedren and Prof. Lithberg, produced a variety of small objects belonging to the two men but threw little additional light on the fate of the expedition.

In Andree's pocket was discovered a box of matches, besides some trinkets identified as having belonged to Strindberg, who apparently died before Andree, and was buried by him on White Island. Strindberg's belongings were recognized by his brother, a Stockholm sculptor.

The preserved body of a very rare Arctic bird, nautical tables and charts (all belonging to Andree) were found among the objects in the boats.

Clearing up the mystery of the expedition's wanderings now depends wholly on the text, as yet undivulged, of the Andree diaries and note books, particularly those found yesterday. The latter were placed for safeguarding by the aeronaut-explorer, under his own body before he died.

Not Yet Examined.

The diaries are being kept carefully locked, and it is stated that even the experts have not yet fully examined them. M. Hoel, the Norwegian scientist, said that statements about them were based on rumor and guess work

Prof Lithberg stated that all members of the examining commission had sworn silence of their contents, and that nobody else had been permitted to get near the books The doors of the room where they are stored were padlocked and sealed on Tuesday night and the seals were unbroken when the commission started to work yesterday.

In addition to all other finds the diaries will be turned over to the Swedish government, according to Prof. Lithberg.

"I know nothing about Frankel's death during the march (Stockholm despatches yesterday reported that this was narrated in the diary.) I have had no time for studying the diaries. We have been busy preparing the finds, and if any other member of the commission had seen such a thing he would certainly have told me.

"Besides this, all the members of the commission have sworn silence, and nobody else has been permitted to get near the books."

When Frankel Died.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4.—The newspaper Dagens Nyheter this evening said that the newly discovered diary of Salomon August Andree reveals that Knut Frankel, third member of the expedition, died while the party was on its way to White Island.

According to the paper, the Andree diary says the three explorers started across the ice after the wreck of their balloon, and were still going on September 5.

Nils Strindberg, Andree's scientific worker, it adds, died after arrival on White Island, and was buried by Andree.

MARMORA DEATH UNDER ENQUIRY

Coroner Orders Inquest Into Cause of David Crippen's Death.

BEING HELD TO-DAY.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 4. — Circumstances surrounding the death last night of David Crippen are considered so peculiar that Coroner Nicholl, of Eldorado, has ordered an inquest. Mr. Crippen was seventy-one and was a well-known farmer in Marmora township.

He was in his usual good health yesterday and made a visit to the village. Having gone to bed in the evening, however, he complained of pains in the stomach and within a few minutes he died.

Dr. Thompson, of Marmora, was called and he communicated with Coroner Nicholl. The inquest will be held to-day.

OVALTINE PLANT WORK IS RUSHED

Thirty-two Bricklayers Reached Third Storey of Building To-day.

SCHEDULED FOR NOV. 1.

Possibly one of the best antidotes for pessimism regarding trade conditions in Peterborough is a visit to the A. Wander Company's plant rapidly nearing completion and the large extension to the Canadian General Electric Company's plant—buildings which represent the confidence of industrialists in the prosperity of this community.

Daily changes in these two structures are now patent to even the casual observer, as the race proceeds apace to complete the contracts on schedule.

It was learned from officials of the Brown Construction Company that the Ovaltine Plant is expected to be completed on schedule by November 1st. Thirty-two bricklayers are now swarming the scaffolding on this job and to-day commenced work on the walls of the third storey.

Exterior walls are being constructed of Buff brick, while the main door facing east and executed in Indiana Limestone, as it stands in its rough state, gives promise of providing a fitting entrance to the imposing structure.

The Indiana Limestone course extends from the doorway the whole length of the front of the building, from the level of the first floor windows almost to the ground level. The bottom course being carried out in Queenston Limestone.

Painting sub-contracts were recently let to J. O'Dougall of Toronto while the mill-work sub-contract was awarded to Ed. Hind Lumber Company of Toronto.

"Since the construction work was commenced on these two buildings, we have consistently given preference to local labour," stated officials of the Brown Construction Company, this morning, who most emphatically wish to correct rumours to the contrary.

On certain specialised trades outside workmen have been called in from necessity.

Regarding the construction of the C.G.E. extension it is learned that the work is proceeding to the satisfaction of the contractors, and will be completed also on schedule.

$25,000 AT END OF RAINBOW FOR FRENCH AIRMEN

Coste and Bellonte Hopped Off This Morning For Dallas.

FIFTEEN HOUR TRIP.

Prize Offered For Air Journey From Paris to Texas.

VALLEY STREAM, N.Y., September 4 (C.P.). — Preceded by their business manager, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte took off at 6.55 this morning for Dallas, Texas, to collect a $25,000 prize offered by William Easterwood.

The big red Sesqui plane Question Mark, which made the first westward crossing of the North Atlantic from Paris to New York, circled once over the field, and then shot like a scarlet comet against the morning sky toward its southern destination.

Nine minutes before the trans-Atlantic plane took the air, another ship hopped off with Rene Racover, Coste's American representative, who planned to attend to the trans-Atlantic fliers' business affairs in connection with collecting the Easterwood prize, which was offered for the first flight from Paris to Dallas with New York as the only intermediary stop . The take-off of the French fliers for the Texas city was delayed an hour by the necessity of constructing a special device for spinning the propeller, which is set so high that it is very difficult for mechanics standing on the ground to start the engine. The device failed, but the motor was at last started by volunteers who risked their lives by leaping into the air to hang on the high propeller blades.

Captain Dieudonne Coste expected to make the journey to Dallas in between 12 and 15 hours. He had 420 gallons of gasoline pumped into the ship before he left. The radio which was in operation for all but the last few miles of the trans-Atlantic journey, was still broken when to-day's flight began, but no difficulty was expected, as perfect flying weather prevailed.

The fliers arrived at the field about 3 o'clock this morning, having had less than four hours' sleep.

OVER PITTSBURGH AT 9.45.

The French plane of Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte zoomed away from Curtis Field at 6.55 o'clock this morning with the sun at its tail, and whisked across the Alleghany Mountains (the worst stretch on their route) at a 130-mile-an-hour rate, passing over Allentown, Pa., at 7.45, over Edensburg at 8.45 and over Pittsburgh at 9.45.

ZIPPING OFF 22,000 SHINGLES BILL MILLER'S HAZARDOUS JOB

Here's a toast I want to drink
To a fellow I want to know—
To the fellow who's going to take my place
When it's time for me to go.

That's from a poem written "To the Fellow Who'll Take My Place" and it will be a tough hombre who will someday fill Bill Miller's job.

That's not to hint that Bill is tough. He isn't. He's mild-mannered enough, is creeping up beyond the fifty mark and wears spectacles.

But man, Bill has some job. He works at the McDonald Lumber Company's sawmill and is the one shingle jointer left in the city. When Bill goes there may be no more shingles made in Peterborough.

All day long Bill sits perched beside a two-foot circular saw, that has teeth a half-inch and whirls at 1,500 revolutions per minute. He clips the edges off the thin sheets of wood on this humming saw. Zipp, zipp, zipp and there's a shingle all ready for somebody's roof.

Twenty-two thousand shingles a day is Bill's average output. That makes 88 bundles, or enough shingles to cover two medium-sized bugalows. He is in the shingle-making game for the money there is in it and, you would be surprised to learn just the size of Bill's weekly cheque.

But, let Bill make a slip just a fraction of an inch either way, and zipp, there's no shingle but another finger missing from his hand. Four of his digits have gone during the ten year's or more that Bill has been turning out the city's shingles. He has only his thumb left on his right hand. During the past two years he hasn't lost a finger, perhaps because he hasn't so many now to get in the path of that saw. Bill is considered such a poor risk that he no longer comes under the Compensation Act.

Santa Domingo Laid Waste By Wind's Fury In Tropical Disaster

Dominican Capital of 50,000 Population Devastated By Storm That Raged Twenty-four Hours — Cut Off From World Until Noon To-day.

LUNATIC ASYLUM IS DESTROYED INMATES RUN WILD IN STREETS

Tempest Swerved Northward Saving Cuba and Florida From Its Horrors—Other Islands of Indies in Storm's Path.

(By the Associated Press.)

Nine hundred persons were reported dead and injured today in the wreckage left in Santo Domingo by a hurricane which swept westward along the Greater Antilles during the last twenty-four hours.

The lunatic asylum was destroyed and those inmates escaping death ran wild through the city streets, adding to the horror of the disorder and confusion everywhere. They were finally recaptured by soldiers and police.

The capital of the Dominican Republic, a city of nearly 50,000 population, was laid waste by the storm. Not until midday was communication restored with the stricken city when all-America cables improvised a station in the island city by which first details of the horror began to reach the world.

Speed of Wind 160 Miles An Hour.

The wind mounted to 160 miles an hour during the climax of the hurricane, leaving a trail of ruin and almost sinking the Porto Rico Line steamship Coamo. The storm lashed its way toward Cuba and the Florida Straits, but latest advices said, swerved sharply northward. Apparently passing out to sea and sparing lands further to the west.

Every agency of the United States Government to-day was sent toward gauging the extent of the calamity and preparing for whatever relief measures might have to be taken.

Weather bureaus around the storm area watched closely for new developments. Red Cross headquarters stood ready to use its facilities. The Navy Department awaited messages which would indicate the role it might play.

A Desolate City

AZUA, Dominican Republic, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Santo Domingo City today lay desolate from a hurricane that swept over the Dominican Republic yesterday. It is in urgent need of medical supplies and water.

Almost the entire city is said here to have been destroyed. The hurricane hit it early in the afternoon.

Its greatest violence was felt from 2:30 p.m. It moved northwest diagonally across the country, cutting a wide swath of destruction. Damage is estimated in millions of dollars but no accurate total can yet be formed.

Santo Domingo

Santo Domingo is a republic of the West Indies, occupying two-thirds of the island of Haiti. Its area is 18,045 square miles. The chief industry is agriculture, the products being sugar, tobacco, cocoa, coffee and cotton. There are large forested tracts throughout the country, yielding enormous quantities of cedar, mahogany, satin wood, and dye woods. Cattle rearing is extensively carried on, and the minerals, although not exploited to any considerable extent, include gold, silver, platinum, quick silver, coal, iron and rock salt.

The president is elected for a term of six years, and the senators and deputies for four years. The executive is vested in the president, assisted by a cabinet of seven ministers. This system of government obtained until 1916, when the U.S.A. set up a government with naval officers at the head of all departments.

BATTERED LINER LIMPS INTO PORT AFTER 7 HOUR FIGHT IN HURRICANE

Ship is Hurled On Its Side and Engines Stopped in Caribbean Storm.

NO LIVES LOST.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 4. (A.P.)—A battered tropical passenger liner limped into this port to-day after having passed through the very center of one of the worst hurricanes the Caribbean has known in many years. The ship, the Porto Rico liner Coamo, Captain Thomas Evans, escaped annihilation narrowly.

The Coamo turned back from Santo Domingo, her destination, last night, and for a dozen hours no word came of her fate Her wireless failed early in the evening and it had been feared disaster had been visited upon the ship and all on board.

Emerging from the great wind storm this morning, the skipper, Captain Evans, brought the Coamo safely to anchor, but he could not explain how with the storm at its height all about him, amid furious seas, the ship missed being wiped out.

Decks Stripped Bare

Buffeted for more than seven hours the engineers raced the craft full speed but could make little or no headway. The wind stripped the decks of everything movable, tore off hatches and threw the vessel so far over on her side that the oiling machinery was useless and a last Chief Engineer McGough was forced to stop the engines entirely so that emergency oiling could be done and fuel oil ballast could be pumped from port to starboard bunkers to trim the ship.

In all of this maelstrom not a life was lost and only a few passengers were slightly injured.

Captain Evans said the barometer went to the bottom of the glass while his ship was in the center of

INDIAN RIOTERS THREATEN POONA

Armed Police Sent to Aid— Schools, Gov't Buildings Closed.

NATIVES ARE ARMED.

POONA, India, Sept. 4.—(AP)—All Government buildings, including schools and colleges, will be closed today because of raids threatened by civil disobedience forces in Kolhapur State.

One hundred armed police have been sent to the Satara district and twelve motor lorries full of police left Poona yesterday in response to an urgent request from that place.

The authorities said 500 civil disobedience volunteers, armed with old shotguns, rifles and other weapons, were believed to have taken refuge in the hills near Satara.

"IRON CHINK," A MODERN MACHINE, IN BRITISH COLUMBIA CANNERIES HAS DISPLACED CHINESE LABOR

R. G. Lawlor, B.A., Norwood High School Principal, Recounts Motor Trip.

TRAVELLED 11,000 MILES.

Saw No Crops to Compare With Central Ontario's Harvest.

"The entire West seems to be constructing schools with a clear vision of the needs of the future. The school buildings are all well constructed and thoroughly equipped", observed R. G. Lawlor principal of Norwood High School in an interview with The Examiner concerning his impressions gained in the course of a most interesting motor tour across the continent recently.

Leaving Norwood early in July accompanied by his wife and Rev. Elwood Lawson and Mrs. Lawson of Mount Forest, Mr. Lawlor covered 11,000 miles by road and 1,400 miles by steamer, in the course of two months.

The party travelled West via Michigan, Wisconsin, North Dakota, then into Saskatchewan and across Alberta to British Columbia. A great deal of touring was undertaken in British Columbia, a province which holds a wealth of charm and interest, said Mr. Lawlor.

Visit to Salmon Cannery

While in British Columbia a visit was paid to a salmon cannery, where the industry was witnessed in all stages.

"The canning season is extremely short" said Mr. Lawlor, "commencing in the second or third week in July and concluding towards the end of August each year."

Salmon are caught at the mouth of the rivers in nets. Fishermen work on a contract basis, hiring their nets and boats with which they trawl, mostly at night time.

The fishermen stay out at the river mouth for a week or more a at time and their catch is collected periodically by the pick-up boats and brought to the cannery. Here they are unloaded by men armed with large prongs with which they deftly spear the fish, almost invariably in the eye, out on to the platforms. They are then conveyed to a machine known as the 'iron Chink' which cuts off the heads and fins and disposes of the entrails.

"Iron Chink"

The machine is known as the 'iron Chink' on account of the fact that when this operation was performed by manual labour, it was invariably done by a Chinese.

Succeeding operations take the fish to the scrubbers, then to the slicers and packers. Sockeye salmon—the highest grade—is packed by girls, the cheaper grades being packed by machinery. Following the packing operation each can goes over an automatic weighing device which rejects any can which is underweight. They then pass into a steam chest at a temperature of 212 degrees. The intense heat drives the air out of the tins after which the lids are securely fastened. The product is next cooked in the cans, in vats having a temperature much in excess of 212 degrees. From this vat the tins are laquered and stamped although labels are not applied until the product is about to be consigned to the wholesaler, on account of the fact that each wholesaler has a different label.

Two Days Grace

The fishermen receive 50c for each fish delivered to the cannery and during the short season, make on an average the sum of $600-$1,000 each.

Under the British Columbia fishery regulations it is only legal to fish for salmon five days out of the week.

An interesting fact, stated Mr.

ST. THOMAS AUDITOR IS GIVEN DISMISSAL

ST. THOMAS Ont., September 3 (C.P.). — St. Thomas City Council at a session lasting till after two o'clock this morning rescinded the 25-year-old by-law appointing Harry C. Gough city auditor of St. Thomas . Vote by Council was 8 to 4 for Mr. Gough's dismissal.

Action follows long controversy and allegations of negligence on the part of Mr. Gough, following defalcations of R. J. Newton, Board of Education secretary-treasurer, who is now serving time in Kingston Penitentiary. Mr. Gough claims he performed his duties faithfully ,and threatens action against the Council as a whole or certain members.

R.C.M.P. OFFICER IS COMMITTED

HAD BEEN DRINKING.

DAUPHIN, Man., Sept. 4 (C.P.).—On a charge of murder, Constable John W. Pirt, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Yorkton, Sask., will be tried at the Fall Assizes of the Court of King's Bench here.

The constable was committed for trial following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Robert Hawkins in the Dauphin County Court. He is charged with the murder of Mrs. Sophie Light, of Epswich, South Dakota, fatally wounded at an interprovincial picnic, 65 miles from here, Labor Day.

The evidence given at the preliminary hearing was similar to that of the inquest. Witnesses testified that, contrary to regulations, Pirt had been drinking and was "very intoxicated" at the time of the shooting.

POLICE GUARD HYDRO LINEMEN

Farmers in Madoc and Marmora District Are Dissatisfied.

SAY NOT PAID ENOUGH.

BELLEVILLE, September 4. (C.P.)—Provincial police are guarding the linemen of the H.E.P.C. in the Marmora and Madoc districts, while a high tension power line is being run through this district, according to information received by the Canadian Press correspondent.

The farmers of the district are said to be dissatisfied with the reimbursement that is being given by the H.E.P.C. for the land taken for the placing off poles.

There have been no direct outbreaks but to prevent arguments with the linemen, provincial police constables Grey of Marmora and Hill of Madoc, have been in the district watching the construction of the line.

General Victor Williams stated that there was nothing unusual in the information in the above despatch. "It is just a case of the provincial police according the protection requested by the Hydro Electric Power Commission for men working on new power lines.

"There has been no trouble and we do not anticipate any," he said, "but it sometimes happens that persons who object to the power company crossing their property, make it unpleasant and difficult for the linemen in the pursuit of their duty. The provincial police are simply within call should the workmen require any assistance in convincing property owners that they have a legal right to put the new lines on the right of way."

FIRE DESTROYS LINTICK HOME

Outbreak is Confined to Place of Origin After Hard Fight.

IN EMILY TOWNSHIP.

(Examiner Correspondent)

OMEMEE, Sept. 4th.—Fire originating between the ceiling and roof caused the total destruction of a log house, belonging to John Lintick on the third line of Emily five miles east of here yesterday afternoon. The blaze was of a fierce nature and placed Elmer Henry's barn in jeopardy. Valiant efforts on the part of neighbours was successful in confining the outbreak to the place of origin.

Mrs. Lintick was alone in the house at the time of the outbreak. She had just put on a fire in preparation for the evening meal. Two trucks and a box of carpenters tools were the only articles salvaged. The property was not covered by insurance.

Legion Will Handle Booths At Fall Fair

Campbellford Veterans Are Preparing For Big Time—Fair Entries Coming in Good.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 4 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Arrangements have now been completed for the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion to have concession rights at the Campbellford Fall Fair which will be staged on September 30th and October 1st.

The Legion are preparing to handle all kinds of booths including soft drinks, and as far as possible to arrange for a mid-way. This venture should prove an added attraction for visitors to the fair this year.

A report from the secretary shows that entries for the event are coming in fast, and there are good prospects for a splendid year. The prize lists are already out and can be had on application, and these show a very attractive list of awards.

LONDON LAWYER OFFERS SCHEME FOR WATERWAY

Proposes Britain and U. S. Divide Financing Equally.

PLANS TO HOOVER.

Hopes Action Will Put Seaway on Agenda of Economic Conference.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 4. (C.P.) The New York Times in a special despatch from Washington today says that R. C. Hawkin, London Barrister, yesterday presented to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon a plan for carrying out the St. Lawrence river billion dollar waterway project by equal division of the financing between Great Britain and the United States. The despatch continues:

"Mr. Hawkin said after the conference that the plan is in line with the program for development of the river credited to President Hoover.

"While declining to reveal to newspoper men the interests he represents and saying that he wished to be regarded at present as only an interested individual, Mr. Hawkin indicated that his plan had substantial support in Great Britain. He came to Mr. Mellon with an introduction from representatives James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former Solicitor General.

Delayed by Quebec

"The development of the St. Lawrence has been delayed in recent years through failure of the Province of Quebec to appoint members of a commission proposed by this Government to study the situation. This move by Mr. Hawkin made it appear that a serious attempt is planned to lift the question from that of a regional one to consideration on behalf of the mutual interest of the British Empire and the United States.

Mr. Hawkin said he hoped that some action might be taken which would put consideration of the St. Lawrence on the agenda of the British Imperial Economic Conference which will meet on October 1.

"As President Hoover initiated the present plans for development of the St. Lawrence, any new plan must be approved by him Mr. Rankin said, but he indicated that his ideas for the work were designed to remove what he said are serious objections abroad to this country's financing the entire project and thereby having the principal voice in the contract of the work.

ARCTIC WASTES HOLD BURWASH

No Message Expected From Fliers, Last Heard of at Bernard, Till Sept. 10.

FLYING WEATHER POOR.

WINNIPEG, September 4 (CP) — The grim North yesterday hung a cloudy, windy cloak of silence around the Canadian Government's Arctic exploring duo Weather-bound at Bernard Harbor, Dolphin Strait trading post, Major L T. Burwash, famed northland adventurer, and the pilot of his seaplane, W. E. Gilbert, waited for clear skies that would allow them either to continue their air journey into remote King William Land or fly back to Fort Hearne.

Word was received here last night that the pair were forced down at Bernard by poor flying conditions. They had set out from Hearne, an outpost situated on Coronation Gulf, on Aug. 25. To land on King William Land, where in 1847 Sir John Franklin's ill-fated exploring party of 129 men perished, was the objective of Burwash. There he hoped to make a photographic survey of the shore line for the Dominion government and possibly pick up relics of the dead explorers.

Officials of Western Canada Airways here were in doubt whether Burwash would attempt to gain the farther-north country when better weather allowed him to take to the air again. But they will not know his next move until September 10. By that time he will be on his way out of the Arctic and able to message civilization by radio from Coppermine.

WOOD ISSUED BY CAMPBELLFORD AS WINTER FUEL

Relief Measures Outlined For Coming Winter—Will Check Up on Applicants.

COURT OF REVISION FIXED.

Two Petitions Sent to Federal Government Regarding Unemployment.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 4. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Relief measures for the coming winter and much correspondence featured the regular session of the Campbellford Town Council held last night in the Public Library with Mayor C. H. Davidson in the chair.

Councillor J. R. Battisby, as chairman of the charity committee reported for that body to the effect that a proper system of relief had been organized for the coming winter. In regard to the fuel question which had proved an expensive proposition last year he stated that he had obtained a price of $8.00 per cord for good dry cord wood delivered on the ground if a quantity of fifty cord was purchased. It was his idea to make each able bodied applicant for fuel cut one cord before he could take away a cord of uncut wood for his use, the cut cord to be used in cases where the applicant was a woman or aged person.

This matter was discussed by the council and the whole question gone into. It was thought that there were many people who came for charity during the winter months who did not conduct themselves properly during the earning period, and these people had to be checked up on.

It was eventually decided on motion that Councillor Battisby be empowered to buy fifty cord of wood in readiness for the coming winter.

Dealing with the correspondence a letter was read coming from a Mr. Finburg in reference to the location of industries in Campbellford, and asking for information. On motion this was handed to the Industrial Committee for action.

A letter from F. G. Stinson, manager of the Trent Waterways, asking the council to petition the Federal government to complete the Trent canal at Severn and at the north end of the canal where it runs into Georgian Bay was read. The object of this was to help the employment situation now under consideration by the government. This was accepted by the council with instructions that it be endorsed and forwarded to Ottawa.

In conjunction with this matter it

BAD CROSSING BEING REMOVED

Waterloo "Overhead" is First Step in New Safety Program.

PROVIDE MUCH WORK.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—Announcement was made yesterday by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, that an agreement had been reached whereby construction of an "overhead" at the Waterloo crossing, north of Simcoe, will be undertaken immediately.

The construction will not only remove one of the danger spots of Southwestern Ontario, but will provide, in Mr. Henry's opinion, considerable unemployment relief. It was one of the main items on the contemplated program of railway crossing eliminations and grade separations which Mr. Henry announced two weeks ago, and in connection with which he is now pressing for the immediate co-operation of the railways and the Ottawa authorities.

Approval of the Railway Board to proceed with other undertakings is expected shortly. They include, it is understood, the elimination of two T. H. & B. crossings from the new highway which the Department of Highways is building from Hamilton to Buffalo.

Mr. Henry made it clear yesterday that the Government desires action on the program, for action will mean, he stated, a lot of jobs for the present-day jobless. In fact, the Government is prepared, if necessary, to shoulder the railways' share of the expense of the programmed undertakings until the first of the new year.

TWINE IMPORT BAN REQUESTED

Fire Chiefs Blame Its Storage For Two Disastrous Fires.

PROTECT C.N.R. PROPERTY.

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 4.—A resolution strongly condemning the storing of Holland binder twine in freight sheds in Canada, and asking the Government to ban its importation, in view of the two disastrous fires which have recently destroyed the Canadian National freight sheds at Fort William and Vancouver, with a loss of more than $2,000,000, in which such binder twine was stored, was passed yesterday at one of the convention sessions of the Dominion Fire Chiefs, meeting here this week.

The resolution will be forwarded to the Dominion Government. It also asked for fire walls and sprinkler systems in all future Canadian National freight sheds, which are Government buildings.

SASKATCHEWAN FARMERS FAVOR 100 PER CENT POOLING OF GRAIN

Pool Members Request Heads to Bring Matter Before Government.

NO SPECIAL SESSION.

REGINA, Sept. 4.—Favored by a vast majority of the Wheat Pool's membership, compulsory 100 per cent. pooling of grain in Saskatchewan yesterday came within range of the Provincial Government. Pool officials announced that of a total of 48,545 ballots cast, 32683 favored institution of the 100 per cent. pool system. Opposed were 12,991, while 79 ballots were spoiled. The remainder were unsigned ballots.

By their voting, Pool farmers directed their heads formally to approach the Government with a request that legislation embodying the changes to the Pool be enacted. The directors of the organization will consider the proposals at its next meeting.

Delegates at the annual meeting of the Pool last June voted in a body in favor of the proposed 100 per cent. pooling legislation. At the same time they authorized the taking of a ballot among the membership on the understanding that a majority vote of those voting in favor of the proposed legislation would be accepted as a mandate by the organization on the basis of which the Government would be approached. The result announced yesterday is another step toward compulsory pooling, urged by Wheat Pool leaders for some time. But it is specifically understood that a vote of the entire farmer population of Saskatchewan must be taken before the present proposals could be enforced by the Government.

It was stated in Government circles that the number of votes in favor of the scheme was not sufficiently large to warrant the enforcement of a compulsory system.

FLYING CLUB ACTIVE.

Camp bellford Organization Meet Friday to Outline Winter Program—Play Will Be Proposed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 4 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—With the coming of the winter months, the Campbellford Flying Club are preparing for a session of activity. With this in view a meeting is being called for Friday to be held in the club rooms, Queen's Hotel, Front street.

The outline for the winter work will be drawn up at this meeting, and also the question of the staging of another play will be discussed. In connection with the latter business, it is hoped that the play can be produced on September 30th, when it should attract many people who will be in town for the Fall Fair.

Miss Irene Howson, Toronto, spent the holiday week-end the guest of Cavan friends.

Mrs. Atkinson, Campbellford, was a week-end visitor with Mrs. Hill.

Miss Alma Perrin went to Toronto on Monday, where she has accepted a position as teacher on the Public School staff.

The monthly meeting of the W. M.S. and W.A. of Cavan United Church, which is usually held on the first Thursday of the month, is postponed until the second Thursday, September 11.

The meeting will be held in the basement of the church.

Miss Gwen Hunter returned to Toronto on Monday after spending a week's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hunter.

Dr. and Mrs. Eber Syer, Milton, spent the holiday week-end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Syer.

Mr. Fred Byers, Toronto, spent the holiday week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Byers.

About sixty guests attended a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Olive Perrin, at the home of Mrs J. D. Hunter, Cavan, on Saturday evening. The gifts were prettily arranged under an umbrella attractively decorated with pink and white tissue paper. After the numerous gifts, both useful and pretty, had been opened by the guest of honor and passed around, everyone took part in games. The ladies served lunch before the gathering broke up.

WEDDING BELLS

SIMPSON—CHAPLIN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, September 4. — The marriage took place at the United Church parsonage, Hastings, on Monday morning, September 1, at 11 o'clock, of Laurella Ruth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Chaplin, Trent River, to Robert N. Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Simpson of Hastings Rev. H. J. Bell performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Farrow (the latter a sister of the bride) were the only attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left on a motor trip by way of Brighton to Whitby. They will reside in Hastings.

O'SHEA—McCARTHY.

HASTINGS, September 4. — A wedding of much interest took place in St. Paul's Catholic Church, Norwood, Ontario, on Tuesday morning, September 2, when Kathleen, daughter of Mrs. Matthew McCarthy, became the bride of M. Augustine O'Shea, B.A., barrister-at-law, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. O'Shea, Norwood.

Solemn Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McCarthy, brother of the bride, assisted by Rev. J J. O'Brien as deacon, Rev. J. F. McGuire as sub-deacon, Rev. J. T. Finn master of ceremonies. Rev. Neil McNulty was present in the sanctuary.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. F. McCarthy, Hastings, was charmingly attired in a gown of eggshell satin in princess style. It was embroidered with seed pearls, while the veil of embroidered Brussels net was held to the head by seed pearls and orange blossoms.

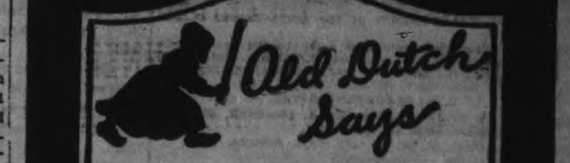
The bride's only ornament was a white gold diamond-set pendant, the gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet of Premier roses and baby's breath.

Miss Mary Jones of Hastings, wearing a dress of sunset georgette and a black panne velvet hat, was bridesmaid. She carried a bouquet of sunburs roses and gladioli. Miss Jean Coughlan, niece of the groom, made a winsome little flower girl, dressed in pale blue georgette and carrying a basket of garden flowers. Mr. Frank Cushin, B.A., barrister-at-law, of Belleville, supported the groom. At the offertory "O Jesu Amor Mi" was rendered by the choir.

The bride's gift to the groom was a green gold wrist watch. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a white gold bar pin with sapphire setting, to the flower girl a dainty necklace of pearls, and to the groomsman green gold cuff links.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where about fifty guests partook of a wedding dinner served by five of the bride's friends, Miss Gertrude O'Shaughnessy, Mrs. H. V. Leonard, Miss Marie Meagher, Mrs. W. H. Lawless, and Miss Helen Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Shea left by motor for Alexandria Bay and points east, the bride wearing a green georgette travelling dress with a brown fox fur, brown hat, shoes and costume purse.



Old Dutch Says

"For your family's protection the bathroom should always be healthfully clean." This is accomplished by cleaning the tub and washbowl after each using, because Old Dutch not only removes the visible dirt, but the often-dangerous impurities, as well."

For greater economy Old Dutch is unequalled. No cleaning preparation does so much as Old Dutch and none can do it so well.

Tired and Rundown

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was always feeling tired, weak and rundown and I worried over things. Since taking the Compound that feeling has left me. I can work now and not get so tired. I do my wash and take care of my house and three children. I eat and sleep better. In fact, I feel better in every way. I will answer letters from interested women at any time."—Mrs. H. C. Fletcher, 127 Smith St., Peterboro, Ontario.

WOOD ISSUED BY CAMPBELLFORD

was decided to forward a request to the Federal government asking them to give the woollen and textile industries every consideration in the matter of protection as there were about three hundred out of employment in Campbellford owing to the Trent Valley Woollen Mills not running to capacity.

A request was also received from J. G. Carey asking that the date of the Court of Revision be set for or about the first Monday in October. This was in connection with the assessment of the Quinte and Trent Valley Power Company. This matter was brought under discussion and the day for Court of Revision was set for October 17, those to act being: Reeve J. M. Bygott, Deputy Reeve N. C. Stone, and Councillors A. N. MacColl, H. N. Carr and J. M. Battisby.

The clerk was given authority to purchase assessment role supplies.

The town solicitor, D. J. Lynch, presented the amendment to the lease for the town power plant, and this was accepted with the request that it be forwarded on to the department.

A by-law was presented by Reeve Bygott giving the town authority to charge a yearly sum to J. D. Hay for property owned by the town on which part of the dancing pavillion on Rear street stands, and which will be operated by Mr. Hay subject to the condition that the council laid down as the result of the report of the investigation committee it appointed to look into certain complaints that had been laid against that place. These conditions included proper sanitary arrangements for ladies and gentlemen, payment of arrears of taxes, that the place close at 11.30 p.m. and that the permit be transferred to the present owner. This by-law was read three times, passed, signed, and sealed. It was also passed on motion that it be registered.

Dr. H. T. Scott addressed the council in respect to the charge for the operation of his miniature golf course on Rear street. This matter was gone into, and it was decided that a committee composed of Reeve Bygott, Deputy Reeve Stone and Councillors MacColl and Carr investigate the affair and draft a by-law governing this amusement. Dr. Scott issued an invitation to the council and press to visit the course and partake of the pleasure of a game of golf.

Councillor Battisby brought up the matter of a stop sign for the corner at Queen street and the River Road, and Councillor O'Sullivan assured the council that the sign in question was being prepared. It was also decided to place signs at other points in town.

Accounts amounting to $734.27 presented and passed. he council then adjourned.

MILLBROOK YOUTHS WIN WATER HONORS

Herbert Cardwell and Jack Deyell Take Part in Cobourg Regatta.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 4 (Examiner Correspondence). — Two members of the local Swimming and Canoe Club, Herbert Cardwell and Jack Deyell, motored to Cobourg on Labor Day and took part in the Regatta being held in the Lakeside town, winning in at least two events, coming first in the double canoe race, and first in the tilting competition, in which five canoes were entered.

Considerable dissatisfaction arose from the fact that the committee in charge, for some unknown reason, refused Messrs. Cardwell and Deyell the prize won in the double canoe event, allowing them to enter the competition and then insisting that they were not eligible because of residence outside the district. The prize was offered to the two taking second place, but with true sportsmanship these competitors refused to accept the award, declaring it belonged to the actual winners. The matter was still unsettled when the regatta closed.

The Canoe Club has now a membership of between thirty-five and forty, and is well on with the preparation of a suitable bathing beach near the wharf at Wallace Point, on the Otonabee River. A number have learned to swim since joining the organization, and also how to properly handle a canoe. The club intends holding a dance at the Point in the near future, the actual date to be decided at the regular meeting on Thursday, September 4. Tuesday and Thursday evenings are the times of meeting, instruction being given on each of these dates in the dual accomplishments of swimming and canoe management, the objectives in view when the club came into being.

A girl may wear a golf skirt and not play golf, or wear a bathing suit and not go near the water, but when she puts on a wedding gown, kid, she means business.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

"Palmolive is the only soap which thoroughly cleans the skin and at the same time reveals natural loveliness"

says the celebrated

LEON DESFOSSÉ

—one of the best known of all Parisian beauty specialists

"I always advise my clients to wash their faces twice a day for two minutes with Palmolive Soap and warm water, making first a lather with both hands, then thoroughly rinsing with warm water and with cold, thus toning up the complexion."

L Desfossé

265, Rue St. Honoré, Paris

The olive oil in this famous facial soap is your best safeguard against modern dangers to skin beauty.

And over 23,720 experts agree

Desfossé is not alone in his opinion of the tonic effects of palm and olive oils. As a matter of fact, these beauty oils were used by Cleopatra. And, today, a tremendously impressive group of more than 23,720 beauty specialists—throughout the world—advise Palmolive Soap.

Beware of using crude soaps, soaps made of undesirable fats, soaps artificially colored or highly perfumed. They may be harmless. But to experiment is dangerous. Palmolive is made of the oils of palm and olive only. It is these oils which give it Nature's own green color. They make unnecessary the addition of heavy perfumes.

"The skin must be thoroughly washed, but care taken to employ only the soap which gives the greatest benefits with the least inconvenience," the great Desfossé warns you. So many soaps are irritating. You should not experiment when it is so easy to buy Palmolive. Millions use it for the bath as well as the face.

Here is the recommended treatment: massage a smooth lather of Palmolive Soap gently into the skin. Rinse, first with warm water, then with cold. Now—and not before—you are ready for make-up.

You will find it safe, protective, bland and soothing. The world's great beauty experts advise it. Try Palmolive and you will understand why.

THE NEW CITY SOLICITOR.

The selection of John R. Corkery to succeed Judge Joseph Wearing as city solicitor, The Examiner is sure, will be satisfactory to the majority of citizens.

In having to make a choice among a number of well-known younger members of the local bar, the City Council's task was far from easy, but the decision to appoint Mr. Corkery will be recognized by the public as a conscientious endeavor to have the position well and capably filled.

Mr. Corkery, member of a well-known and most respected local family and himself a native son of Peterborough, enjoys the respect and liking of his fellow-members of the bar in this city, and the trust and regard of the public he will be called upon to serve.

In his practice, his connection with the Peterborough Building Loan Society and other organizations, and his record as a citizen, the new city solicitor has demonstrated qualities that should stand him in good stead in undertaking his responsibilities as legal advisor and mentor to the members of the City Council and the civic government generally.

In congratulating the City Council upon their choice and Mr. Corkery in the confidence shown in him by the elected representatives of the people, The Examiner is merely giving voice to popular opinion.

A FINE ACHIEVEMENT.

That the world is not yet indifferent to the thrill of spectacular flying performances was evidenced by the interest shown in the Atlantic flight of Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte and the reception given the gallant French flyers when their staunch plane, the Question Mark, landed at Curtis Field, L. I., on Tuesday night.

Despite the frequency with which long distance air journeys are being successfully completed, man has up to the present refused to accept this new form of travel as a common-place method of transportation, and each new feat seizes upon his imagination as an achievement little short of miraculous.

The performance of Coste and Bellonte was noteworthy enough to justify the interest aroused.

It was the first successful flight from France to the United States.

More than that, the journey of the Question Mark was unique because it marked the first occasion on which aviators attempting to wing their way from Europe across the North Atlantic succeeded in reaching the field at which their flight was aimed.

Twice previously the North Atlantic had been conquered by airplanes, but in each case the pilots were forced to land before reaching the United States.

The French flyers deserve the plaudits of the world for adding another splendid page to the history of aeronautics.

SWIMMERS AND DROWNINGS.

"The strange thing about the holiday drownings," remarks the Toronto Globe, "is that the good swimmers also are among those who lose their lives."

It is true that expert swimmers sometimes drown; over-confidence in their own ability has often a tendency to cause them to take chances and occasionally a life is the penalty.

But if the drowning accidents that have occurred in Ontario this summer—and there has been an appalling number of them—were investigated, it is safe to say that in by far the greater number of cases the victims were people who knew nothing about the art of swimming and who were powerless to do anything to save themselves when they found that they were in a position of danger.

A non-swimmer who falls into deep water or who steps into a hole while bathing or is precipitated into the water by a capsized boat has little chance of escaping unless help is close at hand, and even in that case the inability of the victim to help himself has often been responsible for a double fatality, involving the would-be rescuer as well as the original victim.

The fact that good swimmers sometimes needlessly run into danger and are drowned as a result should deter no one from learning to swim.

The swimmer always has a chance to save himself—the non-swimmer has none.

START WITH THE GOVERNMENT.

The suggestion that Colonel Rhoades, the veteran soldier who has been appointed by the Ontario Government as a veterans' provincial employment director, might find among the services of the Government a good field of employment opportunities to exploit is not far off the mark.

The public generally will approve both of the position and of the choice made by the Government, for Colonel Rhoades' record of service commands respect.

At the same time, however, until there is a feeling that the Government itself has done everything in its power to give employment in the public services to returned men appeals to private employers to consider the burned-out veteran and to provide employment for him are not likely to be as enthusiastically received as could be desired.

The Ontario Government in its various departments gives employment to a small army of civil servants; it would be interesting to learn just what proportion of these employees appointed since the war saw military service.

In one department alone, the Liquor Control Board, it is claimed that less than ten per cent. of the employees are ex-service men, although as a matter of justice it should be pointed out that this condition does not apply to the local store where the vendor and two of his staff are ex-service men.

In this and other departments the new appointee might find room for some much-needed missionary work in the interest of returned soldiers.

WELL—IT HAS HAPPENED.

It was bound to happen—and it has.

A local merchant says he had a customer, a woman, ask whether a certain article was made in Canada.

Fortunately he was able to answer in the affirmative and the sale was made.

Was there anything very strange in the question? Apparently there was, for the merchant had to think for quite a time before being able to go back to the day when such a question had been put to him before.

This woman informed the merchant that she had decided to buy Canadian-made articles as often as she could.

She gave her reasons in a very direct way, and the chiefest was that she wanted to use her purchasing money so that it would give work to people at home.

There were other reasons, but we need not discuss them.

Right there the lady purchaser put her finger on the real reason.

She has seen the chance of doing two things when she buys, (1) get value for her money, and (2) at the same time create some more much-needed employment in Canada.

Wouldn't it be a good idea if we all came to grips with the unemployment business in this direct way?

If we started right away—not waiting for Government action—purchasing articles which our own people make, wouldn't it create a demand for these goods? Certainly it would.

And would not that demand put more people at work in Canadian plants? Of course, it would.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

WORKING TOGETHER.

Canada's progress, the Hon. J. H. Dillon told the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition this week, lies in unity and co-operation between the English-speaking and French-speaking peoples of the nation.

Mr. Dillon is a member of the Taschereau administration in Quebec. He brought felicitations from his Government and his Province. He told his hearers some aspects of Quebec development, and he observed, with pleasure, that the character and culture of the French section of the country were appealing more and more daily to the peoples of Ontario and other English-speaking sections of the country. Many Ontario school teachers, Mr. Dillon pointed out, had gone to Quebec, "there to learn the French language and make contact with the French intelligence and mind and the volume of beautiful literature that we owe to the writers of the French language. These teachers from Ontario will play an important part in moulding national life."

• • • •

In another part of his address, Mr. Dillon said:

"This is a great and wonderful country, with an inspiring history. Let us all be united, no matter what racial origin we spring from, in bringing about for Canada the great destiny that is hers."

Canada is a great and wonderful country and Canada has, as Mr. Dillon says, an inspiring history. There was never a time, in all the years of our development, when it was more important to have a full measure of unity and co-operation.

• • • •

One of the happiest features of the last election campaign—Liberals as well as Conservatives admit it, though the former suffered for the time being—was the disappearance of the solid Liberal bloc in Quebec. For more than a decade the Conservative party had been unable to make inroads in the neighboring Province. On July 28 of this year it won 27 of Quebec's 65 seats in the House of Commons. Let us forget for a moment the issues or possible issues that caused Quebec to change—the influence of the church, New Zealand butter, unemployment, dissatisfaction with some phases of Liberalism and Liberal leadership, the divorce bill put through last session, all and many others have been mentioned—and simply remember the fact that Quebec has come out of her political isolation. This is a good thing for Quebec and a good thing for the rest of the country. Whether all members of the party appreciate it or not, it is also a good thing for Liberalism. Mr. King's party suffered in other Provinces, without question, because of its support from "Solid Quebec." Many voters, in the other Provinces, maintained the position that they would support Conservative candidates as long as Quebec kept on returning nothing but Liberal members to Ottawa. This is perhaps a difficult attitude to explain, but no one with any knowledge of the situation can doubt its existence.

• • • •

Mr. Bennett, making important gains in Quebec—without them, in fact, he could not have attained the premiership—must now appreciate that his strength in other Provinces will not be as great in the next election. It has been the fashion in Ontario, for instance, to insist upon the return of Conservative candidates because of Quebec's passion for returning Liberals. The parties played more or less the same game. The Liberals in Quebec argued against Tory Ontario and the Conservatives in Ontario were no less vehement in their denunciations of Grit Quebec. Now the Liberal bloc in Quebec has been shattered and this, of course, will destroy not a little of the Conservative argument in Ontario.

• • • •

We recall, in this instance, and with some amusement, Mr. Ferguson's after-election exultation over his party's triumph and something to the effect that "solid" Provinces were now a thing of the past. One cannot help but remember Mr. Ferguson's effort to make Ontario "solid" for the Conservative party in the Commons. He failed, of course, which perhaps explains his statement. However, be this as it may, Liberalism's chances in Ontario, for future elections, have been greatly brightened by Conservatism's success in Quebec and the changed situation is an improved one, viewed from any angle.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

To most people the hardest thing about the flight of the Question Mark was trying to understand what Capt. Coste and his co-pilot said over the radio after landing.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition expects to reach a new standard of excellence. The attendance should be in accord with the merit of the program.

The Gordon Bennett balloon race may fill some useful purpose, but off-hand we can't just think what it is.

Colonel Rhoades' first duty should be, pertinently remarks the Globe, should be to make sure that the Provincial Government itself with its thousands of employees is doing for the veteran what it now asks private employers to do.

The Globe hopes that Mr. Ferguson will have more success banishing unemployment than he had with bootleggers. And yet if the unemployed were as few as the bootleggers the problem would not give any one a great deal of concern.

All in all municipal affairs in York Township may be described as fairly lively.

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

"It was the black figure," I said. "It was lying on top of him, and when it heard me, it got up and vanished."

"It strikes me we are dealing with a homicidal maniac," he remarked, and his voice was hard. "And with that brand one shoots on sight. Let's see if we can't get a sight. Back to the ladder, and move."

He led the way, and we followed as quickly as we could. But to keep up with Hugh in the dark was an impossibility, and he was soon far ahead of us. At last the wall loomed up in front, and it was as we reached it that the sharp crack of a revolver brought us all up standing. It came from the direction of the road, and a sick feeling of fear got hold of me. Which of them had fired?

"Hugh,!" called out, regardless of who might hear. "Where are you?"

"All right, Peter," came his welcome voice, and to my amazement I realized that he was the same side as we were.

"That shot!" I said. "Who fired it?"

"I can't see through a brick wall," he answered, "so I don't know. But with luck we may find out soon. He was over the wall when I got here, and ladder is the other side. Up you go, Scott, and pass it back."

Once again we repeated the performance of crossing, but this time Hugh was off the like a flash the instant he reached the ground. And it was just as we were wondering whether to follow him or not that the final shock of the evening occurred. A voice with a slight American twang came out of the darkness from close by.

"May I ask what you guys think you are doing?" it said. "Or would it be indiscreet?"

"Who are you?" I cried. "And where are you?"

"Who I am doesn't matter at the moment," went on the voice. "Nor where I am. But I have a gun in my hand, which I shall have no hesitation in using, if necessary."

"A game at which two can play."

Hugh's voice, doubly welcome this time, showed that he had returned.

"By the sound you are both new ones to me," said the unknown quietly. "I an thinking we'd better have a little light on the scene, or else someone will be having a bloomer."

"Then I will supply it," snapped Hugh.

He switched on his torch, and focussed it on the stranger. He was standing about five yards away, a thin, hatchet-faced man of about fifty. In his hand was a revolver, but it was hanging loosely by his side, and he made no move to raise it. For a while he stood there in silence: then he smiled faintly and spoke.

"I trust the inspection is satisfactory," he remarked. "But in case you want anything more, do you recognize that?"

He opened his coat, displaying the badge of the New York police.

"I do," said Hugh. "Was it you who fired that shot?"

"It was not," answered the other. "And if you will deflect your torch a little you will see why, though you will have to come nearer."

He was still holding his coat open, and as we got close to him we could see a bullet hole clean through it on a level with his waist.

"Touch and go, gentlemen," he remarked. "And now, if you have satisfied yourselves that I am not the villain of the piece, I would strongly suggest that you put out that torch. There are people abroad to-night who are attracted to torches, and next time it may not be my coat."

For a moment or two Hugh hesitated, then he switched off the light.

"May I ask what your name is?" he said.

"Certainly, though I fear it will not convey much to you. My name is Matthews—Victor Matthews. Am I right in supposing that you are the gentleman who were wandering around Spragge's Farm last night?"

"You can suppose any damned thing you please," snapped Hugh. "What I want to know, Mr. Matthews, is what you are doing prowling about here?"

The other laughed.

"I have always heard," he said, "that offense is the best defence. But really, sir, don't you think your remark is a bit cool? You may remember the badge I showed you, which, at any rate, gives me an official standing. But as far as you gentlemen are concerned, I fail to see that you have any—certainly none that permits you to break into the private grounds of a house in the dead of night. However, you need not fear: I shall say nothing about it. In fact, I am profoundly relieved to see you. I have played a lone hand long enough. And if you are prepared to assist me, no one will be more pleased than myself. Did you find anything of interest inside there to-night?"

"We found," said Hugh quietly, "a dead dog and a dead man."

"Dead man!" cried the other sharply "Who—le Rossingol?"

"The how much?" cried Hugh: prizes for French have hitherto eluded him.

"The Nightingale," said Matthews. "The man you saw at Spragge's Farm, making that ladder."

"No: it wasn't him," said Hugh. "It was Gaspard, Granger's servant. And he had been killed by a mysterious being in black."

"Throttle, of course," said the other.

"How do you know that?" asked Hugh suspiciously.

"Because," said Matthews, "the mysterious being in black, as you call him, who very nearly finished me off, is known, amongst other things, as the Silent Strangler. So he has killed the servant, has he?"

"We came on him in the act," said Hugh.

"Then that accounts for his rapid retreat," remarked Matthews thoughtfully. "Well, gentlemen, do we work together, or do we not? I can only assume that you have come into this show out of idle curiosity, or for sport. Am I right?"

And now it was Hugh's turn to laugh.

"I have heard worse guesses," he said. "What do you think, Peter?"

"I certainly think that if Mr. Matthews can explain some of these mysterious happenings we should join forces," I said.

"I can explain almost everything," he answered quietly. "But I do not think this is either the time or the place. So let us put things in order here, and go. It will be dawn soon."

"But look here, chaps," objected Freckles, "what about the bloke from Spragge's Farm— the Sparrow or whatever he is called? He must still be lying about all over the palace."

It was perfectly true: in the general excitement the ladder maker had been forgotten.

"You saw no signs of him inside? " asked Matthews.

"Not a trace," said Hugh. "And even if we didn't see him, I would have expected to hear him. He is not a silent mover. Incidentally, I wonder if he came at all to-night."

"He must have, to put the ladder there," said John.

"Not of necessity," answered Hugh. "Don't forget that this man in black saw him hide it and knew where it was."

"How do you know that?" cried Matthews.

"Because we encountreed the gentleman in the wood this afternoon. Only, as he was armed and we weren't, we left him alone."

Matthews whistled softly.

"You can thank your stars that you did," he remarked. "Or we should not be having this conversation now. Anyway, gentlemen, I look at it this way: If le Rossignol is inside there, let him remain: he will do no harm. He will kill Granger if he gets a chance, but, believe me, that doesn't matter. And if he is outside, again, let him remain there."

"That is all jolly fine and large,' cried Freckles, "but a great friend of mine—a lady—is inside there, too."

"What's that?" said Matthews. "A lady? How is that?"

"My fiancee is doing secretarial work for Granger," explained Freckles.

And once again Matthews whistled softly.

"Splendid," was his somewhat unexpected remark. "Perfectly splendid."

"I am damned if I see anything splendid about it," grunted Freckles.

"But I venture to think that you will," answered the other. And then his tone changed. "Gentlemen," he said briskly, "we cannot stand here all night. You, of course, must do exactly as you like. But may I ask what you were proposing to do if you had not run into me?"

A Thought

SUCCESS.

Success means character with all that it implies. Success means unwavering adherence to high principles in the face of fierce opposition and insidious temptation. Success means the courage to take one's stand, not according to the number of people who will be on your side, but according to the inherent moral worth of that for which you shall take up the gage of battle. Success means the ability to see straight and judge truly.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If September 4th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., and from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

This date will not be without its opportunities and benefits, but the influences will not be conducive to a pleasant frame of mind. Domestic worries and conflict with those about you. "Evil is wrought by want of thought as well as want of heart."

Children born on this September 4th will have impulsive natures, and they will be abrupt in speech. They will have splendid minds, and a great love of beauty, as expressed through Nature, music or literature. They will have expansive feelings and emotions.

You have a reserved, modest nature, and the world must learn by itself and from others of the things you are or can do. You are dubbed as being cold, haughty, proud and snobbish by those who do not understand that your seeming aloofness is an adopted trait for the purpose of covering up your inferiority complex. You are eager to be friends with the whole world, but you do not know how. You are not critical towards others, you are only critical towards self. You sing praises in your heart for nearly every one.

You are a good listener, and this is a gift above price, for by this gift you can win affection and admiration, as well as a reputation for intelligence and understanding. You know how to listen with both your heart and mind. You are an easy victim for loquacious bores. Your friends fill your ears, trouble your heart with their sorrows.

If you be a woman, you possess many of the Victorian graces and virtues. You set the man of your heart on a pedestal, and you treat him like a hero. You will be satisfied with unadulterated home life, and you will be happy if you have a family for whom you can work, worry and fuss. There is a danger that you will narrow down your interests too much or that your family will grow away from you. If you be a man, do not marry anyone with the temperament which September fourth women have; a modern woman is more your style. Only some one who can keep you guessing, will be able to retain your love and affection.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Pimples Itched So Could Not Sleep. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face was covered with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were rather small, hard and red, and spread to my neck. They itched so badly that I could not sleep at night, and when I scratched them they soaked over and were very sore. The trouble lasted about a month. "My doctor recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." BRIBERY IS HINTED AT IN MIDDLESEX ELECTION

LONDON, Ont., September 4. (C. P) — Evidences of irregularities during the recent Federal election campaign in East Middlesex, are alleged to be coming to light and Mr. Norman Newton, of the legal firm of Oley and Newton, of this city, is preparing a case for protest. The charges which will likely be made, include bribery and use of liquor to influence voters; it is also intimated that liquor flooded some of the urban sections of the constituency a few days before the polling, and that money was used freely also.

A number of persons have given information to Mr. Newton of a startling kind and others are expected to come forward to add to the testimony.

It is said that a scrutiny of liquor permits would reveal an extraordinary volume of purchases during the election campaign.

FIRE FIGHTERS FAVORING FEWER WORKING HOURS

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 4 (C.P.). — Adoption of resolutions favoring reductions in working hours in Canada and the United States featured two business sessions yesterday of the International Association of Fire Fighters, convening here. Approval was given the three platoon system and eight-hour day, with one day off in seven. The three platoon resolution stated the fire fighters were the only known body of civic employees working more than eight hours a day. In view of the fact that firemen did not benefit by any of the statutory holidays, it was decided to press for a three weeks' vacation, instead of the customary two.

IRONDALE YOUTH BADLY INJURED IN RUNAWAY

LINDSAY, Sept. 4. —(CP)— Edward Simmons 17, of Irondale has one chance in a thousand of recovery from serious internal injuries he sustained when he fell off a wagon drawn by runaway horses at his fathers saw mill at Irondale. He was dragged under one of the wheels for some distance before the wheel passed over his body. Brought into Ross Memorial Hospital last night after a blood transfusion submitted by his father, George Simmons of Irondale, he recovered some strength and is still living.

REV. W. J. MUCKLESTON DIES

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 4. (C.P.)— One of the senior clergymen of the Ottawa diocese and Cannon of Christ Church Cathedral, Rev. William J. Muckleston died yesterday after an illness which lasted since his retirement in 1911.

Born in Kingston, Ont., in 1857 the late canon graduated from Lincoln College in 1872 and immediately took up his church service. He served parishes at Camden, Belleville, Cardinal, Vankleek Hill and Perth, Ont., before coming to the Capital.

GENERAL TREND IS IRREGULAR ON MINE MART

NORANDA IMPROVES.

Lake Shore, Siscoe and Granada Rouyn Ease Slightly.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 4 (C.P.).— Light trading and narrow price range marked action on the Mining Market during the early period to-day, with the general trend irregular to higher.

Noranda added slightly to yesterday's recovery, selling at $22.15 at noon, and Nickel held steady at $24.80. Base Metals, reported to have sufficient ore developed to justify an important mill increase when metal prices improve, sold up 10 at $2.60, and Amulet gained a couple. Ventures, at 75, was off 5 from the preceding close.

Lake Shore eased a quarter to $22.75 and Siscoe and Granada were off a couple each. The balance of the golds showed some firmness, however, Kirkland Lake gold moving up another 5 to 65, and Oriole 3 to $1.10. Announcement was made that operations have been closed down at Central Patricia, following completion of the program outlined in the spring, and the stock dropped another point to 4½.

Interest in western oils was renewed to-day, Home Oil advancing 15 to $2.65, Alberta Pacific 5 to 45, and Calmont a couple to 55. Associated was off 2 to 23, and Nordon eased a point to 85.

WHEAT CHEAPEST IN SIXTEEN YEARS

October Deliveries Drop to 81 7-8 Cents on Winnipeg Exchange.

NEW CROP COMING HEAVILY.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 4 (C.P.).— Cheaper October wheat than the bargain board on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has been loaded with for sixteen years was laid out for sale to-day as values in all futures took another step downward. October delivery wheat declines to 81 7-8 cents a bushel. Not since 1914, when this option sold for 80 cents, has the stock been quoted so low.

Exceptionally heavy deliveries of the new crop to country elevators and consequent hedging by elevator interests carried the market down. Net losses of ¾ to 5-8 cents were scored at the close, fractionally higher than the day's bottom levels. Spreaders between Chicago and Winnipeg offered the only support to the wobbly pit.

Parliament Likely Open On Monday

Ottawa, Ont., September 4. — With the position of Speaker of the Senate filled, the likely Speaker of the House of Commons in the city, the party whips arriving to-day, and another Cabinet meeting scheduled for this afternoon, preparations for the opening of Parliament on Monday, are becoming more evident. The Cabinet, which has gathered very nearly daily for some time, will discuss its legislative program, designed to alleviate unemployment, and which will be laid before Parliament at the special session called for that purpose.

MILK PRODUCERS MAY DO SELLING

Toronto Distributors Warned if Prices Are Lowered For Winter.

UNPRECEDENTED SPREAD.

MARKHAM, Ont., September 4 (C.P.). — If the Toronto milk distributors refuse to pay the $2.50 per hundredweight asked for by the producers for the winter months, the Toronto Milk Producers' Association may become a selling organization and market as well as produce the milk.

This was the statement made last night by Professor B. Sissons, director of the association, before a crowded meeting of the York County branch of the association.

Great enthusiasm was shown by the audience throughout the meeting, which culminated in the unanimous passing of a resolution supporting the association in its demand for $2.50 per hundredweight.

Pointing to the Fraser Valley Producers' Company which became a selling organization, Professor Sissons warned the distributors that if they persisted in their policy of "demanding a lower price for milk the producers would become a retailing organization for their own protection. This is our alternative," declared Professor Sissons amidst loud applause.

"We shall not accept $2.20 per hundredweight. We may acquiesce in that price for September but if it is insisted upon the public will hardly agree to the pocketing by the distributors of an extra 16 cents spread an unprecedented spread; unprecedented in Toronto where to judge by the history of dairy stocks, the spread of past years must have been ample.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawif Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4.—Wheat market was somewhat steadier yesterday, and after opening about a half cent lower, prices firmed up with a good cent lower, prices firmed up with a good class of buying going on, until they were one cent above the close Tuesday night. On this upturn support was withdrawn, and with liberal selling, largely credited to the pool who were unloading October wheat from 85 cents up, the market weakened and again made new lows for the day, also in years. The early buying was by exporters, mills and on spreads against sales in Chicago. Offerings were fair at the start but were well taken, but the pool offerings filled up the demand, and later pressure from hedging sales carried the market to the low marks. Some of the local crowd were buying moderately at the start, on the basis that the market was due for some upturn following the sharp break of Tuesday and the steady decline for days, but they were quick to take profits. Export sales overnight were placed at 600,000 bushels, largely Manitobas, but included a little American durums. Shippers and exporters were in the market for all grades of cash wheat at prices unchanged from the previous close, but offerings were not heavy, as holders generally were asking a fraction advance in spreads. Flour trade has again turned very dull, both domestic and for export, but mills have reduced prices and this may bring in further business. The weather continues clear and ideal for harvesting operations with threshing in full swing.

Country marketings were 7,379,000 bushels as against 5,439,000 last year. Bradstreet's available supplies increased 6,741,000 bushels and now stands at 345,158,000 bushels, last year 344,810,000. The market finished weak and on the bottom, showing losses of one cent in all months. Would sell wheat on all fair bulges.

Coarse Grains: Oats and barley were quite steady yesterday but there was very little going on, the market being quiet, but no pressure to speak of. Rye was weak and followed the trend of wheat. Cash coarse grain markets dull with just the odd car changing hands. Oats closed 1-8 up to unchanged, barley 1- to 5-8 lower and rye 1 3-8 lower.

Flax: Dull and featureless, closing 1 3-4 to 1 1-2 lower. Liverpool due 1 3-8 to 1 1-8 lower on Winnipeg.

JUDGMENT ON A. B. C. CASES GIVEN ON OCT. 6

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 4. (C.P.)— Judgement in the preliminary hearing of the cases connected with the Amalgamated Builders Council, commonly called the A.B.C., will not be given until October 6. Magistrate David M. Brodie announced in Windsor Police Court this morning. At the conclusion of the preliminary hearing last July, the Magistrate intimated that judgement would be handed down to-day, September 4.

BRAZILIAN TRACTION ADVANCES TO NEW HIGH ON TORONTO CURB

Firmer Tone Much in Evidence During This Morning's Trading.

OILS HOLD EVEN.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—(CP)— The firm tone which has characterized dealings on Toronto Stock Exchange since the beginning of the week was in evidence this morning. Chief interest centered in Brazilian Traction which following an overnight rise in London, came out a point higher here and advanced to 37, a new high on the current recovery.

International Nickel, which resisted the downward tendency in Wall Street, yesterday afternoon, was this morning unchanged around 24 1-2. The oils, while not making further progress, were holding well around their previous closing levels.

Farm implement stocks retained their gains, Massey-Harris at 23 or better. Cockshutt Plow up slightly at 19½. Blue Ribbon preferred was up between one and two points at 32. Building Products and Ford of Canada were firm, the former up nearly a point. Service Stations at 40 was also up one. Walkers was just above eight.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 4. (Special to Examiner.)—The utilization of Natural gas resources of Canada and the United States is receiving increasing attention, and since this development requires a large volume of casing pipe and pipeline materials, improved demand for these products is proving an encouraging index of future activity in this direction. United States has made greater headway in pushing natural gas consumption but fresh evidence is on hand that some important Canadian projects are so under way in Western Ontario and certain sections of Western Canada.

Reports around town to-day were that an unusually rich drill hole was completed at Waite Ackerman Montgomery a week or so ago. Officials could not be reached for comment on the rumor, but usually well informed circles were of the opinion the hole was one of the most outstanding encountered in some time.

Vipond Flourishing.

Vipond, due largely to a clean-up of the mill was reported to have had an exceptionally good month in August with motor production totalling in the neighborhood of $93,000. The average output during the past few months has been around $80,000. Underground developments continue satisfactorily, it is stated, particularly along the Hollinger line where work on the 400 and 500 levels is yielding good results.

Another shake up in the affairs of Abana mines appears to be looming up as a distinct possibility following expressed dissatisfaction among some shareholders regarding the policy of the company's directors. Apparently some quarters are not supplied with the slow pace at which the mine is moving towards production and are out of sympathy with the idea of continuing for possibly another half year with the debt steadily piling up.

It is understood a committee is being formed to investigate and that an effort may be made to have two leading mining men placed on the board.

The long crosscut into capital ground which shareholders of Castle Trethewey were told would be a factor in the question of continuing operations, has been completed and a high grade vein of silver, some three inches in width, was encountered. Officials of the company visited the property this week and examined the discovery, and plans for further exploration are being made. Only a few rounds have been put into the new find so far, and definite details will not be known until further drifting and crosscutting has been completed.

Victoria Resident Given Three Months

LINDSAY, Sept. 4 (Special to The Examiner).—Alex. Anderson, of Victoria Road, was sentenced to a term of three months in jail yesterday at a session of the County Police Court for having liquor in his possession not purchased at a Government store. The case followed the conviction of Gordon Ouderkirk, of Victoria Road, who was heavily fined last week for having moonshine in his possession. He told the court that the liquor had been brought to his home by Anderson.

TROUBLE IS BREWING ACROSS BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 4 (C.P.).— Public excitement over the existing political situation, which admittedly has been most serious for more than a week, was intensified greatly to-day with the publication of reports that President Yrigoyen had been asked to resign and had refused.

Critica, afternoon newspaper, said that a group of leaders of the President's own party, the Radicals, had asked his private physician, who is treating Senor Yrigoyen for influenza, to request him to resign. The physician, the paper said, did this, but Senor Yrigoyen declined to do so.

GEORGE STREET UNITED CHURCH CHOIR.

On Friday (to-morrow) night, all members are urgently requested to attend rehearsal in the church at eight o'clock sharp.

Eighteen Applications For Lindsay Constable

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, Sept. 4.—Lindsay town council had eighteen application for the position of night constable, rendered vacant by the death of Constable Fred Reeves. Last night the aldermen dealt with the applications and selected Alfred Hodgson, of Burnt River, for the position.

Among the applicants were a number of men who had experience in police work, but the choice fell to Mr. Hodgson, whose occupation was a thresher. His salary is $1100 a year.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(C. P.) — Prime mercantile paper 3-3¼ per cent. Foreign exchange easier. Demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain 4.86 3-16, France 3.92¾, Italy 5.23 7-16, Germany 23.84. Canadian dollar at 3/32 of one per cent discount.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

A situation in Cuba the best in years and a substantial improvement in Canadian business have combined to enhance the earning power of Orange Crush Limited, with the result that the company is among the few reporting earnings this year in excess of 1929. Results for the first seven months of the calendar year were slightly in excess of the new for the entire twelve months of 1929 and officials state prospects for the balance of the year are excellent. Net profits, after operating costs, depreciation etc., but therefore income tax and exclusive of earnings of wholly owned or partially owned subsidiaries for the seven months ended July 31, amounted to $89,758, an increase of $23,857 over the similar period of 1929. Despite the extremely poor business conditions in Cuba, the situation with respect to the company is greatly improved, and the Cuban subsidiary shows net profit after all deduction $2,692. Final figures for Honey Dew, Limited, for the same period are not yet available, but officials state earnings are running in excess of $7,500 per month more than the same period in 1929.

W. H. W. Statement

Directors of Hiram Walkers-Gooderham and Worts, Limited, took the right course in issuing a reassuring statement to the shareholders following their regular meeting Wednesday and action of this kind could be well followed by other executive of companies having securities in the hands of the public.

Reassuring Tone.

Evidence is not wanting that the markets are viewed in a more hopeful light since the turn of the month. Many issues traded on Toronto stock exchange have risen gradually this week end and which is more encouraging, they have not been confronted by heavy liquidation immediately following the rise. The advance has not been sudden nor has it been of large extent. This slow appreciation is best, drawing forth the public without leading to indiscriminate buying. It should induce more optimistic tone generally and quick busines. Wednesday the Toronto market went ahead and closed firm to strong despite a late decline in New York. The market was firm at the opening to-day and remained so throughout the morning the overnight rise of Brazilian in London nickel's ability to hold up above 24 and the action of the oils and imp.ement stocks were reassuring factors.

400 MAROONED ON LINER

PLYMOUTH, Mass, Sept. 4.—(CP) —Four hundred passengers were marrooned on the steamship, [illegible] mouth of the Nantasket Steamship Company today when the vessel grounded on a mud flat in the harbor here. An ebbing tide forestalled any immediate attempt to get the passengers off or to free the ship.

—Helping To Build A Nation—

No. 3:—Ontario Bakeries: Operating the largest chain of bakeries in Canada Independent of any flour milling company.

THE baking of bread is one of the relatively few industries free from seasonal or sympathetic periods of depression. Changing conditions of prosperity have no effect on the individual demand for this every day necessity of life. A daily turnover—on a cash basis places bread baking in one of the most outstanding positions of the depression proof class. Plants of the Ontario Bakeries are located in nine growing Cities and Towns throughout Ontario—in communities providing a steadily increasing demand for their superior product.

In past years these units have been operated with marked success. The connection that exists between these modern plants and the Canadian Terminal System, with their grain elevators, warehouse facilities and water transportation makes it possible for them to secure flour and other ingredients with dispatch at attractive prices. These factors combine to assure continual profitable operations in the future.

This is the third of a series of advertisements portraying the activities of a Canadian organization operating a chain of public service enterprises throughout Canada.

49 STUDENTS AT MILLBROOK CONTINUATION SCHOOL OPENING

SUCCESSFUL WORK

MILLBROOK, Sept. 4.—Millbrook Continuation School reopened for the fall term on Tuesday with an enrollment of forty-nine pupils, a record equal to that of last year, and with assurance that the number will be substantially increased in the immediate future. Second and Third forms have the highest enrollment and are well filled.

It is, however, a mistake for pupils to fail putting in an appearance and enrolling on the opening day since a time-table has to be arranged for the term, and to do this satisfactorily, both to the staff and the students, means dificulties for late comers. Upper School work was formerly done in the local Continuation School, but last year the staff was reduced from three to two teachers, and these classes have had to be eliminated; since the Board of Education so rules. Results of examinations last June showed quite an advance in successful pupils over those of the previous summer, and the Principal, W. H. Jordan, and the Assistant Principal, S. A. Cawker, with the co-operation of the pupils, and the helpful influence of the parents and the School Board, aim to establish a still higher record at the close of the present school year.

The school offers courses in Normal Entrance; Second Class Teaching Certificates; Entrance to Colleges and Hospitals, and Pass Matriculation. The teachers are anxious to do everything possible to meet the needs of the pupils already enrolled, or those intending to do so, and will be glad to consult with either parents or students on matters of educational significance which they would like to discuss.

A Spacious Building

The school building is one of which the community may well be proud, housing both the Public and Continuation Schools, the two-storey white brick structure having a sufficient number of class rooms for the work required to be done, a well-equipped science room, a large assembly hall obtained by means of folding doors when the library and adjoining class room are thrown into one, teachers' rooms for the principals of both schools, and surrounded by ample grounds giving opportunity for tennis, basket ball, and other forms of sport. Physical culture is a regular part of the curriculum, and the large basement is equipped to be used for some forms of athletics when the weather out of doors is unfavorable.

The rooms of the school are all well lighted with large windows, and with indirect electric lighting when dark weather necessitates its use. Drinking fountains and other sanitary conveniences are up-to-date, and the steam heating system is adequate for all requirements, as are also the arrangements for proper ventilation. The library is constantly being added to, and there is a piano for the use of the Glee Club, for the musical numbers featuring the meetings of the Literary Society each month, and also for public entertainments, usually sponsored by the latter organization.

One Scholarship

At present the Continuation School has but one scholarship, known as the "Doctor Norman Allen Scholarship" donated by Mrs. Allen, of Toronto in memory of her husband, who attended the Millbrook school in his boyhood days. One thousand dollars has been invested for this Scholarship, and the interest, fifty dollars, is given each year to the boy having the best all-round record for the entire school term. It is hoped that some public-spirited citizen will establish a similar Scholarship for competition among the girls in the not too distant future. The winner of the Norman Allen Scholarship receives a framed certificate from the School Board when the cheque is presented.

Entrance pupils from the local public school, not living within the bounds of the municipality, may compete for the Baptie Scholarship, donated by the late Miss Margaret Baptie, of Ottawa, and awarded to the two pupils in Cavan Township who hold highest places in the Entrance examinations each year.

Dorothy McDowell was the Millbrook pupil winning the Baptie Scholarship last year, Principal B. B. Dawson having, in his four years as head of the Public School, established the enviable record of having had but one failure among his entrance pupils, and with a large percentage taking honors each year. Of the 1929 class, fifty percent had Honor standing.

The schools combine for an annual Field Day each year, which is a most successful event, and the Continuation School holds an Oratorical Contest each winter that is a gathering community interest and importance.

POLICE MURDER CASE HELD OVER

Feeling Runs High in Welland—Kovacs Held in Jail.

HEARING SEPT. 11.

WELLAND, September 3 (C.P.) — Charged with murdering Police Constable Albert McNicoll of the Crowland police department, following the sensational shooting affray at 6th street, Crowland, last night, Joseph Kovacs ,Hungarian, aged 45, of 84 6th street, was arraigned before Magistrate John Goodwin in the Welland City Police Court this morning. The charge was laid by High Constable Harold O. Finger, who asked for a remand until September 11. This was agreed by counsel for the accused, John H. Flett.

Kovacs was not asked to plead and he was remanded to the Welland County Jail. He entered the court shackled to Provincial Constable Harry Peel.

The court proceedings this morning followed a night of investigation by Crowland, Welland and Provincial Police. The inquest on Constable McNicoll was opened this morning at a local undertaking parlor and adjourned until September 18.

Coroner Dr. Duncan Allison told the jurors the inquest was the most important for their consideration in a long time. He impressed them to secure the correct evidence and return a proper verdict.

Feeling at the officer's death is running high in some quarters of the city. McNicoll was esteemed both in Welland and Crowland.

It was learned this morning that Kovacs had lived with M. Julia, where the shooting took place, for the past ten years, as his common-law wife.

AUTO HITS MOTORCYCLE TWO SUFFEn INJURIES

COOKSVILLE, Ont., Sept. 3 (C.P.). —Charles Celin, of Toronto, was hurled to the pavement when the motorcycle he was riding was struck by a motor car at the intersection of the Dundas and Centre Road Highway early to-day. George Parsons, of Kitchener, driver of the car, was placed under arrest on a charge of criminal negligence. In the collision, Parsons' car overturned, and Mrs. Frank Mathews, also of Kitchener, and one of the passengers in the car, suffered a possible broken shoulder. Other passengers in the car were Thomas Brash, Kitchener; Cecil Walker, Kitchener, and Shannon Seibert, also of Kitchener, escaped with minor injuries.

Police state Parsons was travelling south on Centre Road, and failed to stop as required when he reached the Dundas Highway, and crashed into Celin, who was travelling west on the Dundas Highway.

"Gleaming white clothes and lots of work saved" says Mrs. I. L. Foulkes

"The water around here is very hard; that's one reason I never use anything but Rinso in my washer. It whips into rich suds so quickly—loosens every particle of dirt—and rinses out again in a flash. The clothes come so gleaming white—no wonder the man who sold me my washing machine told me to use Rinso always! I like it for dishes, too."

MRS. I. L. FOULKES.

All you need—in hardest water

Without the help of bar soaps, chips, powders or softeners, Rinso whips at once into creamy, lasting suds. Safe suds . . . recommended by millions of women and by the makers of 38 leading washers, too.

● Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—even in the hardest water. Get the BIG household package.

HAVELOCK W. I. FIXES TAG DAY

Funds Collected on September 24 Will Go to Institute For Blind.

LIBRARY PLANNED.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular meeting of Havelock Women's Institute was held in the council chamber on Monday afternoon, Sept. 1st. The president, Mrs. Clarence Hubel occupied the chair. Meeting opened with the Institute Ode, and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Three communications were read. One was from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind regarding the holding of a tag day, the funds to go to the Institute for the Blind. The letter urged the need of money to carry on the work. It was decided to hold a tag day in Havelock on Wednesday, Sept. 24th it being the day of the rural school fair, when it was thought there would be a number of rural people in the village who would thus have an opportunity of helping in this good work, by purchasing tags.

Mrs. Wm. Rice was appointed to wait on the Junior Institute at their regular meeting, and ask that they assist in the matter of tagging. Six taggers will be asked for. Three captains were appointed to look after the taggers. Mrs. S. McQuire in the east end. Mrs. R. Jones in the centre and Mrs. Bedford in the west end.

The matter of the sewing course came up for discussion. Miss E. Collins of the Department of Institutes, will conduct a short course in dressmaking here beginning on Sept. 15th. Twenty ladies have signified their intention of taking this course. It will be held in the Council Chamber each afternoon except Saturday, from two till four o'clock.

A committee was appointed to wait on the council meeting to ask the free use of the hall for the course. No lighting will be required, nor the services of a caretaker, so there will be no expense in connection with the course.

The matter of the library which the ladies have been considering came up for discussion. Mrs. Jones who was appointed to ascertain if Mr. Williams would consider renting the room over his store for library purposes, reported having interviewed him, and stated that he would rent the room, empty, and unheated for ten dollars per month. This was thought to be rather expensive for the Institute. Another merchant was approached and will give a smaller room, also empty and unheated for five dollars. The department will lend three cases, consisting of forty books towards a library for the Institexpress charges. This library can be kept for a period of three months, and must then be returned. The idea is to give the Institute a chance to accumulate a library while using the borrowed books. A library board will have to be formed consisting of ten members who will sign for the books, and be responsible for their safe return. After a great deal of discussion, it was decided to leave the matter over until the next meeting, when there will probably be a larger number of members present.

Mrs. Hubel addressed the meeting, and said that before leaving Havelock for her new home in Toronto, Mrs. Butters had given twelve nice books, towards a librar for the Institute. It was moved by Mrs. Hubel, seconded by Mrs. R. Green, that these books be received, and a letter of thanks be sent to the doner. Carried.

The matter of a Dental Clinic in the school came up for discussion and on motion it was decided to have a committee wait on the School Board, and ask permission to have a clinic held in the school. Mrs. Hubel and Mrs. Jones will act on that committee.

The matter of the lattice fence for the town hall was again discussed, and Mesdames Allan and Hagerman will act in the matter. The business being concluded Mrs. McQuigge gave a humerous reading, "The Busybody." Refreshments were afterwards served, the hostesses being Mesdames Hubel, Jamieson, Sanderson, Bedford and Green. Meeting closed with the National Anthem.

NORTHERN COUNCIL MEETS IN APSLEY

Burleigh and Anstruther Members Raise Township Rate to 9 Mills.

APSLEY, September 4 (Examiner Correspondence). — A meeting of the Municipal Council of Burleigh and Anstruther was held in the Town Hall on Saturday, August 30, members present being Reeve Windsor, Councillors Downing, Coones, and McCauley.

It was moved by McCauley and Coones, and carried, that Stanley Windsor be appointed collector at a salary of $85. Moved by by Reeve Windsor, that George Stephens be given six days to repair weigh scales on road allowance or said scales will be moved at Mr. Stephens' expense. Moved by Messrs. Downing and Coones, that the matter of the scales be laid over until next meeting of Council on account of there not being a full Council present. Carried.

It was decided to raise the township rate to 9 mills for the current year on motion of Downing and oCones.

By-laws authorizing the levying and collecting of taxes, the levying and collecting of school rates, the appointment of a tax collector, and a road machinery by-law, were passed. The following accounts were ordered to be paid: Frank Tanner, road work, $2.50; Metallic Roofing Company, for metallic culverts, $84.82; Canadian General Insurance Company, road insurance, $100; George Carr, salary clerk, $25.00.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVES COMMON AILMENT

Millions Already Know Its Effectiveness

One of the most common ailments in the world is constipation. It is also one of the most dangerous diseases known to mankind. It is the source of many complaints which strip life of its pleasure.

Many people have constipation in a milder form and do not know it. Perhaps they are suffering with headaches, backaches, indigestion, bad breath, and general physical depression. These are often symptoms.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or money will be refunded.

The most frequent cause of constipation is lack of roughage in food. Modern, soft foods seldom contain enough.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains roughage. It is the original ALL-BRAN, introduced by Kellogg for relieving millions of people from the scourge of constipation and slavery to habit-forming pills and drugs. It also adds needed iron to the blood.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream. Over cereals and fruits. In soups. In cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

NEW SPORT STARTED.

Scott's "Wee" Golf Course at Campbellford Opens For Play on Labor Day.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 4 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Labor Day marked the opening of Scott's "Wee Golf Course" here, when many people took advantage of the offer of a free game to celebrate an innovation to the town of Campbellford.

Since Monday play has been increasing on the links. The greens are being kept in first class condition and comments that have been passed by town people and visitors are to the effect that the course is the best in this part of the country.

Dr. H. T. Scott is responsible for the starting of this sport in Campbellford and events seem to lead to the fact that miniature golf will become a fashionable pastime in town.

Tax Collector Appointed For Seymour Township

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 4 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The regular meeting of the Seymour Township Council was held yesterday morning in the council chambers with all members present. Reeve G. Van Volkenburg in the chair.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted, the secretary read a communication from J. H. Smith in regard to the usual grant of $30 to the school fair. This was considered and passed.

Councillor Duncan presented a bye-law appointing W. Fisher collector of taxes for the current year. This was read three times, passed, signed and sealed.

Accounts to the amount of $2,931.07 were presented and passed.

The council then adjourned until October 6th.

SPRINGVILLE.

Mrs. M. Westington was hostess on Thursday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Murray, Scott's Corners, in honor of Miss "Connie" McConnachie, whose marriage takes place in early September.

After witnessing an elaborate mock marriage ceremony, the bride-to-be was called to answer the ringing of the telephone. A huge white telephone decorated with white streamers awaited her in an adjoining room. A pretty little bride perched in front of the mouth-piece and a policeman warningly looked down at her from a higher vantage point, issuing the warning "Stop!"—but all too late.

Following the opening of the gifts and Miss McConnachie's sincere thanks, the party retired to the lawn, where games and a social time were enjoyed.

To Try Long Flight

A non-stop flight from Vancouver, B.C., to Agua Caliente, Mexico, will be attempted by Ruth Alexander, holder of the women's altitude record for light aeroplanes in which she will make the long journey.

"IRON CHINK" A MODERN MACHINE

Lawlor, and which has been proved from experiments carried out by the Department of Fisheries is that the salmon come back to spawn when about four years old, in the same river in which they were spawned, and after having spawned they die.

During their visit to the cannery, Mr. Lawlor's party saw a catch of 10,000 Sockeye Salmon, although he was informed that this was by no means a record catch. The record stands at 22 000 fish.

General Conditions in West

Regarding trade conditions, Mr. Lawlor was of the opinion that nowhere in the West are people occupied more than in Ontario. "We hear complaints of bad conditions in this Province, but we are well off compared to the people in the West and the Western States in particular."

He thought that Saskatchewan had a splendid wheat crop this year while the crop in North Dakota he described as fair, "though, in all my travels I saw no crops to equal those in Central Ontario" he exclaimed.

Absence of Harvesters

Another thing which struck him forcibly was the absence of the traditional harvesters this year. Through all the small towns of the West, he saw giant combines at work, and all agricultural implement dealers appeared to have one or more of these machines in stock, which he was informed are being shipped from the manufacturers in the east f.o.b.

The fruit crop in the Okanagan Valley appeared to be very good, although Mr. Lawlor expressed surprise at learning that the fruit farmers in the valley depend a great deal upon irrigation.

Mr. Lawlor and party attended the Calgary Stampede and he said all were well pleased with the show which portrayed a fast-disappearing and romantic side of Canadian life.

Little Red Schoolhouse

Possibly one of the most unique experiences during the whole trip, thought, Mr. Lawlor was a sight witnessed at a big lumber camp on the British Columbia coast. Here floating down a river was a large raft on which were built from twelve to fifteen houses. There were a number of children aboard and Mr. Lawlor asked the captain of the raft what educational facilities were afforded the children.

"Don't you see the little red school house" he replied.

Much to his stonishment Mr. Lawlor did see the little red school house, built on the raft and was informed that under the laws of the Province a school can be demanded in any community where there are twelve children or more.

Travelling down the recently constructed Redwood Highway across the border, the party proceeded to San Francisco, also visiting Yellowstone Park and traversing the States of Oregon and Nevado. The Redwood Highway takes a course through trees whose tops tower hundreds of feet above. The largest tree they saw was one reputed to be 7,000 years old, which boasted a diameter at the base of 32 feet. The average height of the trees is from 300-400 feet.

Through a Glacier

In Yoho Valley the party travelled through a tunnel made in a glacier which had slid down a mountain side and blocked the roadway. Salt Lake City was also visited on the return journey and the party were much impressed by the beautiful architecture of the buildings, particularly the Temple, Tabernacle, Community Hall and Museum.

YOUNG MOTHER ARRESTED FOR CHILD DESERTION

HAMILTON Ont., September 3 (C. P.). — Ethel Croft was arrested this morning on a charge under the Children's Protection Act of deserting her child when police traced the baby through the meat basket in which the child had been left at the door of Mrs. William Hofsash 376 Emerald Street North early yesterday morning. Children's Aid officials recognised the girl when she was arrested this morning. The girl told the police that the baby had been born at Ottawa and that she had just returned to Hamilton.

Lots of Suds...

quick.....lasting

says Mrs. Hilda Doran Ross

GRIME, grease and embedded dirt can't resist the rich, full-bodied suds of Princess Soap Flakes.

They dissolve quickly into lots of lasting suds. Not a stiff surface foam, but a penetrating, glistening soapiness all through the water, as suds ought to be.

And Princess Soap Flakes will do all the washing in your home...cleaner, quicker. It will not harm anything that is not harmed by plain, tepid water. It will safely and thoroughly cleanse your dainty coloured garments. Read our guarantee. Yet inexpensive enough for the whole family wash!

The big blue and yellow package is full of pure soap...no harsh caustic soda or chemical filler. It will not make hands rough or red. It keeps them smoother...lovelier.

For dishes, too. Without wiping, they dry to sparkling cleanliness...just rinse.

Get a package today and discover for yourself how you can use Princess Flakes for every washing purpose. See how economical because of its quick underwater suds.

Where you meet ROMANCE AND REALITY TO PERFECTION

Canada is the proud possessor of at least two organizations that reveal the real and romantic spirit of our young nation.

The one, the Canadian National Exhibition ranks first among the world's finest Exhibitions, giving visitors a peep into the romance and reality of the activities of other nations, as well as the wealth of Canada's own fisheries, mines, forests and farms.

The other, the Loblaw Groceterias, also keeping pace with the vast growth of our Dominion, are the stores that exhibit to the housewife daily the vast production of food commodities that the world has to offer.

OTTAWA ORDERED TO PAY $343,090 FOR PROPERTY

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 4.—(C.P.)—Norman G. Larmonth, K.C., official arbitrator, has named $343,090 as the amount the City of Ottawa must pay Knox church for its property, expropriation in the scheme for beautification of the central part of the capital. The church asked $660,000 and the city offered $250,000.

It is not expected either party will be satisfied with the decision and an appeal is likely. In this event the case will go before a County Judge.

KEEPING MOSQUITOES AWAY.

A number of years ago I accompanied a couple of chaps on a fishing expedition into a wild part of the country.

We were warned about the mosquitoes and each of us carried a bottle if citronella oil, in addition to a net for over our head and face.

It seemed to me that I was applying this oil to my hands almost every minute, because the mosquitoes kept away for about that time and then began to come near again.

I determined on something that would 'stay' longer, and on my next trip used half olive oil and half oil of citronella.

This was quite an improvement, but I came across a recipe the other day that looked so good to me that I want to pass it along to my readers. It was given by Dr. C. Dover, of Calcutta.

It was citronella oil, ½ ounce; spirits of camphor, ½ ounce; cedar wood oil ¼ ounce, and white vaseline, 2 ounces. The vaseline should be melted, and the other constituents then added, the mixture being well stirred. It is bottled and cooled rapidly, preferably by placing the bottle which should be kept closed) in a basin of cold water or in a refrigerator.

The formula gives a firm whittish non staining cream of pleasant odor, which in addition to keeping away mosquitoes, is soothing, antiseptic, and beneficial to the skin. One application lasts for a whole night and only a small quantity need be used on each occasion. To avoid using it on the face in the evenings, it may be rubbed on the hair, as it was found that for time this keeps the mosquitoes away almost as successfully as if the whole face were smeared with it.

I know that in many districts mosquitoes are now gone for the year, but there are still places where the yare very much present, and the use of this preparation will make a holiday free from annoyance or actual pain and often some fever.

One lone mosquito can often give you a sleepless night. For the sleeping child it is a blessing indeed. And when you think of its effectiveness pleasantness, and ease of application as compared with the continuous use of the oil of citronella, it is certainly a great step forward.

I trust that my readers will save Dr. Dover's recipe, because he should know how to fight mosquitoes.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

WONDER how many of you readers live alone?

• • • • • • •

It is rather a peculiar question to ask, I know, but nevertheless my topic to-day is about the woman who lives alone. Possibly you wonder what I am going to talk about.

• • • • • • •

The woman who lives alone may well take pointers from the methods employed by English officers' families who are stationed at posts far from their own civilization.

• • • • • • •

These families have to keep up the same punctiliousness in their lives as they would in their native land. They follow the identical routine.

• • • • • • •

Tea is served in the afternoon and the men and women dress for dinner. It takes effort to live so when no one about them follows such a schedule.

• • • • • • •

But it has been found that without sticking to such a regime, careless habits creep in to despoil the graces of home life, and so this must be guarded against.

• • • • • • •

It is in the mater of avoiding going backward in the niceties of life that the woman who lives alone has to be on guard. It may seem futile to lay the dinner table as attractively for herself as if others were to enjoy the meal.

• • • • • • •

Unless she does she will soon find herself eating from the pantry shelves, taking her morning cup of coffee and having her rolls as she hustles about getting her housework done, or making ready for her trip to her place of business.

• • • • • • •

The habit of eating carelessly will not continue isolated. Soon this slip from the beauty of living is followed by other minor ones.

• • • • • • •

Then unless she brings herself up with a round turn she will gradually become careless in her household affairs, even sometimes to slovenliness.

• • • • • • •

A habit of thought that the work is not worth while "just for me" she persuades herself. But after all, isn't it worth while?

• • • • • • •

The woman who keeps herself mentally high in her estimation will cherish the artistry of home life and be as punctilious about sticking to dainty customs when alone as if there were others to notice how excellent was her housekeeping.

• • • • • • •

If it is easier to serve herself on a tray, she sees to it that she uses her choice dishes, the best of her silver and also glassware.

• • • • • • •

Since she washed the things herself, she can have litle fear of them being broken. She will handle everything with more care than a servant

• • • • • • •

Then too, her appetite will keep good far longer if she caters to it and sets the eatables out to appear most tempting and not just any way at all

• • • • • • •

The woman who has lived alone will have found that unless she keeps strictly to the methods suggested, she cannot retain the graces of home life.

• • • • • • •

The woman who is starting to live alone will soon appreciate the necessity, whether a young person in the first bloom of housekeeping in a little apartment she has fitted up to her taste, or an older woman who of necessity finds herself living a solitary existence.

Life-saving Crews Drag 30 Hours Before Finding Capt. Sutton's Remains.

THROWN FROM PLANE.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 4.—(CP)—The body of Captain Charles Sutton, well-known Toronto aeroplane pilot and Canadian veteran of the Great War, was recovered from the waters of Lake Ontario this morning by life-savers after more than 30 hours dragging.

Captain Sutton was killed yesterday when the Fokker cabin seaplane he was flying in the Efficiency Challenge Trophy race at the Canadian National Exhibition, tipped the left wing in the water while banking and turned completely over. Sutton was catapulted unconscious from the machine and drowned. His mechanic, Claude Mills, 20, was rescued by life-savers. The plane was completely wrecked.

EIGHTY PARALYSIS CASES IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, September 4. (C.P.) — Four new cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to the City Department of Public Health to-day, thus making a total of 80 cases in the city since August 1. Although the death rate is very low it is thought that the administration of serum before paralysis sets in is a strong factor in keeping the death rate down. Only four deaths have occurred in the city this year from paralysis.

Wings Take Double From Leafs--Birds Drop to Third Place

GEORGE GRANT HOLDS LEAF IN FIRST TILT

Harris' Hit Brings Phillips Home For Winning Run of the Game.

KEYS BEAT ORIOLES.

And Royals Move Into Second Place, Half Game in Front of Baltimore.

TORONTO, September 4. (C.P.) — Almost unnoticed the Montreal Royals have clubbed their way into second place in the International league to furnish another menace to the pace setting Rochester Redwings—a task heretofore delegated to the Baltimore Orioles.

Taking a double header from the Buffalo Bisons yesterday while the Orioles were dropping their one game the Royals moved int osecond place, a half game in front of Baltimore, and five and one-half games back of Rochester.

The Royals were outhit in their first encounter with the Bisons, but bunching of six blows gave them the 5-3 decision, and then they came back to take an easy 9-2 victory in the nightcap. In the second game the Royals hammered Dave Danforth from the mound in three innings, piling up their nine runs in the first four frames, while Brown and Holsclaw kept the ten Buffalo hits well scattered.

Rochester refused, however, to give ground, also taking a double header from Toronto by the scores of 3-2 and 6-1.

George Grant held the Leafs to three hits to win the opener—two of the blows coming in the ninth inning, when pinch hitter Harris drove the ball over the fence, scoring Phillips, who had singled. John Berly pitched even better ball in the second, letting the Canadians down with two safeties, while the champions were bunching their extra base blows with bases on balls.

The Baltimore-Reading contest went ten innings, before the Keys won 3-2, Lonnis Warneke, the young Reading right hander, scoring the winning tally. The Keys got to Koupal and Roy for only six hits, but four Baltimore errors helped Reading to score three unearend runs.

Newark also won a double header, drubbing Jersey City twice, 5-4 in the afternoon and 7-5 at night. The afternoon contest went ten innings and was the third successive game that the Newark-Jersey City tilt had ended in the same score. Entering the final inning trailing by two runs, Billy Zitman poled a home run.

St. George's Juveniles Beaten At Hamilton

Lose to Moodie Tigers in First Game of Semi-finals By 6 to 5.

HAMILTON, Sept. 4. — Moodie Tigers, Hamilton's juvenile representatives in the O.B.A.A. playdowns, came through with a victory in the first game of the semi-finals at Scott Park here yesterday afternoon, defeating St. George's of Toronto by a score of 6 to 5. The winners gained their victory in the second inning when they gathered four runs in a furious rally. Kaminsky, who had started on the mound for the same, was driven to cover in this frame and Sherwood, who took up the burden, pitched spectacular ball to hold the Hamiltonians safely in hand in all but one inning. Thereafter the winners tallied the winning run 'n the seventh inning on a walk and two hits, which constituted the bulk of their offensive efforts against Sherwood.

Brampton Excelsiors Win Mann Cup

ONTARIO TEAM WINS DOMINION TITLE 4 TO 1

Stage Three Goal Splurge in Final Quarter to Run Away With Honors.

CELEBRATION UNDER WAY.

Large Crowd Sees New Westminster Salmon Bellies and Brampton Tangle.

TORONTO, Ont., September 4 (C.P.). — Lacrosse enthusiasts from the Western Ontario flower town of Brampton journeyed to Varsity Stadium here last evening and, seated among some 7,000 local fans, saw the culmination of 25 years' efforts when the Excelsiors of Brampton defeated the New Westminster Salmon Bellies, four goals to one, and carried off the Mann Cup, coveted emblem of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association championship.

For years the Excelsiors have gathered together splendid teams in the hope of winning the historical trophy, but though they have been in the finals before, Brampton teams have never succeeded in winning the cup and Dominion title. Therefore, when the big red sweatered team from the Flower Town finally wore down their opponents to emerge victorious as the result of a three-goal splurge in the final quarter, supporters of the team lost little time in starting a lengthy celebration as soon as the final whistle had blown.

World Records Fall At Syracuse Trots

Hollyrood Chief Makes Fastest Time For Trotter, From Standing Start.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Sept. 4.— Two world records were smashed yesterday in the Grand Circuit races here. The first came when Hollyrood Chief came home in 2.06½ to win the final heat of the Empire State $10,000 trotting handicap, that time being the fastest ever made by a trotter from a standing sart.

The second was in the Yates Hotel 2-year-old pacing event, when Handy Dillon was chased home in 2.04¼, lowering the record of Calumet Adam for 2-year-old pacers by one-quarter of a second.

Tom Berry had a field day of it with his Hanover Farm horses winning the final heat of the American Horse Breeders' Futurity with Hanover's Bertha, taking all three in the State Fair Stake for 2.20 trotters with Foster Dillon, and grabbing a trio of starts in the 2.18 trot with Helen Hanover.

Guy Britton, third choice, took the Syracuse Hotel Stake for 3-year-olds in straight heats.

PRISONER GETS 2 EXTRA YEARS.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 3.—(C.P.).—Claude Anderson, under sentence of two years and ten lashes for aggravated assault at Hamilton, was brought here from that city this morning when two years more were added to his sentence. Provincial Constable Robbie identified Anderson as one of his assailants at Queenston early in the summer in an attempt to arrest three alleged pick-pockets, two getting away. Anderson admitted his guilt and asked for a speedy summary trial.

SENATORS LOSE OUT.

NEW YORK, September 4 (C.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics celebrated the occasion of the 90th victory of the current season by gaining a full game on Washington as the result of the two Americaon League games played yesterday. While the world's champions were trouncing the Boston Red Sox 11-4, the New York Yankees wre breaking the jinx the Senators have held over them most of the season by a 10-7 count, barely staggering through a ninth inning Washington rally to a victory.

Leads A's to Win.

A recruit outfielder led the A's to the triumph which put them 6½ games ahead of their nearest rivals. Jim Moore, former Texas leaguer, drove in four runs with a home run and a double and played the leading role in giving Mose Grove his 23rd victory of the season. Grove failed to finish the game, but the A's had given him a big lead before he retired in the sixth inning.

The Yankees did as much for Ed. Wells, whose three defeats of the season all have been at the hands of the Senators. They assaulted their Washington Nemesis, Sam Jones, for all of their 13 hits and ten runs in the first five innings. Wells evaded the Washington jinx until the ninth inning, allowing but five hits in eight frames. In the ninth it returned suddenly and the Senators slammed out six runs before Lou McEvoy retired the last man.

CHICAGO CUBS LEAD SHRINKS

Leaders Lose to Pittsburgh While New York Giants Get Even Break.

HURLERS HOUNDED.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer).

If the New York Giants fail in their attempt to overtake the Chicago Cubs in the hectic race for the National League pennant, their failure can be attributed in a large measure to their inability to take the chances offered them. The Giants have had several fine opportunities in the past week or two to gain ground while the Cubs have been playing only .500 ball, winning ten games and losing as many, but the Giant gains have been very small.

A great chance came the way of the Giants yesterday as they engaged the Boston Braves in a double header while the Cubs were taking a 9-6 beating from Pittsburgh's up-and-coming Pirates. But the total gain for New York was a half game. The Giants won the first game with difficulty 5-3 and lost the second by an 11-7 count.

The result of the day's action left New York 3½ games back of the Cubs while Brooklyn and St. Louis, which had no games scheduled, gains just as much ground, finishing.

The Pirates and the Braves each had one big inning and each won a bal lgame by it. Pittsburg clouted Bud Teachout and Sheriff Blake from the mound in th sixth and scored six runs, equalling the Chicago total. The Bucs batted clear around their line-up, piling four singles and a pair of doubles on top of two walks for the rally that carried them from behind to victory.

The Cubs made 12 hits to Pittsburgh's eleven, but failed to collect them in such an effective group.

Boston errors and some timely hits gave the Giants a victory in the first clash, a misplay by Richbourg in the seventh inning allowing the two runs that won the game to come in. But in the second, Boston hit hard enough in the eighth inning to offset its mistakes. Going into the semi-final frame three runs behind, the Braves attacked Bill Walker and Hub Pruett, who was hurried to his rescue, for eight runs and the victory.

BELLS BEATEN AT BELLEVILLE

C. O. B. L. Champions Outplay Toronto Titleholders—Will Meet Here on Saturday.

FINAL COUNT 12-6.

BELLEVILLE, Sept 4. — Hitting the offerings of Norm Moffatt and Harvey Gillespie, hurlers for the Bell Telephone team, at opportune times, the Belleville Nationals won the second game of the series by a score of 12 to 6, making a third game necessary. Failing to agree on the venue of the third game, the President of the O.B.A.A., R. A. Elliott of Deloro, ordered the game to be played in Peterborough on Saturday, with Hamilton umpires.

It was plainly the Nationals' day, the reputed heavy hitters of the Toronto team being held in subjection by the shoots of Alex. Weir, starry right-hander of the locals. He was in complete control until he eased up in the last frame, when the Bells shoved over four runs to make it look like a contest. He walked but three and struck out seven.

Norman Moffatt was slated for mound duty, but after lingering until the middle of the second frame he was relieved by Gillespie. He fared no better than the opening hurler and the game was well salted away in the eighth with a five-run rally. Neither of the Bell hurlers had anything on the horsehide and two triples, one by Vern Weir and the other by Bob Scott, with runners on, broke up the pastime. These two players led their team in hitting with three apiece, while Captain Harry Batstone was the leading slugger for his squad with three hits, two of them being long triples. Norman Jennings was the other extra-base hitter, getting a double, while Harry Mills and Earl Darrah helped themselves to two-base blows also. Belleville collected 15 hits in the pastime, against 10 for the opposition and at one time had the Telephone team down by a score of 12 to 2.

The feature play of the day was made by Cretney for the locals in the second frame when he made a one-handed catch of a hard-driven ball down the right-field foul line that would have been good for the circuit. Bell Telephone made the only double play of the game. This is the third time the two teams have met in the fall series.

ADVANCE SALE SHOWS EFFECT

Buckley is Suspended By Athletic Commission, Cannot Second Sharkey.

McLARNIN GOOD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.— A cold in the head is just an incident in the lives of most folks, but the one that happened to Al Singer, world's lightweight champion, threatens to become a $50,000 disaster for Madison Square Garden.

Singer was as good as ever yesterday and will resume boxing for his September 11 date with Jimmy McLarnin to-day, but the damage is done. There was a serious let-up in the flow of reservations. Many thought the match would be postponed.

Frank J. Bruen, the general manager, believed it was a $300,000 attraction when it was first made. He still contends it will set a new record for small fellows, but he is greatly upset over the unfortunate break. It undoubtedly had a bad effect on the sale.

There is only one conclusion for Bruen and McLarnin. If Singer gets a headache a week from Thursday, he'll have to buy his own aspirin or whatever it takes to relieve the effect of a McLarnin smack.

* * *

Jack Sharkey will have to do his own thinking when he gets in there with Victorio Campolo on September 26. Johnny Buckley, his manager, was suspended at yesterday's meeting of the New York commission.

Buckley made a number of waggish remarks about the Rhode Island commission, and the members seemed to think they were highly unfunny. So they dropped him from the rolls, and the local board concurred in the ruling yesterday. Buckley will not be allowed to second Sharkey, which leaves a big opening for Jack Conway, the associate manager.

The local Commission also granted a license to Jimmy Goodrich, former lightweight champion; approved Bertys Euring, the much-claimed German heavyweight and suspended "Baby Face55 Quintero. "Baby Face" gets sixty days for dodigng a fight at White Plains after he had weighed in.

DEFEAT KINGSTON

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 4. (C.P.)—Post Office, Ottawa ladies' champions, had an easy time defeating the Kiwanis Girls, Kingston, winners and conquerors of Belleville, in the first game of the series for the Eastern Ontario Ladies' Softball Association championship here last night. The score was 21 to 5.

N. Y. BASEBALL SQUADS TO SEE FEW RECRUITS

Giants and Robins in Pennant Struggle, Yanks Alone Will Peruse Prospects.

PENNANT PROSPECTS.

Pitcher Walter Brown Returns Majors After Absence of Five Years.

NEW YORK, September 4. — This is the time when many big league clubs are bringing in young players for preliminary examination before the training campaign of another year. The player limit, by which clubs are limited to twenty-five players from June 5 to August 30, has expired, and it is possible to carry forty players now, if desired.

New York's three clubs will do little in the way of player inspection during the closing weeks of this race. The Yankees will spend most of their time on the road and it is only when a club is home through the greater part of September that young players are ordered to report Both the Giants and Robins are battling for places in the world series melon cutting and naturally the older players will be kept busy until these places are settled Either club is a possibility for any of the four first divisions

One newcomer, Pitcher Walter Brown, already has reported to Bob Shawkey, and it is likely that Bill Werber, shortstop from Duke University, will rejoin the Yankees after the close of the Eastern League season Werber was with the Yanks for two weeks in June, since which time he has been starring at Albany as an infielder, at the same time leading the league in hitting The latest averages show Werber hitting .390 and all the scouts who have looked him over report that he is sure to star as a big leaguer

No Stranger

Brown is not exactly a stranger in big league circles Five years ago he had a trial with the Chicago Cubs and was let out He joined the Sarasota Club of the Florida State League in 1926 and later was purchased by Cleveland After a trial with the Indians he was sent to New Orleans, where he became celebrated as a strike out pitcher He was starring with the Oklahoma City Club when the New York Club purchased him about two months ago

Since his purchase by the Yanks Brown developed a kink in his pitching arm He was in uniform at the Stadium on Monday before the double header with the Mackmen

Whether the Senators are to continue the persecution of the Yankees to the close of the season, or whether the Shawkeyites will be able to get some slight revenge for the treatment suffered to date, will be determied in the next four days at the Stadium. Walter Johnson has brought his charges into town and will be here for a four-game series, closing on Saturday

American League followers still regard the Athletics as too much for any team they may meet in the coming world series, but they do not regard Connie Mack's team as highly as the 1929 machine.. One reason has been the failure of Rube Walberg to pitch up to his form a year ago, but there are other causes. Jimmy Foxx has not been quite so tough for opposing pitchers, and Mule Haas has not had as good a season as was expected. Mack has got some fancy pitching from Mahaffey and Shores but the team has not improved with its hitting as it did a year ago.

But there is no discounting the fact that Messrs. Cochrane, Simmons and Grove are quite a team in themselves, and that the A's still shape up as the class of the current crop of big league ball clubs.

Spondor Welcomed On Arrival Home

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Sept. 4. (C.P.)—Isadore Spondor, 16-year-old youth, practically unknown in his native town here two years ago, returned home from Toronto last night to the most enthusiastic welcome this harbor town has ever given a returning athlete.

Winner of $2,500 for finishing second in the $15,000 men's swimming marathon at the Canadian National Exhibition on August 27, Spondor was greeted by more than 5,000 persons at the demonstration in Lakeview Park.

Primo Carnera Easily Wins Exhibition Bouts

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 4. (C.P.) While Primo Carnera, gigantic Italian who has been bowling over fighters in the United States, showed himself as a great and able boxer, in his three brief exhibition bouts here last night, he did not give the fans an opportunity of judging his qualities in a serious scrap. Carnera was easily the master of the three fighters he met, Jack Demaye, New York, Jack McAuliffe, Detroit and Fred Caldori, Philadelphia.

The big man, who claims he is anxious for a chance at the world's heavyweight title, proved quite orthodox in ring style. He led with his left, showed a neat right cross, kept his chin well tucked under shoulder and moved around with a deftness and speed that was little short of amazing for a man of his proportions.

English Rugby Team To Play in Canada

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 4. (By The Canadian Press).—Football enthusiasts throughout Canada will have an opportunity of witnessing a select eleven from the English Football Association in action during the summer of 1931. The matter regarding the proposed tour of the English aggregation was thoroughly discussed at the annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Football Association yesterday.

The team will tour from coast to coast, facing the best elevens the Dominion can produce. Seventeen games have been arranged, the first of which will in all probability be played in Montreal. From Montreal the touring squad will cross the continent, playing games in all the big cities, ending their travels with games in Vancouver and Victoria.

Guy Curtis, Veteran Canadian Athlete, Dies At the Age of 63 Following Short Illness

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 4.—(C.P.) — Guy Curtis, celebrated Canadian Intercollegiate athlete of a generation ago, died early this morning in the little village of Delta in which he was born 63 years ago and in which he spent almost his entire life. Three weeks ago he was stricken with paralysis, suffered a second stroke last week and on Sunday developed pneumonia from which he failed to rally. In his heyday Curtis was scarcely without an equal in Canada as a football and hockey player and was the captain of Queen's University teams which captured championship after championship. Since his withdrawal from athletics he has lived in virtual obscurity in Delta, rarely leaving the village, and being induced with difficulty to attend football and hockey games in Kingston, only a few miles distant. His mother having died a few years ago, he is survived by no near relatives.

A petition signed by twenty-five lot owners in Kawartha Park and presented by as many ratepayers therefrom, with Mr. J. R. Price as spokesman, asked council to repair the fifteenth concession line between the Burleigh Road and Kawartha Park by taking out some dangerous stones in the roadbed, cutting out some trees for clearer vision ,removing some boulders dangerous to auto hubs, making some passing places and gravelling where necessary.

Council agreed to improve the road before the tourist season of 1931.

Moved by councillor McCorkey and seconded by dep-reeve Fitzgerald that ins. policy No. 11262, covering Tax Collector, Mr. Albert McIlmoyle against interior robbery to the amount of $2,000 be renewed for one year commencing Sept. 5th, 1930, at a premium of $12.50—Carried.

Notice was received from Emily township of the completion of the special improvememnt to the Emily-Smith boundary at the head of Chemong Lake.

The clerk was instructed to write Mr. Grandy, clerk of Emily, for copies of pay-sheets covering the above improvement.

Moved by councillor McConkey and seconded by councillor Milburn that Messrs. Louis McIlmoyle and Melville Sanderson be accepted as suitable bondsmen for bonding the tax collector, Mr. Albert McIlmoyle; and that the clerk prepare a new bond, entering their names along with that of the tax collector on the collector's bond as bondsmen for the collection of the tax roll for 1930.—Carried.

Moved by councillor Milburn and seconded by councillor Mullen that the reeve and clerk be authorized to borrow the sum of One Thousand Dollars from The Royal Bank of Canada, Peterborough, for the period of two months from August 30th, 1930 to cover current expenses.—Carried.

Moved by Dep.-Reeve Fitzgerald and seconded by councillor Milburn that the following accounts be paid:

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 4.— Wheat weakened in the closing stages of yesterday's market session to wipe out an early advance of 1 cent and finish with net losses of ⅞c to 1⅛c. A poor export demand, continued hedging sales, and the lack of outside interest combined to drive prices further into unexplored low territory.

The market showed a strong front in the first hour, Chicago interests contributing some buying. The support faded later on and offerings quickly depressed the market.

Shippers and exporters did a fair amount of buying in the cash wheat market, though holders were loath to sell stocks at prevailing price levels. Coarse grains held steady.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Sept. 4. — Local egg markets continued firm Wednesday, but prices are practically unchanged. Receipts continue about equal to the demand and consumption is fair, although the demand for seconds is rather slow. The carlot movement so far this week has been very nominal.

The expected increase in demand with the Exhibition under way has been rather disappointing this year, and there has been no export movement out of storage yet.

Dealers are paying country shippers for ungraded eggs, extras 30 to 32c, firsts 28 to 29c, seconds 23 to 24c, cases returned. Receipts of poultry have not shown any material increase here as yet, but the trade is looking for a marked increase in volume with the coming of cooler weather.

Butter and cheese prices were quiet and unchanged. No new arrivals are anticipated in the butter market, and a cycle of steady to higher prices is looked for over the next few weeks.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Wheat prices crashed down yesterday to the lowest levels reached here in sixteen years. Not since before the World War started in 1914 has wheat been sold as cheaply on the Chicago Board of Trade as it was at the close. The market showed no recuperative power in the late trading. There was no apparent concentrated pressure on wheat, and at times, some impressive buying support was noted. The rallies attracted increased offerings, however, and the consequent reactions swept prices into new low territory. A despatch quoting George S. Milnor, President of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, to the effect that all wheat used for drought relief purposes would be replaced in the open market, failed to steady the faltering market. All other grains were depressed by the downward trend of wheat.

Closing prices on wheat were unsettled at nearly the bottom levels of the day, 3-8c to 1 1-8c net lower than Tuesday's finish; corn closed ¼c to 7-8c down; oats from ¼c lower to 1-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to an advance of 13c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.— Prices for all lines of cash grain were reduced 1c per bushel here yesterday. The trade was dull. Feed wheat sold at 61c.; No. 4 C.W. barley at 43c and No. 5 barley at 41c.; No. 2 C.W. oats at 47c, and No. 3 C.W. at 43c. per bushel.

Further weakness developed for spring wheat flour and values were reduced another 20c per barrel. Winter wheat grades were steady. Spring wheat first patents sold at $6.40; second patents at $5.70, and bakers' patents at $5.30 per barrel.

Prices for British Columbia eggs were advanced again yesterday. Carlots of extras sold at 38c, firsts at 34c for goods on spot, and at 39c for extras and 35c for firsts, for cars to arrive. Receipts were 2,836 cases.

Quotations on cheese were a little higher: Ontario white sold at 15¼c, colored at 14c, and Quebec white at 14¼c, and colored at 14½c per lb. Receipts were 8,482 boxes.

The butter market was firm at 29c per lb. for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery in wholesale channels prices to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 52 boxes.

Betty Solves the Problem

Betty and her mother had always been particularly close. So it was quite a wrench when the girl left to work in the city. But Betty was a resourceful young lady with a high regard for long distance telephoning. She talks with her mother once a week, taking advantage of the night rates.

OBITUARY

GLADYS BEATTIE

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 4 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The funeral of Gladys Irene Beattie was held at the family residence at Meyersburg on Tuesday, September 2nd, the Rev. D. R. Clare of Norham performing the ceremony. The pall bearers were: Oscar Blakeley, Lyle Jones, George Bound, and Thomas Midgley.

Gladys Irene, who was the daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beattie of Meyersburg, was aged eleven years and six months, and died on August 31st after a brief illness. Many floral tributes gave evidence to the affection in which she was held in the community.

Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

HEAVY PROGRAM FACES BENNETT

Premier Plans Afternoon and Night Sessions Rest of Week.

TARIFF BILL BRIEF.

OTTAWA, September 4. — (C.P.) —Premier R. B. Bennett and his cabinet have a strenuous program facing them for the remainder of the week. The intention of the Prime Minister is to have afternoon and night sittings of the Cabinet Council to-day, Friday and probably on Saturday.

Sessional preparations are being rapidly advanced. The program for unemployment relief, the tariff measure to be introduced and the speech from the Throne are all in the making. To these matters the administration is devoting its concentrated attention in conjunction with the appointment of the personnel of various Harbour Commissions and the Montreal terminal question.

Work on national undertakings, such as a national highway, will undoubtedly form part of the proposal of the government for the alleviation of unemployment distress, especially during the coming winter. Through tariff protection of such agricultural products and goods as can be made and produced in Canada, the Administration will no doubt bring down a measure aimed at the stimulation of production in Canada as a means to increase employment among Canadians. Rejuvenation of certain branches of industry, such as woollen production, has been given and will receive further consideration, but it is learned no definite proposals have been decided upon as yet, and is the reason afternoon and evening sittings of the cabinet are being held.

The tariff bill will be brief in context. The measure will likely take one of three forms: a bill in the nature of a flat tariff increase, provision for an advance on certain specified imports, or a measure increasing the duty generally except on certain stipulated commodities.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 53 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

During the long trek up the coast, Tarzan had spoken freely of himself to d'Arnot, and asked many questions of the world toward which they were heading. D'Arnot taught him many of civilization's refinements. Tarzan told about the great chest he had seen the sailors bury; how he had hidden it.

Once d'Arnot questioned him about his parents, and Tarzan told him of Kala, his mother, the great fine ape. D'Arnot looked long and earnestly at him. "Tarzan, it is impossible that Kala the ape was your mother. You are pure man. Have you no clue to your past?"

Tarzan replied: "I have read everything that was in the cabin with the exception of one book. Possibly you can read it." He fished the little black book from the bottom of his quiver. And d'Arnot read aloud the diary of the unfortunate Lord Greystoke, written in French.

It ended just as Lord Greystoke was struck down by Kerchak, the king ape. . . . "To-day our little son is six months old. He is sitting beside me. Now he has grabbed my pen, and with his ink-begrimed fingers placed the seal of his tiny finger-prints upon this page. . . ."

And there in the margin were the partially blurred imprints of four wee fingers. . . . Finishing the diary, d'Arnot sat in silence. In his mind had sprung the determination to prove a theory. He believed he had discovered the key that alone could unlock the mystery of Tarzan of the Apes.

THE SABBATH DAY

The majority of men and women in Christendom apparently are in the fog, in regard to the Sabbath Day. The clergy of the past have called Sunday the Sabbath Day, and even to-day do the same thing. To say Sunday is the Sabbath Day is an error. In the early days of Christianity Sunday was never called the Sabbath Day. Jesus and the Apostles never preached "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." The Sabbath Day was done away with when Jesus came, and gradually fell into desuetude. The law of the land, in so called Christian countries, call for Sunday as a day of rest from unnecessary work. That this law is beneficial no one can deny, but in no sense is it the old Sabbath Day. Many in the past met together Sundays to publicly worship God and some yet continue the practice. To the true Christian every day is a Sabbath Day of rest, in the highest sence of the word.

INDIAN GOVT'S PEACE EFFORTS PROVE FAILURE

Negotiations With Disobedience Leaders Officially Broke Down To-day.

HOPE WANES FAST.

Sapra and Jayakar Pay Many Visits to the Nebrus and Gandhi.

BOMBAY, Sept. 4 (C.P.).—Peace negotiations in India between the Government and the civil disobedience leaders, including Mahatma Gandhi and the Nehrus, officially broke down to-day.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar have been trying to compromise the difficulties between the British Government and the Nationalist leaders in India. They paid several visits to Mahatma Gandhi and the Nehrus in their prisons.

For a time observers believed the mediators would persuade the Indian Nationalists to yield enough to meet the minimum British demands. This hope, however, has waned until only the most optimistic expected the negotiations to effect a settlement.

Gandhi's Reply Friday

Mahatma Gandhi's final reply to the proposal of the Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar today were being drafted in consultation with other congress leaders.

The letter will be delivered to the two moderates tomorow.

BATTERED LINER LIMPS INTO PORT

the storm. Dr. W. F. Gray, ship's surgeon, made a further examination of all in his charge and announced that their injuries were trivial.

Barometer On Rampage

Because of storm warnings the Coamo had delayed sailing from San Juan for Santo Domingo a full day. During the early hours of yesterday the barometer went on a rampage rising and falling and stopping at 27-75 because it could go no lower. The ship then was four miles off Santo Domingo harbor. The seas were running too high to permit a...horage. Capt. Evans cruised about hoping for calm. Suddenly a strong off-shore wind and rain blotted out the island before the skipper's gaze. From then until afternoon the storm rose in intensity. Just before 1 p.m. the captain said, the ship approached the center of the disturbance.

"In all my years at sea I never have encountered more wind" Capt. Evans said.

Victor Braegger, representative of the Maryland Casualty Company of Baltimore in Porto Rico and Santo Domingo, describing the storm said: "At 1 o'clock all of a sudden, the wind subsided as if by magic. We had reached the center of the storm and an oasis of comparative calm.

Ship a Haven for Birds

"Mountainous waves were rolling past us. The ship became a haven for all kinds of sea birds seeking shelter, clinging to the railing, ropes, canvas, and window sills of the cabins. The birds seemed exhausted as if from a struggle of hours in the terriffic gale.

"It was pitiful to see the birds making their desperate efforts for life, losing their strength at length and being tossed again into the rising wind.

"Thought Ears Would Burst"

"During this period of comparative calm the atmospheric pressure was so great I thought my ears would burst. I had a distinct taste of blood in my mouth; others experienced the same sensations. This lasted not more than half an hour, we seemed then to recover from the terrific strain, but with no fear for the other half of the storm through which we knew we must pass."

"Surely enough, at 1.30 p.m. with a terrific pounding and slamming of wind and waves, we were driven right into the thick of it again. Only this time the intensity of the storm and the howling and hissing of wind and rain together seemed greater than before.

MARIPOSA FARMER SUFFERS FIRE LOSS

Barn and Contents Valued at $12,000 Destroyed By Fire.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 4.—(Special to Examiner.)—Bertram George Fish, of Sonya, lost his $12,000 barn and entire contents, which included the season's crop, yesterday afternoon. Threshing was in progress, with a tractor, and the fire started in the mow, cause unknown. Mr. Fish had just recently purchased the farm, which is locatsed in Mariposa township. Insurance was held with the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of this town.

Plans Trip By Car Halifax-Vancouver On Canadian Soil

Halifax, N. S., September 4.—(C.) — Determined to complete a Trans-Canada drive from Halifax to Vancouver, without using ferry or railway tracks and yet not leave Canadian territory, Healy F. Needham, Western Canada newspaper man and veteran automobile driver, left here at 11 o'clock this morning with plans to be in Vancouver Thanksgiving Day. Needham will have some seven or eight hundred miles of virgin forest and wasteland to traverse without the aid of roads of any kind.

W. BARLOW DEAD C.P.C. EMPLOYEE

With George Matthews Company at Opening 47 Years Ago.

BORN IN ENGLAND.

Walter C. Barlow passed peacefully away at his late residence, 288 Sherbrooke Place, yesterday afternoon at the age of 83 years.

He was a well-known and highly respected member of this community and had a long record of honorable service to his credit with the Canadian Packing Company, formerly the George Matthews Company

Entering the service of the George Matthews Company 47 years ago, the late Mr. Barlow opened that company's first store in Peterborough, which is still in its original location on George Street, near Neill's shoe store. He retired from active business about fifteen years ago, on superannuation.

The deceased gentleman was born in Greenwick, England, in the year 1847. His father, the late William Henry Barlow, died while on active service with Sir Joseph Paxton's Army Works Corps, in the Crimean campaign of 1854-55, at Balaclava.

The late Mr. Barlow attended the Patriotic Boarding School for Crimean War Veterans' children, and after completing his education and serving a short business apprenticeship he emigrated to this country, coming to Lindsay in the year 1868, where he resided until coming to this city fifteen years later.

He was a man of fine physique, and bore the mark of the athlete. By nature he was quiet and unassuming, and centred his entire interests on his home and business.

He was predeceased by his wife five years ago, and leaves one daughter, Mrs. Alice Bradshaw, and three grandchildren: Walter, Eddy and Clara, all of Sherbrooke Place.

The funeral will be held on Friday at 3 p.m. from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Anglican Church will conduct the service.

Ontario Golf Title Play Starts Friday

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 4.—(C.P.)—Up to the present time 57 entries have been received by the Ontario Golf Association, 28 of which are from outside Toronto. The 36-hole medal competition for the junior golf championship of Ontario will be played at York Downs Club, Toronto, on Friday, Sept. 5. Eric Russell, of the Lakeview Club, present titleholder, will have plenty of opposition. Among the entrants who are considered to be in the contending class are Jack Nash, of the London Hunt Club, Ontario amateur champion, Phil Farley, Cedar Brook, George Boeckh, of York Downs and Chuck Keens of London, who qualified in the Canadian amateur at London last month.

CAR CRASHES, DRIVER KILLED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Septt. 4. —(C.P.)—Said to have been en route to Gravenhurst for the purpose of visiting his wife, seriously ill there, D. J. Casey, of Cornwall, Ont., was killed at midnight when a car in which he was proceeding west on Highway No. 2 left the road and went into the ditch near Grey's Corners, east of Gananoque. His companion, Clifford Steel, also of Cornwall, was seriously injured.

CHANGSHA CITY IS SURROUNDED BY 40,000 REDS

Defenders Inside Walls Number Only 30,000—One Avenue of Escape.

NO HELP EXPECTED.

Many Killed in Short Skirmish South of City—Attack Expected.

SHANGHIA, Sept. 4. (A.P.)—Wireless dispatches to-day reported Red legions number 40,000 men had virtually surrounded Changsha, capital of Hunan, within whose walls were only 30,000 defenders.

The advices, originating the Changsha said the only avenue not affected was the northern railway approach to the city.

Red riflemen were said to number 17,000, the remainder being armed only with spears.

No Gov't Aid Expected

Military defense officers did not consider their own force strong enough to launch an offensive and said the attempts to obtain reinforcements from the Nationalist Government had failed.

The situation was described as dangerous in the highest degree and the Reds were expected to attack momentarily. A sharp clash occurred south of the city this morning, many being killed on both sides. The main bodies of both forces remained inactive, however.

Changsha was sacked and partly burned by Communists a little more than a month ago.

FACTORY FIRE.

Small Blaze Discovered By Night Watchman.

The vigilance of the night-watchman and the timely intervention of Peterborough Fire Department prevented what might have been a serious fire at the William Hamilton Foundry, last evening. Fortunately the outbreak was confined to the locality of its origin, in some mould boxes situated at the rear of the moulding shop. The flames had gained a hold on the wooden upright of a crane, but were extinguished before reaching a large pile of dry lumber stored nearby.

SANTO DOMINGO

had been destroyed, telegraph wires blown down and gardens and country estates wrecked.

The floods resulting from the hurricane washed out many houses. People in some places were reported to have taken refuge on improvised rafts.

20 Dead on Little Island.

HAVANA, Sept. 4 (C.P.).—Advices from Kingston, Jamaica, this forenoon said that 20 persons had been killed and great damage caused on the little island of Dominica, West Indies, by the Caribbean hurricane. The Dominica radio station was completely demolished and almost everything on the island destroyed.

BUILDINGS BLOWN AWAY.

MIAMI, Fla., September 4. — All buildings of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., at its Santo Domingo airport, except the terminal building, were blown away during the hurricane that struck the city yesterday, according to radio advices received to-day by R. I. Dunton, operations manager for the company here.

RED CROSS AIDS.

WASHINGTON, September 4. (C.P.) — The Red Cross to-day cabled $15,000 in cash to Santo Domingo for relief of storm sufferers, and ordered one of its officials to fly immediately from Porto Rico to the stricken island.

Seek Reduction of Fees On Miniature Golf Courses

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 4.—(C.P.)—Owners of miniature golf courses in the city were present at a meeting of the Civic Property committee to try and lower the fee which is likely to be charged for the operating of a course for a season. The Board of Police Commissioners some time ago set the fee at $50, now it is under consideration to raise it to $300. A. B. Freer, president of the miniature golf courses of the city, explained that at present 55 courses were in operation in the city and that 40 of this number are privately owned. The remainder are owned by two companies.

GERMANY TO EXPEL DIAMOND.

BREMEN, Germany, Sept. 4 (C.P.). —Jack ("Legs") Diamond, New York ganster, arrived here to-day from Aix La Chappelle in the company of three detectives. The police would not divulge what they further intended to do with the man, but Aix La Chappelle despatches yesterday said that he was to be deported aboard the America to the United States.

French Woman Flier Breaks World Record

PARIS, Sept. 4. (A.P.)—Mlle Maryse Bastie, French woman aviator, today broke the world's women's endurance record for Sustained flight. She landed at 9.31 a.m. after exactly 38 hours aloft.

Her mark was two hours, thirteen minutes, and five seconds better than that of Lena Bernstein, made May 2, of 35 hours, 46 minutes, and 55 seconds. Mlle. Bastie previously had held the record at 27 hours sustained flight.

After she had broken the record this morning Mlle Bastie dropped a note saying that she expected to remain up two hours longer.

BOYD WILL STOP AT HARBOR GRACE

Flyers Change Plans to Take on Gas as Safety Measure.

START AT END OF WEEK.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 4 (C.P.).—Captain J. Errol Boyd, Canadian aviator, and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor, navigator, announced to-day that they would break their trans-Atlantic flight from Montreal to London, England, at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, with a short halt to re-fill the fuel tanks of the veteran Ballanca "Columbia" before setting out to sea. They expect to take off from Montreal at the end of this week at the latest, and will stop at the Newfoundland airport only a few hours.

The flight was originally scheduled as a non-stop attempt from St. Hubert airport here. The stop at Harbor Grace is described as a safety measure.

The Columbia, which has crossed the Atlantic once before, will take off from Harbor Grace with a little over 400 gallons of fuel to carry her the 2,410 statute miles between that village and London.

CAR IMPORTERS OPPOSE RAISE IN TARIFF RATE

Meet in Toronto To-day to Prepare Protest to Ottawa.

HAVE MANY EMPLOYEES.

Contend Most Canadian Plants Only Assemble Imported Parts.

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (Special to The Examiner).—The importers of automobiles and trucks of the district of Toronto held a meeting to-day in the Royal York Hotel, with representatives from every province of Canada to form an association which will present their views at Ottawa regarding the higher tariff agitation being conducted at present by the assembling organization in Canada.

Representatives at the meeting called attention to the reported representations made last week to the National Revenue Department at Ottawa, asking for increased protection, under the argument that by shutting out imports of American-made vehicles, they would increase employment at Oshawa, Toronto and Windsor, where their assembly plants are located.

Autos Are Assembled.

It was pointed out that while actual manufacturing does take place in Canada on several makes of autos, the major portion of the other makes are imported for assembly, and only the finishing touches are put on here, while the completed product is advertised as "made in Canada."

It was furthermore stated that these assembly organizations are already of necessity, manned with sufficient staff to care for much larger production than they are now making, and that the closing of this market to imports would not materially increase the Canadian employment at these points named. On the other hand, a very considerable number of employees of importing organizations from coast to coast, would be thrown out of employment were the Government to give way to these representations for higher tariff.

COLOMBIA BUYING CANADIAN WHEAT

Recent Campaign For New Market May Lead to Large Developments.

LOWER SURPLUS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5.—(C. P.)—Canadian wheat is finding an entirely new market in Colombia. On taking over the portfolio of Minister of Trade and Commerce Hon. H. H. Stevens instructed all Canadian trade commissioners to use their utmost endeavors toward the sale of Canadian wheat. The act was taken by reason of the surplus supply in the Dominion.

This morning, Mr. Stevens received advice by cable that new connection for the Canadian product had been found through sales within the last few days in Colombia and which, according to advice, may lead to larger developments.

Boy Buried Thursday Sister Died To-day

Fatal Illness of Children of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harran.

The death occurred this morning of Helen Ruby May three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harran of 305 McDonnell street.

Circumstances connected with the death are particularly sad in view of the fact that the parents were bereft on Tuesday of their infant son Herbert Allan who was buried at Little Lake cemetery on Thursday afternoon. oBth children were stricken with a similar malady, which it is learned from the Medical Officer of Health was not of a contagious nature.

The little girl was a member of St. Andrew's Sunday School. The funeral will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. from the family residence to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. David Wren of St. Andrew's Church will officiate at the service.

Dead and Injured Overwhelm Relief In Dominican City

Only 400 Out of 10,000 Buildings in Santo Domingo Withstood Wednesday's Devastating Hurricane—Doctors Fly From San Juan With Medical Supplies.

5,000 ESTIMATED INJURED IN ISLANDS.

Bahamas May Be In Veering Path of Storm — No Peril to Cuba and Florida Observer Reports.

(By Rene M. Lepervanche, Associated Press Correspondent. Copyright.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, September 5, 3 p.m. (Canadian Press). — Property losses of not less than $20,000,000 were caused by the hurricane which took a toll of 1,000 lives and injured 5,000 persons in this capital on Wednesday.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, September 5. — There were only 400 buildings left standing to-day in the City of Santo Domingo out of 10,000. The storm spared only those too strong for it.

The dead and injured in Wednesday's hurricane far exceeded in number the ability of relief workers to calculate with accuracy.

Reports from interior points show that the already tremendous proportions of the greatest of recent Caribbean storms must be increased with the arrival of information hour by hour from points left isolated.

Available estimates gave 1000 dead and 5000 injured.

Churches House Homeless.

The colonial churches, among the sturdiest buildings, have become the haven of thousands left homeless.

The National Congress acting in an emergency capacity, has granted President Trujillo full powers, and yesterday several thousand dollars were distributed among the most needy. Special control of foodstuffs has been established.

The weather to-day was normal, the brilliant tropical sun shining over the wierdest scene ever imagined in this beautiful spot.

It is impossible to deal at this moment with particular cases among the victims. They are all so bad that it looks more as if an earthquake had devastated this island than a wind storm.

No Rest for President.

President Trujillo has not taken a moment of rest since the storm began—he has been in the streets of the city personally ordering the distribution of supplies and rations.

The President's entire attention has been concentrated upon forestalling famine.

This afternoon the encouraging news was heard that two American ships were to arrive momentarily with medicines and foodstuffs in response to the appeal of Minister Curtis. Other envoys have appealed to their governments.

Governor Theodore Roosevelt, in San Juan, undertook a relief expedition from that city, calling into use the naval tug Grebe, stationed in the Virgin Islands, and the steamship Catherine which weathered the storm and arrived at the Porto Rican capital from Santo Domingo with the loss of only one mast.

Governor Roosevelt informed the Red Cross that San Juan would be the best base near the stricken city for supplies and personnel. In answer to requests for money the United States Red Cross at Washington forwarded $15,000 for the first emergency relief.

Physician, Volunteer.

A staff of eight Government physicians, carrying a varied assortment of first-aid supplies, will leave here by fast plane for Santo Domingo at 8 a.m. as Cuba's first move to extend aid to the hurrican-wrecked metropolis.

The eight physicians volunteered at a meeting of the Department of Sanitation and Public Health last night, and the Government chartered a tri-motored airplane to take them to Santo Domingo.

Port au Prince despatches said that two truckloads of medical esuipment with Haitian physicians had been sent to the relief of its stricken eastern neighbor, and that others would be sent as quickly as they could be assembled.

From fragmentary despatches reaching here it can be assumed that the hurricane took a heavy toll in the Leeward Islands and the Lesser Antilles. Martinique and Guadeloupe apparently escaped the storm, but the little island of Dominica, a british possession, suffered heavily. There were reports of from two to twenty persons killed, many injured, and a heavy property damage there.

Storm Losing Force.

HAVANA, September 5. — The hurricane which Wednesday almost razed the city of San Domingo, veered somewhat northward in its course today. In view of the changed direction Belen Observatory officials said they believed there was no danger of the storm reaching Florida or even Cuba in force.

DIVERS FIND SAFE ON SUNKEN SHIP

Contents Expected to Reveal Situation of Millions in Treasure

WRECK DOWN 400 FEET.

BREST, France, Sept. 5.—(A.P.)—Italian divers to-day located a safe in the hull of the sunken Peninsular and Oriental liner Egypt and brought it to the decks of the salvage ship Artiglio to search it for treasure and ship's papers showing the nature and placing of the cargo in the hold.

The safe, said to have been the captain's, was supposed to contain bank notes and information which would lead the seekers of a lost treasure running to several million dollars to a definite point in their hunt.

The receptacle was to be opened in the presence of representatives of the insurance and salvage companies.

The bulk of the Egypt sunk by collision in 1922, lies off Armen Light, in about 400 feet of water.

Edward Simmons Is Seriously Injured

(Special to Examiner.)

LINDSAY, September 5. — A 17-year-old boy, named Edward Simmons of Irondale, was brought to the Ross Hospital here yesterday suffering from serious internal injuries.

The boy was hauling slabs from his father's sawmill when the team of horses he was driving ran away. He was dragged some distance after falling off the waggon and finally one of the wheels passed over his body.

After his arrival in Lindsay, a blood transfusion was submitted by his father, George Simmons, in an effort to save his life. He rallied somewhat, but his chances for recovery are considered doubtful by the attending physician.

Ottawa "Doggery" For M. P.'s Closed

Ottawa, September 5. (C.P.)—When the special session of Parliament opens on Monday one feature that will be absent will be the restaurant and the cafeteria. The latter is disrespectfully known among the habitues of Parliament Hill as "The Doggery." Both establishments were well patronized, the restaurant on account of the adequacy of its meals and service, and the doggery by reasons of its inexpensiveness This will be the first time that those places have not operated during a parliamentary session. In 1919 the restaurant did not open for the special session, but the glamor that arose among the members eventually compelled those responsible to reverse their decision.

REDS STAMPEDE BUFFALO IN VAIN TO CAPTURE CITY

Animals Goaded With Fire Tied to Tails Charge Barbed Wire.

MACHINE GUNS FOIL RUSE.

Skirmishes Outside Changsha Result in Losses on Both Sides.

SHANGHAI, September 5. (C.P.)—The use of an ancient form of warfare—a manoeuvre in which burning torches were tied to the tails of hundreds of water buffalo, and the animals stampeded against defense lines of Changsha—was reported from the Communist-beleaguered Hunan capital to-day.

Changsha reports said Red forces surrounding the city, collected many hundreds of domestic water buffalo and used fire to goad them into a stampede toward barbed wire entanglements protecting the city.

Halted by Machine Guns.

Machine gun fire from defending troops halted the buffalo, frustrating Communists' hopes that the animals would cleave an opening through the entanglements.

Other Changsha reports said sharp clashes between Reds and defending troops had occurred south of the city with small losses on either side. The Nationalist government asserted its anti-Red forces had killed 10,000 Communists in a battle south of the Huan City, but this was not borne out by other reports.

Changsha, which was sacked by the Reds a little more than a month ago was faced with a second Communists' menace yesterday when the city was reported virtually surrounded by 40,000 marauders.

Defense forces were said to number only 30,000. The Reds were reported to have 17,000 riflemen in the ranks. The other Communists were armed with spears.

AGED N. Y. CARETAKER IS HELD FOR KIDNAPPING

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(C.P.)— A 67 year old apartment house caretaker, accused by his wife as the kidnapper two years ago of 10-year-old Grace Budd, was held by the police to-day as they renewed their search for the missing child.

Although identified by the child's mother and two neighbors as the Frank Howard who had offered to take the girl to a birthday party, the accused man, Charles Edward Pope, stoutly protested his innocence. He asserted he was the victim of maliciousness on the part of his wife, Mrs. Jessie Pope, who came here from her home in Williamsville, N.Y., to bring about his arrest.

A collection of old arms and armour was sold in London recently for $75,000.

RODEO HORSES ESCAPED FROM FAIR GROUNDS

Five Rounded Up in North Monaghan This Morning.

TWO STILL MISSING.

Welsh Bros. Stampede Offer Varied Program For Exhibition.

The Welsh Bros. arrived in Peterborough last night and unloaded their string of horses, left them as they thought, securely fenced in the centre field at the Exhibition Grounds for the night, and on arrival at the grounds this morning found seven head of bucking outlaws missing. After two hours' search they found five head about six miles from the grounds, headed for the wide open spaces. Two of the bronks are still missing and the boys are out looking for them.

During a conversation held with the famous riders this morning, they made an offer of one hundred dollars to any amateur rider who could put up a regulation contest ride of twelve seconds, three prominent citizens of Peterborough to act as judges and time the ride. There is only one clause in the arrangement and that is that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Association or the Welsh Bros. are not responsible in case of accident; all riders ride at their own risk.

Wild Steer Riding.

Another feature in connection with this Western show is wild steer riding. They ride the steers with loose rope and cow bell only (no saddle) and the same rules apply in the steer riding contest as the bronk riding with saddle contest.

During the past few years the Welsh Bros. have produced stampedes and rodeos in the following cities: Toronto, Montreal, Detroit, Ottawa, Buffalo, and Columbus, Ohio, and in every case have received great praise from the press and public for the daring horsemanship, good sportsmanship and clean wholesome entertainment.

Several other clever riders are with the Welsh Bros., including "Powder River" Charlie of Grand Prairie, Alberta, one of the best wild horse race riders in the West, and "Curly" Smith of Pincher Creek, a big huskey bronk rider and typical Western ranch hand who will be seen here in thrilling exhibitions of steer riding, bronk riding and wild horse racing. In the wild horse race the horses will be saddled in full view of the public.

Chuck Wagon Race.

The chuck wagon race is one of the most thrilling races ever witnessed in the east, each driver handling four bronks hooked to a covered wagon, tandem style, and travelling the half-mile at top speed. Although the show will take place in front of the grand stand at night, the Welsh Bros. have made arrangements to light up the track in such a manner that the races will be visible to all from start to finish.

When the chute gates yawn open at the evening performance on Tuesday the boys will be "rarin' to go!" and those attending the grand stand are in for a real Western treat.

United States' Golfers Retain Devonshire Cup

TORONTO GOLF CLUB, Sept. 5.—(C.P.)— The team representing the United States' Seniors' Golf Association retained possession of the Duke of Devonshire trophy here this morning by defeating the Canadian team by 24½ points to 10½. The largest margin of victory since the U. S. won at Apawamis in 1924 by 16 point. It was the eleventh victory of the Americans in the thirteen years the match has been played. Five of the United States' players scored the full three points in their matches, they being Dr. G. P. Gregg, F. W. Newton, F. A. Hoyt, Hugh Marshall and R. Griscom, while F. H. Ecker was only a half a point behind the possible.

Taverns with Beer and Wine at Meals Favored by Mencken for Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 5. — H. L. Mencekn, Baltimore journalist and editor of the American Mercury, who is spending a part of his honeymoon in Halifax, has been looking over Nova Scotia's newly inaugurated system of Government control of liquor. He said in an interview that he thought it was a good system but he believed there should be taverns and beers and wines with meals, as in Quebec.

Of his own country, Mr. Mencken said: "Prohibition is an absolute failure in the United States. It is impossible to enforce a law where more than sixty per cent. of the people are against it."

Baltimore, he said, had ten thousand saloons under prohibition as compared with two thousand before prohibition.

Nogie's Creek Still Found by Officers; Three Men Arrested

Bruce Freeburn of Bobcaygeon and Two Boys in Local Court.

A COMPLETE PLANT.

Boys Held All Day in Bush Until Freeburn Arrived.

Described by the authorities as "King of Moonshiners" Bruce Freeburn of Bobcaygeon occupied the dock in County Police Court this morning in company with his son Creighton and his sixteen-years-old nephew Samuel Hall. All three faced charges under the Inland Revenue Act of operating a still, in Harvey Township on the 4th of September, suitable for the manufacture of spirits.

They appeared before Justices of the Peace Dr. T. W. H. Young and His Worship Mayor Denne. None of the accused was asked to plead. On application of Excise Officer W. H. Buller they were remanded till September 19th. Bail was granted in the sums of $1,000 each and two sureties of $500 each. Alexander L. Elliott of Gordon and Elliott appeared for the prisoners.

It was intimated that charges will also be preferred against the trio under the L.C.A. of Ontario.

Suspected for Years

Revenue officers and police had suspected Freeburn's "moonshining" activities for several years past, but had previously been unable to catch him with the goods. Some time ago Bruce Freeburn was convicted for selling "moonshine" to Indians on Pigeon Lake. His arrest was on that occasion effected by Provincial Officer Jas. Stewart, now retired.

Describing the circumstances which led to the arrest of the three men Excise Officer Buller told The Examiner how he left Peterborough on Wednesday evening, accompanied by Excise Officer W. Miller and Provincial Constable A. Sommerville. They were later joined by Provincial Officers Nelson and Porter of Lindsay.

The officers, in order to reach the site of the still, were obliged to make part of the journey by water. The seized still in every particular of the most modern construction, was located on the east bank of Nogies Creek oposite the old depot.

Maintaining an all-night vigil the officers were rewarded early Thursday morning to observe the approach of the two younger men, who were allegedly arriving to commence operations.

"Hands up!"

Promptly obeying the order, the startled couple were placed under arrest. They were then obliged to kick their heels for the remainder of the day until, playing up to the officers' expectations, the elder Freeburn approached in the evening. He was evidently uneasy as to the reasons for the prolonged absence of his alleged henchmen. He was also placed under arrest and the journey back to Peterborough was undertaken.

Snowdrifts Block Argentine Railway

MENDOZA, Argentina, Sept 5. — Fresh heavy snowstorms this week have again interrupted traffic between Argentina and Chile on the trans-Andine railway, which has been tied up several times this Winter, one of the worst in recent years.

The snow was almost seven feet deep on the tracks at Puente del Inca this morning.

TRADES UNION ASKS WEEK OF 44 HOURS

Bromley Predicts 4 Million Jobless in Britain Next February.

LONDON, September 5. (C.P. — A unanimous demand for reduction of the general working week to 44 hours, including meal times, was made of the government to-day by the Trades Union Congress meeting at Nottingham.

The general council of the Congress undertook to launch a campaign to prepare the ground for governmental action along those lines.

The congress yesterday demanded that adequate pensions be given to persons who reach the age of sixty years, and that displaced workers be compensated.

John Bromley, M.P., for Barrow-in-Furness, to-day prophesied that there would be four millions of unemployed in Britain next February. Mr. Bromley is general secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers.

2 KILLED, 30 HURT IN STUDENT RIOT

Buenos Aires Mounted Police Clash With Unarmed Mob.

MANY SHOTS FIRED.

BUENOS AIRES, September 5. — (C.P.) — Two persons killed and thirty wounded in rioting during the night occurring when the police attempted to break up student demonstrations in opposition to President Yrigoyen.

Eight hundred students gathered in the Avenida de Mayo and forced themselves unarmed through ranks of mounted police massed on the Plaza. An individual on the sidewalk shouted "Viva Yrigoyen," and discharged a revolver. The incident precipitating the fight with the police, during which many shots were fired.

70 FIRE ENGINES FIGHT ALL NIGHT TO GAIN CONTROL

Fumes From Burning Spices Force 2,000 Residents to Leave Homes.

IN WOPPING DISTRICT.

Two Giant Warehouses Razed —Firemen Wear Masks.

LONDON, September 5 (C. P. Cable). — London's largest fire for many years swept through a section of Wapping, East-end district, yesterday, and left in its wake damage to the extent of $5,000,000.

It started in a six-storey warehouse packed with cocoa beans and spices. For three hours the burning building gave off acrid fumes which filled the wharfside district and its narrow streets almost blinding and suffocating those within reach. The smoke rose in thick clouds to a height of 20 0feet.

With a terrific crash the roof fell. Huge shoots of flame burst skyward.

Seventy fire engines, manned by rushing, perspiring crews, poured enormous masses of water through ten miles of hose but the fire continued to spread.

Homes Evacuated

Two thousand people were ordered to evacuate their homes nearby. Hundred were provided with gas masks and the scene was akin to a scene of war.

The firemen floundered ankle-deep in cocoa beans which showered like sparks from great Vesuvius in anger. After hours of hard and heroic fighting the flames were brought under control at midnight. Two huge warehouses and a few smaller buildings had been gutted but a great danger was averted and that was the spread of the flames to the nearby gas house.

The ruins were still smoldering today.

CHICKEN THIEF GIVEN 3 YEARS

Harry Coones Sentenced to Penitentiary By Lindsay Magistrate.

BROTHER TO MIMICO.

LINDSAY, September 5 (Special to The Examiner). — In Police Court to-day, Harry Coones, aged 23, and his brother Robert, aged 19, appeared before Police Magistrate Moore on the charge of chicken stealing.

Only two charges were preferred against them the theft of poultry from the farm of Peter Greenan of South Ops and the theft of a pig from the farm of B. McGrough, also of Ops. To both charges a plea of guilty was entered. Harry Coones was sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary for three years, and Robert was sent to the Industrial School at Mimico until his twenty-first year.

BOMB WRECKS PEIPING OFFICE

PEIPING, China, September 4 (C. P.). — A bomb explosion this morning wrecked the office of the Rockefeller-endowed Pekin Union Medical College, seriously injuring a Chinese clerk. The bomb exploded when some one opened a suitcase left two days ago by an unidentified person. Chinese police are investigating.

A memorial is to be erected at the grave at Hobart, Tasmania, of John Woodcock Graves, the author of "John Peel," the hunting song classic.

Python Still Free In C.N.E. Coliseum

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5. — (CP)—The 16 foot python, which disappeared from his cage in the coliseum at the Canadian National Exhibition last Monday is still missing according to H. E. Rogers keeper of the "Jungleland". Local curio dealers in this line claim that the snake would go into hiding within 150 feet feet of the cage from which it escaped, but Mr. Rogers is of a different opinion. His opinion is that he will never know what happened the snake. Searchers have beaten every floor in the Coliseum hoping to find the python, but in vain. Mr. Rogers said today that the animal can live for a month without anything to eat at the end of that time he will be barely hungry.

$25,000 PURSE WON BY FLIERS ON DALLAS TRIP

Coste and Bellonte Take 11 Hours, 34 Minutes From New York.

HEAD FOR LOUISVILLE.

Frenchmen Head For New York to Fill Luncheon Date With Hoover.

DALLAS, Texas, September 5 (C.P.). — Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, the French air voyageurs, pointed their scarlet sesqui-plane, the Question Mark, toward Louisville, Ky., to-day, after completing a one-stop Paris-New York-Dallas flight yesterday.

The travel-weary Frenchmen, who started their historic ocean-spanning flight at Le Bourget Field, Paris, on Monday, said they would stop overnight at Louisville, continuing on Saturday to New York to be in the east for a week-end luncheon engagement with President Hoover.

The flight from New York to Dallas ended yesterday at 5.20.45 p.m., after 11 hours 34 minutes in the air, made the French Atlantic conquerors eligible for a purse of $25,000 offered by Col. William Easterwood, Dallas millionaire.

Colonel Easterwood in a long-distance telephone conversation with the Dallas Morning News said he was flying from London to Paris immediately to make arrangements with the French Air Ministry for presentation of the purse either in Paris New York, or Dallas.

SECURITY SALES CHECKED HEAVILY

New Regulations Under Security Frauds Prevention Act Apply at Once.

CONFERENCE OUTCOME.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5. (C.P.)—Approved by Order-in-Council, regulations which the Province of Ontario will apply under the Security Frauds Prevention act of 1930, will become effective immediately, Attorney-General W. H. Price has announced.

The new regulations are nearly all the direct result of the inter-Provincial Conference on the brokerage question which was held here last spring and, it is thought, likely, will be adopted by the other Provinces of the Dominion.

Under the new restrictions a much more complete control over the various securities proposed to be disposed of by brokers has been made possible to Col. W. W. Denison, Ontario Registrar. Brokers will be required to fyle with the registrar the prospectus of a security issuer and the price at which he acquires or disposes of the stock where the proceeds go either directly to the treasury of the company or to the vender or promoter.

Added check is furnished by requiring in the case of vendor's stock the Registrar's consent must be obtained before the security can be disposed of by the broker. The same restriction will apply also where the security issuer has been refused registration.

INQUEST HELD NOT NECESSARY

Late David Critten Died of Heart Failure in Opinion of Coroner Nickle.

DIED ON WEDNESDAY.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 5. — Coroner Nickle of El Dorado who was called in to view the remains of the late David Critten whose death occurred on Wednesday night at Cordova, decided that an inquest was not necessary, as death had been due to heart failure.

The late Mr. Critten, who was in his 71st year had been in his usual good health and spirits on Wednesday. He made a trip into Marmora village in the afternoon, and returned with a small load of wood. He had supper as usual, and after talking to his wife, retired about 9 o'clock. Shortly afterwards he complained of severe pains in the stomach, and made an attempt to rise. His wife advised him to remain quiet for awhile, suggesting that if he did so, the pain might subside. A few moments later she asked him if he was feeling any better, and when he did not answer, she investigated and discovered that he was dead. Dr. Thompson of Marmora who was called in, could not determine the cause of death, as the dead man had not consulted him for any ailment during the past two years. He decided that the corner had better be called.

The late Mr. Crippen was an old resident of this locality, and lived in the house where he died for the past fifty years. He leaves, beside his window formerly Martha Carr, three sons and two daughters, all married and away from home.

The funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

7 Year Lad Drowns Reaching for Decoy

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 5. (C.P.)—A decoy duck which has drifted out of his reach was the indirect cause of the death of seven-year-old Donald Mallory here. Playing about his father's boathouse on the water front in the east end of the town, the boy attempted to recover the drifting decoy. He stretched too far, however, and plunged into four feet of water and had disappeared from sight when his father arrived on the scene.

MANION PREDICTS EARLY BEGINNING UPON WATERWAY

Will See Start and Perhaps Finish of Project in Present Govt's Regime.

TRANSPORTATION ADVANCES

Freight Through Soo Canal Greater Than That in Suez or Panama.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—(CP)—An early start on the St. Lawrence waterway project was predicted here yesterday by Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, speaking at the Exhibition luncheon on transportation which shared with Nova Scotia and commercial travellers, the day's feature at the fair.

Mr. Manion reviewed the progress made in transportation in the Dominion giving the statistics concerning the investments of Capital in Canada's two great continental railways and on inland waterways.

"In view of the statement of the Prime Minister of Canada, there isn't any doubt that the problems that surround the development of the lower St. Lawrence, both National and Provincial, will be ironed out and the project carried out," he said, and added "I hope that during my regime of office we may see at least the beginning of this great development and possibly the completion of it.

Railway Figures

"With the great advances in transportation" stated Dr. Manion, "Canada's investment has exceeded $3,000,000,000 in the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway. The gross income for these railways is $470,000,000 and the working expenditures $380,000,000 which is higher than the ordinary expenditure and income of the Dominion. These things should be remembered when we feel like criticizing the railways.

"In inland waterways from the St. Lawrence to the head of the lakes more than $200,000,000 has been spent on harbor development and so on, including $120,000,000 on the Welland Canal.

"Not every one knows that 90,000,000 tons of freight passes through the Sault Canal yearly, which is three times that of the Suez or Panama," said Dr. Manion.

"There is another development of water power from Kingston to Montreal," continued Dr. Manion, "which affords great opportunities not only for low transportation costs, but for power."

BLUEBERRY CROP WILL BE PROBED

Northern Berries Yield Big Dividends if Marketed Properly.

MUST USE SYSTEM.

TORONTO, September 5. (C.P.)—Ontario Government officials, who have just completed a survey of the co-operative marketing system as it functions in Quebec have learned one thing anyway. That is Northern Ontario's annual blueberry crop can be turned into handsome dividends for fruit growers.

Commenting on his study of the Quebec system, J. A. Carroll, director of marketing for the province, said he discovered that blueberries systematically grown, graded and exported under the marketing arrangements prevailing there, return the grower a handsome profit. The berries are shipped out by the trainload.

Once the Ontario Department of Agriculture gets its new home marketing campaign in full swing, efforts will probably be made to convert Northern Ontario's crop into a big, paying adjunct of the fruit growing industry, Mr. Carroll said. "At least the business is worth investigating," he added.

Two School Trustees Elected in Havelock

HAVELOCK, Sept. 5.— (Examiner Correspondence.) — At the election held here on Thursday, Sept. 4th for the purpose of electing two trustees to fill the vacancies on the school board, created by the resignations of Messrs. Mathison and McLaughlin, the folowing vote was polled: Robert Crawford 101, Frederick Post 95, S. S. Joyce 45. Some resentment was expressed over the holding of an election, the majority of the citizens being of the opinion that only two should have been nominated ,and have thus been elected by acclamation, instead of putting the municipality to the expense of an election.

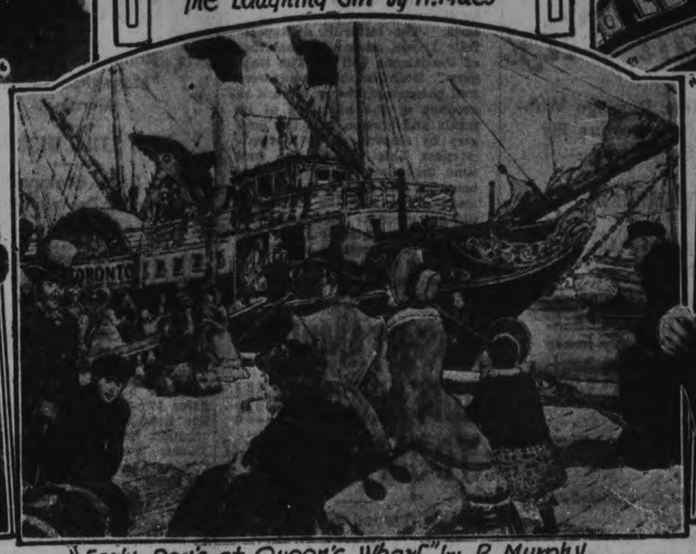
Interesting Current Features in the World of Art and Music

"by Bronzino"

"The Laughing Girl" by N. Maes

"Indian Chief" by E. H. Holgate

J. Angus Montague



"Early Day's at Queen's Wharf" by R. Murphy

Charles II by Nason

The photographs reproduced above show interesting current features in art and music world. Bronzino's "Portrait of a Connoisseur" painted in the 16th century, has just arrived in Canada from Berlin and will be hung at the National Gallery, Ottawa. Nicolas Maes' famous "Laughing Girl" is now on view at the Malloney Galleries, Toronto. Portrait of a B. C. Indian chief is from the brush of Edwin H. Holgate, Montreal artist, and is being exhibited at the all-Canada art show of the C.N.E. J. Angus Montague, of Toronto won the award in the open violin competition at the C.N.E. He is Canadian born and comes of U.E.L. stock. Rowley Murphy's "Early Days at Queen's Wharf" a skillful attempt to portray a scene in early Canadian history, is being exhibited at the all-Canadian art show of the C.N.E. Portrait of Charles II, painted by Nason, was formerly in the Hamilton Palace collection and now hangs in the Malloney galleries, Toronto.

DICK WALSH OF HASTINGS WINS FUTURITY CUP WITH BUD WINGER

C.N.E. Trophy Held By "Keendale" of Peterborough, Stays in District.

LOWERED THE RECORD.

Another record for pacers was set by a local horse yesterday at the Canadian National Exhibition races by Bud Winger, owned by Dick Walsh of Hastings. The horse romped home first in the three-year-old class in 2.11 to break the mark set by Keendale, a Johnson-Fife-owned horse, who won in 2.11½ last year. With this race goes a magnificent trophy donated by the Dominion Harness Association and a $2,000 purse, of which $1,000 goes to the winner.

The winner of the three-year-old trot, Primdale of Picton, was sired by Art Johnson's Armadale, another local horse.

VISITORS FINED ON LIQUOR COUNT TEST CASE LIKELY

Simcoe Magistrate Claims Stateroom on Ship Not Same as Residence.

$100 FINE EACH.

Protest Follows Police Seizure of Liquor From Tourists at Inn.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 5 (C.P.).—United States tourists are encountering considerable difficulty in their efforts to interpret laws of the Ontario Liquor Control Act.

At Simcoe yesterday five Erie, Pa., men were assessed $100 each for having liquor illegally.

According to the evidence delivered in court the men, employees of a United States manufacturing concern, along with 300 others, travelled by boat to Port Dover on a picnic. Prior to the return journey they purchased liquor and beer which was to be consumed on the boat, they said.

Harold L. Osborne, Simcoe, counsel for the men, instructed one of them to plead not guilty in order that a test case might be heard regarding the legality of a state-room on the boat as a domicile under the wording of the Act.

"I do not see how a boat moving around in the water can be called a man's residence," stated Acting Magistrate Langford. "It would be a travesty of justice." He declined to order confiscation of the liquor.

At a roadhouse near Toronto last night, police officers are alleged to have taken liquor from J. W. Decumbe, Cleveland lawyer, who was dining there with his fiancee and Gordon McArthur, Toronto barrister, and the latter's sister. The American had a tourist's permit, McArthur claimed, and the liquor was purchased on this.

James Bailey, proprietor of the place, said he had been operating it as a tourist lodge and that Decumbe was properly registered.

It is announced a protest will be made to General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, concerning the incident.

Dressed alike and each given away by a cousin, three sisters were married at the same ceremony recently in St. Philip's Church, Girlington, England.

WEDDING BELLS

REYNOLDS—LAMB

CAVAN, Sept. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—A pretty mid-summer wedding took place at high noon, Monday, September the 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb, Eighth Line, Cavan, when their daughter, Margaret Olive Edoise, became the bride of Wilfred John Reynolds, son of Mrs. Gray, Peterborough and the late Herbert J. Reynolds.

Carpet was laid from the house to an evergreen arch which was erected on the lawn. It was prettily decorated with asters and hydranges, and had a large white bell in the centre. The bridal party took their places under the arch, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Annie Ingram, Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. P. C. Howard, Havelock, in the presence of about fifty friends and relatives.

The bride looked charming in a white georgette dress with white hose and shoes and carried a beautiful sheaf bouquet of flowers. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. W. White, Port Hope, as matron of honor, becomingly gowned in pink georgette and carrying pink flowers.

Wanda Budd, niece of the bride, was flower girl, looking winsome in a frock of pink georgette.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Gordon Reynolds of Toronto.

The wedding dinner was served in the long dining room which was bright with summer flowers. A large white bell hung directly over the beautiful wedding cake which centred the table. Waiters were the Misses Viola McBride, Doris Tinney, Gladys Williamson and Margaret Armstrong.

The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch, to the matron of honor a bar pin, to the flower girl a ring and to the groomsman, cuff links.

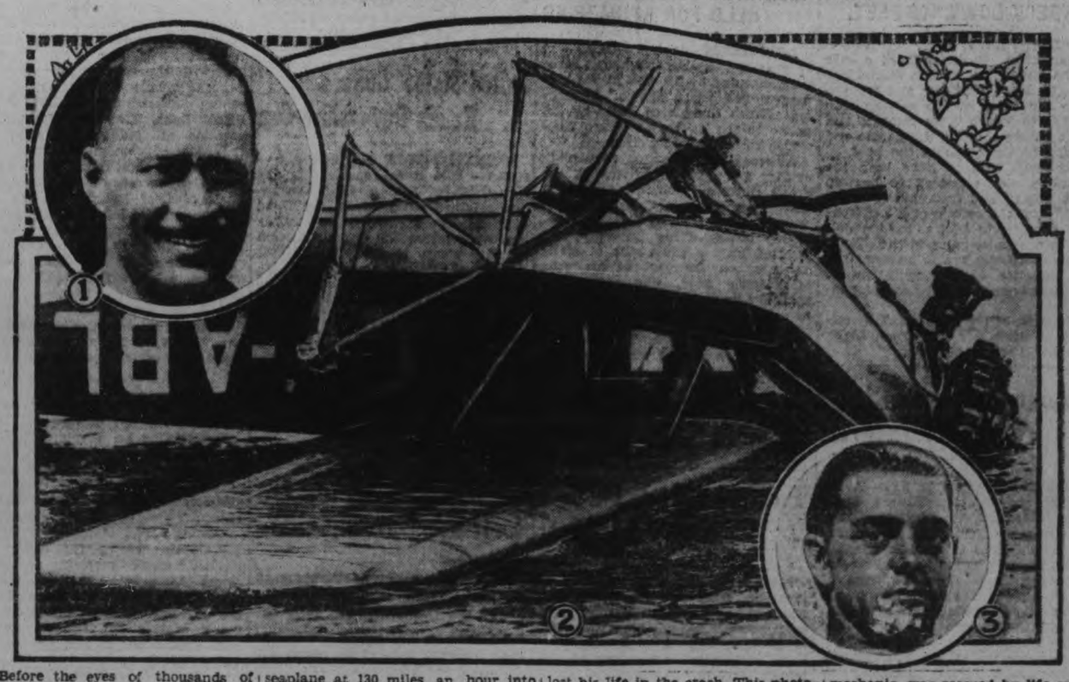
The happy couple left by motor for their honeymoon in the Georgian Bay district, the bride travelling in a silk crepe ensemble suit in harmonising shades of brown, with hat, gloves, shoes and hose of matching colors.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm in Cavan.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful wedding gifts.

Among the guests from outside points were: Mr. and Mrs. Walls and daughter, Beaverton; Miss McCullough, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gray, Peterborough; Mr. and Miss Wilkinson, Toronto; Mr. A. Reynolds and Miss Reynolds, Peterborough; Mrs. Harper, Peterborough; The Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Howard, Havelock and Mr. Gordon Reynolds, Toronto.

Noted Canadian Pilot Crashes to Death Before Crowds at C.N.E.



Before the eyes of thousands of thrill seekers and judges in the Efficiency Challenge trophy race at the C.N.E. at Toronto on September 2, Capt. Charles Sutton, Toronto flier and war veteran, plunged with his seaplane at 130 miles an hour into the lake and death. Claude Mills, mechanic, was saved some minutes later from where he clung to the wreckage of the seaplane. ABOVE is shown: (1) Capt. Charles Sutton, who lost his life in the crash. This photograph was taken just before he took off to enter the race. (2) Mass of twisted wreckage, all that was left of the Fokker seaplane piloted by Sutton, and from which Mills, the mechanic, was rescued by life-saving crew, and (3) Claude Mills, who miraculously escaped with only a few scratches. Photograph taken in C.N.E. hospital soon after the accident.

OFFICERS SEIZE NOGIE'S CREEK LIQUOR PLANT

Big "Still" and Forty Gallons of Its Product Confiscated To-day.

THREE MEN ARRESTED.

Paraphernalia and Alleged Operators Brought to Peterborough.

LINDSAY, Sept. 5 (Special to The Examiner).—In the early hours of Thursday morning Excise Officer W. H. Buller of Peterborough, Provincial Constables Nelson and Porter of Lindsay and Provincial Constable Sommerville of Peterborough unearthed a large still and a quantity of brew on the shore of Nogie's Creek in Peterborough County.

The officers started out on the search for the plant on Wednesday night, and in order to reach its site, were obliged to make part of the journey by water. The seized still was a modern one in every particular. Besides the still proper was a boiler, some forty tins, forty gallons of the finished product and another mash ready for brewing.

In the early hours of the morning along came Clayton Freeburn, son of Bruce Freeburn, and Sam Hall, Bobcaygeon, the latter being sixteen years of age. The officers claim that the two boys arrived at the still for the purpose of commencing operations.

Later in the morning Bruce Freeburn arrived at the plant, and was immediately placed under arrest also. The other two men, together with the complete equipment, were taken to Peterborough. Two automobiles and a launch were also confiscated.

Trent River Ladies Raise $81 at Benefit Dinner

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The financial results of the hot dinner and dance held under the auspices of the women of Trent River in "Whitehall Gardens" on August 20th, were most satisfactory. The Women's Institute donated $10, bringing the total up to $81, instead of $75 as previously reported. This amount was handed over to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Tyler to be used for a worthy cause, assisting in defraying expenses for hospital fees for their son Percy, who has been confined in Kingston Hospital.

SIX SPANISH FLIERS KILLED.

FERROL, Spain, September 4 (C.P.). — Six Spanish subalterns burned to death here yesterday when their Dornier seaplane cracked. The accident occurred during naval manoeuvres. The Infante Don Jaime flew in the plane a few days ago.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, September 5. — Receipts of cattle at the Union Stock Yards were: 32 cattle, 2 calves, 33 hogs, 46 sheep and lambs. Seven hundred head of cattle were held over. Closing trade was very dull with odd sales of butcher cattle and cows at the week's decline. Most of the stale cattle will be carried over the week-end.

There are not enough calves to establish any market. Hogs are 50 cents higher for the week at $10.75 f.o.b., or $12.00 w.o.c. Lambs closed firm at $9.00 for good ewes and wethers, and $7.00 per cwt. for culls and bucks. Sheep sold at a top of $4.00 per cwt.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, September 5. — Top prices for ungraded eggs remained unchanged on wholesalers' price lists yesterday, but reductions were made on the bottom spread. Fresh firsts which formerly sold at 28 to 29c were quoted at 27 to 29c a dozen; extras were quoted at 29 to 32c and seconds at 22 to 24c.

The wider range was probably due to lack of demand and heavy holdings in storage with continued fresh productions. Western eggs were fairly plentiful in all the extra and first grades which brought a dull tone to Ontario's offerings. Packers' stocks are heavy and they are anxious to move some holdings into consumers' hands which may induce lower prices in the immediate future.

Cheese prices were advanced a small fraction to 15¼ cents per pound while butter prices remained unchanged. Cheese exports to Great Britain continue in good volume, and stocks on hand are estimated to just about equal normal consumption.

Spring chickens and spring ducklings of five pounds and over were quoted yesterday, the former at 24 cents per pound and ducklings at 18 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 15. — Wheat's downward trend continued on yesterday's market with the October future slipping back to 81⅞c to establish not only a new low level in the life of the option, but to reach the lowest point at which it has traded since 1914, when it touched 80 cents. The market came back slightly from its bottom level to close ⅝ to ¾c lower for the day.

Further hedging by elevator firms, caused by heavy deliveries of the new crop, depressed values. Support came from spreaders between Chicago and Winnipeg markets and in the last hour lifted prices fractionally. Export business, estimated at 500,000 bushels in Manitobas, failed to impress traders.

Cash wheat demand improved and considerable business was done in higher grade stocks. Coarse grains held firm in light trading with the exception of rye, which declined in sympathy with wheat.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Upset by weakness at Winnipeg and continued absence of foreign demand for North American breadstuffs, wheat prices took a nosedive into new low territory in Chicago yesterday. All other grains were dragged down in sympathy with wheat. A steady stream of selling orders, said to have originated in Winnipeg, appeared shortly after the opening. Traders said this apparently represented hedging against actual purchases from the country. Prices were driven down to within 5c a bushel of the low prices established in 1914.

Wheat closed nervous and unsettled at ⅞c to 1¼ net lower than Wednesday's finish. Corn closed from ⅛c to ½c lower to ⅛c higher; oats, ¾c lower to ¼c higher, and provisions showing 7c to 45c advance.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 5. — Bran and shorts were reduced $1 per ton yesterday on the Montreal cash grain market. Bran became $25.25 and shorts $27.25 per ton.

The upward seasonal move in eggs was continued as production was easing off all over the country. Car-lot prices have been showing an almost daily advance this week on extras. As high as 40c per dozen for for British Columbia eggs was asked. Ontario fresh carlots quotations were 37c for extras, 31c to 32c for firsts, and 25c to 26c for seconds delivered. Prairie eggs were unchanged. Receipts were only 616 cases. Prices to retailers were unchanged.

Colored cheese remained scarce. A mixed car of colored and white Ontario cheese sold at 15c per lb. White was generally 15c, with colored at 15⅝c to 15½c. Quebec cheese was 15¼c for white and 14½c for colored. Receipts amounted to 5,801 boxes.

The butter market remained steady at 29c per lb. for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery, wholesale. Receipts were 108 boxes.

Potatoes held steady, with local stock at 85c to 90c; New Brunswick cobblers at $1 per 80-lb. bag.

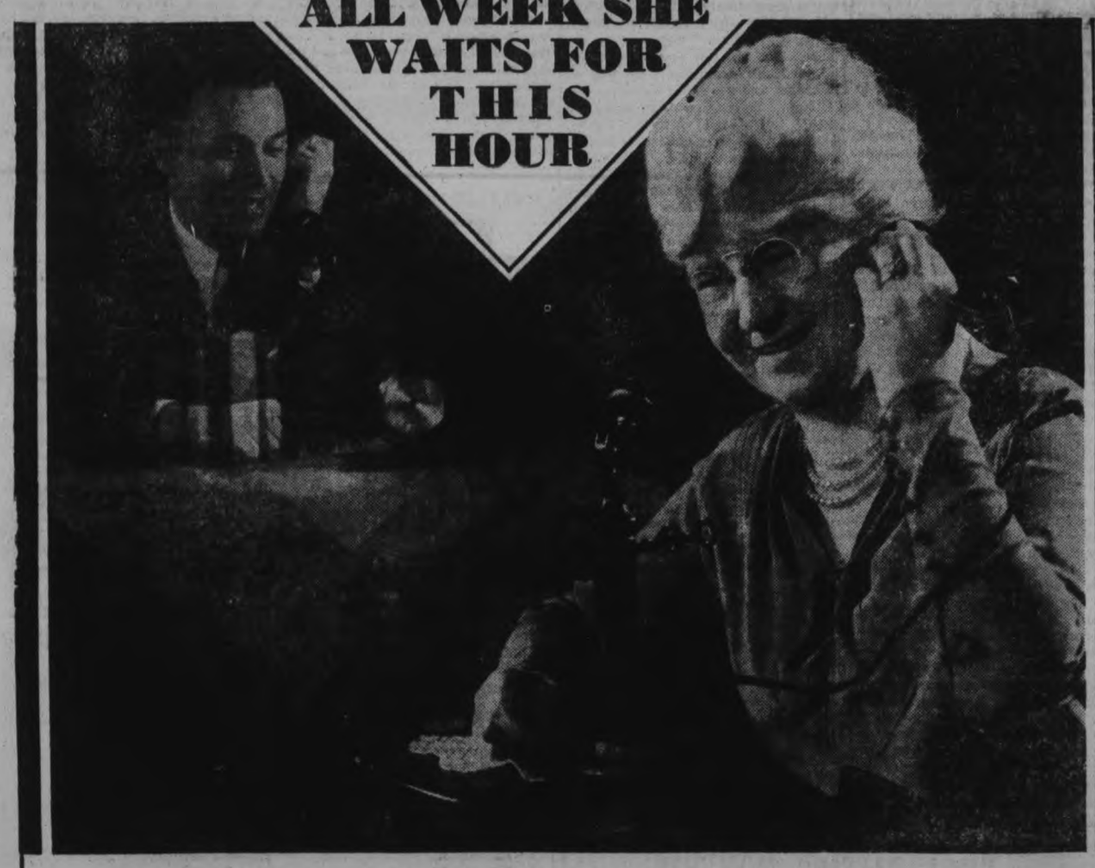
ALL WEEK SHE WAITS FOR THIS HOUR



How excited — and how happy — she was the first time she heard her son's voice come over the telephone from a distant city. Talking with him was as easy as though he were in the same room. It was something to remember and to cherish for days afterwards.

And how much happier she has become, because Fred comes home by telephone now every week. He calls her every Sunday evening at eight-thirty. It is an hour she waits for and looks forward to all week long. It brightens days that had become a bit empty and lonely with the family scattered.

Fred is happier, too. For the price of a movie he gets something no money can measure — his mother's voice — a touch of home. It's a fine way to start a new week's work.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want—it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1930

WOMEN START SOMETHING.

The Women's Council of Vancouver is going about this business of stimulating the buying of Canadian products in a business-like way.

Its 2,000 members are being pledged, whenever making purchases, to enquire "Where was this article produced?" and to buy British Columbia goods if possible, but failing these, Canadian products, or if these are not available, articles made or grown in the Empire.

A similar movement by all other branches of the Council of Women throughout Canada would have an educational reaction of tremendous import, for women do the bulk of the shopping, and once a large number of them begin to insist upon being furnished with Canadian-made goods there will be nothing left for the retailers to do but to see that the supply of such goods is equal to the demand.

It looks as if Vancouver women may have started something.

Two thousand housewives pledged to confine their purchases, so far as possible, to Canadian and Empire-made products represent a force that cannot be denied, particularly as there is every reason to expect that their example may be followed in other centres throughout the Dominion.

MORE YOUNG VICTIMS.

Figures for the first half of the present year go to show that fatal accidents among children, particularly traffic and drowning accidents, are increasing in Ontario.

During the first six months of 1930 the motor vehicle hazard and the water hazard had a parallel death record, each claiming the lives of forty-three Ontario children, while twenty more little ones lost their lives in fires or were killed by burns and scalds.

These four causes in short accounted for the death of 126 children in this Province from January 1st to the end of June this year, the drowning accidents increasing by five over the same period in 1929.

This record is one that should cause some serious thought, particularly on the part of parents.

Who is to blame for the increase in fatal accidents?

Is it because children are not sufficiently warned of the perils that await the unwary on the street or at the old swimming hole?

Or is partially, at least, in the case of automobile fatalities, because motorists as a whole are driving faster than they used to on city streets and the danger element das increased in proportion to the speed?

The cause is worth determining in view of the steadily increasing death record.

A CANADIAN ATTRACTION.

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are to be congratulated upon having added to its list of attractions a Canadian rodeo show, a feature that will be full of interest to both young and old patrons of the Exhibition.

There is a glamor about cowboys and their horses that makes a demonstration of this kind an irresistible attraction, and it is particularly pleasing to know that the stampede to visit Peterborough next week is a Canadian outfit.

It is just as well to have our people realize that all the great horsemen do not live in the United States, an impression that has been set up by American movies and American magazines.

If our citizens do not know that our Western Provinces produce daring riders whose horsemanship equals the best done elsewhere, the coming of the Calgary stampede riders to the Peterborough Industrial next week will prove of as much value from an educational as it undoubtedly will from an amusement viewpoint.

The engaging of this attraction is just another proof that the management of Peterborough's big fair are anxious to give Exhibition patrons entertainment that is worth while.

BUY ONTARIO PRODUCTS.

A daily broadcast and extensive newspaper advertising are the means to be followed by the Ontario Government in its campaign to arouse among the people of the Province a consciousness of the high quality of Ontario products and to develop the habit of confining their purchasing as far as possible to those products.

Mr. Ferguson in announcing this policy furnished the keynote to the campaign by making a vigorous attack on a number of American products whose sale in Ontario, stimulated by intensive advertising, particularly in United States publications that have a wide circulation in this Province, has assumed large proportions.

The plain language used by the Premier in this connection should make his protest effective.

The trouble with much of this buy-Canadian-products propaganda is that it is too indefinite; it does not get down to the essentials, and as a result it causes no beneficial reaction.

Mr. Ferguson did not make that mistake.

He mentioned products everybody knew about, stressed the fact that their ingredients were all grown outside of Canada, and pointed out that the purchase of such articles injured the Canadian producer.

Why buy United States soups when there are available soups made by Canadian manufacturers from Canadian vegetables?

Why buy California peaches canned in the United States when our own Province yields superb peaches?

Why buy American flour when Canada produces the finest wheat in the world?

Such questions bring home to the Canadian consumer the desirability of paying more attention to the origin of the articles he buys from day to day.

HOW HARD UP ARE WE?

Met a traveller on Saturday night who had not been home in three weeks. The reason is that some of his trips take him quite a distance from home and he covers a great deal of territory and makes many calls in every city and town that he reaches.

He was saying business was not easy to get and that a good many of his customers told him that money was a little tighter than usual, and also that collections were not what they might be.

Then he said something about miniature golf courses. He had no wise crack to offer about them, admitting that in the evening he had often found a certain amount of fun playing on them in different places. The manner in which they are patronized has started him thinking and doing a little reckoning.

"I think I am safe in saying that I know where there are 100 of these courses in operation, and including the ones that are very busy and those that do more of their business in the evening, I think $400 per week would be a conservative average of their earnings. I have no way of verifying this figure, and as I said, it is an estimate on my part, and one which I do not consider very wide of the mark.

"That would give 100 of these places an aggregate income of $40,000 per week. As a rule they can run from 18 to 22 weeks in this country, so again take the lower number, 18, and that would give a total revenue of $720,000 for the season, or not very far removed from three-quarters of a million dollars.

"I am not objecting to their business; it is quite legitimate and wholesome, but I cannot help wondering where that added amount of money comes from for recreation of a new sort when my customers keep on telling me that money is rather tight in their line of business. It makes me wonder at times just how hard up we really are."—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

A Toronto newspaper has made the ingenious, but not very convincing calculation that "if all the unemployed are to be given jobs for the winter season it will run into a hundred million dollars or more, on the basis of $20 per week for each of the 250,000 persons" it has been estimated will be out of work when snow flies.

Perhaps it is needless to remark that the newspaper is not exactly a supporter of the present Government. So that anything goes which would appear to make it impossible "to do anything" to solve an admittedly difficult problem.

We do not see, however, that it is possible for anybody to calculate the exact cost of providing the needed employment for those out of work in Canada. To suggest that it has to be done by giving so many jobs to so many persons at so much apiece is obviously an absurdity.

Both employment and unemployment are cumulative in their effects, and what is needed is that something should be done to set the wheels of industry spinning again. It will have to be something substantial, of course.

What we have in mind was admirably illustrated by a writer in the London Daily Express in drawing attention to the decision of the Labor Government in Great Britain to guarantee the insurance on two giant ocean liners each of 60,000 tons displacement, which are being ordered by the Cunard Company at a cost of thirty million dollars each. The writer points out that the building of one of these two gigantic vessels "will have an immediate effect on more than 300,000 workmen in every trade of the world and in most corners of the globe."

"Almost ery industry in the country will be able to employ more men during the two or three years that will be occupied in the building and furnishing of the largest ship in the world," adds the writer. From which it can be seen what a tremendous impetus to industry as a whole is to be given by the placing of a single order, albeit a pretty comprehensive one.

The article gave in considerable detail the tremendous variety of requisites for a single vessel. It also pointed out that while 15 million dollars, at least, would be distributed during the building of the ship, among trades of the world, the other 15 million dollars would be spent in the building of her hull, and would be distributed amongst the coal industry, steel, paint, workmanship, bolts, woods, engines, iron, and numerous other commodities.

And it all reminded us of the story told us in our youth of the uncle who invited his nephews to a party and who considerably excited them by announcing they would have a pudding for dinner that it had taken more than a thousand men to make. "It must be as big as a church," the boys declared as they waited its advent.

But their disappointment was intense when the cook entered bearing an ordinary-sized Christmas pudding. They were convinced, however, when after taking their fill of the excellent pudding the uncle induced them to take pencil and paper and figure out with him the number of workers who had contributed to the providing of the requisites for it.

We are not in the confidence of the Federal Government as to their actual plans in the present crisis. But if, from their survey of the situation, and the prospective needs of the Dominion in the near future in the way of constructive enterprises, they are able to ensure the starting up of some of those enterprises by such means as may be necessary, and which are at the disposal of the federal authorities, the cumulative effect cannot fail to be enormous.

Provincial Governments have indicated their willingness to help, and some municipal authorities. But there is a large field also left to private concerns, and individuals even. Perhaps the greatest immediate service that can be performed for the Dominion as a whole is for everybody to consider how far it is possible for them to go in replenishing personal needs. For it is certain that if all those with only smaller means even made purchases commensurate with them the cumulative effect in accelerating demands for goods and services would make a huge contribution to the solution of the most pressing problem of the hour.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With more features than ever and a lowered admission price, Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition should set new records next week.

There is a record attendance at the city's schools, indicating that the providing of more accommodation will be a need of the not far distant future.

The Ontario Government is to put on a daily broadcast advertising Ontario products. It is an effort to improve conditions in the Province that should command the support of the public.

There were fewer marriages than usual in Peterborough in August. But cupid still has September in which to bring up the average.

The Office Hound

Our intellectual menu this evening is featured by an epistle from the hand of that dear Mademoiselle X, than whom there is no more of a than whom hereabouts. It will be recalled that the Mademoiselle — alias "the dizzy blonde"—provided the apex of an infernal telegraphic triangle on Saturday last, with Casey and Andre doing the heavy roles from retreats at Bilge Lake and The Examiner Office respectively.

O—H

It would seem that Mademoiselle X has not only been a luminary of Blister Beach, that appallingly snobbish resort, but has also favored with her presence the fall fair at Toronto —south west (apologies) of here. . . .

O—H

Monsieur:

Well, of all things! The very idea! My sainted aunt! Wot the h—! How do you get that way? And, yet again, of all things!

Which only means that I am seething, simply boiling over with indignation and chagrin and what have you. I return to town with a lot of new clothes. (These bargain basements are something fierce when it comes to competing with rude females that snatch the very hat out of your hand that you had just retrieved from another lady after a real struggle in which the crown and some of the lining had the worst of it. But even at that, the saleslady had no right to call her a big bum. There's such a thing as cleaving to your own sex, don't you agree with me, dear Andre? I am sure you do.) But, as I was saying, I come back all fed up with eating salt water taffy at the Ex—(they make it with a yellow color this year—to match eggshell gowns, I suppose) and quite excited over a new pyorrhea cure company that's supposed to be locating in Canada shortly, and what do I find? (Just a minute before it escapes me). Did you know that toothpaste makers have stopped advertising their wares as good for pyorrhea? (The lowdown on that, as it was whispered to me—but, never mind, I promised not to tell.)

And, anyway, what has that to do with your so-called friend Casey and his vile manner of talking in telegrams. Any man that can't talk without using dots and dashes ought to sign off immediately. His radio is out of commission.

Who wants to marry Casey? That's what I'd like to know? Do you suppose for one minute that a lady that is a real lady, that has an ancestry stretching right back to Noah (because anyone the name of Smith knows right well that Noah's son, Shem, the one that went to Asia, you remember, started the noble family of Smiths)—right back to Noah, mind you, and even if Noah did like his drop occasionally and showed a great lack of sense when he included a pair of bedbugs in the cargo that finally beached itself on Mount Ararat, still he was a grand old bird. No one can deny that that likes their Bible. Why the idea of even looking casually at anyone named Casey is distinctly repulsive to me. The only Casey I ever had any contact with was the man in the song that was always climbing aboard his engine to go somewhere or another, and I only knew about him slightly on account of my friend, who was a travelling man and used to sing about him, having a dose of laryngitis and getting pretty husky on the third verse.

Speaking about laryngitis, dear Andre, Miss Lee Morse, who is on the bill at Shea's this week, has a bad attack of it. Her 'blue' music sounded bluer than ever. Old Pappy Blue Boy himself wouldn't know his river tunes if he heard them. At that, she got a big hand. She's some baby and she sure rolls a wicked eye.

So you can just tell Casey that he hasn't a chance in the world with me. I fell in love with a big policeman at the new station in Toronto. He had the grandest Donegal accent you ever heard. And he had a chest on him like a barrel. I'll bet Casey is a meany, weany little tike with a little head and a narrow chest. You just tell him to scram out of the way, will you. Of course, I don't mean anything personal in my remarks about newspaper people, because you, dear Andre, are exceptionally gentlemanlike in your ways. But, confidentially speaking, some of them are just a little—what would you say?—outre? Do you agree with me, dear Andre? I am sure you do.

Mademoiselle X.

O—H

Being not a little out of breath and more than half scared to death, we take refuge in the inevitable rime. . . .

O—H

Though a shade on the outre I be,
I am not without entree, you'll see:
If my tone is alarming,
My manners are charming—
And a duchess might have me to tea!

O—H

And, as for that hardened roue, Casey, we'll leave him to fend for himself. . . . When last seen, he was scattered around a runt golf course—up to his chin in the water hazard and surrounded by a cloud of beautiful, mouth-filling oaths.

O—H

A propos of nothing, we beg to announce that—in response to thousands of requests for a second Silo Dance detective story—we shall publish, tomorrow or a shortly thereafter as the weather may permit, the first installment of a brand-new, red-hot, baffling mystery entitled: "THE OFFICE HOUND MURDER CASE". . . . Prizes will be offered for the correct solution. Step right up and take a guess—you can't win!

MAIL TRAIN WRECKED.

EVERETT, Wash., Sept. 4 (C.P.).—The east-bound Great Northern mail train Number 28 was wrecked at Index, Wash., 50 miles east of here, last night. Unconfirmed reports reaching here indicated the engineer and fireman were killed and seven persons injured. Telegraph and telephone lines were destroyed by the wreck.

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

And for a while no one answered. It was a bit of a poser; what was there to be done?

"As I thought," continued Matthews, "you don't know. And I don't blame you. To be quite frank, gentlemen, you have put yourselves in a position that is a little difficult to explain. If you go to the police you have to admit that you have broken the law yourselves, and you have to tell them a story which will take a bit of swallowing. I know it is true: you know it is true, but—well, I won't labour the point. I think you would find the atmosphere a little incredulous, to put it mildly. So I have a definite proposition to make to you. Do nothing at all until you have heard my story. As I told you, I can explain everything—or almost everything. Then you must do as you see fit—go to the police or not, as you like. In return, you shall tell me all you know, and between us, gentlemen"—his voice rose in his excitement)"we will beat the most dangerous criminal that lives in the world to-day."

"Yes, but what about my fiancee?" cried Freckles.

"I give you my solemn word that she is in no danger," said Matthews quietly. "But if you are under any apprehensions, get her out of the house to-morrow. Anyway, you can't now. And, as I said before, I think you will understand, when you have heard my story, why I was pleased when I heard that one of our side was in the house. Well, gentlemen, what do you say?"

And at last Hugh spoke.

"Agreed," he said laconically. "You had better come to my shanty."

"Good!" cried Matthews. "Then the first thing to do is to remove that ladder and hide it in a different place. And after that we will go to your house, and I will tell you a story which, though long, I think you will find not uninteresting."

CHAPTER VII

In Which Victor Matthews Begins his Story.

"For the purposes of this argument, Mr. Matthews," remarked Hugh, "you had better assume that we know nothing."

We had all returned to his house, an having hunted round for bacon and eggs, had first of all had some breakfast. The ladder had been carefully hidden in the undergrowth, and we had seen no further trace of the man in black. And now, seated on the terrace, with the mist stretching like a white sea below us, we waited eagerly for him to begin.

"All right," he answered, "I will assume that you know nothing. And, as a matter of fact, gentlemen, I am very certain that you do know nothing of what I am going to tell you. Because I am going back to the year of grace 1881. It was in that year that the inhabitants of Bordeaux had an unsuspected honour accorded them—so unsuspected, in fact, that most of them are still probably unaware of it. Under the very shadow of the Cathedral of St. Andre a male child was born into the world. The question of nomenclature was a little difficult, since the mother had no idea who was the proud father, but she compromised by calling the child Jean and giving it her own surname of Marillard.

"From the very first, I should imagine, the child was a most unprepossessing specimen. It was abnormally ugly, and that fact, coupled with the sneers of its companions over the question of its birth, combined to make its life intolerable. Anyway, it never had a fair chance, and as a result, the boy's character grew from bad to worse. He was an incipient criminal from the start, and his surroundings nurtured the growth, until, at the age of sixteen, he was nothing more nor less than a savage young animal. And if you chose to turn up the archives of the Bordeaux police you would there find records of positively murderous assaults perpetrated by this youth, in many cases on men years older than himself. He was possessed of incredible strength, and at times he was perfectly uncontrollable. He also possessed another strange characteristic—a very soft and melodious voice."

The speaker smiled slightly and waved his hand in the direction of Spragge's Farm.

"Thus the propitious beginning of Jean Marillard, now, as you will see, in his fortyseventh year. However, to return to his earlier days. He was eighteen years old, as far as I remember, when he decided to that he had had enough of Bordeaux and drifted to Paris, where he naturally became associated with the lowest type of Apache. And you must remember, gentlemen, that in those days the Apaches were Apaches—not harmless citizens earning an honest penny by dressing themselves up for the part for the benefit of credulous tourists, as is the case to-day. Like to like it was but in the nature of things that young Marillard should consort with the most vicious of the whole tribe. And it was then that he received his nick-name of 'the Nightingale.'

"For the next year or so his history is unimportant. He remained submerged in the underworld of Paris, a skulker in dark corners. And then, with the invention of motor-cars, came the great opportunity. The thing has been done, of course, ad nauseam since, but the first motor bandit gang was the one of which the Nightingale was a prominent member. It is all a question of proportion, and just as in these days a racing car, with its eighty miles an hour, has the advantage over other users of the road, so, then, did some ancient Peugeot capable of only twenty.

"And now I must leave him for a moment and introduce you to some other characters in the story. Only two are of any importance, and one of those two ."

He paused, and a strange, almost dreamy, look came into his eyes.

"One of those two is the most powerful and dangerous man in the world to-day. I will take the other first. His origin is completely obscure. Half an Englishman, half Heaven knows what, he was in his way as dangerous a man as the Nightingale. But it was a very different way. The Nightingale, to do him credit, feared no man. He fought in the open—fought like a beast perhaps—but face to face. Also he was loyal to his pals, which was just what the other was not. A slimy, mean, creeping little beast, who conformed to no standard at all save what suited himself best. They called him le Crapeau, which I always thought was an insult to such an intelligent beast as the toad. And unless I am very much mistaken—in fact, I know I am not mistaken—the Toad is your next-door neighbour, who now passes under the name of Granger. When I say 'passes under,' for all I know Granger may really be his name."

"Do you mean to say," shouted Freckles, "that that is the man who Pat —who Miss Verney is working for?"

"Don't alarm yourself, Mr. Scott," said Matthews quietly. "You already have my word for it that your fiancee is perfectly safe. Moreover, I think it is more than likely that you will finally come to the conclusion that the luckiest thing she ever did in her life was to go there."

"What on earth do you mean?" said Freckles, staring at him blankly.

"May I finish my story, and I think you will see what I mean?" said Matthews. "Whwere was I? Ah! yes—the Toad. There were three other members of the gange, who do not concern us at all now, since they are all dead. For the sake of clearness, however, I will give you their nick-names. One—a great hulking brute of a man—was called the Butcher. He was a slaughterer pure and simple a man with no brain, but of great strength. The second was a deadly shot with a revolver, who was known—why I can't tell you—as the Snipe. And the last member calls for no particular description. He had no nickname, and was called Robert.

"Now, I do not propose to weary you with a full account of their activities. Many of them were quite insignificant many were even stupid. Remember that motor-cars were a new toy then for everyone, and our friends were no exception to the rule. They behaved, in short, on frequent occasions like children who are showing off, and they were treated accordingly by the authorities. Until the day came . . ."

Once again he paused, that same dreamly look in his eyes.

"Gentlemen," he went on quietly, "you may think that what I am about to tell you is an exaggeration that I have a bee in my bonnet on this particular subject. You may think that such a being as a master criminal is merely part of the stock in trade of the sensational novelist —a fiction of the films. You are wrong. It was in 1898 that a strange sinister influence began to make itself felt throughout the underworld at Paris, and not only through the underworld, but through that section of society that reacts instantly to it—the police. At first the influence was vague—more a suggestion than a definite force. Incredible rumours flew round, and no one knew what to believe. The police, as a body, scoffed oppenly at the whole thing so did some of the Apaches. For gradually these rumours crystallised into one central idea that a power had arisen which was definietely controlling the criminal activities of Paris, and controlling them for its own ends.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Thought

HORIZONS.

An extended horizon is of immense value to us in living. It gives us much truer perspective and emphasizes the relative importance of things. The habit of adding a bit of knowledge to our store every day is an estimable one and worth cultivating.

Even a neglected old encyclopedia studied diligently for a few minutes regularly will soon yield an interesting fund of information which may be quite new and inspiring to us.

Many older people will gladly give us of their best, leading us in thought through their richer experiences and to countries they have visited. Of course, travelling is one of the best ways of widening our own horizon, provided we take along a seeing eye and a hearing ear. Many people who travel seem to have left both at home.

An art gallery, museum or exhibition opens up new fields of vision. An hour in a modern school room is most educative. Let us enlarge our horizons by widening our bounds of observation ond experience.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If September 5th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Your life will be affected by more favorable astrological forces on this date. Considerable physical activity is indicated, short trips and visits will be made. Unexpected developments which need cause no worry, as you will be given wisdom and means to handle them.

The child born on this September 5th will be endowed with a quiet, yet ambitious, persevering and persistent spirit. It will win through will power and force, more than persuasive methods. It will never forget an injury, and will seldom renew a broken off friendship.

Men and women born on a September 5th will have minds, simple, confiding and sweet. You will never discard your enthusiasms and make-believes, and you hang on to your illusions, if they make you happy. In your chivalry, you are a modern Don Quixote, and you are the fairy prince or princess who goes to the rescue of the oppressed, be they good or bad. If you champion a cause, you fight with heavy artillery, which metaphorically speaking, usually smashes down the walls of opposition. You are always ready to pour oil on troubled waters, and you never do it in an oily manner.

You are an honest, plain-spoken person, with the sturdy qualities of an oak. You aim to give a square deal to all the world, which makes life better worth the living, both for "the other fellow" and for yourself. You are not stubborn in a petty way, but in big things, you are not easily turned back. You are sincere and honest in your likes and dislikes, although you do not form hasty conclusions. You do not judge before you understand. Nature has given you a pleasant, hearty laugh; it is neither a guffaw, cackle or a wheeze. You are a chronic smiler, too, and it is the passport which will admit you everywhere and to all hearts.

Monetary success is likely to be of an uncertain nature, due chiefly to your own indifference to it, and to your generosity, when you have worldly goods to share.

MAGISTRATE THROWS OUT LIQUOR-FOR-VOTES CASE

WALKERTON, Ont., Sept. 4. (C.P.) On hearing the evidence of the defendants Magistrate Frank Walker yesterday dismissed the charges against W. M. McLeod, cattle dealer, and his son Mirrell McLeod, of using liquor to influence votes. The case for the prosecution was based on the evidence of Provincial Constable McClevis who told of examining Mirrell McLeod's liquor permit showing various purchases of liquors on July 14. The officer repeated certain alleged conversations with Mirrell about the latter's father being "organizer of the Liberal party" in the witness box in the afternoon Mirrell McLeod denied McClevis' evidence. The Magistrate then ordered the case dismissed.

STRONG BODIES OF DODGE CARS

Traditional Ruggedness Is Found in Six and Eight Series.

ENGINES 76 H.P.

Retaining all the traditional basic ruggedness and dependability that have characterized Dodge Brothers' products for 15 years, the Dodge Six and straight eight series embody progressive principles of engineering design.

Monopiece bodies, incorporating the latest advances made in stamping and welding practices, are used on both new lines, described by Dodge engineers as "the automobile body of the future." The fact that the new Chrysler eights have monopiece bodies is no mean compliment to Dodge pioneering.

The motif is based on the perpendicular lines and recesses that give strength and beauty in modern skyscraper architecture. Body mouldings and decoration throughout the car follow this laminated pattern, from the instrument panel, in which are grouped the speedometer, engine temperature indicator, fuel gauge, ammeter and oil gauge, down to such details as the switch-plate escutcheons, etc. Upholstery of the closed models is in mohair.

The power plant with eight cylinders in line is of the blockcast L-head type, with 2⅞-inch bore, 4¼-inch stroke and a piston displacement of 220.7 cubic inches. It develops 76 horsepower. Four-point engine suspension system is used, with rubber ...tion at the rear supports to absorb vibration.

The crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced, is drilled to permit the forcing of oil at 25 to 30 pounds.

ATTEMPTED JAIL BREAK COSTS TWO 3 YEARS EACH

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 5.—(CP)—David Little appeared before Judge Deroche today charged with attempting a jail break on Aug. 24th and also assaulting the turnkey of the County jail, Robert Colling. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary on the first count and three years on the second both to run concurrently. Gordon Asseltine, connected in the affair received the same sentence, while Geo. Bailey, the third member of the gang was remanded until counsel could be secured for him.

YORK TOWNSHIP CITIZENS URGE FURTHER PROBING

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5 (C.P.).—Out of the many rumors in York Township since the opening of the probe into the engineering department contracts, comes the definite news of action on the part of ratepayers. A score of residents gathered together Wednesday night and urged plans for a general ratepayers' meeting to urge that the present investigation extend back to the year 1924 and not stop at 1925, and to form a permanent body of citizens to look after the affairs of the township.

STORE BANDITS REMANDED.

CHATHAM, Sept. 5.—(C.P.)—Lawrence Brandbridge of London, arraigned in the county police court this morning on a charge of breaking and entering the J. G. Crosby store at Highgate and stealing a quantity of merchandise therefrom pleaded guilty and was remanded to jail until September 10 for sentence.

Two other London young men, Howard Pearce and Clifford Brandbridge, the latter a brother of the man arraigned to-day appeared in court Wednesday on similar charges and pleaded guilty. They are awaiting sentence.

LIGHT ACTIVITY TORONTO MART

IMPROVEMENT AT NOON.

TORONTO, Ont. Sept. 5. (C.P.)—Though still firm in tone, these was less evidence of buoyancy on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The opening witnessed profit-taking in some sections and this tended to hold back the entire market. Towards midday there was some improvement, gains, however were not numerous and were small in amount. About the best that could be said was that the market was holding its own.

Brazilian came down a point and more the first half hour picking up half a point later, Dominion Stores sold down to the previous low for the year, and Cockshutt Plow, C.P.R. New, Gypsum and some of the oils were fractionally easier. The dip in Cockshutt came on a very small turnover.

Steels were a bright spot with Canada Car and Foundry and Steel of Canada both fractionally above last night. International Nickel moved back and forth, swayed by Wall Street influences. At noon the stock showed a fractional appreciation, Walkers was selling at 8 and 8 1-8 and Distillers at 8 7-8. There was a revival of rumors to-day of merger between the two companies, but the market, tied of the repeated story, paid no heed.

Oils were irregular to firm, changes so small as really to be of no consequence.

NO FURTHER CUT IN BREAD PRICES

Toronto Bakers Claim 10c. Per Loaf Lowest Possible Rate.

Cheap Flour No Influence.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—(CP)—The cut in bread prices from 11 cents to 10 cents, about two months ago, leaves it at the lowest level it can be expected to reach in Toronto during the present winter according to bakers in the city who have commented upon the proposal of Hon. Gideon Robertson to inquire into the, cost of bread.

It is contended by the bakers that there is no other city in Canada or the United States where bread is sold at a lower price and that it is economically impossible to bring about any further reduction. The mere fact that the price of flour has continued to decline does not justify any further cut on bread one baker said since other factors entering into production exercise a large measure of control over prices.

AUSTRALIAN EX-PREMIER DIFFERS WITH NIEMEYER

Hughes Claims Bankers' Policy Is One Of Despair.

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 5 (C.P. Cable via Reuter's). — Former Prime Minister the Rt. Hon. W. M. Hughes, who was at the helm of Australia from 1915 to 1923, takes strong issue with the advice given to the Commonwealth in her present financial plight by Sir Otto Niemeyer, Bank of England expert.

Writing in the Daily Guardian, Mr. Hughes condemns Sir Otto's policy as one of "stagnation and despair, designed to stampede us into the compound where the financial interests which he represents want to see us. It is a plot to make us concentrate on the cheapest possible production of raw material for British industry so that Great Britain may be able to compete in the markets of the world.

A Gloomy Outlook

The wheat chart above, depicting fluctuations in December and May options at Winnipeg, shows how prices slithered to new lows for the year, and incidentally the lowest prices since the war during the week ending, Friday, August 29. Though the decline has halted in the last two days, there seems to be no sign of a rise on the horizon. Some grain dealers consider that prices may go still lower. The enormous supplies to be marketed, the pressure of the wheat pool and of the elevator interests in their efforts to unload, the comparative apathy of European buyers, and the lack of speculative interest are all discouraging factors in the way of better prices. The low mark for December was 89, and 95½ for May wheat. The October option closed at 88, its low mark for the year.

Missed Trophy by One Putt.

A six foot putt separated Dave Arnott of Winnipeg from the Prince of Wales Trophy, coveted prize of the recent Banff Springs Hotel Golf Course Tournament, in the last round of the finals. He was one up on the day's play. Both he and his opponent, W. J. "Bill" Thompson, of Toronto, made good tee drives and their seconds landed them on the green, Arnott, six and Thompson five feet from the flag. Arnott's ball hovered on the lip of the cup, but Thompson sank his putt. This evened the match, but another hole was played, Thompson winning easily and taking one of the most sought-after prizes in Canadian golfdom. Photo shows Thompson (left) and Arnott (runner-up).

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Operating no stores outside of Canada, a purely Canadian institution in organization and conduct, Dominion Stores Limited, is one of the outstanding chain store companies in Canada, if not the continent. "Our address is everywhere"—thus has the company made its motto and the assertion is borne out by the statement the chain now embraces 515 stores in Ontario, Quebec and the maritimes. Ontario is the centre of activity, but the company is gradually extending its branches into Quebec and the maritimes until now 169 stores are operating in these provinces.

Toronto leads all cities with 100 stores, Windsor follows with 28 stores, Hamilton and Ottawa each have 26 stores, London 13 stores. In other cities and towns in Ontario are stores numbering in all, 153 stores, making a total of 346 for the province.

Canadian Bud Breweries.

That Canadian Breweries is able to show steadily increasing sale amounting profit during a period when so many breweries in this province have been struggling against adverse conditions is gratifying to shareholders and speaks well for the management and policy of the company. Canada Bud has depended almost entirely upon domestic sales and with that end in view has sought to build up a reputation in Ontario, and especially Toronto, by the quality of its product. During the month of August the plant was operating twenty four hours a day and then only able to keep up with demands. With the turn into cooler weather and slackening of tourist trade there naturally has not been the same demand and operations are not at the same pitch they were last month, although still above normal. The company did not publish a financial statement last year but earnings were such the directors felt warranted in declaration of an initial dividend last Jantiary, which to date has been paid at the rate of 25 cents quarterly, profits this year are said to be well in excess of dividend requirements.

Car Earnings.

Earnings of Canadian Car and Foundry for the year which closes at the end of this Month, will, it is stated officially, be shown well in excess of dividend requirements on both classes of stock. All available orders have been cleaned up, and at present the company is marking time until work materializes. It is understood that be current financial position is very sound, in as much as cash, call loans and securities are equal to over $16 a share on the preferred stock and over $8 on both the common and preferred combined.

Distillery Combine.

For days the street has heard rumors of negotiations leading to a consolidation of distillers Corporation, Seagrams, Ltd., with Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, and now president, W. J. Hume, of the latter company hascome out with a definite denial that such negotiations are taking place. The possibility of an amalgamation of distilling interests in the Dominion has been a topic of discussion in financial circles, for a long while and about a year ago conferences were held and for a time it looked as if there might be a consolidation. No official information or an announcement was made at that time but the street was full of stories andthe information was more or less confirmed by the evidence given in connection with the court action in the Sir Mortimer Davis estate. Rumors going around to-day are somewhat similar to those heard a year ago, but on this occasion official denial has been prompt.

IRWIN COBB'S DAUGHTER MARRIES FOR SECOND TIME

NEW YORK, Sept 5.—Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb Chapman, daughter of Irvin S. Cobb, the writer, was married at city hall here yesterday to Allen A. Brody, New York real estate man.

It was Mrs. Chapman's second marriage. Last March, at Reno, she was divorced from Frank M. Chapman, Jr. She is the mother of a four-year-old daughter.

Brody was born in New York and educated in Switzerland and at Harvard. He served as an aviator during the World War, was shot down inside the German lines in September, 1918 and was held prisoner until the armistice was signed.

Mrs. Brody, following in the footsteps of her father, is the author of two published novels and numerous short stories and magazine articles. She expects to continue her writing, her father said light night.

PONTIAC ENGINE HAS HIGH POWER

Beauty, Comfort and Low Mileage Cost Are Other Features.

SEVEN BODY MODELS

The "big car" qualities which distinguish the 1930 Pontiac are not confined to size alone. In power speed, reliability and durability the Pontiac has achieved a position of eminence. In the matter of comfort, this car is winning high praise. There is generous leg-room, and the seats are scientifically adjusted for the maximum of riding ease.

The Big Six engine, developing 60 brake horsepower at 3,000 p.m. provides a reserve of power that permits of tireless high-speed performance. It is the biggest in any six at the price, with a piston displacement of 200 cubic inches, which enables the motor to develop maximum power while moving parts revolve at a moderate rate. Full pressure lubrication of moving engine partts reduces friction to a minimum. The linings of Pontiac's big four-wheel brakes are often good for 30,000 miles. In fact, it is claimed for the big Pontiac, that you get general operating economy which rivals the cost per mile of the lowest priced cars on the road.

Fisher craftsmen, through artistic blending of smart lines, charming colors and perfect proportions, have conferred upon the bodies of the 1930 Pontiac many new and distinctive elements of style. There are seven beautiful body models in the offering.

Comfort is on a par with beauty and utility in the 1930 Pontiac. A sloping windshield not only improves appearance, but largely eliminates annoying reflections during the night driving. Rubber cups on brake and clutch pedals seal the openings around pedal slots when the pedals are in normal position. An effective steering system operates on taper roller bearings of the new hour glass type affording ease of control, as do also the adjustable driver's seats in the closed models. An all-metal military type visor tilting beam headlights operated by foot control, and new instrument grouping on the ebony finished panel also provide further elements of convenience and grace. A new built-in coil ignition lock operates from the instrument panel.

Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers now restrain spring rebound by means of solid metal, rubber-bushed links instead of straps, a change which enables them to become instantly effective.

A very appropriate address was read and luncheon was served about 12 p.m. The young couple were wished many long happy years of wedded life. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

Word has been received from the five boys who moved out to the West. The boys purchased an old car and had a very enjoyable trip. They reached Manitou, Manitoba, on August 18. The crops are good there and help seemed quite scarce.

CADILLAC ALL-WEATHER PHAETON

Superb with elegance which custom coachcraft can impart, the Cadillac all-weather phaeton shown here is one of the swankiest models in the Cadillac V-16 line.

The sixteen-cylinder Cadillac, the great V-16 has been accorded the admiration and approval of the motoring public throughout the year and it continues to accumulate prestige as time goes on. It certainly is a very beautiful car. The custom-built Fleetwood bodies are fine examples of modern coach work. Lines of the Cadillac V-16 are low and graceful with appealing balance and symmetry. The sixteen-cylinder engine is a triumph of design and precision manufacture, with its magic smoothness and flexibility and remarkable capability under all traffic conditions. Absolute silence of operation has been developed in this motor, and the transmission is the now-famous syncre-mesh type applied to the power requirements of the V-16.

The other models of the Cadillac and La Salle are all fast, roomy and comfortable cars powered by enlarged and refined eight-cylinder engines. In addition to vastly improved flexibility and handling ease, they possess many advantages and exclusive safety features. They are equipped with the silent-shift Syncro-Mesh transmission which renders gear-shifting quick, quiet and clashless; they have non-shatterable Security Plate Glass in all windows, doors and windshields and their brakes are of the Cadillac-designed Safety Mechanical four wheel type which are powerful positive and instantly responsive.

A wide choice is afforded by the Fisher Custom Bodies and the Fleetwood Special Custom Bodies mounted on the Cadillac chassis. The models range from the two-passenger roadster to the Transformable Limousine Brougham. The La Salle is also available in both Sisher Body types and Fleetwood models.

600-MILE GAP IN TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY WOULD COST $10,000,000

MAY SOON BE STARTED

Before Canada can boast a transcontinental highway, about 600 miles of road must be constructed. The required road-building is all west of Sault Ste. Marie, and the possible routes all lie through difficult territory. Nevertheless, in view of the sympathetic attitude displayed by the new Government at Ottawa, and the constantly increasing public interest in the trans-Canada highway project, it seems likely that construction of a road across the intervening gap may soon be started.

Officials of the Canadian Automobile Association, basing their estimates on engineering data, say that the highways that will bridge the gaps between the Soo and the Manitoba boundary will cost $6,000 a mile in some places and $20,000 a mile in others. In other words, for perhaps $10,000,000 the trans-Canada Highway can be made a reality. The more scenic the highway, in this case, the higher the cost.

A lakeshore route around Lake Superior would be costly, because it is the rock-blasted type of road which comes at the $20,000 a mile figure. Those motorists, however, who see highways as something more than means of getting from one place to another, believe that the shore route would pay dividends in beauty and tourist attraction. Already it is possible to drive from Winnipeg to the Pacific Coast, but nobody has yet driven a car across Northern Ontario. When this is accomplished, which will probably not be until the roadbuilders get through, it will be possible to ramble from coast to coast in Canada without geographical obstacles.

Roseneath

Mr. Arthur Tucker is suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

The friends of Master Francis Parker are pleased to learn he is doing favorably well, having had his arm broken a few weeks ago.

Earl George, the little three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward George, met with an accident on Friday afternoon. Playing with a sharp chisel he let it fall, cutting his little toe completely off. Medical aid was called to dress the wound and now the little fellow is doing nicely.

Between forty and fifty friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Webb on Sunday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Webb and family, Marjorie and Harold, of Smithfalls, and who are on their vacation here. The afternoon was spent in social chat with the family circle and music and singing by the younger members. A bountiful dinner was served and an enjoyable time was spent. Among those from a distance were Mr. James Cahoon and son, Ross, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shearer and family, of Harwood; also relatives from Hastings, Roseneath and surrounding community.

Corn Roast.

Chief and Mrs. Norman Marsden, of Alderville, entertained a large number of friends on Friday evening to a corn roast. There was abundance of choice corn, also weiners and other good things to eat. The program which followed was a treat for all lovers of music and song. Mr. Leslie Loukes, who is on a holiday trip, and his friend, Mr. Field, both of Akron, Ohio. Miss Bertha Hudson, of Toronto, and Miss Jennie Loukes, of Alderville, were the artists of the evening, and gave many up-to-date and popular selections.

PRISONER KILLS ANOTHER WITH KNIFE OVER GRUDGE

OSSINING, N.Y., September 5. — An inmate of Sing-Sing Prison, believed to have harbored a grudge over the division of loot obtained in a bank robbery, stabbed another convict to death last night in the prison recreation hall before a keeper and a large group of prisoners.

The victim, Joseph Raymond Klune, 28, was stabbed once in the abdomen with a seven-inch knife from the prison kitchen. The alleged slayer, Harry Lipschitz, 26, was taken before Warden Lewis E. Lawes, and coolly admitted the stabbing, authorities said. He had stolen the knife, they declared, and concealed it for several weeks in the hope of meeting Klune.

FERGUSON SCORES IMPORTS FROM U.S.

Canned Peaches, Soup and Flour Come Under Premier's Fire.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5 (C.P.).—Premier G. Howard Ferguson has launched his campaign to promote the use of Ontario farm products by a vigorous attack on the importation of United States canned goods and flour and their sale here while there is a surplus of Canadian-grown vegetables and wheat.

Premier Ferguson spoke to the Exhibition directors' luncheon, and he announced the Ontario Government planned an aggressive educational advertising campaign from the platform in the press and over the air to promote the sale of, use and consumption of Ontario farm products.

Canned soup from American vegetables, canned fruit and an American brand of flour came under the Premier's fire. The canned peaches he said were sold here while the market was hampered for the sale of Niagara grown peaches. The flour he said was made from American soft wheat and sold here while in Canada there was superabundance of the finest hard wheat in the world.

OLDSMOBILE PATRICIAN SEDAN

The Oldsmobile Patrician sedan, one of the handsomest cars in the 1930 line by this company, and one of the most attractive cars at the show.

The inviting appearance of the Patrician sedan is in part due to the upholstering, which is in a beautiful shade of broadcloth. This car is also equipped with side torchere lights, arm rests, silk assist cords, and robe rail. De luxe body types have six wire wheels, tires and tubes, the two spares being mounted and locked in front fender wells. There are also cromium plated bumpers.

Oldsmobile standard body types are equipped with tilt ray headlights and auxiliary parking bulbs; radiator shutters, engine thermometer, gasoline gauge, ammeter, speedometer and oil gauge mounted on instrument panel; full ventilation and vision tilted windshield; rear view mirror and stop light. The newly designed instrument board on the Oldsmobile takes care of all the controls and instruments in a neat and compact manner. The board is finished in black and silver, with decorative scroll, and represents the latest trend in interior finish.

The L-head design engine of the Oldsmobile develops 62 horsepower at 3000 revolutions per minute. Faster acceleration and improved hill climbing performance have been noted by the drivers of this year's models. A new type of carburetor has been used, which enhances smooth engine performance, increased gasoline economy, and which is easily adjusted.

Interiors of the Oldsmobile are uniformly roomy and luxurious. The best type springs have been used in the seats. A fine quality of silk mohair is used for the upholstery of most of the closed models. Metal fittings are by Ternstedt.

The front compartment of the Oldsmobile Six has received special attention at the hands of the engineers. The floor is covered with heavy rubber felt-lined mat which is extended up over the toe and cowl boards. This not only provides an attractive finish but also seals the front compartment from noise, dust and drafts.

Warsaw

WARSAW, Sept. 5.—About one hundred friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowe (formerly Miss Ivy Petrie) gathered at their home on Friday evening to bid them welcome as new home-makers in the community.

A pleasant social evening was spent with music and games. French tag was played on the lawn. Later, all gathered in the house, and Dr. Munro gave the newlyweds some advice, intermixed with humor. Little Mary Payne and Minnie Charlton brought in a basket of gifts, Cressa Payne and Helen Williams brought another, while Percy Drain brought in a tray with a bedroom set, and another with a breakfast set. The gifts included aluminum and granite cooking utensils, table accessories in china and silverware, blankets, towels, and other household linen.

Mr. Crowe replied to the doctor's speech and thanked their friends for the gifts and for the thought which accompanied them.

Mr. Petrie sang "When Father Papered the Parlor." There were some choruses with Mrs. George Taylor at the piano.

Lunch was served, when each guest received a piece of wedding cake which had been made by the bride herself.

The younger people indulged in dancing for a short time, with music by Dr. Munro's orchestra.

Mr. Crowe is a public-spirited young man, having taken an active interest in all agricultural affairs, and always willing to assist whenever he possibly could with any community or church work.

At her own home, and in the sections where she has taught, Mrs. Crowe has been the same.

Reeve Hawthorne, with his son and daughter, went to Toronto on Friday for the day.

Mr. David Drain motored to Toronto on Tuesday. He took little Bobby McClure home.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hogan, from Barrie, are visiting relatives in Douro township.

Among those living at a distance from Warsaw, at Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowe's shower on Friday evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Adamson and Miss Adamson from Keene; Mr. Petrie, Messrs. James, Earl and Kenneth Petrie, from Otonabee; Mr. and Mrs. Carman Seymour, from Cavan; Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, from North Monaghan; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne, from Lakefield; Miss Burgess, from Norwood; Miss Hogan, from London; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charlton, and Miss Minnie, from Lakefield.

NORWICH FARMER DIES IN TORONTO ROOMING HOUSE

TORONTO, Ont., September 5. — (C.P.)—An unidentified man, believed to be Herbert Morgan, a farmer of Norwich, was found dead last night in a rooming house on King street west in the downtown district. Heart trouble is believed to have caused his death.

Search of his clothes revealed a return ticket to Norwich by way of Brampton. A number of photographs, mostly farm scenes, found in his possession, indicated the man's occupation. A deputy returning officer's slip signed by Arden Nicholls, was also found. A long distance telephone call to Norwich disclosed Mr. Nicholls still resided there.

SPRINGVILLE.

The members and friends of the Springville Literary Society gave a corn roast on Thursday evening in honor of Miss Connie McConnachie, whose marriage takes place in early September. The party congregated in a large field owned by J. Staples, Scott's Corners, and a jolly time was enjoyed by the light of a bonfire. The important feature of the evening took place during an exciting game of frop-the-handkerchief when the bride-elect discovered that a box somewhat heavier than a handkerchief had been dropped for her. To her complete surprise she found that it held a beautiful Community Plate silver tea service—a gift from the Literary Society. Miss McConnacnie made suitable reply ,thanking the society for their kindness and also thanking the Church Session for the invitation (although declined) that had been extended to Miss McConnachie and Mr. Robertson to hold their wedding service in Springville United Church. Rev. A. H. McConnachie, father of the bride and former pastor of this church, spoke a few words of appreciation on behalf of his daughter and himself. After the corn had made its appearance—and disappearance—pie and sandwiches were served. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Staples for the use of his property and many conveniences.

Inexpensive Desserts And How to Make Them

BY EDWINA NOLAN

Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

DESSERTS can be made attractive and nutritious without costing much and they should be planned as part of the meal because of the energy food they provide in the form of sugar.

Odds and ends of fruit, a little custard and some whipped cream—all of which may be left from other meals—make a delicious and economical dessert. So also do many other combinations which can be concocted from left-overs.

There are the fruit gelatines, whips and sponges which can be made from ingredients you are apt to have on hand—apple sauce, a few prunes left from breakfast or some canned apricots—and the necessary staples such as sugar and gelatine, with the addition of eggs for sponges.

Then there are the frozen desserts, some of which, especially the sherbets, also are inexpensive. The cream mixtures may cost a little more to make, but they are rich and only small portions need be served.

By not wasting food or money through unwise purchases or from food spoilage, the housewife finds it far less expensive to entertain. And what homemaker does not take pleasure in having her friends drop in informally for luncheon, tea or dinner? Facilities for keeping left-overs and for making the many delicious desserts are necessary but the constant, proper temperature assured through electric refrigeration provides a means for serving any number of new, attractive and inexpensive dishes.

BETTER BRAN FLAKES

PEP for flavor—extra bran for health

You'd never believe that bran flakes could be so sun-brown and crisp—so full of glorious flavor—the matchless flavor of PEP.

A tempting treat that's as healthful as it is good. The crunchy whole wheat brings quick energy—the extra bran helps to keep you feeling fit. There's just enough added to be mildly laxative.

Have them for lunch today. For breakfast tomorrow. They're great for every one—at every meal.

Look for Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes in the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

IMPORTANT—Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes are mildly laxative. ALL-BRAN—another Kellogg product—is all bran and guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I DON'T KNOW whether there are many families living in cramped quarters in Peterborough, but if there are, the article to-day will interest them.

• • • • • • •

While in Toronto a few days ago I was surprised at the number of families living in apartments with only three or four rooms

• • • • • • •

When necessity demands that one live in cramped quarters it is wise to look at it in a fantastical way. Consider living in one, two, or three rooms in the light of miniature homemaking and the point of view will lessen much of the mental dislike.

• • • • • • •

Once the mind assumes this outlook, it is easier to put up with lack of space for which no amount of modern convenience can entirely supplant.

• • • • • • •

The woman who has been accustomed to plenty of room, enough closet space, and that opportunity for freedom from continual personal contacts impossible to get in cramped living conditions, is the one who finds adjustment to a small or comparatively small apartment, a genuine trial.

• • • • • • •

When such conditions are unavoidable, and it is hard to conceive of one submitting to them otherwise, then is the time to ferret in one's mind for an attitude that will ease the strain and struggle for a broader physical horion.

• • • • • • •

It is the mental horizon that can retin its supremacy. It does not need to be hampered. Instead it can open vistas of interest even in the cramped and insufficient area.

• • • • • • •

Think of the dwelling as a miniature of the house previously occupied. See in the tiny kitchenette the condensed good features of the larger room.

• • • • • • •

The closets are all within easy reach without taking the steps once required. Think of the small floor space in the terms of floor care—then the miniature has its appeal.

• • • • • • •

It is the mental horizon that can retain its supremacy. It does not need to have its good points. There are fewer closets to clean. At first they will be inadequate to your demands but you will learn to get along with fewer frocks or less of something for the sake of being less crowded.

• • • • • • •

You will also acquire the ability to condense things into small space without harming them, since in a miniature place space is valuable.

• • • • • • •

The fact that there is less of everything to care for, less paint to clean, fewer windows to wash, fewer lighting fixtures to keep immaculate, fewer rugs to sweep or vacuum-clean, etc., can all be put on the credit side.

• • • • • • •

In this sort of housekeeping the homemaker is relieved of several tasks that would fall on her to do, or to see to, for instance, the sweeping of the sidewalk, emptying the garbage, tending the furnace, cleaning the halls, etc.

• • • • • • •

All of these things that take strength or time, or both, are seen to by someone else.

• • • • • • •

So if it so happens that apartment life is the portion of a woman who delights in space, look on the favorable features, minimize the disadvantages, and put a bit of whimsey into the aspect by the miniature home phase.

• • • • • • •

And in this way find out the ease of mind that such a attitude will bring.

GOOD-BYE SUMMER!!! GOOD-BYE!

Summer is gone.

Officially, of course, it still has three weeks to run. But to- ninety-nine people out of every hundred the passing of Labor Day signifies the passing of summer. The vacation period is over for all except the fortunate few. September begins its advance toward "October's bright, blue weather." Even winter, with its snow and sleet and zero weather, begins to seem not so absurdly remote as it did during those July and August days when lawns and fields shivelled up under the heat and dryness, and the maddened thermometer toyed with the scorching nineties.

To-day we behold the familiar sight of children trudging to school . . . books swinging in straps and bags . . . feet idly kicking loose pebbles in the walks.

This is summer's extension. As the years pass, its annual recurrence becomes less and less virulent in form—unless you are one of those over-youthful souls to whom September spells the same vague stirrings of rebellion against the status quo that makes young May a sad and beautiful dream of a better order.

But, already, autumn begins to make its presence felt in no uncertain manner . . . and even the youngest will capitulate.

In the meantime, vacationists are flocking back to the daily grind and a winter of frantic appeal to the gods of economic cause and effect. Summer is over, and with it have gone the cool nights among the pine-branches and the vigorous days beneath the bronzing sun. The moon of lodge-nights, bridges, dinner parties, club meetings, theatres, taxes, and furnace-tending is upon us . . . and we are too feeble to resist it.

That would appear to be one thing about summer: it leaves you physically fit, but mentally as spineless as filet of sole.

Dreams of romantic moonlight canoeing on those throbbing nights when the stars dripped magic and life seemed nothing but a beautiful and thrilling adventure; dreams of days when glinting paddles cut the gold-flecked waters, and diving loons sounded their eerie cry . . . dreams of midsummer love and midsummer madness, will have to last strangely sentimental youth until spring breaks through again.

It's good-bye to all that. . . .

The smell of burning leaves and the apple-tang, which is autumn's own inimitable perfume, will soon tell our nostrils that the next big event is thanksgiving and turkey and mince pie. We are going to be stirred with a faint amazement one clear morning to see the big tree outside our window decked with hectic hues which would put even a Picasso to shame. We are going to know that fall is here, in all the febrile beauty of October woods and the smoky haze of its horizons.

But, as for voluptuous summer, Labor Day finished her. Dusty days and steaming nights are over. Quick, tingling plunges into lake and river, and amorous tete-a-tetes on cottage verandahs are a thing of the past. Roaring tourists on the highways, and gliding open-air dances under swaying lanterns will soon be just a memory. . . .

Good-bye to all that. . . .

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

By Aline Michaelis.

LIKE TWISTED TREES.

Some souls are warped by fear
And some by care
Through going, year on year,
With loads to bear
Too weighty for their strength.
Life's storms take these
And rend, until at length
Like twisted trees
That once stood, straight and proud,
Against the sky
Some souls go bent and bowed
And shaped awry.

Yet when such lives I find,
Full well I know,
That, spite of winds unkind,
All trees that grow
Are striving to be tall;
Yes, every one,
Pine, cypress, willow, all

Mr. Archie Matchett was a visitor to Toronto Exhibition this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dowell, Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Mercer, Port Hope, and Mr. Earl Sootheran, of Chapleau, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Paul, on Sunday.

Mrs. O. McGill, Miss Mae McGill and Mrs. Foster, Bethany, visited Mrs. Ida Keegan, on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Wilson who has been visiting her niece, Mrs. Jas. Kennedy, returned this week to her home at Kirkland Lake, visiting friends in Huntsville, enroute.

Birmingham, England, has just opened its thirty thousandth municipal house.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SPLINTING THE SPINE.

One of the early lessons I learned about suspected tuberculosis was that where the symptoms were conflicting, it was better to consider the case as tuberculosis than to make the mistake of telling a true tuberculosis case that he did not have the disease.

The idea was the care the case would get for the ensuing months would be only of benefit even if he did not have the trouble whereas the delay in treating a true case of tuberculosis might lose him his chance of recovery.

Fortunately the X-ray, the blood sedimentation test, and other aids now help in making the correct diagnosis.

However tuberculosis anywhere in the body is always uncertain as to how quickly or how slowly it will increase or decrease in severity.

And so in cases of tuberculosis of the spine. Should the cases be operated on or should one wait to see how it will develop. Dr. Fred H. Albee, New York, says, "I have always felt the profoundest regret in operating on these unfortunate protracted cases that operation had not been undertaken long before and the patient spared years of invalidism. Since we cannot foretell, every case should be considered as likely as to be unfavorable and so operate in every case."

As you know, Dr. Albee's operation for tuberculosis of the spine is to take a piece from the shin bone and by sawing a grove in the sharp prominence you can feel along the spinal column (back bone) he lays in this splint of bones from the shin, and it grows in place and so keeps the tuberculous bones of the spinal column apart, thus giving them a chance to heal.

Dr. Albee reports 865 cases on which he has performed this operation; in 63 per cent the operation has been done from one to five years previously, and in 31 per cent, it was from five to nineteen years.

That is only 6 per cent, had been done within the previous year.

In 90 per cent of the cases the results were classified as excellent, and 8 per cent fair.

I believe with results such as above parents should be willing to have their youngster undergo this operation, which saves months, perhaps years of rest in bed.

And for adults it is likewise good sense whether the trouble is due to tuberculosis, war or other injury.

GIRL WITHOUT COUNTRY.

That's what Canadian immigration authorities thought when Naomi Winter, pretty 20-year-old Japanese-Canadian dancer landed aboard the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan on the big white liner's first and record-breaking voyage from the Far East. Naomi had the largest and fastest liner on the Pacific all to herself for two days while the officials tried to determine whether she was Canadian, American or Japanese. Finally she was allowed to return to her Canadian parents. Born in Montreal of Japanese-Canadian parents, Naomi went to New York and married a Japanese-American, whom she is now in process of divorcing. The divorce decree is not final. For a time Canadian authorities said she had lost Canadian rights by marriage with an American and because of her Japanese extraction, while the United States declined to admit her because they said she no longer was married to a U.S. citizen and was subject to Japanese quota laws. Japan, the former New York night club dancer said, threatened to give her difficulty as well when she left there early in August for Canada, because she did not have a visa from the Japanese Consul in San Francisco, from which port she sailed for the Orient in June.

MILK DISTRIBUTORS WILL MEET PRODUCERS AGAIN

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—Local milk distributors at a meeting yesterday decided to confer once more with the producers to consider further their claim that an increased price is necessary. According to a statement handed out by John C. Lock, Secretary of the Toronto Milk Distributor's Association.

Members of the Association who were at the meeting would not comment upon it and the secretary's terse report upon the proceedings of a hurriedly-arranged discussion was not amplified. The dairymen met it is understood, to consider press accounts of a York County producers' meeting in Markham Wednesday evening.

No date has been set for the proposed further conference, but the distributors' secretary said last night it was hoped to hold it next week.

Women Safer Drivers Brunettes Preferred

You may or may not agree with this opinion. It is an editorial from the New York American:

"Gentlemen may prefer blondes as passengers or companions, but pedestrians prefer brunettes as drivers.

"The rating of women at the wheel, according to an insurance expert, is: Blondes good, red-heads better, and brunettes best.

"The dark-haired lady of the sedan or touring car is credited with being less prone to take chances than her sister of lighter-colored tresses, natural or drug store.

"One might have supposed that women drove with their heads rather than with their hair, but it seems that in a car the color of the hair is an index to what is in the head.

"Blondes, and particularly red-heads, may be seen from a greater distance, but maybe that is just the trouble with the pedestrian. He has his eye not upon the car, but on the driver, and becomes dazzled by her headlights.

"When a brunette is at the wheel the pedestrian looks both ways before crossing.

"When it is a blonde or red-head he looks only one way and takes a chance.

"As the moth to the candle, so goeth the pedestrian to the front wheel of the driver with the flaming hair.

"But that is not all the insurance expert has to say. He finds that women of all shades average as safer drivers than men.

"Safer, but perhaps not better, and safer because other drivers prefer to give them a wider berth. But whatever the reason the fact remains that women, though numbering 24.3 per cent. of all drivers, are responsible for only 6 per cent. of auto accidents.

"Yet another interesting conclusion is that youth and age do not figure in safety statistics, and that good drivers may be found at any age.

"But to return to the woman in the car, it is her crowning glory that she so rarely figures as a hit-and-run driver. Let that be counted unto her for righteousness and mercy, whether she be blonde, red-head or brunette."

COMPROMISE SOUGHT IN UNITED COUNTIES

Urban Assessment Appeal in Hands of Clerk.

Efforts are being made to reach a compromise settlement in the matter of United Counties revaluation for taxation purposes. The appeal of the various municipalities concerned, Cobourg, Colborne, Campbellford, Port Hope and Bowmanville, has been placed in the hands of Major MacNachtan, counties clerk and treasurer.

On Judge O'Connor's return from vacation, a conference will be held between representatives of the municipalities and the county council. It is at that time that a compromise arrangement is hoped for.

In that connection, the suggestion is made that a joint urban and rural assessment commission may be set up to revise assessment throughout Northumberland and Durham, but in a progressive and scientific manner which would not load the counties with an excessive bill of costs, as would result if the counties judge is forced by dis-agreement to hold courts of revision in every town, village and township.—Port Hope Guide.

HALL'S BRIDGE.

The Messrs. Hill and Ireland, of the Oregon Trail, motored into Toronto recently, to visit the C.N.E.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shearer and family, have left for Toronto.

The Hall's Bridge school will not be ready for opening this term, until next week.

Mr. Downey, the Government Inspector, was visiting and inspecting on the Oregon Trail Wednesday.

MANY REVISIONS IN NEW FORDS

Bodies Smarter and Roomier—Marked Advance on Initial Model A.

SEDAN LONGER.

The current Ford Model A series is very appreciably better in appearance, safety and comfort than the initial edition.

Every line from the higher radiator to the tip of the curve of the rear fender of the new Ford bodies was revised. The entire front wax raised. Fenders were made more generous and flow more artistically. Nickel plate was replaced by rustless steel. A finish strip of this metal at the juncture of the cowl and hood adds to the appearance of the exterior.

Wheels are smaller and tires larger, bringing the body closer to the ground, an important safety feature. The most notable changes in body types were made in the Tudor Sedan, the coupe and the open cars.

The Tudor Sedan is longer, making a roomier rear compartment. Access is easier around the folding seats in front. The rear seat accommodates three passengers more commodiously.

The coupe was entirely redesigned with lower roof line. The seat, as in other closed cars, is adjustable to a range of four inches, adding much comfort to driving. A parcel shelf is provided behind the seat.

The sport coupe, which has a rumble seat as standard equipment, possesses all the lower body lines of the coupe. In addition, the rich gray top material, the rounded rear corners and the landau irons on the rear quarters add materially to the sport lines of the car. The rear window hangs in a heavy curtain that may be opened and attached to the roof above, permitting contact with those in the rumble seat.

The phaeton has more the appearance of a smart sport car than its precursor. The sides are higher. Seats are lower, so that the occupant sits well down in the car, a characteristic of sport car design. The windshield and its wings fold flat forward. Doors are wider.

Greater comfort and better style have been built into the new roadster body. Doors were widened two inches. The seat was widened to accommodate three persons. The windshield wings fold flat. The top folds compactly and quickly. The luggage space in the rear deck is convertible into a rumble seat compartment.

The Town Sedan was designed especially for those who wish distintiveness and convenience. It is of the three-window, four-door type. The rear seats is provided with arm rests on either side and a centre arm rest which may be folded into the cushion back when not in use. A flexible robe rail is fitted into the back of the front seat.

The three-window Fordor Sedan is another car of individuality, enhanced by the attractive lines of the rear quarter This car is more commodious than previous designs, having the same interior dimensions as the town car.

The Ford Convertible Cabriolet, an all-season car, possesses all the snugness of a closed car when the weather is bad and all the advantages of an open car when the weather is fair.

ESSEX OFFERED IN 8 BODY STYLES

First Convertible Phaeton in Low Priced Field One of Them.

LONGER WHEEL BASE.

The Essex Challenger comes in eight body styles—a far cry from the time when it was presented with a single superstructure, the first closed car to sell at, and subsequently below, open car prices.

The eight body styles are Coach, standard sedan, coupe, touring sedan, broughan, phaeton, roadster and sun sedan, all available in various colors.

The high-compression six-cylinder motor is not the old one revamped. It has aluminum alloy pistons, light connecting rods, and a Lanchester balancer, of improved design. Lubrication is achieved by a pump carrying screen-filtered oil from the reservoir to the crank chamber by way of two separate main feed lines. A new-type suction breather is mounted on the left front of the engine to prevent dilution of the motor oil.

The carburetor is of recently perfected two-jet type with heat-jacketed accelerating pump said to allow quick warm-up in cold weather, smooth operation at low speed and fuel economy.

The ignition system has automatic spark advance. A graduated spark setting guide, permitting quick adjustment, is mounted at the base of the distributor housing.

The motor is mounted at four points and rubber-cushioned in a new frame. The running in oil clutch is of improved design, larger than in the preceding model. The number of cork inserts was increased to eighty-eight, giving the clutch a 22 per cent greater torque capacity, it is said.

Load-carrying capacity and rigidity are secured from the cross-ribbing of the front axle yokes. The rear axle, too, incorporated new features. Steering gear is of an improved worm and sector type.

The bodies make full use of steel construction, and are insulated and silenced. Other body refinements include chromium plated ornamental hood hinges, beaded body belt lines and similarly beaded running-board aprons, duel cowl ventilators and silver finished hardware and trimmings.

DE SOTO MODELS VERY ATTRACTIVE

Six Set Record in First Year Sales, Eight in Trials.

DISTINCTIVE FEATURES.

Designed and developed in the Chrysler Motors engineering department under the direction of Fred M. Zeder, vice-president in charge of engineering of the Chrysler Corporation, the Se Soto Straight Eight, has many distinctive features.

The new Straight Eight motor has an N.A.C.C. horse-power rating of 26.45 and develops 72 horse-power. The piston displacement is 207.7 cubic inches. The engine has rubber insulated suspension. There is full force feed lubrication to all crankshaft, camshaft and connecting rod bearing, and a spray under pressure from small metred holes in connecting rod bearings lubricated the cylinders. All cylinder block oil passages are drilled rather than cored, to eliminate any possibility of cores and being distributed through the system. The same steel-strut, light-alloy type pistons which have proved so successful in Chrysler-built car for the past several years are included in the new Se Doto Straight Eight.

The crankshaft, mounted in five main bearings, is statically and dynamically balanced and is equipped with an impulse neutralizer, insuring smooth operation. The crankshaft is drilled to permit oil under pressure being forced to all bearings.

One of the most remarkable features of this new engine is down-draft carburetion. The down-draft carburetion is of the plain-tube type, provided with idle speed adjustments. Fixed jets covering all necessary ranges above idle speed compensate for variations of altitude and peak. Summer and winter conditions. The carburetor is equipped with automatic acceleration pump, air-cleaner, fuel-fitter and manifold heat control. Fuel is supplied to the carburetor by a camshaft-driven fuel pump.

The steering wheel is of the three-spoke type, affording unrestricted view of the instrument panel. There is a thermostatically controlled cooling system.

PLYMOUTH OFFERS VALUABLE PRIZES

Competition Invites Attention to Qualities of This Car.

A contest open to every person over the legal driving age—requiring no special skill or engineering knowledge is at present being run by the Plymouth Motor Corporation, with the idea of familiarizing every potential motorist and others with the wonderful value which they are offering in the Plymouth car.

With the idea of finding out which features about the car appeal most strongly to you, whether you are most impressed with it's remarkably low price—it's safety steel body—it's internal, weather-proof hydraulic four-wheel brakes—or which of it's many other outstanding advantages make an appeal, the Plymouth Motor Corporation offers a remarkable list of prizes.

Surely you would like to have $1,000 a year for life—or make a trip around the world—or win $1,000 in cash—or a new Plymouth car—or any one of over 900 other cash awards. Well—you can—by following a few simple rules.

Application at any Chrysler, Dodge or DeSoto dealer will ensure an entry blank for the "Why I'd Buy a Plymouth" Contest. The dealer will tell you about the car in detail, demonstrate it to you, answer any questions you may care to ask. Then when you are absolutely certain you know why the Plymouth is better than any other low-priced car—write the reasons why you would buy it, in the space provided on the contest blank. Mail the entry to the Contest Department, Plymouth Motor Corporation, 1475 East Grand Boulevard, Detroit. That's all there is to it. There is no obligation to buy anything whatsoever—just a few minutes of your time to shake hands with the opportunity of a lifetime.

The contest closes at midnight, October 20th, 1930. Winners will be announced through placards displayed in stores of Dodge, Chrysler and DeSoto dealers, as soon as possible after the contest closes.

WILLYS-KNIGHT WINS POPULARITY

Distinctive Beauty Secures Enviable Place Among Fine Cars.

ENGINE DEVELOPS 87 H.P.

Popularity of the sleeve-valve type of engine, as well as the distinctive beauty that characterizes Willys-Knight cars, has created more interest than ever before in the Willys-Knight Great Six. In comfort, style and performance, the Great Six has established a conspicuous place for itself among fine cars.

Five passenger sedan, five passenger coupe, roadster and coupe make up the Willys-Knight Great Six line. All are equipped with wire wheels, although models with wood wheels are offered at lower prices.

The public appeal for more power and speed is answered emphatically by the new Willys-Knight Great Six sleeve valve engine which develops 87 horsepower, resulting in a considerably higher road speed than ever before. This is the most powerful engine ever manufactured by Willys-Knight.

An improvement in the gear shifting mechanism, together with the use of a straight lever instead of the curved lever, results in shortening the distance necessary for the hand to travel in changing gears.

The spare wheel and tire mounting in the front fender wells has been improved by carrying the weight on the brackets riveted to the side rail of the frame. This removes any load from the fender and running board and eliminates vibration.

Outstanding mechanical features of the new Great Six include the popular "Finger-Tip Control", which starts the engine, sounds the horn and operates the lights with a button located in the center of the steering wheel; the new three spoke rubber covered steel steering wheel; one shot lubrication; cam and lever steering gear; manual heat control; automatic radiator shutters; all internal-four-wheel brakes; adjustable front seat and steering post; emergency brake at left of driver's seat; and heavey seven bearing crankshaft.

IMPROVED WHIPPET IS NOW ON DISPLAY

Basic Features Retained With Refinements and Better Equipment.

The most popular low priced car ever presented by Willys-Overland, the Whippet Four is making a further step forward in its class through a series of mechanical improvements for longer life and artistic advancements which are expected to bring it an enhanced popularity.

The fundamentals of the improved Whippet are practically the same as its predecessor, while the new details which have been added give it greater beauty, increased riding comfort and smoothness, safety and longer life with no increase in price. The prices are $685 for the 2-passenger coupe, which is also available with rumble seat, $760 for the 4-door 5-passenger sedan and coach at $695. Prices f.o.b. factory. Sales tax extra.

The improvements incorporated in the current model include front and rear double acting hydraulic shock eliminators; improved 4-wheel brakes; engine mounted in rubber to absorb vibration; adjustable front seat in sedan; klaxon horn mounted on front tie-bar between headlamps; quality upholstery; stylish, beautiful new color combinations; newly designed lamps, hub caps and radiator filler cap.

These advancements are in addition to the other well known Whippet features of powerful, speedy, high compression motor; "finger-tip control"; full force feed lubrication; silent timing chain; over-size tires.

In performance the improved Whippet maintains the same standard of speed, power, smoothness, acceleration, and economy, while the comfortable riding qualities have been enhanced through the incorporation of hydraulic shock eliminators, front and rear.

A marked improvement is noted in the new Whippet braking equipment. The brakes are the two shoe, Bendix Duo-servo type, of improved design. The improved construction eliminates brake rattle in addition to providing a superior brake which enables the driver to have his car under complete control at every driving range.

GRAHAM-PAIGE USE QUIET TEST ROOM

Transmission Studied in Sound-proof Room.

In order to insure the least possible transmission noise in all Graham transmissions, the units undergo exhaustive tests prior to installation enabling Graham engineers to detect even the slightest noise not otherwise audible. These tests and final inspections are conducted in special sound-proof rooms insulated against outside noises. The transmissions are subjected to tests that cover the entire range of transmission action.

According to F. L. Kishline, assistant chief engineer of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, the silent-room tests make it possible to check and analyze all transmission noises especially the very slight sounds that would not be detected otherwise, with the result that Graham transmissions have been developed to a point of maximum silence and efficiency.

"The quality of the materials that go into Graham transmissions, together with the design and the type of gears and bearings used, have proved to be the most satisfactory under any and all driving conditions," says Mr. Kishline. "In the Graham Standard Six transmission, the main drive gear and main transmission shaft are ball-bearing mounted. The end thrust of each shaft is taken care of independently of the other. This construction, while involving greater expense, has proved to be the most satisfactory design. The Standard Eight three-speed transmission has countershaft drive and second speed through spiral gears to insure quieter operation. Spiral gears are used in the Grahm four-speed transmission, which is standard on the Special Six, Special and Custom Eights."

FROST DAMAGE OF LITTLE MENACE TO WHEAT CROP

Threshing and Cutting Across Prairies is Nearly Completed.

RUST REDUCED YIELDS.

Conditions Improved in Last Week Over Ontario.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5—The bulk of the prairie grain crop is now safe from serious frost damage according to the crop report issued yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Cutting is virtually complete across the southern and central wheat-growing areas, and threshing is general. Yields show a wide variation. According to the report, durum and early bread wheats of Manitoba and Eastern Saskatchewan are yielding and grading higher than Marquis and later wheats, which suffer considerably from rust and drought in late July and early August. By mid-September threshing should be nearing completion.

The report received from the Department of Agriculture at Regina states that cutting of wheat and coarse grains is now well advanced, with possibly 90 per cent. of the wheat and over 75 per cent. of the coarse grains cut. Threshing is well under way in the majority of districts and appears to be more advanced in the southern part of the Province than in the north. As previously reported, rust has reduced the yields and affected the grade in the eastern part of Saskatchewan. Several stations report heavy frost on the nights of Aug. 30 and 31, which would injure any late and immature grain. Acording to the report, the returns from the threshing machines show a wide variation. On the whole, the grain appears to be turning out as well as expected.

Report From Lethbridge

From the experimental stations at Lethbridge, Alberta, it is reported that binding and combining are in their last stages. Separator threshing is general. Wheat is grading high. The situation at Beaver Lodge reports most of the wheat and considerable oats in that section now cut.

From Morden, Manitoba, it is reported that threshing is 75 per cent. completed, with variable yields. Early wheats are reported as yielding 15 to 45 bushels, grading 1 and 2 Northern. Marquis is grading 2 Northern to feed, and yielding 12 to 35 busehels. The yield of oats is reported as light, but barley is improving. Rain is badly needed.

Crop conditions in Ontario during the last week have improved considerably for later crops, such as potatoes and ensilage corn, according to the Department of Agriculture at Toronto. The report continues: "The showers arrived too late in the season to be of much help to buckwheat, which is reported as being more or less a failure throughout Western Ontario. The bean harvest is in full swing, but the yield will be only fair. Shortage of pasture has caused a reduction in milk production in nearly all counties."

Potato Crop Suffers.

The potato crop in many districts of Quebec has been considerably reduced owing to blight and mildew, according to a report from the Department of Agriculture at Quebec City. The apple crop has also been adversely affected by scab and hail. Haying is fully completed, and harvesting is progressing under favorable weather.

The crops of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia have been further affected by drought in the last two weeks of August, but the New Brunswick conditions have been more favorable. The grain harvest has been virtually completed in excellent weather, and the yield will be above average. Potatoes are maturing rapidly. The apple crop is promising. The milk flow has been reduced in late summer months owing to lack of rain in pasture areas.

WEDDING BELLS

SIMPSON-CHAPLIN

HASTINGS, Sept. 6. (Examiner Correspondent.)—The United Church parsonage, Hastings, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, September 1st, when Lauretta Ruth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Chaplin, of Trent River, became the bride of Robert Nelson, second son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Simpson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Bell, M.A., B.P.

The bride looked charming in a gown of copen hagen duchess satin, with gold over lace and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of dahilias and maiden hair fern. Mrs. Henry Farrow, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a rose flat crepe dress with hat to match. She wore grey shoes and hose. Mr. Henry Farrow, brother-in-law of the bride was best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty dinner was served at the home of the groom's parents, after which the bride and groom left on a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, after which they will take up their residence in Hastings.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Airhart and son, Harold, of Marmora; Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Scriver and family, of Whitby; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Simpson and son, Billy, of Margaret's Island; Mrs. Henry Farrow of Brighton.

WINNIPEG SENDS 3,500 MEN TO HARVEST FIELDS

WINNIPEG, September 5. — The ranks of the unemployed in this city are being reduced somewhat by harvesting work, and already 3,500 men have been sent to the fields by the Government employment office here —of these 3000 were forwarded in July and the rest in September. Officials stated to-day that orders for harvest help had been filled all through the season. Many others have found work on the farms themselves. Wages are from $2.50 to $3 a day for stooking and have been from $3 to $3.50 for threshing, with some quotations a little lower.

117,930 JOBLESS ACROSS DOMINION ESTIMATES SHOW

Robertson Claims Total Will Jump to 176,755 in Winter.

GUESSES GENEROUS.

Present Ontario Figures Quoted at 49,367 and 82,214 For Winter.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The number of unemployed in towns and cities of 10,000 population or more is 117,930 at the present time, and the probable number of unemployed during the winter is 176,755, according to estimates supplied to Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, by the municipalities to which he sent questionnaires.

The Province of Ontario, it is estimated, has 49,367 unemployed at the present time, and the Ontario estimate for the winter months is 82,214. This, of course, is based entirely on guesswork, the Mayors of many cities, like Toronto, simply adding 50 per cent. to the number presently thought to be unemployed to determine the number who may be unemployed when the snow flies. Indeed, the estimates of the number now without jobs are guesses in many instances, Toronto sending in the number 20,000 in round figures; Windsor sending in 2,500 in round figures; Woodstock 1,000, and so on. It is evident from an analysis of the figures that several of the Mayors have been quite generous in their estimates of what unemployment will be during the winter. Ottawa, for example, claims 2,500 unemployed now and estimates the probable number of unemployed during the coming winter at 6,500; this is a city where the vast majority of persons gainfully employed are Government employees.

SEALERS DEMAND SHARE IN RELICS

Bratvaag Sailors State They, Not Dr. Horn, Found Andree's Remains.

ASK 10 PER CENT. OF VALUE.

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 5.—The crew of the Norwegian sealing vessel Bratvaag yesterday lodged a claim with the Norwegian Government demanding 10 per cent. of the value of the discoveries found at the last camp of the Andree Balloon Polar Expedition, lost 33 years in the Arctic ice.

While the people of Scandinavia were paying tribute to Salomon August Andree and his two companions, and while experts continued to examine the bones of the dead explorers found on White Island, the crew of the sealing ship claimed they, and not Dr. Gunnar Horn's scientific party, had found the camp. They demanded compensation.

The Bratvaag, now in port at Tromsoe, brought the skeletons and remnants of the Andree expedition back to civilization. Dr. Horn is a Norwegian scientist, who was on board the Bratvaag and who generally has been credited together with members of his party, with finding the Andree camp.

While no estimate of the cash value of these historic remnants or the story of their finding can be made, it was indicated if any effort were made to commercialize them, the price might run high. Dr. Horn had intimated that if any revenues were forthcoming he would favor their use in furtherance of subsequent searching expeditions to be sent into the Arctic in a continuous effort to locate other lost heroes who, like Andree, have disappeared into the white wastes.

Miss Margaret Lawson Is Second In Honors

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 5. (Examiner Correspondent.)—Miss Margaret Lawson, of Mount Pleasant School has been successful in taking second highest marks in the township in the High School Entrance examinations, last June. Murray Belch of S.S. No. 14 Cavan, was the winner of the highest marks in the township, while Margaret Lawson, of S.S. No. 2 Cavan, came second for the Baptie Scholarship.

It is now five years since the scholarship had been established through the generosity of the late Miss Margaret Baptie, of Ottawa, who donated one thousand dollars, which was invested for the purpose.

The first year S.S. No. 8, with Miss Ethel McKnight teacher, had the honor of having both winners of the scholarship among its pupils; the next year Whitfield's (No. 8) had the scholar with the highest marks and S.S. No. 5, Cavanville, the second; the next year No. 8 again had one of its pupils holding first place and No. 21 came next; last year, Millbrook S.S. No. 11, and Mount Pleasant, S.S. No. 2, schools were the winners respectfully. This year S.S. No. 4 and S.S. No. 2, Mount Pleasant, divided the honors, these pupils were Murray Belch and Margaret Lawson, of Mount Pleasant, whose teacher was Miss Margaret McCamus.

RUMOR LEMIEUX'S SENATE APPOINTMENT INVALIDATED

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5. (C.P.)—Rumors have reached here from Montreal to the effect that the appointment of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux to the Senate had been invalidated through some failure in connections with his resignation from the Speakership of the House of Commons. Cabinet Ministers, questioned concerning the report, declared they had heard nothing of it. Senate officials stated Mr. Lemieux's appointment had been entirely regular and his commission was in the hands of the clerk.

WHEN PETERBORO BAND EXCELLED

Wm. F. Green Recalls Old Days of Toronto Exhibition.

PROGRAM OF 1880.

W. F. Green, secretary at the Oddfellows' Temple, possesses several interesting programs of events that carry the memory back over 50 years and more. One of these is the program of the Toronto Exhibition as it was in 1880.

The program itself is a narrow slip of paper that advertises on its reverse side the beauties of the stock carried by Petley and Company, the gents' furnishers. They say that no gentleman should leave the city without "one of our $13.50 suits. No common, wholesale trash, but fine, well-cut clothing."

Places of interest listed in the Toronto of that time included the "Toronto Exhibition, Crystal Palace grounds, on the Bay shore," "The Grand Opera House, Adelaide street west," "The Island and Hanlan's Home," and "St. James' Cemetery," Parliament street."

The Exhibition was a ten day fair even in that year, when "God Save the Queen," was the proper appendage for the program. Special events advertised were speeding in the horse ring for pairs and single horses to waggons and sulkies; test of portable engines; dog show; official visit by the Corporation of Detroit; donkey races; Caledonian games, with prizes totalling $300; hurdle jumping; bicycle races; "American Cousins' Day," with official visits by the corporations of the cities of Buffalo and Rochester, and grand review of all the prize animals in the horse ring hurdle race.

The last day was Oddfellows' Day, with a grand reception of the Grand Sovereign Lodge I.O.O.F., and excursions and gatherings of Oddfellows from all parts of Canada and the United States.

Every afternoon there were grand organ and piano recitals and every day also there were demonstrations of glass hens hatching chickens by steam, which must have been quite interesting.

In that year of 1880, a specially advertised attraction was the concert by the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band. That band under the leadership of Finch W. Miller, the "Grand Old Man" of music in this city, was the proud winner in that year of one of the special band prizes. Two years previously it had carried off triumphantly the championship prize for all the Dominion, and returned home bearing figurative laurel wreaths. Mr. Miller was leader on that auspicious occasion also, receiving with his amateur band higher marks in the competition than several of the very finest military bands of Canada.

The only surviving members of the band that brought honor to Peterborough in 1876 and in following years, are Finch Miller, his brother, J. Miller, of Ashburnham, and W. F. Green, secretary of the I.O.O.F. Temple.

DEAD AND INJURED OVERWHELM RELIEF

Lanza, director of the observatory, said that the gale had lost much of its force in the mountainous regions of Haiti, and that neither Santiago de Cuba nor Baracoa showed any sign of disturbance.

'I do not feel that Cuba or Florida are in any peril," he said. 'The hurricane is north of Oriente province. There may be some wind felt along the Oriente shore line, but the disturbance is too remote to dominate the atmospheric currents there."

With the change in the direction of the hurricane, however, there was increased possibility that the Bahamas, particularly the south-eastern section of the island group, might suffer heavily.

Immense Relief Problem.

One of the greatest relief problems ever to face the West Indies confronted officials of Cuba, Haiti and Porto Rico to-day, with reports of upward of 800 dead, many injured, and almost the entire population in Santo Domingo city homeless.

Rochester Defeats Royals To Extend Lead

WING HURLER HALTS ROYALS' BID FOR TITLE

Rochester Jumps Into Five Run Lead Behind Effective Pitching of Foreman.

VICTORY FOR KEYS.

Reading Beats Bears 4-1 Following Pitchers' Duel For Five Frames.

TORONTO, Sept. 5. (C.P.)—The Upward rush of the Montreal Royals has been stopped, for the time being at least, by the Rochester Redwings, pacesetters in the International league.

The Royals, playing a steady and consistent brand of ball, had fought their way past the Baltimore Orioles into second place in the standings on Wednesday but they faltered against Rochester yesterday 6-3, and fell back into third place. Baltimore, which was idle to-day held second place by a margin of one percentage point.

Rochester jumped into a five-run lead at the end of five innings and then was content to protect it behind effective pitching by Foreman. The Royals scored once in the fourth inning and twice in the seventh to bring the score to 6-3 but could not get any further. Foreman, however, was forced to give way to Paul Derringer with none out in the ninth. Derringer finished up without being scored upon. Pomorski also was fairly effective but got himself into numerous jams with seven passes. Collins, slugging first baseman of the Redwings, collected three doubles and drove in three runs and scored one.

Rochester's victory put the Redwings six and a half games ahead of their closest rivals.

4th Straight for Keys

Reading won its fourth straight night game, beating Newark 4-1. Bell and Fallenstein waged a scoreless duel for five innings but Newark broke through Bell for one run in the sixth. Then Fallenstein weakened and Reading pounded him for four runs in the last half of the same frame. He gave way to Faulkner at the start of the seventh but there was no more scoring. George Quellich, Reading outfielder, collected two doubles and a single.

WIDE APPEAL OF THE NASH EIGHT

Many Outstanding Qualities in Both Sixes and Eights.

STEERING EASE

An unusually attractive showing of the Nash cars, which have stirred the admiration of motor experts the country over, features the September sales program of Nash dealers in the Peterborough territory.

This campaign includes a beautifully staged showing of the great Nash Twin-Ignition Straight Eight, the Twin-Ignition Six, and Single Six models and of the many advanced mechanical features, the unmatched appointments and sensational performance motor cars.

"In all our motoring experience we have never seen or heard of a car like the Nash Twin-Ignition Eight," W. H. MaGee declared to-day. "There is not another like it in the world, and we know that the people who take this opportunity of studying the cars in detail will find a new interest and a new flavor in motoring.

Motor Weight Reduced.

"Everyone knows how its aluminum alloy, Invar-strut pistons aid motor performance by reducing weight, but few yet realize the mechanical importance of aluminum alloy connecting rods, capped at the crankshaft end with heat treated steel to control expansion in the same way that the steel strut cares for the piston. Both of these outstanding refinements are instantly felt in the thrilling responsiveness of the new '400.' The motor also reveals the most efficient system of carburetion yet devised for any car. A new fuel pump, instead of a vacuum tank, insures a constant fuel supply, regardless of speed or load. A new dual manifold provides positive heat control and supplies the cylinders as though two carburetors were operating—one for each four cylinders. The new carburetor, with a 'high-high' speed jet that cuts in at 50 miles an hour, provides the same economy of fuel consumption through all of the speed ranges. These refinements, too, contribute their share to the car's striking performance superiority.

Has Steering Ease.

"The New Eight is built on a chassis with such unusual and interesting features as lifetime lubricated, steel jacketed springs; cable-actuated, fully enclosed and internal expanding 4-wheel brakes which are self-energizing, both forward and back; automatic, thermostatically controlled radiator shutters; Bijur centralized chassis lubrication, and many others equally impressive. The steering ease which has always distinguished the Nash '400' as the easiest handling car in the world, is still more evident in the Twin-Ignition Eight. An ingenious new road shock eliminator has been designed for the left front spring. It repels all road shocks and guards the steering wheel from vibration. Double action, hyraulic shock absorbers, mounted directly to the frame are other vital features of riding ease in the new car.

Single Six Sedan.

Among the most interesting models of the Nash display and a car which has won popularity among Canadian motorsts is the handsome Nash Single Six 4-door sedan.

The new, high, narrow rimmed radiator is fitted with handsome, ebonized, built-in shutters, automatic in operation and indispensable for motor efficiency. The new instrument board is patterned in a striking, modern design.

Upholstering is done in becoming mohair, harmonized in tone with the body color. The frame is exceptionally wide at the rear to afford unusual seating capacity. The new belt line skillfully contrasts body color with tones in the belt moulding and in window reveals, striking a refreshingly new note in body decoration.

Maitlands Ousted By Brampton Juniors

Hold Home Team to Tie Score But Lose on the Round 8 to 4.

BRAMPTON, Sept. 5.—Five hundred lacrosse fans survived the Mann Cup victory celebration and went to Rosalea last night for more lacrosse, and Maitlands of Toronto gave them another thrill in the semi-final junior O.A.L.A. play-off with Excelsiors III. The latter, nursing a four-goal lead from their game in Cottingham Square, went into the game with two much confidence and for forty minutes the Maitlands had the lead cut in half. But the final score was an even break, 2 to 2, and Excelsiors take the round by 8-4 and enter the finals with Fergus or St. Catharines.

Cards Tie Giants For Second Place

CHICAGO GAINS FULL GAME IN LEAGUE RACE

Defeat Pirates 10-7 When Gabby Hartnett Clouts His Second Homer of Game.

CARDS THREATENING.

Win From Cincinnati Reds 13-2 to Tie Giants For Second Place.

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Except for the difficulties which the schedule has in store for them, The St. Louis Cardinals might well be considered the most serious threat to the supremacy of the Chicago Cubs in the National League instead of New York Giants. The Cards and the Giants now are tied for second place and the recent record of the St. Louis club is far more impressive. But the Cards are faced with a long tour on the east while the Giants will have the advantage of playing at home most of the time from now to the end of the season.

Gain Deadlock

The Cards gained their deadlock for second place yesterday by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds, 13 to 2, for their fourth straight victory and their 13th in 15 games. The Giants at the same time took a 7-1 beating from the Boston Braves and lost a full game in the chase for the pennant.

Since Aug. 1, the Cards have made an upward rush that has brought the 26 victories in 35 games, but the prospects are that the spurt will die away when they come east, for their record in the enemy sector is far from impressive. The Cubs will be suffering from the same handicap, however, and unless the Giants do all that can be expected of them during their home stand, St. Louis is quite likely to come through.

The Cards looked quite impressive in the slaughter of the Reds yesterday. They clouted Larry Benton and Silas Johnson for 18 hits and broke up a tight game by putting over an eight run rally in the sixth inning. Sylvester Johnson allowed the Reds only eight hits. The Giants, on the other hand, gave a rather weak exhibition against old Tom Zachary. They made only nine hits and failed to get any effective bunches of blows. Fine fielding by Maranville aided the Braves considerably. Jim Chaplin's pitching kept New York close for seven frames, but four hits in the eighth produced as many runs and settled the game.

Chicago's Cubs had another tough struggle with Pittsburgh but came out victorious in the tenth inning, 10 to 7, when Gabby Hartnett clouted his second home run of the game and his 31st of the season with two on base. Previously the Cubs had staged their favorite act of giving away a big lead and then overcoming it. Brooklyn and Philadelphia had another day of ideleness.

INDIANS OPEN GANDHI WEEK

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The All-India National Congress today inaugurated a "Gandhi Week" by staging an illict sale demonstration on Cho Patty sands. Thousands of people participating. A large police force kept order and later arrested the Secretary of the Congress Committee. Mr. Trivedi and the editor of the Congress Bulletin, Mr. Vuzder.

40 Swimmers Take Part In C.N.E. Swim

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—(C P)—Between 30 and 40 swimmers will plunge into Lake Ontario off the exhibition grounds here this evening in the first of a series of sprint races being conducted by the Canadian National Exhibition which take the form of consolation events for those who were unsuccessful in securing any portion of the prize in the men's 15-mile marathon held on August 27.

The race will be swum over a three-mile course entirely within the breakwater. Prizes range from $300 first money to $25 for the competitor finishing eighth.

Many prominent in marathon swimming circles have entered the swim which is open to all comers. The invitation race will be held tomorrow along with the women's open race.

HOME RUNS WIN FOR THE MACKS

Defeat Red Sox in Fifteen Innings on Simmons' Second Circuit Blow.

WIN FOR SENATORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(CP)—The American League leaders also had to go overtime to gain a victory. It took the Philadelphia Athletics 15 frames to down the Boston Red Sox by an 8-7 count. The Sox twice took the lead in the extra innings only to have home runs save the A's. Reeves hit a homer in the tenth and Bing Miller equalled it. oBston tallied twice in the 14th only to have Al Simmons tie the count again with his 33rd homer. Bob Grove, who pitched nine full innings as relief hurler after hurling six frames the previous day, scored the winning run on Simmons single in the 15th.

Senators Keep Pace

Washington's Senators kept pace with the champions by winning a tight game from the New York Yankees, 3-2. It was their 16th triumph over the Yanks in 20 games this season. Irvin Hadley and Henry Johnson had a great duel with the winners getting seven hits and the losers six. Johnson fanned eleven Senators, but he walked in a run and allowed Washington to bunch its hits for two more while Hadley shut out the Yanks after Lazzeri's triple with two aboard in the first.

Cleveland retained its last mathematical chance of tying the Athletics by downing the Chicago White Sox 3-2, as Willis Hudlin pitched a three hit game. A homer by Bob Seeds in the fourth provided the winning run and the Detroit Tigers did some effective hitting to defeat St. Louis, 8-4, in the fourth American League game. Each team made nine hits, but the Tigers made their blows when they counted.

MANY UPSETS IN DAY'S PLAY OF GLOBE DOUBLES

Haskett and Haskett of London, Last Year's Champions, Meet Defeat.

LOCAL RINKS TAKE PART.

Perfect Weather and Greens Contribute to Enjoyment of Popular Event.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Perfect weather and lawn conditions marked the first day's play in the Silver Anniversary (twenty-five years) Tournament of The Globe Scotch Doubles.

The scores, in many instances, were remarkable for the slight difference between winner and loser, and in almost as many instances for the great disparity, but in all contests the players worthily performed.

One of yesterday's many surprises was the decisive defeat in the second round of Langford and Trethewey, London Thistles, by Lyle and Lyle, Brantford Pastimes, the score being 19 to 13. This London team has the habit of remaining in the game until the last lap. They showed their sportsmanship by saying that they had been outplayed. It was no disgrace to be "put away" by a team of the calibre of Lyle and Lyle. Another second round game of a decidedly one-sided nature as to the score, was that between Johns and Barber, Guelph; and Pearson and Dobson, Eaton Memorial, the score being 27 to 3. The play was not by any means as one-sided as the score. Maclauchlan and Gardner, Westmount, Que., were six up at the tenth end of the first round with Jones and Barber, Guelph. The latter tied the score in the fifteenth end and got two in the extra end. Ball and White, Toronto Thistles, were seven up at the eleventh end of the first round, but their opponents Hooper and Tuthill, Parkdale, score ten points in the remaining end, and won the game by one point. George Ball played in the first tournament of The Globe Scotch Doubles, twenty-five years ago, and many subsequent ones. He made the statement prior to the game that he would not be completely happy until he had won The Globe Doubles, he will have to carry on for another tournament, at least. Haskett and Haskett, father and son of the London Elmwoods who, by brilliant play throughout, and a most spectacular finish, won the premier honors last year, bowed their heads yesterday to Peck and Dahmer, Kitchener, in a thrilling game in the third round, after having defeated such redbubtables as George Hatcher and A. J. Doherty, Canada. Just another proof that the game of lawn bowling is no respector of persons.

BOB PEARCE WINS FROM JOE WRIGHT

Water Too Rough For Sculling —Australian is Easy Victor.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—(C.P.)—Before thousands of persons lining the shore here last evening, Bob Pearce, powerful Australian oarsman, now resident in Hamilton, demonstarted for the third time in less than a month his superiority over Joe Wright, Jr., former holder of the Diamond Sculls, by defeating the smiling Argonaut by three-quarters of a length in the special match quarter mile race staged by the Canadian National Exhibition.

The time of 1.20 3-5 was fairly good considering the condition of the course which was somewhat rough.

O.A.S.A. Places Ban On Windsor Players

Girard, Stewart and Kenney Ordered to Appear Before Softball Body.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Leo. Girard, James Stewart and Clarence Kennedy, of the Chilvers team, champions of the Windsor Softball Association, were suspended by the Sub-Committee of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, at a meeting held in the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. last night, pending their appearance before the committee to state their case. An affidavit was presented declaring these men to be playing in Detroit on Sundays with the Toolshop Hardware team of that city, in the A.A.A. League, composed of former professionals.

Guelph Shamrocks Beaten By Brampton

Royal City Intermediates Are Down Three Goals in First of the Series.

GUELPH, Sept. 5.—Brampton Excelsiors went into their second play-off game with the Guelph Shamrocks for O.A.L.A. Intermediate group honors at Brampton on Saturday by virtue of a 6-3 defeat which they handed the Guelph team here last night. Playing before a crowd of nearly two thousand people, the two teams dished up a smart exhibition of the national pastime, and the fans saw a game which combined all phases of the sport. There was a fair amount of speed and considerable slashing and heavy body checking cropped up.

SENIOR RIVALS WILL TANGLE HERE TOMORROW

Many Well Known Stars in Action When Belleville and Bells Meet

BATSTONE PLAYING.

Former Kingston Slugger Will Lead Bell Telephone Attack.

When the Belleville Nationals, Central Ontario League winners and the Bell Telephone team of Toronto, T.A.B.A. titleholders swing into action at James Stevenson park in the rubber game of their senior O. B.A.A. series Peterborough fans will notice a good many familiar faces out there.

The Belleville club of course includes most of the veterans who battled against the Petes for many seasons including the Mills brothers, the two Weirs, and Bob Scott, the former Renfrew boy at third base, while George Scott, the erstwhile Deloro infielder, is at short. Alexander Weir will likely do the twirling for the Nationals, with the veteran Peeney Mills behind the bat.

The Bell Telephone cast is also well known. It is headed by the colorful Harry Batstone, long a star with Kingston in the Central loop, and includes Nipper Jones, who used to play for Leaside along with Mickey Murray, when the automobile village was in the Central circuit. Sniderman and Gillespie, who played for St. George's against the Petes in the memorable three-game series a few years ago when the Toronto winners were sent into the discard Scott who played for Hamilton here the same year and Pinky Clark, a member of the McCormick Juniors when Lew LeBarr's Lakeviews defeated them for the junior Ontario honors.

Each of these two powerful teams has won a game, and the third clash should be full of fireworks. Local fans who have been without senior ball all season are delighted to have a chance to view this important battle, which will get under way at 3 o'clock sharp.

AMERICAN YACHTS ARE AGAIN VICTORS

Returned Easy Winners in Second Competition For British-American Cup.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(C P) — America's six meter yachting team has scored an overwhelming victory over Great Britain in the second competition for the British-American Cup.

The American team won its fourth successive race of the best-four-out-of-seven series in Long Island sound yesterday and thus scored a clean sweep over the invaders. The Americans scored 20¼ points to 15 for the Britons and an aggregate of 89 to 55 for the entire series.

Cornelius Shield's Cherokee won the fourth race with another American boat, Mars, piloted by Van S. Merlesmith, second and the third American boat, Lucie, with B. S. Cunningham at the wheel, fourth. Great Britain won the inaugural series for the cup on the Clyde in 1928.

LAWN AND GARDEN COMPETITION WINNERS ANNOUNCED BY SOCIETY

HE LIKES HIS PIPES.

Pipe-Major W. C. K. Mackie (above) pride of the Scottish Company of Volunteers, Hong Kong, travelled 5,000 miles across the sea from China to compete with Scottish, American and Canadian pipers at the Banff Highland Gathering, August 29 to Sept. 1. A veteran piper in the British Army in India and China, the enthusiastic pipe-major was a passenger on the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan on her recent first voyage across the Pacific when she lowered the best existing speed mark by more than four hours.

Mrs. R. R. Hall, Wm. Mellis and John Edgar Awarded First Prizes.

ST. PETER'S AND C.N.R.

The Peterborough Horticultural Society announced to-day the awards in their annual lawn and garden competition as follows:

Best home and surroundings, where professional help is engaged—1, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Reid Street; 2, F. D. Kerr, Rubidge Street; 3, C. H. Rogers, East City.

Best home and surroundings (amateur)—1, W. Melles, 303 Boswell Avenue; 2, L. A. Turner, 395 Monaghan Road; 3, P. Card, 223 Murray Street.

Best working man's garden—1, J. Edgar, 577 Sherbrooke Street; 2, G. Wallace, 527 Sherbrooke Street; 3, William Packer, 668 Stewart Street.

Best window or veranda boxes—1, Mrs. Pammett, 431 Chamber Street; 2, Mrs. Bell, 847 Water Street; 3, Mrs. W. H. Mellis, 303 Boswell Avenue.

Best kept grounds—1, St. Peter's Church; 2, Isolation Hospital; 3, The Clinic.

Best kept factory or other grounds—1, Canadian National Railways; 2, J. J. Turner & Sons

Comment on Entries.

The following review of the judging is included in the announcement of the winners:

Last year the F. D. Kerr home and gardens were awarded first place, but after missing the competition for a season, the R. R. Hall garden was again entered and captured the first prize. Both places are very beautiful and are a credit to Peterborough. In the R. R. Hall garden there was a magnificent cluster of Lillium Auratum blooms, and there was also noticed some of the best looking tomato plants seen anywhere.

The Rogers estate in East City is more of a farm, regarding size, and it has great possibilities of being made into a beauty spot.

In the amateur section it was most difficult to make an award between the Mellis garden and L. A. Turner's. Each place was visited three times, and then the judges called in extra help as a last resort to give the final decision. The Turner place lost out in what is known as the kitchen garden. The Mellis garden wins the cup donated by Mrs. Bell, Water Street, who won the Bradburn Trophy outright, having won it three years in succession. The Bell garden was not entered this year, although it is even better than ever. Mrs. Bell has handed over the Bradburn Trophy she won to the Horticultural Society to be competed for each year, and it can only be held for one year. It cannot be won outright. We noticed Mrs. Wood on Pearl Avenue had won the cup two years in succession before Mrs. Bell's time. Mrs. Wood did not enter her place this year as she is busy making extensive alterations in her back garden.

In the competition for verandah boxes some people might criticize our decision, but Mrs. Pammett has well grown boxes in a district where it must be pretty difficult to grow anything good. They were judged on the merit of the plants, and given a better setting they would be very fine. Anyone who has lived in Peterborough any length of time will have noticed the change in St. Peter's grounds. Now they are a real beauty spot, and very well kept. Miss Price at the Isolation Hospital is to be commended for the good appearance of her grounds, and there is also there a fine kitchen garden, with the best looking crop of melons seen in a long time. The Canadian Legion entered their place for the first time, and while they are not in the prize-winners they are to be commended. The addition of a good flower bed would make a big difference.

And now we come to the Canadian National Railways and J. J. Turner Awards. We feel as if they should be in different classes. Both are kept up in nice condition as a disadvantage. The railway garden has to contend with a lot of smoke and cinders. The J. J. Turner factory have no spare grounds like some of our factories have, but the Boston Ivy climbing up storey after storey makes it look beautifully fresh and green, and all the available space is taken up. We even noticed a nice garden seat set out where if one sits and looks along at the flowers the best view may be had of their beauty.

While on our rounds and being close to the Westclox plant, we stopped there to look them over. There is some beautiful carpet bedding and a beautiful border of annuals, etc. It would be worth any one's time to go over and see what can be done by a good gardener with the encouragement of his employers, as is evident at the Westclox. This place was not in the competition.

In the working men's garden, it might be stated that they were judged during the growing season of say July. Mr. Packer, Stewart Street, led his next highest competitor by 16 points with an almost perfect vegetable garden which was almost over on our next visit. Although it still was in fairly good condition. A few flowers would have told a different tale in the prize list.

In concluding, might we say truthfully that there is a wonderful improvement in the appearance of Peterborough in the last few years, in our factories, homes, parks, and public buildings, and we think a little of the credit is due our Horticultural Society. Yet we are carrying on the work this year under difficulties for lack of membership, which means lack of money. It is your city as well as ours that we are trying to beautify and a little help from those who can afford it would be appreciated. This means be a member by paying one dollar. We give you an option which is usually worth while. J. Edgar City Buildings, is secretary-treasurer of the society.

NO AUTHORITY GIVEN ON LANCASTER PLAN

Counter Project For C. N. R. Terminus in Montreal Mayor's Initiative.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5. —"The City Council of Montreal has never authorized officially the preparation of a counter-project to the Canadian National Railways plan, and the engagement of a New York engineer (W. C. Lancaster) to prepare this plan was on the private initiative of Mayor Houde and the Executive Committee, without having consulted the Council at all" Alderman Leon Trepanier, former leader of the City Council, declared last night.

The Alderman was referring to a report prepared by Colonel Lancaster, which recommended certain drastic changes in the plans of the Canadian National Railways for a new terminus in this city.

"There seems to prevail an opinion in the municipalities outside of Montreal, and even in political circles in Ottawa, that the Municipal Council of Montreal has taken a stand against the Canadian National scheme" the Alderman continued. "As a matter of fact a discussion has not even yet started in the Council on the Lancaster report.

"The Council had not been informed, except through the newspapers, of the engagement of an engineer named Lancaster to study an alternative plan and no authorization has been given by the Council to the Mayor, or to the Executive Committee to pledge the city's money by retaining the services of one or several engineers for this purpose.

"The whole thing is purely a private initiative on the part of the Mayor, who, according to the city charter, has no authority except to preside at Council meetings and to represent the city oficially."

It is understood the Lancaster report will be discussed early next week in the Council. It was talked over last week in Aldermanic caucus.

16 English Entries For Classic St. Leger

from the cream of the season's classic contenders Blenheim, Epsom Derby winner, is the only absentee. But two of Blenheim's stablemates will run for the Aga Khan, Rustom Pash and Ut Majeur. Sir Hugo Hirst's Diolite, Derby favorite, which ran third at Epsom, will probably be the favorite for the longest of the classic races which will be worth around $60,000. The distance is a mile and six furlongs.

RUTH BIDS BROADWAY TO HIS SHOP OPENING

Prominent Sporting Men to Attend Inauguration of Haberdashery Emporium.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—A large sign at the corner of 52nd Street and Broadway, in the heart of New York's theatrical district, announced last night: "Dear Broadway—Meet me on this corner Friday night at 8 o'clock Yours truly, Babe Ruth, proprietor."

The purpose of this sign is to advertise the gala opening to-night of Babe Ruth's Shop for Men, Inc. The home run king will deal in men's furnishings and haberdashery.

Among those who will take part in the opening program are Knute Rockne, football coach at Notre Dame; Bob Shawkey, manager of the New York Yankees; Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators; Lou Gehrig, Ruth's home run twin, and Graham McNamee, radio announcer. McNamee will give the sales talk of the evening and Ruth will punch the cash register.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SAND CAKE.

Many strange things happen at the seashore. Sometimes the waves are big and sometimes they are little. Sometimes the water on the beach is high and sometimes it is low. This is because of the tides, with which the moon has much to do. The moon pulls the water up in one place and that makes it go down in another place.

Best of all, perhaps, for the animal boys and girls who lived in and around Uncle Wiggily's seaweed bungalow was the fun they had in the sand of the shore. Sometimes the sand was wet, which happened after the tide began to go out. Sometimes the sand was dry, which happened when the tide had been out for a long time. Of course there was always dry sand high up on the beach where the high tide waves never splashed.

"I'm going to make a sand fort with a lot of soldiers!" barked Jackie Bow Wow one day. Jackie, you may remember, was the little puppy who got a lot of seashells stuck on his paws with marshmallow candy, and he clattered and plopped like a horse until Uncle Wiggily took the shells off.

"I'm going to make a sand city," said Baby Bunty. "It's going to have a lot of houses in it and a church and a garage and everything!"

"I'm going to make a sand man!" bleated Billie Wagtail, the goat.

So the children played at the seashore, molding the wet sand into different shapes, like soldier forts, cities and men.

"I'm going to make a sand pie!" said Jingle, one of a pair of twin rabbit girls. "I can make a lovely sand pie."

"Will it be good to eat?" asked her brother Buster, who was always hungry.

"Eat a sand pie? Oh, no! Never!" cried Jingle. "Your teeth would get full of grit. A sand pie isn't good to eat. It's just good to look at."

Jingle filled her pail with wet sand, packing it down hard, and then she turned the pail upside down. The sand held together, because it was wet, and could be turned out of the pail in a solid lump. The pail was big and not very deep and when the lump of sand was on the beach it looked like a pie.

"Except it must have some raisins in," said Jingle.

"Raisins?" cried her sister Jangle. "How are you going to put raisins in a sand pie?"

"Like this," answered Jingle and she picked up some different colored pebbles from the beach and stuck them around the edges of the pie as if they were raisins.

"Oh, that pie looks good enough to eat," barked Peetie Bow Wow.

"Wait until I put some slices of oranges on top," spoke Jingle.

"Why, you haven't any oranges — don't be silly!" laughed Jangle.

"These are slices of oranges," answered Jingle picking up some shells from the shore and sticking them in a circle on the middle of her sand pie. Then, more than ever, it looked good enough to eat.

So the children played on the beach, having lots of fun, until it was time to go in for their afternoon swim. And when they were down splashing in the waves Uncle Wiggily happened to hop along the shore. The rabbit gentleman saw where the children had made the sand city, the sand fort, the sand man and he saw Jingle's sand pie.

"I wonder if I could make a sand cake?" said Uncle Wiggily to himself, there being no one else around just then. "I think I can," he went on. The children had left their pails and shovels where they had been playing and it did not take Mr. Longears long to fill a big pail with wet sand. This he packed down and then he turned the lump of sand out in one piece as Jingle had turned her pie.

"There's the cake," said the rabbit, "but to make it look more real I must put something on top, like chocolate or icing. Chocolate is too near the color of wet sand to show well, so I'll put on some white icing."

What do you suppose Uncle Wiggily used as icing for his sand cake? Why, white sea foam, of course. He gathered a pail of foam at the edge of the waves and spread it over his sand cake.

"It will fool the children when they see it," he said. But it fooled somebody else. For just then the saucy old Sea Lion popped up out of the ocean and flopped over to catch the rabbit, roaring:

"I'm going to nibble you, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Wouldn't you like a nice piece of cake before you nibble me?" asked the bunny.

"Cake? Cake?" roared the Sea Lion. "Where's there any cake?"

Uncle Wiggily pointed to his sand cake covered with sea foam icing. The Sea Lion smacked his lips hungrily and, being a very silly chap, he took a big bite. Of course he found out his mistake in a moment, for his mouth was full of gritty sand.

"Oh, how foolish I was!" roared the Sea Lion. And then he jumped back into the ocean to wash the sand out of his mouth and the rabbit hopped safely to his seaweed bungalow.

FIND POISON IN STOMACH OF SENATOR J. P. JOYCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (C.P.).—An inquest into the sudden death of State Senator John P. Joyce revealed yesterday he had been killed by a powerful acid.

Dr. Clarence Muhlberger, of the Crime Detection Bureau at North-Western University, testified he found the poison in the stomach.

Senator Joyce died nearly a month ago on the day after his appearance before the grand jury to testify on alleged election terrorism in the Forty-Second Ward.

Mrs. Joyce said she would continue her investigation, believing her husband had been murdered. Dr. Muhlberger, however, gave his opinion that Joyce committed suicide. The doctor asserted State Attorney Swanson has said he believed Joyce was not murdered.

Mrs. Harry Sharpe, has returned to her home after spending a couple of weeks with her sister, who is ill at California.

LEATHER SOCKS

The old trapper paused and listened intently. "Not far from where we now stand," he said in his slow western drawl "lie the famous alkali deposits of the Firewater desert. A slight pinch of this substance placed on the tongue has all the effects of a quart of Bacardi rum. Recently there have been several expeditions from Eastern colleges in search of this deposit. I can't imagine what they plan to do with it. However, I am the only white man who knows where it is located."

Suddenly the still night air was pierced by a terrible scream. "Whoopee! Double whoopee! Scalp 'em, scalp 'em! Wah-hoo-wah! Bring on squaws. Ugh! Ugh!"

"There," sighed the old scout sadly. "Another redskin just bit the dust."

TEAMS MEET AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Belleville Nationals and Toronto Bell Telephone in Senior Play-off.

STARTS AT 3 O'CLOCK.

Another unexpected good turn has been done ball fans in this district by President Bob Elliott, of the O. B. A. A. Belleville Nationals and Toronto Bell Telephone could not agree on the location for the third game in their series, so President Bob without hesitation ordered that the game be played in Peterborough.

These two classy senior outfits will be at James Stevenson Park tomorrow afternoon. Both teams are the cream of their leagues and the stands should be packed to see the final battle.

Without a doubt local fans will be warm for Peenie Mills and his crew of Central League champions. The Nationals long ago earned the admiration of Peterborough fandom and a Belleville victory would please the fans immensely.

Belleville was considered outclassed when they lost the first game in Toronto by a big score, but Walter Gerow's men showed their stuff on the homelot on Wednesday and completely dominated their heavy-hitting opposition.

The game should be a wow. It will get away sharp at 3 o'clock.

During the week the Park Commission has been hard at work on the diamond and it should be in great shape for the game.

PROVINCE WILL PROBE 4 DEATHS AT KITCHENER

KITCHENER, Sept. 5.—Acceding to the demands of Dr. J. E. Hett, the coroner in the case, Provincial authorities have moved to learn, if possible, the cause of the death of four sewer plant workmen who succumbed from the effects of gas inhaled on Tuesday in a sludge bed at the Mill Street plant. Three of the victims died almost instantly and the fourth, Albanus Myer, passed away in the Kitchener Waterloo Hospital Wednesday night.

WIND DAMAGE IS EVERYONE'S CONCERN

Second only to fire in capacity for destructiveness, high winds wreak damage almost everywhere, at almost any time.

June, "Month of Roses," has a bad record for windstorms. And there is no insurance against such destruction as may be wrought by gales and tornadoes except a specific Windstorm Policy. However, the cost is very moderate, as we'll be glad to prove.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 54 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Another month and they reached a little river port. Here d'Arnot cabled his Government for a three months' leave and his banker for funds. During their wait the handsome "Monsieur Tarzan" became the wonder of both black and whites. . . . A huge native had run amuck and terrorized the town.

On the hotel veranda the black spied Tarzan. With a roar he charged the ape-man. Tarzan met the rush; his steel muscles gripped the black wrist of the uplifted knife-hand, a single wrench left the hand dangling below a broken bone. Crying with agony, the fellow ran away. Tarzan resumed reading.

Again Tarzan accepted a challenge. He was to kill a lion single-handed. Naked he went into the jungle armed only with knife and rope. With his wild days, methods, at last he got the beast. Shouting the awesome victory cry, he shouldered the carcass, returned to the amazed group, and claimed the reward.

Often Tarzan longed for the freedom of the jungle. But loyalty to d'Arnot, the vision of a beautiful face, and the memory of warm kisses lured him onward. At length d'Arnot succeeded in chartering a small boat, and they set sail down the coast to dig for the buried treasure.

Arriving, Tarzan, garbed once more in his jungle regalia, set out alone for the ape's haunts where lay the treasure. Next day he returned bearing the great chest. Three weeks later they boarded a French steamer. D'Arnot was taking Tarzan to Paris, nor would he divulge the reason for their journey.

WEDDING BELLS

WHIBBS—CLANCY.

A pretty wedding of a great deal of local interest was solemnized at eight o'clock on Tuesday morning at the Immaculate Conception Church, when Agnes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Clancy of Peterborough, became the bride of Leo Whibbs of Douro, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whibbs.

The Rev .C. Carroll officiated. The wedding music was played by Miss Leona Hummel and Miss Stella Brady sang very sweetly during the progress of the Nuptial Mass and the signing of the register.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a beautiful gown of poudre blue georgette with matching hat, slippers and hose, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Miss Reta Coughlin of Norwood, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, wearing a pretty frock of flowered silk with harmonizing beige hat, slippers and hose, and bouquet of gladioli.

Thomas Whibbs supported his brother.

After the ceremony, a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served to fifty guests at the home of the bride's parents, Messrs. T. H. Hooper and Sons having charge of the catering.

Mr. Whibbs and his bride left later for a honeymoon trip to Toronto and other points. On their return, they will reside on the bridegroom's farm in Douro.

The bride travelled in an ensemble of rich brown chiffon velvet with matching hat, shoes and hose.

Mr. and Mrs. Whibbs received many handsome gifts from a large circle of friends. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a fox fur scarf, to the bridesmaid a sunburst pendant and to the best man a gold watch chain.

CLEARY—DOHERTY

The Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty August wedding of local interest, when Eva Marie, second youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty, became the bride of John Joseph Cleary, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cleary of Hastings. The ceremony, which took place on Wednesday, August 27th, was performed by the Rev. C. Moloney.

The bride wore a lovely gown of eggshell chiffon, ankle length, with godets and bolero jacket of eggshell point d'esprit lace. Her matching picture hat was of chiffon and mohair and she wore blonde kid shoes and gloves, matching silk hose and a red fox choker, gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Doherty, was in a pretty frock of green flowered flat crepe with green hat, matching shoes, hose and gloves. She carried a large bouquet of gladioli and fern.

Little Geraldine Doherty, niece of the bride, was a charming flower girl in shell pink crepe de chine, carrying a basket of pink and white rosebuds and lily of the valley.

J. Armstrong, organist of the church, played the wedding music, and Harold Armstrong sang during the progress of the Nuptial Mass.

After a dainty wedding breakfast, served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cleary left for a trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and other western points, the bride travelling in an ensemble of ink blue silk crepe with eggshell blouse, navy velvet hat, navy coat and matching shoes, hose and gloves.

On their return, they will reside on the Cobourg Road, Hastings.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a pearl rosary and to the best man a gold watch chain.

FUND RAISED FOR FAMILY OF MURDERED POLICEMAN

MONTREAL, September 5. — Enabling the family of Constable Dollard Pelletier to live without serious privation and permitting the children to be educated, a fund opened by a local newspaper and a broadcasting station raised $16,392. The constable was shot when he entered a store in which he suspected a burglar was working, and died soon afterwards. The money has been placed with a trust company, the interest to be spent on the family's behalf. The constable left a wife and six children.

ACTION QUERIED ON DELAY IN REMEDIES FOR MARITIMES

TORONTO, September 5. (C.P.)—Though four years have passed since the Duncan Commission made its report on Maritime rights not one of the major findings of that report has yet been implemented, stated Hon. N. L. Hall, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, at the Exhibition Directors' luncheon here

Mr Hall said the Duncan Commission had dealt with the claims of the Maritimes against Canada as a whole, many of which it had upheld, and the people of those provinces had naturally expected that its findings would be put into effect the same as the findings of any other court Of its 29 findings seven had been fully implemented, 12 partially, and on ten no action whatever had yet resulted, and not one major finding had been implemented, stated Mr Hall

Dead Of Domingo Cremated Bodies Piled High In Pyres Floods Wash Out New Coffins

Officer of U. S. Marine Corps Describes Scene of Horror in Stricken City of Santo Domingo — Firing Squad For Food Profiteers.

ESTIMATE OF DEAD APPROACHES 2,000
AIRPLANES BRING FOOD AND DOCTORS

River Swollen By Rains Opens Shallow Graves — Difficult Docking For Relief Ships—One Village Blown Off the Map.

(By Rene M. Lepervanche, Associated Press Correspondent.)

SANTO DOMINGO, September 6. — Relief agencies speeding to the assistance of this stricken city to-day encountered conditions of horror which have been accentuated rather than mitigated, since the storm, Wednesday.

Between 1500 and 2000 persons, it is estimated now, died in the hurricane which swept Santo Domingo, the cradle of the white race in the New World Wednesday. More than than 5000 were injured. Thirty thousand are homeless and of 10,000 buildings but 400 are left standing. Property damage will pass $20,000,000.

A United States marine corps officer, who flew over from Au Prince, commented: "It is as if a giant hand had smeared the town down like a toy, and then had stirred the pieces with a stick.

"There is no water fit to drink. The waterworks are demolished; the river is a sea of mud, and the dead are still uncounted.

Cremating the Dead.

"Floods have washed out the newly buried dead in the cemeteries and coffins float around like corks. The dead are being collected in mounds and heaps, and trenches and are being burned above ground. Concrete cisterns are being used as funeral pyres, cremating as many as 50 bodies at a time.

"Even at a distance of ten miles and at an altitude of 4,000 feet in the air it was apparent bodies were being burned. When we landed we could see wagons pass by loaded with dead. The driver would shout a curse and cry: "More dead, more dead."

Nine out of every ten trees are down and the tops of the few left standing have been cut off as if by a great knife. The Ozama river is out of its banks north and east of the city and those sections are completely inundated.

"Adult men and women appear with little or no clothes on. There is almost no clothing to be had and children and older people make out as best they can. The people appear to be in a daze and almost hysterical."

Difficult for Relief Ships

While the landing field here has been cleared sufficiently to permit landing of relief planes from Fort Au Prince, Havana, the United States Porto Rico, the landing of ships is not so simple. The Ozama river is a raging torrent pouring out over a bar at its entrance which effectively blocks what was the old harbor. One authority said he did not believe that even a navy launch could cross the bar.

The suggestion has been made — and it appears plausible—that the relief ships may disembark with their cargoes and men at San Geronimo, four kilometers south of the capital, where there is a good beach.

Some supplies, food, medicines and even shelters have already arrived here by airplanes which also brought doctors for treatment of the sick and injured, and it is understood others are enroute here aboard ships from Porto Rico, one of which is the naval tug "Grebe" due to-day.

The president stopped food profiteering yesterday with an order that all food was to be sold at cost, under pain of court martial. He also called physicians serving the ill and injured together at the fortress and designated places which they might have for first aid stations.

Columbus Tomb Untouched

Among the few buildings left standing in the city by the wind, which it is said attained a velocity of 180 miles an hour, were the 400 year old cathedral and other old Spanish buildings. The reported tomb of Columbus inside the cathedral also was not touched.

Reports from the northern section of the republic were that damages there were not so heavy as in Santo Domingo. The cities of Santiago de los Caballeros, La Vega and Puerto Plata were not damaged at all. Villa Duarte, a small village housing 1,500 of the poorer classes in native huts and shacks, litterally was blown off the map.

MUTINY SPREADS IN BUENOS AIRES POLITICAL CAMP

Navy Supports Army in Revolt Against Irigoyen Regime.

CITY IS UNEASY.

Army Leader Opposes Control By Vice-President Martinez.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, September 6 (C.P.). — The Argentine Navy, ships lying in Buenos Aires Harbor, to-day joined the Army mutiny against the regime of Hipolito Irigoyen, who last night delegated his presidential powers to Vice-President Martinez.

Admiral Storni, commanding a squadron of 13 warships in the port, to-day sent a note to the government announcing that the Navy would fire no shots against their colleagues of the Army led by General Jose Evaristo Uriburu.

The note was signed by all officers of the squadron. The entire navy, 7,000 officers and men, is said to have gone over to the movement against Irigoyen and his influence.

Planes Over City.

Twelve airplanes from El Palomar, including three bombers, flew over Buenos Aires after circling over the capital just above the Government Palace. They finally returned to El Palomar. Machine guns were mounted on them. Another plane appeared about an hour later, disappearing quickly.

The cadets and staff of the Military College at San Martin are said to have entrained for the capital.

Buenos Aires is nervous, but outwardly tranquil.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 5 (C.P.) — Rigid martial law was invoked in the capital to-day as the new President, Dr. Enrique Martinez, entrenched himself in the place vacated by Hipolito Irigoyen, the Argentine's man of mystery.

The martial law regulations prohibited public assembly, and placed Buenos Aires with its population of nearly 2,000,000 in the hands of the military. A rigid censorship was established on outgoing cablegrams, and telephone calls were watched.

Many were wounded in clashes during the night between the police and students, dissatisfied that President Irigoyen's withdrawal had been only the qualified one under Argentine law which permits a President to retire for so long as he wishes and to delegate power to the vice-president, and was not an actual resignation.

The disorders were widespread, but in most cases, due to watchfulness of the military, minor in character. In one instance really serious rioting occurred, when students, marching down the Avenida de Mayo, encountered police at the intersection of La Calle Peru. Most of the night's casualties were in this quarter.

At one time recently six girls were in training to attempt to swim the English Channel.

TOURISTS FLEW FROM CLEVELAND

Sikorski Amphibian Owned By Vice-president of Cleveland News.

DESCENDS AT BUCKHORN.

Cleveland to Buckhorn in three hours! That was the time made by a giant Sikorski amphibian plane yesterday, and half an hour of that period was spent at the Customs in Toronto.

Doubtless this constitutes a record-breaking tourist trip to this district.

The plane of a type which holds five world records, is owned by Charles McCahill, vice-president of the Cleveland News. It is the last word in plane construction, and it is stated that it was the object of much admiration at the Toronto airport. It has a carrying capacity of eight passengers, pilot, mechanic and steward.

William Attwell, nationally known pilot, flew the machine here yesterday, making a perfect landing on Buckhorn Lake, despite the fact that there were many 'dead-heads' on the surface. He descended in front of Major G. B. Colling's summer residence at Buckhorn.

Accompanying Mr. McCahill was S. P. Ely of Cleveland, who is the guest of Major Collings. After dropping the passengers, the plane headed back for Cleveland, and arrived there in time for Mr. McCahill to attend a prize fight in the evening.

"The flight fully demonstrates the accessibility of the backwoods lakes as approached from the air," stated Mr. Ely to The Examiner. He is a regular visitor to this beautiful section of Ontario, as also is Major Collings. The latter is a member of the Virginia Legislature, and is on the advisory committee for migratory birds. Major Collings worked hard to cut the bag limit of ducks from 25 birds to 15 birds per day, and his efforts have been rewarded by the treaty which recently came into effect, respecting this measure, between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Ely said he was particularly impressed with the appointments of the plane, which incorporated all the latest refinements to add to personal comfort, including easy chairs, buffet, etc.

'PHONE CALL OVER ATLANTIC MADE FROM MOVING TRAIN

MONTREAL, Quebec, September 6, (C. P.) — Transatlantic telephone conversation from a moving train was again successfully demonstrated yesterday between Toronto and Montreal when the first commercial transatlantic conversation took place between a passenger sitting on train No. 4, the International Limited of the Canadian National Railways, and a gentleman seated in his office in London, England. The caller was C. E. Sherrington, secretary of the Railway Research Service of the British Railways, who spoke to the chairman of the same organization in London, England, while the International Limited was travelling at a high speed between Toronto and Montreal.

WARNING BULLET FIRED BY POLICE PIERCES LUNG

Companion Arrested After Early Morning Chase on Highway.

OFFICERS TIPPED OFF.

Car Abandoned Yields 150 Gallons Straight Alcohol.

OSHAWA, Sept. 6.—Paul Comet, 40, of South Thorold, is believed to be dying in Oshawa General Hospital after a brush with a squad of Provincial Police early this morning.

Comet was wounded, officers say, when with a companion he attempted to dash from his car and escape in the dark over the fields.

One of the officers fired a shot. He claims it was to force the men to stop. He thought he fired high. In the darkness he could not see the fugitives. The bullet pierced Comet's right lung. The other fugitive was arrested. In the car the two men abandoned police claim to have found 150 gallons of straight alcohol.

Tipped off Through Accident

Provincial Police were waiting on the highway three miles west of Whitby and almost opposite R. S. McLaughlin's farm, for liquor runners. An accident occurred. One car side-swiped another. While they were investigating, the officer in charge noticed another car trying to speed past.

"There go the rum-runners, boys," he called.

The inspector stayed behind at the accident but Provincial Officer Kay, Traffic Officer Hillard and other officers took up the chase.

The injured man was rushed to Dr. C. McDougall's office at Whitby. Dr. McDougall rendered first aid and then hurried the man to Oshawa hospital. Early this morning his condition was reported as extremely critical.

CHILD KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Three Persons Injured Early This Morning Near Oshawa.

HIT TELEPHONE POST.

TORONTO, Sept. 6. (C.P.)—One child is dead and three persons injured as a result of a motor accident three miles west of Oshawa at about 2:30 this morning.

The party consisted of five Toronto people who had been visiting friends in Oshawa and had left that city shortly after 2 a.m. The dead child is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Farrell of Toronto.

The injured are Russell Farrell who is suffering from a fractured skull, his wife Mrs. Farrell, hurt also about the head and body, Kathleen Sparham, cut about the legs. The driver of the car, F. McClellan escaped uninjured. Mr. McClellan stated to the police that he could not account for the accident. The car struck a telephone pole and turned over.

Government Steamer on Scientific Expedition Reports All Well.

TRAPPED IN ICE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6.—(C.P.)—Making good speed since she got clear of the ice in the neighborhood of Pond Inlet at the north end of Baffin Island, the Canadian Government's expeditionary steamship Beothic arrived safely at Pangnirtung on Cumberland Sound on the afternoon of September 4, according to wireless messages received at the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch of the Department of the Interior from the officer in charge, G. C. Mackenzie. All at Pangnirtung, which is a considerable settlement with in addition to the native community, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police post, several trading depots and mission station, were reported in good health. For some reason not explained, all radios at the post have been out of commission since Christmas, which meant considerable deprivation to all concerned.

WEIR PLEDGES GREATER HELP FOR FARMERS

Should Be Enabled to Enjoy Same Luxuries as City Dwellers.

BETTER MARKETING SYSTEM

Agriculture Minister Urges Introduction of Better Blood in Stock.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6.—(CP)—In the first public address he has made since assuming the portfolio of Agriculture in the Bennett Cabinet, Hon. Robert Weir pledged himself to promotion of the welfare of the farmers of Canada as diligently as he had to his own farm, in an address at the Canadian National Exhibition.

He assured his audience the Government at all times would do all in its power to make this fair and the Royal Winter Fair ever greater affairs and remarked on the changing viewpoint of urban and farm dwellers.

Formerly, he said, the city folk had felt certain superiority, and the farmer had thought he was the foundation of it all. They both now realized they were completely complimentary.

To give the intelligent farmer sufficient profit, said Mr. Weir, not only to enjoy a good living but a few of the luxuries of life, the Department would make certain suggestions in improved methods. Three particularly affecting stock.

Better Blood Needed

The Canadian farmer must be prepared to introduce better blood into his stock so he will gain in results from the same expenditure of feed and labor. Cheaper goods could be used in a balanced diet thus giving Ontario the benefit of cheaper coarse grains in the west and in return the west would look for better blood in its stock, said Mr. Weir enumerating two of the suggestions.

Thirdly he said, as more highly specialized system of marketing was essential, remedying the present situation where the spread between the price received by the farmer and that received.

What is needed is markets, he declared, and the Dominion is going to co-operate in the effort to export Holsteins to South America for which disused ships are now being fitted in an endeavor to enter the Argentine Dairy cattle market.

To reduce waste to the minimum in this department said Mr Weir he would call a conference all the provincial Ministers of Agriculture and their deputies to prevent overlapping and waste.

THREE OF FOUR AWARDS GIVEN TO LOCAL FIRMS

T. C. Ephgrave, London Street, Awarded General Contract at $66,688.50.

Few Tenders Undecided On.

Work Starts Immediately and Must Be Completed Within 9 Months.

Contracts were awarded last night and work will commence immediately on the construction of the extension to Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

Three of the four contracts were let to Peterborough firms. Other contracts for heating and ventilating; swimming pool equipment and marble, have yet to be awarded and for this purpose a further meeting of the Board will be held within the next ten days.

The general contract was given T. C. Ephgrave, London street, $66,688.50! plumbing, J. P. L. Smith, Water street, $4,875; electrical, Miller, Powell Co., George street, $2,093; tile and terrazo contract, Connoley Marble, Mosaic and Tile Company, Toronto, $8,349.

The Board met at the Y.M.C.A. under the President, W. Richardson. R. L. Dobbin, chairman of the committee, presented the report, in which it was stated the tile and terrazo contract was awarded outside of Peterborough on account of the fact that this type of work is not handled by anyone locally. All contracts call for completion within 9 months of the date of award.

Only Best Installed.

W. and W. R. L. Blackwell, architects, in preparing the plans have conformed to a type of addition which will harmonize with the present sructure, while the Board having in mind the necessity for lowering the cost of maintenance as much as possible have planned to install only the very best equipment.

A new entrance to the men's section will be a feature of the front of the building. It will be of massive and handsome construction carried out in Indiana limestone. The present entrance will be closed entirely and the space utilized for the men's lounge.

In planning the new doorway it has been found possible to do away with outside steps, which have long been an objectionable feature of the old doorway. The steps in the new building will be placed inside the doors, while a further entrance will be provided on Murray street for the boys.

Ultra Modern Swimming Pool.

The outstanding feature of the new building will be the ultra-modern swimming pool, which will constitute one of the best installations of its kind to be found in any Y.M.C.A. on the continent. It will be 25 feet by 60 feet and will vary in depth from 8 feet to 3 feet 6 inches. A fully modern filtration system is provided for, which will ensure clean, warm water at all times. Ample space has also been allotted around the swimming pool for spectators. The pool will be finished in white tile throughout, and will have a new modern roll-out type scum gutter.

Separate shower rooms are planned for men and boys while locker accommodation is also to be greatly increased.

Other equipment in the basement includes two new boilers to replace the one installed 35 years ago and

GREAT PROGRAM MORE EXHIBITS FOR LOCAL FAIR

Directors Promise Public Splendid Display in All Classes.

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES.

Horse Races, Rodeo, Vaudeville, Bands and Midway Next Week.

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition promise you this year a grand exhibit of cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, flowers, vegetables, and in fact of everything that comprises the agricultural end of a fall fair. In this respect it has always of late years been all that could be desired but this year it is expected to outshine other shows.

Horse Races .

Races will not be held in Oshawa this year, and Peterborough is going to have the classiest string of fast horses that has ever been on the local track. Races Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons.

The grand stand performance will have more thrills than half a dozen ordinary shows, made up of the Rosard-Harrison combination of men and women, spectacular and comic acts.

Race track frolics — six riderless horses, whose performance is marvellous.

Ike and Mike—Fancy and Comic Jugglers. Mike will sing any old song you ask him to.

Dare Devil Kurtso and Kurtz, sensational high pole artists, and the super attraction of Welsh Bros. Rodeo with a change in evening program, with two thrilling feature acts in the afternoon—horse and rider jumping an automobile, and the Roman race.

Grey's Canadian Midway.

The public is always the final judge of a show and this year the directors feel they have a program for the entire week that will please the public as never before. Remember the admission is only 25 cents—afternoon and evening.

PUT OUT YOUR FLAGS EXHIBITION WEEK

Give City Gala Appearance—Fair Deserves Your Help.

The directors feel that in this year's Exhibition they have something to offer that the citizens will be delighted to recommend to others in the district to participate in and as it is expected there will be hundreds of visitors from outside visiting the Fair during the week a request is made that every one who has a flag will put it out for this occasion. It gives the city a snappy and bright appearance and will be appreciated by those immediately interested in the success of the Fair.

BOMB EXPLODED BY TERRORISTS, BLASTING WALL

Owner of Non-union House Reports Campaign of Sabotage.

RESIDENTS ALARMED.

Windows Broken in Houses Within Three Blocks of Theatre.

HAMILTON, September 5. (C.P.)—Working under cover of darkness terrorists early this morning planted a time bomb in the Queen's Theatre, Barton street East, near Ottawa street, and escaped into the night before the fuse blew out a large portion of the brick wall at the rear of the building.

Glass within a three block radius of the theatre was shattered by the force of the blast, and a mild panic existed among residents of Cluny, Barton and adjoining streets, until police and firemen responded to the call of alarm.

Two men in an automobile are stated to be responsible for the act of sabotage. At least two persons saw these men prowling around the lane that runs on the west side of the show building, and one of the two witnesses saw the men decamp in a sedan parked on Barton street, with no lights burning.

They left in an easterly direction on Barton street and so far have eluded all efforts of capture.

Saw Man in Lane.

It was 12.15 a.m., that Mrs. Betty Madden, Cluny street, was saying good night to visitors at the door in the rear of her house, she told the 'Herald,' she saw a man feeling his way through the darkened lane to the exact spot where the explosion occurred. She paid no attention and had almost forgot the incident until her slumbers were rudely shattered at 3.55 a.m.

Edward Raven, 48 Cluny street, a driver for the Avondale Dairy Company, was the other witness. Standing on his verandah he saw two men in a car drive up and park on the north side of Barton street and a short distance from the theatre. One of the men according to Raven, sauntered between two houses, one of which was occupied by a Mrs. Bains, who was away on a vacation.

A large hole big epough to drive a car through was blown in the side of the building and the whole wall was bulged out. The stage was also twisted and much debris was thrown about buildings across the street including St. James Anglican Church were badly damaged. The costly memorial windows of the church were completely destroyed and the windows in the church gymnasium were shattered. A dozen residences along the street opposite the theater were damaged to some extent.

The explosion occurred when only a few people were on the street and it is believed no one was injured. Hundreds of telephone calls, however, were received at police headquarters from anxious householders who felt the buildings shake and the noise of the explosion. The opinion was general that an earthquake had occurred.

The occupants of houses on Cluny Avenue, directly behind the theatre, reported that the force of the blast rocked their beds and that a shower of debris came down upon their homes.

A Non-Union House.

William Yates, manager of the theatre, says this is the latest of a long series of outrages perpetrated at the theatre, which is said to be non-union in its operation.

Mr. Yates said to-day: "They broke in about four weeks ago, slashed the talkie screen to ribbons and cut the wires in the projection room. They have broken the windows in the theatre and this is the final outrage. I have to demand police action to clean it up. We have a good idea who it is."

Police are investigating the case. They report that two men were seen at midnight in a yard in the neighborhood of the theatre.

Henry Ford Sees Depression Passing

NEW YORK, September 6 (C. P.). — Sailing aboard the liner Bremen for a few weeks' business and pleasure trip in Europe, Henry Ford predicted an early end to the present business depression.

He said the depression might outlast October, but that business now was better than two years ago. He ascribed the growing prosperity to the people substituting "thinking" for speculation.

Asked his opinion on politics and prohibition he said no politics existed in the United States to-day, and that prohibition was here to stay.

"Except for a damp spot here and there," he said, "the United States is dry."

3,898,995 VOTERS POLLED IN ELECTION

TORY MAJORITY LESS THAN HALF THE TOTAL VOTE

Premier Bennett in Power With 1,909,955 Ballots For Him.

MORE INDEPENDENTS

Total Popular Vote Exceeded That of 1926 By 625,933.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6.—The total number of votes polled at the last dominion election as 3,898,995, of this number 1,909,955 votes were cast for Conservatives, 59 155 for Liberal-Progressive, and the balance was divided among Progressives, Laborites, Farmers, Independents and Communists. The total vote cast in the general election of 1926 was 3,273,062. These figures are the result of a check-up of official returns based on the party alignments as designed by the Canadian Press.

A comparison of the popular vote received by parties and groups in Parliament during the last two general elections follows:—

	1930	1926
Conservatives	1,909,955	1,504,855
Liberals	1,714 860	1,421,804
Progressives	30,993	110,776
Lib. Progs.	59,155	89 904
Laborites	45,302	49,793
Independents	49,355	18,636
U. F. A.	70,924	70,740
Farmers	22,766	none
Communists	5,686	none

Big Gains by Tories.

The 1930 figures do not include rejected ballots which amounted to 16,554 in the 1926 figures, but which are not yet available in the last returns. It will be noted that the total popular vote in the last general election exceeded that cast in 1926 by 625,933. A feature of the official returns is the large increase in the total vote polled by Conservative candidates. It is interesting however to see by the figures that although the Liberal government suffered defeat its candidates polled a much larger vote this year than in 1926 when it attained office.

Despite the fact that Henri Bourassa was returned by acclamation and consequently no figures for Labelle are included, the total vote polled by independent candidates showed a substantial increase over 1926. An arresting feature of the official figures is the great decrease in the number of Progressive votes cast in the last election.

TERRORISTS PAY DEATH PENALTY

Four in Trieste Face Firing Squad For Threatening Duce's Life.

14 GO TO PRISON.

TRIESTE, Italy, Sept. 6.—Four of the 13 Jugoslavians on trial for acts of terror m were sentenced to death before a firing squad as the case was concluded last night.

They are: Francesco Marusic, 24 years old; Zvonimiro Milor, aged 26; Ferdinando Bidovec, aged 22; and Luigi Valencic, aged 32. Two others were acquitted, and the remaining 12 were given sentences ranging from 2½ years to 30 years in the penitentiary. The only woman among the 18, Sofia Korze, received the lowest sentence, 2½ years.

Of the four condemned to death, the Government Prosecutor claimed that Francesco Marusic was the leader of the band— that he and Luigi Valencic were connected with a plot against Premier Mussolini by which they intended to plant a bomb in the Duce's motor car.

NIAGARA FALLS CLAIMS VICTIM

Horrified Crowd of Tourists Watch Helplessly as Woman Plunges to Death.

BOAT TOO LATE.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 6.—The body of an unidentified woman floated down the river and over the American Falls in clear view of hundreds of tourists yesterday afternoon. The body was apparently that of a woman 25 to 30 years old. She was dressed in a dark coat with pink dress.

It is not known where she entered the water, and careful search failed to disclose any clothes or notes on the bank. A tourist standing in the crowd happened to look up the river, and shouted when he saw the body being carried along in the swift water. It was too far to reach, and it poised for a moment on the brink, then plunged to the rocks below. The woman's coat was torn off during the descent, and her body was seen for a moment floating in the water below the falls, but before a boat could be put out from the Maid of the Mist she has disappeared, and the coat had drifted so far downstream that it could not be salvaged.

Estimates Of Dead Increase To 1500 In Hurricane Path

Latest News From West Indies Indicate Worst Storm That Ever Swept the Antilles—Martial Law in Santo Domingo.

WIND REACHED SPEED OF 180 MILES PER HOUR.

American Minister Describes Strange Behaviour of Elements and Violence of the Storm—Two Hours' Destruction.

(By Charles B. Curtis American Minister of the Dominican Republic. Writen especially for the Associated Press.)

SANTO DOMINGO, September 6, 5.15 p.m.—The ancient and historical city of Santo Domingo was devastated on September 3 by what appears to be the worst hurricane that ever swept the Caribbean.

A conservative estimate of the loss in life put it at 1,500. The number of the injured reaches 5,000. No loss of life is reported among continental Americans or Europeans, all of whom are believed to be safe.

City Under Martial Law.

President Rafael Trujillo has taken personal charge of the relief and the city is under martial law. Good order prevails.

After 24 hours of continuous storms a north wind of hurrican violence, estimated at 180 miles per hour, began about 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, unroofing the negation and destroying many houses.

After about half an hour there was a dead calm ,with the barometer below 28, but ten minutes later the hurricane wind came from the south and in two hours more completed the destruction.

Governor Roosevelt of Porto Rico despatched personal representatives by airplane on September 4 ,and is sending in behalf of the people of Porto Rico all available relief, in the form of food, shelter, clothing, and medical aid.

CHICORY INN RAID UPHELD BY PRICE

Official Statement Claims Information Probably Be Laid.

LAW BROKEN.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6.—(CP)—Provincial Police were justified in their raid at Chicory Inn Thursday night, when beer and whiskey was seized in the room of J. W. Decumbe, Cleveland attorney, according to an official statement made by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario.

The statement says Mr. Decumbe had registered for the room but Mr. McArthur had not. Details of the finding of the liquor adds. "Mr. Decumbe's permit showed purchases of beer and whiskey, while Mr. McArthur's showed purchase of wine. This wine was claimed by Mr. McArthur as his own. Mr. Decumbe stated to police officers that he had just paid his bill and was leaving for Grimsby where he was staying. There was no baggage or personal belongings in the room belonging to Mr. De Cumbe as they were in his motor car outside the hotel."

The statement declares Mr. Decumbe had not complied with all the requisites of the Act and that Mr. McArthur not being registered could not legally consume liquor he had purchased in other than his residence.

"From the conditions existing at the time of the search it is apparent the officers were acting within the scope of their duty and from the fact it is quite probable the information will of necessity have to be laid," the statement concludes.

UNIONIST ASKED TO CUT DEMANDS

Secretary Requests Congress Not to Make Impractical Recommendation.

PASS MINORITY REPORT.

NOTTINGHAM, England, Sept. 6.—A definite warning to the Trades Union Congress against making impracticable recommendations to the Government and thereby courting the loss of prestige and influence was delivered here yesterday by C. T. Cramp, industrial general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen.

Mr. Cramp's caution came when he opposed the majority report submitted by a joint committee of the Congress and the Labor Party, a report which advocated allowances for children, which would cost the State a hundred million sterling annually.

The minority finding of the joint committee found this plan too ambitious and said better results could be achieved by the State applying more funds to the cause of health and education. Representatives of the miners, however, urged adoption of the majority report.

By a show of hands the Congress adopted the minority and more moderate report.

A resolution was also passed urging Government repeal of the Trades Union Act. Ernest Bevin, chairman of the Council, announced he had obtained assurances that a bill for this purpose would be introduced at the forthcoming session of Parliament.

GEORGE YOUNG WINS 3-MILE SWIM AT C.N.E.

Catalina Winner Stages Comeback With Easy Victory Over Pritchard.

LED BY 200 YARDS.

Distance Stars Battle in Short Swim For Laurels To-day.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Having beaten a fair lot of swimmers in the men's open event over the three-mile course at the Canadian National Exhibition last night, George Young, local swimmer, who gained fame by winning the Catalina marathon and $26,000 four years ago, will try to repeat the performance to-day. He will have much stouter opposition, however, as Marvin Nelson, winner of this year's C.N.E. marathon; Isadore Spondor, Port Colborne, who finished second; William Goll, New York, third place winner, and many other prominent professional swimmers have indicated they will compete in today's invitation race.

Like last night's event, it will be held over a three-mile course inside the breakwater, and as Young broke the record when he swam the distance in 1:18:33 3-5, it is to be expected he will give the new world's long distance champion a merry battle over the shorter route.

Young added $300 to his bank-roll, while Stanley Pritchard, Buffalo, who finished second, won $200, and Bill Sadlo, New York, $100.

In addition to the men's swim, the women's open will be staged to-day. Practically all the prominent feminine natadors have entered, with the notable exception of Margaret Ravior, Philadelphia, winner of the women's marathon this year.

VICEROY REFUSES GANDHI'S DEMAND

Requested Full National Gov't Responsible Only to the People.

SECESSION RIGHTS.

POONA, India, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Negotiations for cessation of India's civil disobedience campaign have broken down because Mahatma Gandhi demanded a full National Government, responsible only to the people of India and with the right to secede at any time from the British Empire as the price of calling off the movement.

This the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, refused to grant.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, the peacemakers who delivered those terms from Gandhi and other imprisoned Nationalist Chieftans to the Viceroy and returned with Lord Irwins reply made public the full correspondence after stating that their peace efforts had ended in complete failure.

PERRI MURDER GOES UNSOLVED JURY BAFFLED

Open Verdict Blames Woman's Death on Person or Persons Unknown.

Rocco Admits Bootlegging.

Testimony Conflicting — Witness Adds to Mystery With Report of Strange Car.

HAMILTON, Ont., September 6 (C.P.).—A coroner's jury last night investigating the death of Bessie Perri, common-law wife of Rocco Perri, self-styled king of the bootleggers, shot in the backyard of her home here on the night of August 13, returned a verdict that she met "her death from gunshot wonuds inflicted by a person or persons unknown."

After hearing the evidence of ten witnesses, including Perri himself, the jury retired and after deliberating eight minutes returned the verdict.

In summarizing the case to the jury, Coroner Dr. G. S. Rennie, M.P., admitted the case was a mystifying one and that slayers had covered their tracks well. "The evidence, as far as it goes," he stated, "does not, to my mind, bring anything to your minds as to who the person or persons were who murdered Bessie Perri."

Testimony Conflicts.

Conflicting testimony featured the evidence of two of the witnesses. William Graham local construction foreman who was engaged on work at the Central Public School the night of the murder swore he had seen a cheap looking touring car standing on Bold Street just north of the Perri residence and near the school. The machine faced down the lane by which Perri and his wife had just driven their car into the garage. Graham said when he heard the shots he was at a drinking fountain at the corner of Bay and Bold Streets in the company of another young man and woman who he had met in the school grounds and whose identity he did not know.

George. Thompson,. residing on Duke street, a short distance from the Perri home said he had got up in his pyjamas and from his bedroom window, had seen a car on Duke street. As he watched it, he continued, a man ran up and got into the auto. The driver had been racing his engine just before this and Thompson said he thought the driver was drunk. Two men were in the back seat, he said. Asked if he heard the shots which roused the neighborhood, Thompson said he had and that seven or eight shots had been fired. Other witnesses said they had heard three or four shots.

Perri Tells of Shooting

Relating his version of the shooting Perri told how he and his wife drove into their garage after visiting at the home of Mike Serge, a cousin who was recently convicted and sentenced on a charge of violating the Ontario Liquor Control Act. He had parked the car in the garage and as Mrs. Perri got out a fusilade of shots were fired over the hood of a larger car parked on the other side of the garage. Perri said he believed there were three gunshots, presumably fired from two double-barrelled shot guns later found by police, and a revolver shot.

The witness admitted he was formerly "extensively engaged" in bootlegging and had made a good deal of money out of it. He denied however, that his wife was mixed up with the "dope running racket."

Visitors from the United States were especially numerous in Norway this year.

Albania, according to the 1930 census, has a population of 1,003.000.

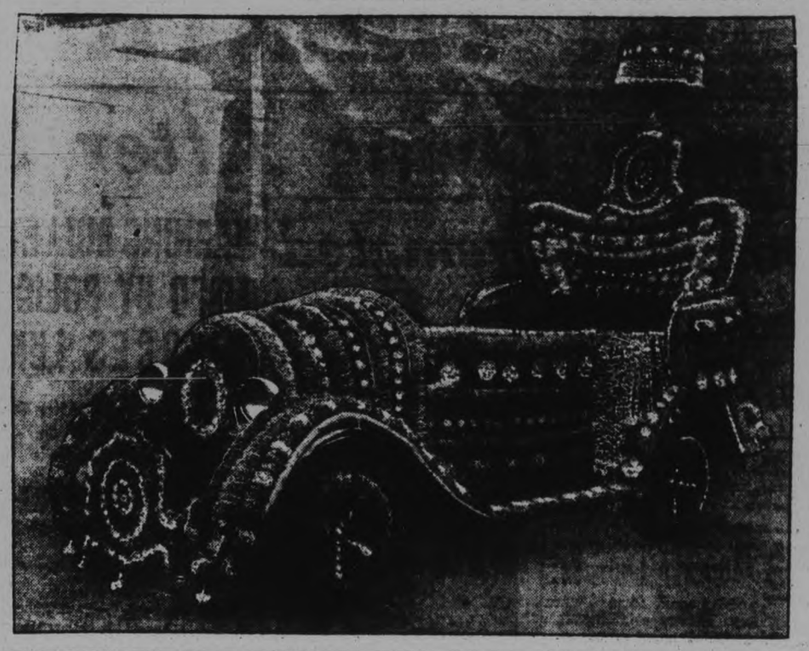
ESSEX CHALLENGER MAKES GORGEOUS BRIDAL COACH



HASTINGS.

John McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, of town, is receiving congratulations on winning the $5 gold piece donated yearly by the Catholic Women's League to the pupil of Our Lady of Monte Carmel parish, making the highest marks in the entrance examinations.

The regular meeting of the Women's Association of the Trinity United Church, was held on Thursday in the form of a tea in honor of the grandmothers of the church. The meeting was opened with Hymn 109 and the Lord's Prayer. repeated in unison. The usual amount of business was dealt with after which the following program was given:

Reading, Mrs. H. Orr; duet, Mrs. W. Tate and Mrs. J. M. Baker; reading, Mrs. A. M. Brooks; chorus by the grandmothers; reading, by Mrs. Fred Warner; pageant, six stages of Christian Womanhood. This was given by Misses Helen Smith, C. Hoard, Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. Hoard, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. J. Stenson.

A bouquet of flowers was presented to the oldest grandmother present, Mrs. Jas. Stinson. Hymn No. 240 and the Mispah Benediction closed the meeting.

On the church lawn tables were set and presided over by the young ladies of the congregation. A very happy afternoon was enjoyed by all present.

NEW RUM RUNNER IN ERIE WATERS

Heavily Laden Craft Off Long Point Believed From Halifax.

COAST GUARDS WATCHING.

WELLAND, Sept. 6. — Another heavily-laden rum boat was reported riding at anchor in Canadian waters off Long Point, about 60 miles from Buffalo yesterday. As soon as report of the ship was received there, Commander Martin W. Rasmussen of U.S. Coastguard, ordered a cordon of government cutters stationed in American waters opposite the craft in the hope of preventing the illicit cargo, which is assumed to be around 5,000 cases of ale or whiskey, from reaching shore.

The strange vessel is reported to be about 120 feet long and of ample beam to carry a considerable load. It is not yet known under what name she is sailing, It is assumed that the ship cleared from either Halifax or one of the French Islands in the Atlantic and came through the canals to Lake Erie.

Last week four such vessels were reported discharging whiskey and ale in the lake to American rum runners. Several small loads of contraband liquors have been seized by the coastguard operating between Buffalo and Cleveland.

CAR UPSETS, FATHER KILLED, CHILDREN UNHURT

RENFREW, Ont., Sept. 6.—(CP)—When his car overturned in the ditch yesterday, Alphonse Charbonneau of Arnprior was instantly killed. His two children who were travelling with him at the time were uninjured. For the past seven years Mr. Charbonneau had resided in Flint, Mich. and only this week had moved back to Arnprior to take a position.

LIBERATION

ONE does not have to go back many years to reach the time when most of the water used in the house had to be carried from the spring or well, not always situated close to the house.

Even the introduction of the hand pump, which brought water to the kitchen, did not dispense with the backbreaking work of pumping and lifting heavy pails.

Woman's work on the farm, and indeed in the city, involved an enormous expenditure of strength and vitality. Among other tasks she was dependent on her own hands to do the family washing, a good deal of the milking, the filling and cleaning of lamps, ironing, taking care of the poultry (which meant also the poultry house), to say nothing of innumerable minor tasks, and at the same time had to rear, feed, clothe and otherwise provide for her children.

Today she is liberated from much of the drudgery of household tasks. The washing, ironing, lighting, cooking; and on the farm, milking, poultry work, dairy work, and the pumping of water, can now be done by electricity.

The electrical servant also relieves the man of the household from many tasks which he used to take as a matter of course.

The Northern Electric Company is pleased that in the manufacture of wires and cables, and in the distribution of many electrical household appliances, it has been able to assist in the liberation of woman from some of her work, that so frequently overtaxed her strength and endurance.

JOSIAH (A ROYAL REFORMER)

Devotional study of Sunday School lesson for Sept. 7. Scripture—2 Kings 22:1, 2, 8; 23:1-3, 21-25. Golden text—Psa. 119:106.

By ARTHUR W. BROWN.

Josiah evidently did not inherit his tender heart from either grandfather Manasseh or his father Amon. Perhaps he got it through his mother Jedidah, and maybe the prophet Jeremiah and the prophetess Huldah helped greatly to keep his heart tender through the years. Anyway it would seem that his tender heart had a great deal to do with the fine leadership he gave to the kingdom of Judah and the splendid religious reforms that blessed the nation. He had inherited from his father and grandfather a name of shame, an undermined throne, a divided and distracted kingdom, a debased religion and a fearful looking for judgment.

But he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord and walked in all the way of David. The world takes off its hat to the man who does that which is right in the sight of the Lord, and there is a more abundant reason for such respect to be paid where the good is embraced and righteousness practised when one comes from such terribly untoward circumstances as Josiah did.

Le Fabre once saw a number of caterpillars marching round the moulding of a stone vase in his garden. He got some more of them and filled up the gap between the tail and head of the procession, and watched to see what the caterpillars would do. They went on following each his neighbor in front; they walked round that vase for a week. How like some people who are slaves to their neighbor's ways! Josiah dared to follow his own conscience and heart, as God instructed them, scorning the consequences. He broke a chain of evil leadership that was fatal to highest religious interests.

He instituted and carried out a reformation. Reading all of this chapter we find him responsible for repairing the temple. That led to other important religious undertakings. Feasts were revived, the word of God was revered and obeyed, abominations were put away.

Perhaps Josiah felt as he viewed the ruined shrine at Jerusalem as A. C. Benson did when he found a country chapel in one of his rambles in wretched confusion, gnawed by rats and befouled by birds, a litter of rotting nests was on the altar itself, which brought to him a sense of broken trust, of old memories despised, of the altar of God shamed and dishonored. Josiah began the reformation there. All true reformations begin by the altars of God. It is worship, communion, prayer, the sacrifice of a broken heart to set against, and to be a preventive of, a broken and ruined temple that is at the base of individual and national well-being. He was really repairing the soul of Israel. This restoration of the temple was an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grave that he was calling into operation in the lives of his people. He was helping to answer the prayer that all people at some time feel the need of being heard:

"The ruins of my soul repair
And make my heart the home of prayer."

There are temples we can find to repair, old trusts, sacred altars, violated sanctuaries of body and spirit whose lovely storied windows are smashed. Doors that have been battered down and lost their fastenings, furniture of the holy places of life that we have allowed to become rickety and unsafe. Will not somebody give us a hymn as has been done on Samuel's heart and life in which we will ask for this reforming zeal of Josiah with the possession of his tender heart and love for God's house, whether it happens to be the public place of worship or some soul sanctuary where God should be honored?

Josiah and those with him in this blessed work made a great discovery. They found a long, lost book of their religion in the ruins. The Chronicler identifies this discovery of Hilkiah with the Law of Moses. It contained prophecies of destruction for abominations carried on and provided added urge to the prosecution of these movements of national religious reform. This piece of their Bible, perhaps their only Bible, would be a great treasure. We can't think very well of how we would get along without copies of the word of God. It is to Josiah's credit that he started a reformation without the help of a Bible. Luther's great reformation can be traced to the discovery of the Bible in a greater sense than he had hitherto known.

Let us make note that once we begin to follow God and work out his plans that he lays upon our tender hearts we shall make some gracious and thrilling discovery. Our great High Priest will uncover some gladdening and valuable thing. When we identify ourselves with the ministry of a Divine repairing we shall not go unrewarded. When we have turned their hearts to God they have found a new world, a bluer sky, sweeter flowers, happier homes, better friends, a wonder in books. We meet once in a while somebody who has discovered an epistle, or a gospel, or a new psalm—that is, they have seen a new meaning, a new glory in the old treasures that have been hidden under the dust and debris of years. And we all know it was the man who was seeking goodly pearls who stumbled upon the pearl of great price.

Blessed realizations attended this reforming zeal and tender-heartedness of Josiah towards God.

The youthful king led in a national humiliation, a thing that would cleanse us from the pride and falsenesses that luxuries and indulgences have brought to us, strengthening national fibre and creating nobility of spirit.

He put away abominable things that were a disgrace to these favored and God-honored people. We know a few things in our national life that ought to go the same way. But it will take the Josiah spirit to overthrow them and cast them out.

The great institution of the passover was revived and given its rightful place in calling the people to holy memories and religious responsibilities. Before God they ate and drank, renewing their vows and explaining these things to their children. We in our light and dispensation are able to say, "We drink of Thee, the Fountain Head. And thirst our souls from Thee to fill." The two celebrations of the Old Testament and New Testament dispensations depend largely on keeping our heart tender towards God, keeping the altars in repair and reading carefully and carrying out the word of God. "Thy word shall be a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

The Question ?? Box ??

In this corner the enquiries of readers on Biblical and religious problems are answered. Address "The Q. B. Editor c-o The Examiner.

Q.—What is meant by the Bible being inspired?

A.—That inspiration is a fact can be readily perceived by everyone. One has only to ask himself why he cannot write like Shakespeare, say, or Milton. "Why haven't I got their insight into life and truth?"

It is evident that genius is in closer touch with the spiritual consciousness which we name God.

But there are degrees of inspiration, and the difference between an inspired poet like Shakespeare and an inspired prophet like Isaiah is that the latter is so closely in touch with God that he becomes His spokesman.

The prophet declares, "The Lord saith," and men who are themselves partially inspired recognize that God does indeed speak through his prophets.

That some men have been to a greater or lesser degree inspired has been recognized in all except degenerate or materialistic ages. Dante appeals, in his Divine Comedy, to the heavenly muse, and Milton, in the opening lines of Paradise Lost, to the source of inspiration of the "shepherd who first taught the chosen seed how the heavens and earth rose out of chaos." But Milton cannot be considered by any stretch of imagination, to have been inspired to the same degree that Moses was.

Q.—Do you think the command of Jesus, "Be ye perfect as your Father in Heaven is perfect," is practicable?

A.—Why not? The trouble with Christendom is that it has taken for granted that the commandments of Jesus cannot be lived up to. In this imperative statement He challenges that idea.

To attain the perfection of divinity is by no means a light task, yet it is evident that Jesus knew that it was attainable by men, for He tries to rouse them to an appreciation of their divine origin, to realize they are divine beings.

He says to them, "Ye are gods," and "Ye are the light of the world." These words are encouraging. They are a call to the recognition of our high estate.

If men are gods, can they not attain perfection, if not in this life, sometime? They can set about the task now, if they will, with the confidence that they are building for eternity.

• • •

Q.—What is the first reference to weighing in the Bible?

A.—When Abraham paid the sons of Heth 400 shekels for a burial place. Genesis xxiii. 16. He weighed the money in a balance, the word shekel meaning "to suspend or poise."

The shekel was originally a unit of weight, and the money paid by Abraham was in uncoined ingots. Later shekels were made into coins.

In ancient times there were light and heavy shekels. The light coins were worth 33 cents, and the heavy ones, 66 cents.

The Babylonians had a silver shekel which they divided into thirds, sixths and twelfths, while the Phenecians divided their shekels into halves, quarters and eighths.

The Jewish shekels were divided into 20 gerahs, as we are told in Exodus xxx. The word gerah comes from the word "to chew" and meant something broken into small pieces.

The shekel of Israel had on one side a representation of the sacred vessel of the temple and on the other a flowering branch.

Q.—Where did the expression, "In the beginning God created a coffin in Egypt," originate and what does it mean?—G. B.

A.—The words are taken from the first and last verses of the book of Genesis. Verse 1 of chapter 1 reads, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Verse 26 of chapter 50 runs, "So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old, and they embalmed him, and he put in a coffin in Egypt."

The first and last words of these two verses were put together as a kind of summary of the results of the entrance of sin into the world, but we do not think the result is very happy.

God did not create the coffin in Egypt. The coffin, which symbolizes death, was the result of man's actions, that "brought death into the world and all our woe."

RIOTS BREAK OUT AS BUENOS AIRES PRESIDENT QUITS

Many Are Wounded When Police Clash With Demonstartors.

PRESS IS CENSORED.

Vice President Declares City in State of Seige—Troops Held Ready.

BUENOS AIRES, September 6.—Many persons were wounded last night when the police clashed with demonstrators at the intersection of the Avenidas Mayo and Peru.

Fighting occurred near the building of La Prensa, Opposition paper. A meeting was scheduled for 7 p.m. near there.

Telephone service to La Nacion and other principal newspapers was suddenly interrupted about the same time.

Rigid censorhip was clapped on outgoing press cable despatches. Public gatherings in the streets were forbidden.

Vice-President Succeeds.

President Hipolito Yrigoyen, twice Argentina's Chief of State, resigned office last evening.

The President, known as "Argentina's powerful man of the people," retired after a week of political agitation and students' riots. He turned over the government to Vice-President Enrique V. Martinez.

A state of siege in Buenos Aires was immediately declared by the Vice President. Troops were held in barracks.

The news burst in the fever-heated city like a bombshell. Sirens screeched, bombs were exploded and extra editions were rolled out by the newspapers.

Was Virtual Dictator.

Yrigoyen had held an almost dictatorial power in Argentina since his election to the presidency in 1928 for the second term. His first term began in 1916.

The president's resignation though expected all week, stummed the capital.

Late in the afternoon a mysterious order from government quarters to 'stand by' reached high newspapers circles. Then at a given signal La Nacion exploded bombs, the customary way of announcing extraordinary events.

A few minutes later the news ran like wildfire that Yrigoyen had resigned.

ATLANTIC FLYERS VISIT LOUISVILLE

Crowd of 6,000 Greet Coste and Bellonte on Way Back to New York.

MAY VISIT C.N.E.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Greeted by the cheers of thousands of citizens and the shrieking of factory whistles, Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, Paris to New York to Dallas fliers, swept out of a murky sky and landed on Bowman Field here at 6.41.30 p.m. (C.S.T.) last night.

As the wheels of their sesqui-plane touched ground for the third time in America, a crowd of approximately 6,000 persons surged forward, shouting a noisy welcome. The fliers had left Dallas, Texas, at 12.30 p.m.

The Frenchmen, obviously tired from their Paris to New York flight, and the subsequent non-stop flight from New York to Dallas, had requested through their manager, Rene Racover, that no entertainment be provided for them here.

Asked To See "Ex."

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Possibility that the two intrepid French fliers, Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, may visit Toronto and the Exhibition sometime today was created last night when H. W. Waters, on behalf of the directorate of the Canadian National Exhibition, extended them an official invitation to fly over the Exhibition this afternoon and receive a Canadian tribute for their achievement.

If they accept, the trans-Atlantic conquerors will likely be the recipients of a presentation from the directorate of the C.N.E. The suggested program is for them to fly over the Exhibition, and later to land and spend a short time at the Exhibition.

NO ANXIETY.

EDMONTON, Sask., Sept. 6.—Mystery still surrounds the actual whereabouts of Pilot Sherlock of the Commercial Airways and Pilot W. E. Gilbert of the Western Canada Airways; the two Edmonton airmen who are at present engaged in daring flights inside the Arctic Circle.

Sherlock was scheduled to hop from Aklavik early on Thursday morning with two trappers to be landed at their winter stamping grounds on Baillie Island and on Franklin Bay. Baillie Island is some 250 air miles from Aklavik, while Franklin Bay is about 100 miles further east along the Arctic coast.

While Sherlock was scheduled to complete the flight on Thursday, no word as to whether or not the flight was made has been received here. No alarm is felt, however.

The whereabouts of W. E. Gilbert of the Western Canada Airways and Major L. T. Burwash, noted Canadian explorer, who were last reported flying from Fort Hearne to King William's Land, also remains unknown.

WHERE DID HE GET HIS GUN?

Reference was made at the funeral of the police officer shot at Welland the other day by a drunken foreigner to the necessity of more severe tests before aliens are given citizenship.

Undoubtedly there should be no hurry in conferring all the privileges of citizens upon newcomers whose habits of living and whose social ideas may be quite different from the Canadian standard.

Every care should be taken to make sure that applicants for citizenship are fully qualified.

However, it is difficult to see just how this question of citizenship entered into the Welland tragedy.

What is of moment is, how did the killer of the constable secure the revolver with which the crime was committed?

That is the real crux of the shooting, and it gets back to The Examiner's frequently stated opinion that our laws in regard to the possession and carrying of revolvers are decidedly in need of revision.

It is too easy to secure firearms; apparently anybody who wants to run round the country packing a gun has no trouble in obtaining one, and when a gun-carrying foreigner absorbs a quantity of liquor the combination is as dangerous as T.N.T.

Nobody in this Province needs to tote a revolver, and we should tighten up the law so that it will be made a difficult proposition.

THE CANNING INDUSTRY.

Despite the exploitation and sale of American canned goods, so vigorously objected to by Premier Ferguson the other day, the canning industry in Canada, according to official figures, is in a healthy condition.

In fact, the expansion in the production of canned goods in this country has been remarkable, multiplying by more than six-fold since the beginning of the present century.

In 1920 the total value of the products of the canning industry was $8,250,000, while in 1928 the total had climbed to nearly $53,000,000.

These figures will doubtless surprise the average Canadian, who will be interested in learning that in 1928 the value of fish canned in this country amounted to over eighteen million dollars, that canned vegetables reached a total production of nearly fourteen millions, and that condensed and evaporated milk products amounted to over ten million dollars.

Even in the canned soup field, singled out by the Premier for an especial attack, there was a production of $1,390,000.

Another condition that will cause additional surprise is that our exports of canned foods are more than double our imports of those products.

Two years ago Canada exported $18,858,000 worth of canned foods, mostly fish and condensed milk, while she brought in canned products valued at $8,617,000.

THE BLUEBERRY CROP.

That was an interesting news story carried yesterday to the effect that in its campaign to market Ontario's products the Ontario Government may endeavor to utilize the annual blueberry crop of Northern Ontario into a major adjunct of the fruit-raising industry.

It has long been contended that the vast portion of the wealth of wild berries, strawberries, blueberries, raspberries and thimbleberries, grown in this Province has been allowed to go to waste, and that the enormous yield of these berries represents a profitable field for development.

Quebec, particularly in connection with blueberries, has been much more business-like, and an industry along that line has been developed that means a large addition to the wealth of the people of the lower Province.

If the Ontario Government takes hold of this promising field and converts Ontario's blueberry crop into a profit-making annual harvest, this district will be particularly interested.

All the blueberries are not grown in Northern Ontario.

In the northern part of our own county there are miles of country producing the finest berries to be found anywhere, and while much of the crop is utilized, it is undoubtedly the case that a large portion of the berries is allowed to go to waste, simply drying up on the bushes.

If the proposed development takes place Peterborough County may expect a good share of the new business that will eventuate.

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

The special session of Parliament, which begins on Monday, is of great importance to the people of Canada, in view of the economic situation and the unemployment which, with winter drawing near, is becoming more and more of a problem.

The country is waiting for the Government program, hoping that it may succeed in mitigating the effects of the present situation and in developing policies that will hasten the return of more prosperous times.

There is naturally scepticism as to the ability of the new administration to produce any such results; that is inevitable among those who do not believe in the Bennett tariff policies, and it may be that more hardened partizans are hopeful that the whole effort will prove a failure, with complete loss of prestige so far as the Government is concerned.

With the great mass of the people, however, political advantage at this time appears to be of very minor importance.

What is wanted is work for the unemployed, orders for the factories, business for the stores, and unless the new Government can do something to bring these things about, the outlook for the approaching winter is frankly alarming.

That is why only extremists are hoping for failure, and why the vast majority of Canadians are wishing Premier Bennett and his colleagues good luck as they launch into this all-important special session of Parliament.

They know that if the attempt fails the new Government will not be the only victims.

HELPING INDUSTRY.

A local suicide is attributed to the prevailing depression; the same cause is held responsible for a case of theft and for wilful damage to a store, the culprit hoping thereby to receive a jail term and food and shelter. Similar reports come from other centres, and the fear is expressed that as the year advances crime will increase in proportion to the distress of the unemployed. It is not a pleasant prospect, but must be faced. The police may be relied upon to do their duty in the situation and the Government and civic authorities will take what measures of relief are possible; but there will still remain many who are rendered desperate from want. In these circumstances, it is incumbent on all citizens to help in the effort to alleviate conditions. Those who are in a position to provide work of any kind should not hesitate to come to the rescue. But there is another way in which we all may help, and it is a method which is receiving constant emphasis on the part of those in a position to form an authoritative opinion. If Canadians would make it a habit to buy Canadian goods, millions of dollars would be kept in the country which now go abroad; industry would be stimulated, manufacturing revive and trade in general rapidly improve.

Citizens of this country purchased nearly sixty million dollars' worth of imports from the United States alone during the single month of June. It is not, of course, suggested that all that sum might have been diverted to Canadian pockets; but it is undeniable that a considerable proportion of it could have been retained. There are some who argue that the present depression is merely psychological, resulting from a buyers' strike. Others claim that it is not a "strike" on the part of consumers, but an inability to buy, which is responsible. Neither of these views can be held fully accountable for conditions. There is, undoubtedly, a holding off on the part of people who are in comfortable circumstances, which is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary, and there is also, without question, a compulsory curtailment of expenses on the part of those who have lost their employment or are otherwise injuriously affected by the slump. But statistics show that buyers are still on the job; the trouble is that they do not sufficiently patronize home industries. In times like these it becomes a patriotic duty to boost Canadian products. The Toronto Exhibition should convince every one that shopping requirements can be completely satisfied, in most cases, without going outside the country.—Brantford Expositor.

WHY PAPERS PRINT IT.

A lady signing herself "Disgusted" wrote this paper to-day about the publicity that was given to the funeral of Mrs. Rocco Perri in Hamilton. "Papers or people do not make such a fuss when any normal person dies," is her argument, so "why give such attention to so sordid a case?"

Fair enough question, we imagine. Newspapers give space to reporting such events because there is news there. In Hamilton a crowd conservatively estimated at fifteen thousand people turned out to see this funeral. It was an unusual thing; there were sordid incidents in in connection with it. It was conducted in a strange manner, and those most actively interested in it had to fight their way through while they attended.

Had this Perri woman been living a normal life, and died in a natural way, and had the intimate friends and relatives gathered for the ordinary sort of obsequies at the last, we admit there would not have been much space devoted to it. There would have been no reason for so doing.

The funeral was not an isolated affair. It was part and parcel of the history of the Perri combination. For years their lives had been turned over to dealing in liquor; they had left their humble state in life and entered the sphere we refer to as fabulously wealthy. They had surrounded themselves with an air of mystery, to which human curiosity responds. In the end this woman was slain, and then preparations were made in an elaborate way for burial. In death there was the looking about for a cemetery that would receive her. There was the deluge of floral tributes that normal and worthy existence could never attract.

Had such an event been staged in Stratford or any other city there would have been similar crowds. Say it is vulgar taste if you wish, but that does not do away with the fact that a very unusual thing has taken place. When an unusual thing takes place it is the duty of a reporter to tell his readers about it. He is called upon to give those who were not present a picture of what it was all about. The reporter cannot put into a story an interest which was not placed there by the events which surround the happening. His business is merely to record what he sees.

This is not written as an apology for printing much about the Perri case and the Perri funeral; it is merely by way of explanation to the lady who is "disgusted."—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Canadian woman flyer has made a new distance record. The fair sex is not to be denied, in the air or anywhere else.

Saskatchewan celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary as a Province on Thursday. Incidentally, the development recorded in that quarter of a century is one of the romances of Canadian history.

Canadians generally will be glad to learn that the appointment of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux to the Senate has been held to be regular. The promotion was richly earned, and it would have been a pity had technicalities upset the appointment.

Miniature golf courses must not be opened in Toronto on Sunday—a decision that would seem to be based on common sense.

Everything is ready for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Good weather and good crowds are all that are needed for complete success.

Have you asked your out-of-town friends to drop in and see the Peterborough Exhibition? They will find the visit decidedly worth while.

News of Our Own Village

All roads will lead to this progressive community next week owing to the village fall fair going to be staged here. Try and get in, say we.

Jack Corkery, one of our local law experts, is going to fill the shoes of Judge J. Wearing as village solicitor, but Joe's golf records is considered safe.

Geo. Morrow and Fred. Dela Fosse was among the old-timers which golfed at the senior tourney held in Toronto, west of us, this week. Better luck next time, boys, say we.

Justice is being dished out in the village police court this week by Rolly Denne, our worthy mayor, and Doc Young, O. A. Langley, our busy magistrate, taking a few days off. Rolly and Doc ain't made a bad job of it, your scribe understands.

Doc Fitzpatrick has hit the trail for Montreal, to the east of us, and a little bird tells us the wedding bells is going to be heard down that way shortly.

Harry Kenner's education mill in Confederation Sq. had so many pupils Tues. a.m. the sides nearly bulged out. Looks like the boys on the school board will hafta build again soon.

They's going to be a wild west show from Calgary, west of us, at the village fair next week. If the lads give us a ride like their fellow-townsman, Dick Bennett, give Billy King this summer they oughta put on quite a show, say we.

Most of our business men is enjoying home-cooking again, the ball and chain having got back to the village from their summer shacks. Welcome home, girls, say we.

Ed. Peck, our federal member, won't be able to drop in at the village fair next week, Ed. having a previous engagement down to Ottawa, east of here, he and Dick Bennett and some others tackling the unemployment problem and other matters.

Doc Floyd from Cobourg, to the east of here, give a talk on stars to the village Rotarians Mon., but forgot to mention them that Milt. Maybee seen when the returns in Northumberland was counted on July 28.

Villagers ain't going in for this tree-sitting stunt, but some of them is making new endurance records waiting for Frank Mitchell's horseless buses, your scribe learns.

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

What the power consisted of no one knew who wielded it, no one knew. But after a year had passed the scoffing ceased the thing was a proven fact. An intelligence was at work more powerful than the police, more cunning than the Apaches.

"How came the proof, you ask? I will tell you. Not by any single dramatic stroke, but by a series of incidents, which, though small in themselves, when taken cumulatively, afforded irrefutable evidence. Men who had received orders from an unknown source, and had disregarded them, were found dead and no one knew the hand that had struck them down. The police, too, did not escape gendarmes who had interfered with the unknown's plan were killed. Some were shot a few were knifed, but his favorite method was to strangle his victims. In fact, a reign of terror started, the more terrifying because of the air of mystery that surrounded it. Men spoke together in bated whispers, glancing fearfully over their shoulders, for no, one knew who was a spy or who was not. The King of the Underworld had arrived."

Victor Matthews paused to light a cigarette, whilst we waited eagerly for him to continue. Amazing though the story was, it was his quiet way of telling it that made it so impressive.

"It was in 1900," he continued, "that a further development took place. He was cunning, this man—and clever. He knew to a nicety the French nationality his psychology was perfect. Up to date, he had maintained his air of mystery from now on he would give them something concrete to catch hold of. And so it was that there gradually came into circulation, a series of exquisitely drawn little pictures. A man would find one in his pocket when he came to undress, with no idea as to how it had come there. And with each of them would be some definite order, written in block capitals. And if those orders were disobeyed, the recipient would later be found dead, with the same device pinned to his coat. Here is one that I kept for many years."

He pulled out his pocket-book, and even as he had it in his hands, his eyes dilated and he sat motionless, staring at a tree just behind my seat.

"My God!" he muttered. "Look at that."

"What the devil," began Hugh, and then he came over to where I was sitting. And in silence we all stared at a small piece of paper which we had failed to notice in our absorption up till then. It was about two inches square, and was fastened to the tree by a drawing-pin. And in the centre of it, drawn in ink, was a perfect representation of a hunchback.

"Is that the device you mean?" said Hugh quietly.

For answer Matthews unfastened his pocketbook, and from it he took the exact replica of the paper pinned to the tree, save that it was yellow with age. But the drawing was the same—a hunchback.

"I took this one," he said gravely, "from the body of a man who was found strangled one morning behind a lot of crates in the Gare de Lyons. He had in his pocket a third-class ticket for Marseilles, but he had not caught his train."

For a while we were all silent, each busy with our own thoughts. This sudden verification of Matthew's story, coming, as it were, out of the blue into a sunny English garden, seemed wellnigh uncanny. Almost mechanically Hugh went to the telescope and stared through it. And after a while he swung round and gaced us.

"How the devil did that get there?" he said.

Matthews gave a short laugh.

"Your activities are evidently known, Captain Drummon, and are not approved of. Le Bossu Masque must have put it there himself."

"Masque?" I cried, and Matthews nodded.

"Yes I was coming to that, when this somewhat dramatic interruption occurred."

"Damn the fellow," spluttered Hugh. "Having the gall to come into my garden and stick his cursed bits of paper all over the view. If I catch the blighter I'll turn his hump into a goitre in his neck. However, Mr. Matthews, please pardon the natural annoyance of a respectable English householder. Let's hear some more."

"Well, as I was saying," continued the other, "it was in 1900 that that design began to become familiar with the population of Paris. That it was a further development of the same man, we knew; his methods remained exactly similar to those he employed when he was unknown. Only now he began to grow more daring. Up till then, his orders had always been transmitted in writing now he commenced to issue them verbally. And this, of course, was seized as a golden opportunity by the police. In every community there are men who can be bought, and the underworld of Paris is certainly no exception to the rule. And so as soon as this new development became known plans were very carefully laid to catch him. With great secrecy, and through the most trustworthy channels possible, it was communicated to certain likely quarters that in the event of anyone receiving a message from le Bossu, with instructions to meet him personally, the police were to be at once communicated with. And a very big reward was promised if the information led to his capture.

"Sure enough, one day we got a ring on the telephone. And a guarded voice informed us the la Bossu had summoned the speaker—a particularly unpleasant form of brute known as the Rat—to go to a small hotel not far from the Gare de l'Est at ten that night. The police surrounded the place every entrance to the hotel was picketed when the Rat arrived. He was presumably to receive more detailed instructions in the hall as to which room he was to go to, and we gave him orders to communicate the number to the man at the door. It had been decided to allow him a little time with le Bossu so that we could find out what scheme that gentleman had in view, and it was ten minutes after the Rat had disappeared upstairs that we rushed the room.

"Now gentlemen, I was in the passage outside the room from the time the Rat went in. And I swear that no one came out. Yet, when we went in, he was lying stone dead in the middle of the carpet, with a knife driven up to the hilt in his back."

"Good Lord!" said Freckles, a cigarette he had forgotten to light between his lips. "But how did the fellow get away?"

Matthews shrugged his shoulders.

"The window was open, and so that was where he escaped, presumably. But that was only one case out of a dozen."

"Hold hard a minute," said Hugh. "Had no one in the hotel seen the man who took the room?"

"The room had been booked by telephone," said Matthews. "And the hotel, though small, is a busy one. Numbers of men had been in there that evening, and it was quite impossible to say which of them it was."

"But a hunchback is a pretty conspicuous figure," I objected.

"Ah! but was he a hunchback? True, he had adopted this device, but that was no proof that he was one himself. Or possibly the hump was detachable—a specially assumed disguise."

"Yes—that's true," agreed Hugh.

"You may take it from me, gentlemen," went on Matthews, "that we took every possible, and impossible, theory into account. But the plain, bald fact remained that under the very noses of the police the Rat had been murdered, and the murderer had vanished into thin air. However, I must get on that is all ancient history and is nothing whatever to do with our little affair to-day, save that it gives you a good idea of the type of man we are dealing with."

"Awfully jolly," murmured Freckles. "He sounds an absolute topper."

"I'm coming now to the part that really concerns us," continued Matthews. "And to make it clear to you, I will take it as it actually happened, not as we found it out at the trial of the Nightingale. He was our informant when, unfortunately, it was too late. As you will understand, after the episode of the Rat, and several others of a similar type, it had become impossible to carry on with the method we had originally hoped so much from. No one dared run the risk, though we doubled and trebled the money offered. But certain fact leaked out from the men who had seen him, and two of these were early established. First—he had a hump, though, as I said before, whether it was genuine or not we didn't know. Second—he was always masked. There was not a soul in the whole underworld of Paris who could claim to have seen his face.

"It was in September, 1902, that the Nightingale received a message which caused him to turn pale with fear—a summons from le Bossu Masque. The Nightingale and his gang had, as I have already told you, been playing about with their motor-car, and enjoying themselves in their own mild way. If the truth be known, I think they were rather frightened of the machine certain it is, they had no notion of its possibilities as an instrument of crime. And to them, pottering along with their little footpad tricks, came this sudden summons. The car, driven by the Nightingale alone, was to be taken to the small town of Magny, halfway between Paris and Rouen, and there further instructions would be given."

Matthews smiled slightly.

"I can imagine the feelings of le Rossignol," he went on, "as he drove out through the Porte Maillot on that fine September morning. The ever-present fear of the driver of those days that the car would break down was for once forgotten he probably prayed devoutly that it would. But his prayer was unanswered, and at eleven o'clock he drew up outside the Hotel du Grand-Cerf, in Magny, and succeeded to fortify himself with some alcohol.

"Lunch time came, and with it a wild hope that there was some mistake and that he was to be allowed to continue his normal life undisturbed by le Bossu Masque. Vain thought the summons came as he finished his meal. A letter was handed to him by the garcon, which he opened with trembling hands. It ran as follows:

"'At eight to-night you will take the road to Gisors on foot. Four kilometres out of the town, on the left of the road, is a small copse. In the centre of the copse is a wood-cutter's shed. Go there.

The Office Hound

THE OFFICE HOUND MURDER CASE

(A Silo Dance Detective Story)

O—H

It was shortly after midnight when the door bell rang. Whosis, Silo Dance's model manservant, opened the door, admitting Inspector Knowall. The Inspector was obviously much upset and laboring under a severe mental strain.

"Where's Dance?" he rapped.

"I'm sorry, sir," returned the imperturbable Whos.s, "but Mr. Dance has just retired, sir. If you. . . ."

At this moment a door at the end of the corridor opened and the Great Detective appeared, clad in a jade-green and silver dressing-gown.

"Ah, Inspector!" he greeted, "come right in and have a whiskey and soda!"

O—H

The Inspector went in.

"Don't bother with the soda," he muttered.

Dance looked at him queerly.

"You have been shot at," he announced, "in the dark by an unknown assailant while you were on your way up here."

Inspector Knowall started.

"Good heavens!" he said, "how did you know that?"

"Well there is a bullet in your hat—I should say a '38—which is conclusive proof that you have been shot at. Also, it is 12:20 p.m., and that makes it dark. And as for your assailant's being unknown—did you ever here of an assailant in a detective story, who wasn't unknown?"

O—H

The Inspector raised one eyebrow in surprise. A year ago he would have raised both eyebrows, but he had got used to Silo by this time.

"But how did you know I was on my way up here?" he demanded.

"Because you were coming up to tell me that The Office Hound had been murdered under mysterious circumstances," stated Dance cooly.

The Inspector jumped out of his chair at that one.

"By the sacred beard of the prophet! how did you know that?" he shouted.

Instead of answering, Dance dashed across to the electric light switch and plunged the room into darkness.

"Duck!" he cried.

O—H

A shot rang out, followed by the sound of splintering glass. After a moment's silence, the lights went on again. The Inspector had his head under the chesterfield. His gluti maximi were raised in earnest appeal.

The Great Detective, leaning leaning against the wall, laughed.

"Come out, Inspector," he advised.

The Inspector came out with an oath.

"What the etcetera was that?" he spluttered.

"An unknown assailant—perhaps the same one. . . . And if I were you, I'd omit all semi-religious expressions for a while."

"Well what I want to know is . . ." began the Inspector.

"My dear fellow," responded Dance, "who doesn't? But in the meantime, let us go down and see Sergeant Beef. He'll be expecting us."

O—H

"Hello, Dance! Good evening, Inspector!" greeted Sergeant Beef as the two appeared at the Police Station. "Going to solve this murder, Dance? . . . Well, you might as well go home to bed: I've got it in the bag."

"Have you, Sergeant?" smiled Dance. "What's your theory?"

"Theory! Who said anything about a theory? I tell you, I've got it cold! This was an inside job. The Hound took poison and died."

"Suicide, eh?"

"Yes."

"Well, Sergeant, that's very interesting. What I . . ."

O—H

The Inspector interrupted. "Just a minute, Dance, he said. "How did you known about this affair in the first place?"

"Oh," murmured Dance, "I've been expecting it. . . . By the way, Sergeant, you might give me the details—how was the body found?"

"The body was found," recited the Sergeant, "underneath the City Desk. There were no evidences of violence, but the body was stiff and cold. The Hound had ben dead for hours, the doctor said."

"The doctor! What doctor?"

"Dr. Queen."

"Oh! . . . Dr. Queen! . . . That ought to prove interesting. How did he happen to be on hand?"

"He was standing at the door when we arrived."

"Hm. . . ."

O—H

"Who found the body, Sergeant?" queried the Inspector.

"Fellow called Andre happened to be going into The Examiner Office, and stumbled over it. He phoned us."

"Was anything on the body?"

"These letters. One is from a women who signs herself 'Mademoiselle X'. It looks like a love-letter, but by the tone of it, there had been a quarrel. It isn't addressed to anyone—just begins, 'Darling'."

"What's this one?"

"Oh, that's a crazy letter from Arabia. It's written in some kind of gibberish. The only thing we can make out is the signature. It's signed, 'The Prophet'."

"Aha, Inspector!" broke out Dance. "The Prophet, eh? . . . Perhaps if we heard this Prophet in his den, we may learn something."

"What's that, Mr. Dance?" demanded the Sergeant.

O—H

"Oh, nothing just now," returned Dance. "Let's go down and have a saucer of tea."

"Saucer!" exclaimed the Sergeant. "I don't drink tea out of a saucer!"

"Oh, don't you?" returned the Great Detective. "Then how did you get those wrinkles in your forehead?"

BULLS CONTROL NEW YORK MART TRADING BRISK

Session Quickens to Best Saturday Pace Since Early August.

U. S. STEEL RISES.

Ingersoll Rand Up Over 8—Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas Strong.

NEW YORK, September 6 (C.P.)—With their cudgels regained bulls administered vicious punishment to shorts in to-day's stock market, and share prices rose substantially, as trading quickened to best Saturday pace since early August.

The measure success of the bear campaign of the middle of the week, resulting in a brisk covering movement yesterday, decidedly emboldened the speculators for the rise. U.S. Steel was bid up across 173 for the first time since the June crash, and nervous shorts hastened to buy back their shares, even in the long depressed copper group.

The advance embraced most of the important groups, with the exception of the oils. Such issues as U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas, Byers, Kennicott, Cerro de Pasco, General Electric, American Can., U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Telephone, and New York Central, rose 2 to 6 points. Among high fliers, Ingersoll Rand mounted more than 8, Allied Chemical 5, and Westinghouse Electric 4. The closing tone wasstrong. Total sales approximated 1,300,000 shares.

STEER RIDING AT EXHIBITION

Feat Never Performed Here Before—Program of Thrills.

WELSH BROS.' RODEO.

One of the feats to be performed by the members of Welsh Bros. Rodeo appearing at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is that of Steer riding and six of the wildest steers in the county have been procured for the act. Welsh Bros. Rodeo in its first appearance in Peterborough is expected to give more thrills than any vaudeville performance that has ever shown here. Only two of their acts are given afternoons. Commencing Tuesday that of a horse and rider jumping an automobile and the Roman Race. The complete program to be given at night with the balance of the star Vaudeville acts widing up with a blazing chuck waggon race that is worth the price of admission alone

Peterborough will present this year the most thrilling and interesting grand stand performances ever given here and remember the admission this year is only 25c; afternoon grandstand 50c; evening grand stand with change of program 25c.

CABINET COUNCIL STAGES SESSION

Final Touches to Program For Opening Monday Are Prepared.

MAY LAST ALL DAY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Cabinet Council gathered in session late this morning. As Premier R. B. Bennett and practically all his Ministers arrived for the meeting, there was some doubt on the question of a second meeting to-day. In any event, the present sitting will continue into the afternoon.

Completion of sessional preparations are being given attention for the opening on Monday. The final touches are being given to the Speech from the Throne, the unemployment program to be submitted and the tariff measure. The duty changes, it is rumored, may call for a ten per cent. general increase, with a long list of exceptions in the schedules which contain more than 1,200 items. The bill is being drafted in such a form as will facilitate discussion in the House, and it is generally expected that the session this month will terminate possibly two weeks from today or the coming Monday.

FOREST FIRES IN SASKATCHEWAN.

PRINCE ALLBERT, Sask., September 6. (C.P.) — Forest fires are raging on a new front in Northern Saskatchewan, sweeping through valuable timber limits at a furious rate.

The latest outbreak is in the Candle Lake area, 660 miles north east of here and reinforcements have been rushed by airplane to the fire swept district.

BURGLARS VISIT ORILLIA

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 6. (C.P.)—An organized gang of burglars is thought to be working in Orillia, after a number of robberies including the looting of nine guns and two boxes of shells from a hardware store here early yesterday.

JOBLESS VETERAN IN NEED OF WORK

Too Proud to Beg For Family in Want.

In a certain section of the city there is a little family in dire want. The breadwinner, an ex-service man is too proud to seek charity. He goes fishing before sun-up, not fishing for pleasure, but to provide a bare means of subsistence for his wife and three children. Then he tightens in his belt and sets out to make the daily search for work. He has been hopefully searching for the past eight weeks. He did manage to land one job, which netted him the handsome grand total of five dollars for one-and-a-half weeks' work, painting eight hours per day.

Other small offers of work have also been gladly accepted.

The man in question was laid-off work two months back. He was a machine hand in a local factory, where he had been employed for six years. His maximum rate of salary amounted to 40c per hour. After paying household expences and clothing his family, he 'broke even'. Slack times have arrived and there are no reserve funds to fall back upon. Two of the three children are of school age, but were unable to resume their studies on Tuesday last, as they have no footwear.

Unpretentious, but neat and clean, the little home represents that for which this man fought for in the dark days of the World War, while he is a representative of the vast army of ex-service men, who on demobilization found there was little room for them in industry or commerce—found out that they were misfits.

In the present instance, this man—an Ontarian—enlisted and saw three years' service overseas with the 93rd Battalion. He was wounded, shrapnel in the neck. Not bad enough for a disability pension. Now he begs employment in this city. The city in which he was educated. The city to which he has paid his rates and taxes. He is willing to accept anything, preferably a job with some permanent prospects. If prospective employers will communicate with Colonel Charles Ackerman, former president of the Ontario Provincial Command, Canadian Legion, or Captain James Abraham, local president, they can immediately arrange an interview with the man.

AFGHAN TRIBES RENEW FIGHTING

Ten Slain in Attack on Kharlachi Village on Lonely Frontier.

NATIVES HOLD POSTS.

SIMLA, India, Sept. 6.— (AP) — Severe fighting between British troops and raiding Afghan tribesmen on the northwest frontier broke out Thursday night and Friday morning. An official announcement today said seven native Indian recruits and three militiamen had been killed at Kharlachi post.

Hostile tribesmen from Kurram attacked the post, which is ten miles southwest of Parachinar, they also skirmished with picked posts held by "Chighas" (friendly armed villagers) along the Kurram River.

The defenders beat off the attacks with shrapnel and rifle fire. Enemy casualties were believed to be considerable but could not be ascertained. The British lost seven Chighas killed and seven wounded and three of the Kurram militia.

L. C. A. BOARD REVOKES PERMIT CANCELLATIONS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Satisfied that "everybody acted in the best of faith," the Ontario Liquor Control Board has announced liquor permit cancellations which followed the seizure of liquor owned by E. W. Backus at Port Arthur on August 23 are to be revoked and a refund of purchase price made on the seized liquor.

The "irregularities" reported to the Board, it is announced, consisted of purchase for Mr. Backus of liquor by other permit-holders and the temporary storing of it in the house of E. E. Johnston, instead of transferring it immediately to the Backus boat.

TOMMY FREEMAN NEW CHAMPION.

League Park, Cleveland, Ohio. Sept 6. (C.P.) — Tommy Freeman, Cleveland, won the world's welterweight championship last night when Referee Patsy Haley awarded him the decision at the end of 15 rounds of fighting over Young Jack Thompson of Oakland, Calif., the defending title holder.

MISS W. ROBINSON, GOLF CHAMPION.

TORONTO, Ont., September 6. (C.P.) — Miss Winifred Robinson of St. Catharines yesterday, won the Junior Girls' Championship of Ontario, over the Lambton golf course with a score of 166 for the 36 holes. Miss Mary Donald of Burlington finished second with 182 and Miss Mary Hunter was third with 185.

INJURES HAND BADLY.

Ronald Taylor, of 553 Harvey Street, pressman employed by The Examiner, sustained painful injury to one of his hands early this afternoon while following his employment. He was taken to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic after first-aid had been administered.

GERMAN GRAIN CROP IS SMALLER

All Yields Under Normal With the Exception of Wheat

THIRD SMALL YIELD.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6. —(CP)—Germany will not have a large harvest of grain for the third consecutive year as we expected several months ago. The information was obtained by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, today from the Canadian Trade Commissioner Wilgress at Hamburg, whom Mr. Stevens instructed to push the market for Canadian grain in Germany.

Except in the case of wheat, Mr. Stevens was informed, there will be considerable smaller supplies of domestic grain available in Germany than in the previous two years. The quantity of all grains with the exception of winter barley will also be inferior.

Official figures furnished Mr. Stevens shows that whereas the estimated German wheat crop for this year is likely to be slightly larger than that of last year, the yield of rye will be less by 510,000 tons, barley by 530,000 tons and oats by 1,-910,000 tons. The slightest increase in the estimated total yield of wheat over that of last year may be attributed, according to the information received to the increase in the area cultivated with this grain.

FLOODING PLANS RAISE OBJECTIONS

Iroquois Village Will Lodge Protest With Hydro Commission.

Raise St. Lawrence Level.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Through George H. Challies, M.L.A., for Dundas, the citizens of the village of Iroquois are lodging a protest with the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario against its scheme for a two-stage electric development on the St. Lawrence River, under which the village would be inundated and its removal to higher land made necessary. The protest is based on the fact that the Hydro Commission's report of 1921 on the St. Lawrence development made provision for the elevation of the village on its present site to the new river level, whereas G. H. Acres, appointed by the Provincial Government to advise the Dundas County municipalities affected by the proposal to dam the St. Lawrence, has recently recommended that the entire village be removed to higher ground in the same vicinity. Endeavors are being made to secure a meeting with members of the Commission in Toronto on September 10, when the formal protest from the village will be lodged.

Prospects Brighten For Ontario's Mines

George Gordon Reports Depression Slight in North.

"In contrast to conditions in the southern section of Ontario, little trade depression is apparent in New Ontario," states George Gordon of the Coughlin Monumental Works on his return from a business trip to the north. "On the contrary, he thought the signs were decidedly promising, and that the mines are preparing for an increased output.

The trip was decidedly fruitful and Mr. Gordon closed several contracts for monuments, some of the contracts running into four figures. He is to undertake another trip with a shipment of medium priced monuments.

He reports that the roads are excellent from North Bay to Haileybury, and that on the whole trip from Peterborough he only encountered about seven detours.

THREE OF FOUR

which has about ended its period of usefulness.

On the main floor a new men's lobby will be provided as the present lobby and social room will become the boys' lobby and game room. Features on the main floor will be a handsome mantel in the men's club room and a special exercise room which is to be constructed off the existing gymnasium. Four modern bowling alleys will also be installed.

A long-felt want will be remedied on the first floor with the enlargement of the dining room and kitchen. The demand for more room has been urgently felt by members of the Friday Night Supper Club and oftentimes 80 men have been crowded into the existing room.

New Hand Ball Court.

A hand ball court of regulation height will also be built on the first floor, as also will the modernized wash-rooms and lavatories.

With the addition of five dormitories on the second floor it will increase the number of rooms to 31 and will provide accommodation for thirty-eight men.

"Excavation work will commence early next week, probably Monday or Tuesday," stated Mr. Ephgrave to The Examiner this morning.

CHILDREN'S MENTAL DEVELOPMENT STARTS IN AS EARLY AS 39 DAYS

Study of First 4 Years Necessary For Foundation of Child Psychology.

TALK BY PROF. VALENTINE.

BRISTOL, England, September 6. —(C. P.) — When laughter is brought to a crowd of people from a comedian's mere repetition of an ordinarily unamusing phrase, they exhibit the same reaction as that of a six months' old child, revealed Professor C. W. Valentine, head of the Psychology Section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, when he addressed the association yesterday.

Dr. Valentine, who is head of the Department of Education of the University of Birmingham, and has written many works on psychology, traced the mental development of a person from the age of 39 days, when there was discerned a little laugh of delight at the prospect of food.

Thought develops before the mastery of words, remarked Dr. Valentine in an interesting commentary on loquacity, especially on the part of women, and was derived from observation of children.

"Many infants love to babble long before their talk can have any definite meaning, even for themselves. Later they love to repeat and use words before they understand them," said the speaker. "I have to report that I noticed this more decidedly in my two little girls than in the boys, but in one of the girls it helped her vocabulary so that she has outstripped the boys, though her talkative tendency leads sometimes to quaint misusage."

Dr. Valentine insisted that a careful study of the first four years of life was necessary for the foundation of child psychology, and he outlined the beginnings of a method and a technique.

A paper along similar lines was delivered by Miss Susan Isaacs.

WHEAT ON WINNIPEG MARKET UP 3 CENTS

News That Trading on Buenos Aires Mart is Closed Aids Gain.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, September 6. (CP.) — Within an hour of the opening wheat prices on the Winnipeg market shot up 3 1-8c a bushel. To-day traders took as distinctly bullish news the report that trading on the Buenos Aires wheat futures market had been suspended, due to political unrest in the Argentine capital. The gain here was the largest scored in weeks.

harbor, and killed two persons.

Britain's Sympathy.

LONDON, Sept. 6 (C.P.). — The British Government to-day expressed its sympathy to the Dominican Republic in the following message, transmitted through the Governor of Dominica:

"His Majesty's Government has learned with horror of the calamity which has overtaken Santo Domingo and desires to express deep sympathy to the Dominican Government and people."

The nearest British warship available was the H.M.S. Danae, which was ordered to proceed to the island republic at once, and should arrive Sunday or Monday.

Rev. W. T. Swayne Appointed To Bannockburn Mission

KINGSTON, September 6 (Special to The Examiner). — Rev. W. G. Hope Swane, a graduate of Trinity College, Toronto, has been appointed by the Bishop of Ontario to the mission of Bannockburn, in North Hastings, from September 15. He is a son of Rev. W. G. Swayne, rector of Bath.

MANY ACES ATTENDING MONTREAL AIR PAGEANT

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 6.—(C.P.)—Anxious eyes are turned to grey sky and low clouds to-day as Montreal prepares for the annual two-day air pageant of the Montreal light airplane club at St. Hubert airport.

Lieut. Alford Williams, formerly of the U.S. navy, "Dick" Atcherley of the British Schneider Cup seaplane races team, Captain Frank M. Hawks, cross continent speed champion and many others of the best known pilots of the continent are assembled here to thrill the crowds this afternoon and to-morrow.

PROTEST PROTECTION CRY.

TORONTO, September 6 (C.P.). — Claiming that agitators for higher tariff were hiding behind the employment cry in order to secure greater protection than the car industry demanded would epnalize the employment in the large centres of the Dominion. Representatives from the various provinces met here yesterday and decided to voice a protest of the Government.

FIRE RAZES BARN.

BRADFORD, Ont., Sept. 6.—(C.P.)—Practically the entire crop and two large barns and stables were destroyed by fire which swept the farm of L. A. Hartman, of West Gwillinbury township last evening. The loss is estimated at about $10,000 although the buildings, it is understood, are covered by insurance.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

IN HONOR OF THE FAIR

The peoples' Chimes of St. John's Church will be run at noon on Wednesday and the church flag will fly all week in honor of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

SOME FLOWER!

William Fell, 235 Princess street, reports that he has sunflowers from twelve to fourteen feet high, growing against his hen house. He wonders if this is a record? Is it?

ANOTHER NICE ONE

A fine lunge weighing 21 lbs. was caught by Albert O'Dette of 427 George street on Friday afternoon in Little Lake. It had a girth of eighteen inches and a measurement of 43½ inches from 'stem to stern'.

"EASTGATE" CHOSEN NAME FOR SUBURB

First Prize Awarded to Miss Olive O'Connell.

Three prizes were awarded for the three acceptable names tendered the committee for the community at the south-east corner of the city for which a fitting name has for years been sought by those whose homes are in that neighborhood.

The opportunity of suggesting a name and winning a prize has greatly interested the pupils of the Public and Parochial schools as advertised in the Examiner. Some 293 names were received.

The committee in charge of the selection of a name was as follows Messrs. Dickson Davidson, F. C. Burgess, Mark S. Burnham, John J. Howden, Frank Kitney and John T. O'Connell. They tender hearty thanks for the great interest shown in this contest and especially to the Examiner for its invaluable aid to the contest.

The committee held several meetings and with great consideration and care finally awarded the prizes as follows:

The name that won first prize, 'Eastgate," which is suggestive of the east gate to the city, the winner was Miss Olive O'Connell, Form 5, St. Peter's High School.

The second prize was for "Lockmore" from the word Lockmoreland and was awarded to Miss Ethel Davidson, 563 Park street, city.

The third prize was for "Lockmere Green," awarded to James Harvey, 563 Park street, city.

The first prize $10.00, the second prize $7.50, the third prize $5.00.

The above prizes were awarded by unanimous vote of the committee.

JACK'S BEAN STALK WAS NOT LIKE THIS

Plants 12 Feet High and Bearing 63 Pods.

Bean plants ten and twelve feet high and bearing as many as 63 pods on one stem are to be found on the farm of Albert Walbridge at Lang, Otonabee Township, according to Mr. Walbridge, who visited The Examiner this morning.

Mr. Walbridge—who has been an Examiner subscriber for sixteen years — planted seven "Chinese Wonder" beans last spring. Despite the fact that four of them were killed by the spring frosts and that the remaining three were "stunted" by the August dry spell, Mr. Walbridge has a trio of bean plants twice as tall as himself. Yesterday he pulled a stem bearing 63 pods.

Some of the pods are a foot long, and contain the grey-brown beans similar to those which were planted, but other pods on the same stem contain black beans, according to Mr. Walbridge.

It was Mr. Walbridge's brother, farming at Belmont, who saw several of these plants growing in the garden of a Chinaman at Havelock last summer. He secured several beans from the Chinaman and planted them—one bean to a hill. The seeds for the present plants were taken from the latter plants, but the original beans were brought out from China by the Havelock Chinaman two years ago.

Mr. Walbridge intends to use some of his beans for seed, but he will eat most of them. "They are good cooking beans," he says. He promised to bring The Examiner a sample pod for display.

HORSES ARE FOUND.

Two Rodeo "Outlaws" Wandered 20 Miles.

The Welsh brothers found the two missing outlaws about twenty miles north of Peterborough this morning. Several farmers attempted to corral the horses but were not successful. However they have been returned to the Exhibition Grounds and when the steers arrive Monday everything will be set for the opening performance.

CEMENT COMPANY EMPLOYEES HOLD ANNUA L BASKET SOCIAL

Workmen and Families Hold Jolly Gathering in Lakefield Tourist Park.

GOOD SPORTS PROGRAM

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Saturday afternoon last, August 30th, the Canada Cement Social and Athletic Club held a basket picnic for their families and friends at the Lakefield Tourist Park. It was a family picnic of Lakefield's largest family, the Canada Cement Co., and had all the hallmarks of being a happy family.

Upon arrival at the grounds about 1:30 o'clock a short program of aquatic events was staged off the Mackenzie Landing, in the sheltered stretch of water behind the upper island and every race was very keenly contested, the number of entries being much larger than was anticipated. The single canoe race with over a dozen contestants was the feature number and the winner, Herme Kidd, will bear watching in all future regattas at the lakes. "Chubby" Blewett acted as starter for the races, and, in conclusion, gave a demonstration of canoe stunt, of which he has a varied repertory, which amazed the crowd and proved a revelation to many of the guests.

Track Events.

Immediately after the water sports the throng of merrymakers adjourned to the athletic field, where a series of track and field events for every age and sex was staged under the efficient direction of Messrs. Morgan Abrams and James McDonnell. The children's races were very enjoyable and were duplicated to some extent, owing to the fact that cash prizes were distributed to the children and the winners staged a second race to the booth, which was located in adjacent territory. A number of complimentary tickets for all children of school age were issued and honored at the booth, and Messrs. "Howie" Miles, Stan Darling and Carmen Payne, the genial presiding genii, had a very busy afternoon.

A tug-of-war between the packers and mechanics created considerable excitement but the verdict was finally awarded to the latter, but their manager mislaid the prizes. Sabatino's Cubs defeated Charlton's Giants and both teams claimed the prizes so the former were consoled by having their pictures taken by the official photographer, Mr. Ed. Kelsey.

After this, a halt was called for supper, which everyone seemed to enjoy, especially the tea which was brewed by Messrs. Ab. Windsor and John Findlay, in two large cauldrons, ala shanty.

A horseshoe tournament, children's games and a final round of free lemonade by the refreshment trio brought a very pleasant outing to a close about 8 o'clock. Great credit is due Mr. E. W. Bailey, plant superintendent (executive chairman), and his able assistants, viz.: Messrs. G. R. Jenkinson, J. H. Miles, D. Hill, T. M. S. Abrams and J. J. McDonnell, who well merit the many compliments they earned by their successful promotion of this auspicious and highly successful "family gathering." Another who well merits a special word of commendation is the safety engineer, J. R. Hill, who was here, there and everywhere, doing his bit as usual and contributing in generous measure to the general success.

Prizewinners.

The various events and the winners are as follows:

Boys' swimming race: 1, Sherwood Elmsley; 2, Stewart Loyst; 3, Jack Abrams.

Ladies' swimming race: 1, Bernice Abrams; 2, Theodora Elmsley; 3, Madeline Abrams.

Institute Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Lakefield branch of the Woman's Institute will be held on Wednesday afternoon, September 10th. The subject is "Legislation," and papers will be given on law effecting women and children. Also specially important business will be discussed which will require a good representation of members.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If September 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., and from 7 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

From an astrological standpoint there will be no important barriers on this date to either happiness or success. There will be a contented feeling within your heart and a recess from worries. Delightful social times.

The child born on this September 6th will have a strong, but harmonious nature, patience and faithfulness. It will have an industrious and practical mind, and will be a doer and not a dreamer. It will have a flair for finances.

You have a blithesome, genial nature, but not a profound or analytical mind. You are as a rule, content with superficial knowledge and are willing to accept things in good faith, without further bother on your part. You can go into ecstasies over a field of wild flowers without desiring to show their botanical classification, or you can lose your soul to music, caring not for its classical value or the name of the composer. You are guided by your material senses and the sympathies of your heart more than by logical or intellectual reasoning.

You have no self-consciousness, and in your sublime outlook, you see the world as a show staged at your expense, which sometimes pleases you, and other times bores you. You will never take the trouble to place yourself above that of an amateur in any of life's games or more serious bouts. You are not envious, jealous, nor overly ambitious. Creature comforts and congenial companionship mean as much to you as anything, and if these are supplied, you are content. You are fond of light reading and popular amusements. You are a democratic mixer and a ready talker, and somehow give an impression of greater intellectuality than you possess. You never dig for knowledge, but you pick up a great deal through your bird-like powers of observation. Many acquaintances, a pleasant home life, and a probably happy marriage are indicated.

(Copyright 1930, by the Bell Syn., Inc.)

"VIRGO."

If September 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to midnight. The danger period is from 8 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The benign influences in force on September 6th will be continued on this date and a quiet, contemplative day can be anticipated. A "sufficient unto the day" attitude will be maintained, and the blessings of the hour enjoyed. A secret revealed.

Children born on this September 7th will have good dispositions, contented minds, and stolid natures. They will have few annoying complexes, and will have normal, healthy tastes and outlooks. They will be average students, rather slow in their development, clinging to their childish enthusiasms and pleasures.

You are a decided intellectual type of being, and are ruled almost entirely by cold reason. If cleverness were the only passport required, your success would be a foregone conclusion. You flaunt your "smartness" although you could afford to keep quiet about it. You are snobbish in your wisdom, and are impatient and intolerant toward those whose minds cannot keep step with yours. You patronize, when you should fraternize, and make enemies when you need friends. You need to forget your superiority. You need to be more human in your contacts with your fellow creatures.

You are witty and can be very sarcastic, and you delight in mimicking the peculiarities of others, whether they be friends or foes. Those who cannot give back as well as you give, are afraid of your critical, amused attitude. You are an eclectic in your religious views, although you are not very spiritual. A lively, intelligent argument is as the breath of life to you. You enjoy high class literature, and are interested in the science.

You have extravagant tastes, and you enjoy the luxuries of life. There are only a few people who thoroughly meet with your approval, and to these you are devoted and charming. You do not put yourself out to please the bulk of humanity. You are very fond of active sports, in some of which you should excel. You are very loyal to your own kith and kin, and are unselfish within your own home.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 6. — Prices on the better qualities cattle offered at the Union Stock Yards throughout the week's trading varied little from last week's quotations. Medium to common grades, however, appeared easier, with the movement considerably slower. Choice handyweight steers sold $7 to $7.25, with a few tops at $7.50. Choice handy heifers went at $7 to $7.25, with good around $6.50 to $6.75, and best heavy fat steers at $6.75 to $7. Very few of outstanding quality exceeded the 7c mark. Baby beeves, in continued good demand, brought $10.75 to $11.50 for choice, with good at $10 to $10.50 and medium $8 to $9.50. Fat cows sold on Monday as high as $6 for best, with good at $5 to $5.50, and medium at $3.75 to $4.50. Heavy fat bulls, in demand for export, brought $4.50 to as high as $5, while choice light butcher bulls could be had at $5 to $5.50. Bolognas were practically unchanged at $3 to $3.50. Few good cattle appeared on Wednesday's market, the bulk of receipts comprising medium to common grades, showing poor dressing percentage and difficult to dispose of, as a result of which the market was considerably slowed up. Fat cows showed a decline of 25c at $5.50 for best quality.

There was a noted increase in demand for choice springers, showing promise of production, in which class settlements were made at $90 to $110. Good springers went at $70 to $85. Milkers were practically unwanted.

Stockers and feeders brought a few inquiries, with trading on the basis of $5.50 to $5.75 for good 800 steers. Good quality heifers brought $5 to $5.25, with a few dry cows at $4.

Trading in calves progressed fairly steadily with choice selling at $11, good at $10 to $10.50 medium at $9, and grassers at $4 to $5.

Choice lambs sold on Tuesday and Wednesday at $9, with yearling sheep a $5.50 to $6. Choice light butchers' sheep went at around $5, while heavy sheep and aged bucks could be had at $3 to $4. Fat sheep were lower on Wednesday the bulk going at around $4.50.

Tuesday's hog market was bids of $10.50 to $10.75 for best bacons f.o.b. or $11.75 off cars. Road hogs ranged $11.25 to $11.50 depending upon distance. Prices on Wednesday were on the basis of $10.75 f.o.b.; $11.45 fed; $11.75 to $12 off cars, and $11.50 to $11.75 off trucks.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 6.— Greatly improved export demand for wheat backed by a strong Liverpool market, sent wheat prices backtracking over the long down-sliding trail yesterday to register substantial gains. The market closed 1¾c to 2¼c higher.

Sales abroad were estimated at more than 1,500,000 bushels, the bulk of which was Canadian wheat, and this resulted in good purchases in the pit by export houses. Offerings were much lighter than on recent days, leading to the belief that elevator interests had oversold.

Spreads in the cash wheat market were ½c to 1c better as the demand improved for higher grade durums. Coarse grains prices advanced in sympathy with wheat.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6. — Pessimism vanished from the Chicago wheat pit yesterday as future deliveries wheeled into line behind an excellent demand for cash wheat, and began a counter-assault against the onrush of lower prices. With European countries taking 1,500,000 bushels of cash wheat for export and domestic interests buying 127,000 bushels more, most of it destined for mills, traders on the Board of Trade took heart and started buying. The result of this activity was a sharp advance in prices with closing quotations generally 2 cents or more a bushel above Thursday's finish. Unexpected strength in Liverpool, largely because of active covering by professional sellers and also because of dry weather complaints from Argentina, helped to return confidence to traders. Corn was less fortunate and had a hard time staying above Thursday's close.

Gain of 1⅞ Cents Recorded.

Wheat closed firm at almost the topmost figures reached, 1 7-8 to 2 cents a bushel net higher than the previous close. Corn finished unchanged to 7-8c lower; oats, 1-8c to 3-8c; rye, 1 3-8c to 2¼c higher, and provisions showing a 15c to 35c advance.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Egg and cheese prices were unchanged on local markets yesterday, with butter slightly firmer. Dealers were quoting second grade butter ½ cent higher at 29½ cents but no business was done at this level, all trades going over at the old range of 28½ to 29 cents for No. 2 creamery and 29½ to 30 cents for No. 1.

Eggs were moving slow but firm. The market is considerably lower than a years ago, due chiefly to the fact that no eggs are being held for short terms. The normal movement at this time is for the producer to move many of his eggs into short storage quarters, reducing the fresh supply, and thereby causing a strong trend to prices. This year, however, the general agricultural depression necessitates moving all eggs into immediate supply in order to realize ready cash. This has the effect of causing an oversupply and making for a weak price tone.

Packers are nervous over their heavy holdings of storage eggs and may have to move some of their stock out at a loss unless the fresh supply dries up in the near future.

Cheese is firm with a good quantity moving out into export channels. This has counteracted a lower domestic demand and has served to stabilize prices.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—Cheese was the feature of local dairy and produce markets yesterday, prices weakening considerably following continued lack of demand. Quotations ranged from 14½ to 14¾ cents for Ontario cheese, and 13¾ to 14¼ cents for Quebecs, the former price prevailing for white and the latter for colored cheese.

The butter market was steady, Eastern Townships No. 1 being quoted at 29 cents a pound, although broken lots were as low as 28¾ cents.

Dealers announced that egg prices to retailers would be raised, beginning Monday, although present quotations will stand for the remainder of the week. Special brands were quoted at 43 cents, fresh extras at 40 cents, and fresh firsts at 35 cents a dozen.

Potatoes were unchanged at 85 to 90 cents for local stock, 85 cents for Lower Quebec, and $1 for New Brunswick Cobblers, all prices per 80-pound bag.

On the wholesale grain market, however, brewers' dried grains were reduced $1 a ton.

WARSAW.

W. F. Crowe is in Toronto for a few days.

Mr. E. Sloan, teacher at Warsaw, will have charge of the school parade at the Warsaw School Fair on Monday, September 22.

The Warsaw United Church W.M.S. met at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon with only a fair attendance. Mrs. George Taylor was in the chair. Zion Willing Workers have invited the Warsaw W.M.S. to go to Zion for their next meeting and attend a bazaar and supper here. Mrs. Sargent, group leader, was absent. Mrs. Rufus Payne sang "O Rest Thee." Rev. Mr. Wilkinson gave a very helpful talk on the last chapter of the study book, and pointed out the difference of woman's condition in Christian and non-Christian countries, and that even among people who do not profess Christianity the influence is extending and women are in many places not so bound. Christ was woman's salvation. Mrs. Wilkinson gave a piano selection, "Chapel Chimes."

NORTH-WEST TRAPPERS MAKE ANNUAL DASH SOUTH FOR GRUB

Few Score Men in North Look Upon Summer as Toughest Season in Year.

GAS $18 A GALLON.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright 1930)

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 6th.—While most of Canada is thinking in terms of holiday trips in the scenic wilds of Canada, there are a few scattered scores of men who look upon summer in the wide open spaces as one of the toughest seasons of a tough year in the wilderness. They are the trappers of the far places who make the annual dash into The Pas each summer to get their grub-stakes for the next winter. And their dash to the "outside" occupies two months and their "dash" back occupies the same time. Just now the last of them are loading their canoes by the long, long trail from The Pas to the Hayves river, Seal river, the Baker lake country, and away beyond Brochette.

There are two trails in the north, the summer trail and the winter trail. The first calls for canoes, the second for dog teams. The winter trail is the trap line. The summer trail brings the furs "out" to civilization. As soon as the ice goes out of the northern waters in June the trappers start on a two months journey down the water lanes, to The Pas. Then they have a week in town to buy flour, sugar, tea, ammunition, books, fishing, tackle, gasoline and candles.

For the last month they have been camping by the Saskatchewan river here. They come in singly and in pairs, pitch a tent, sell their fur, buy their groceries and wave good-bye for another year. They head into Saskatchewan river currents. Two months later they will arrive on the trapping grounds. They will have to dash, for they must not be caught in the ice, the ice that forms in early October and shuts out water communication.

This year the Hudson Bay Railway has shortened the distance for some. They can in some cases come out to the 'steel" and board the "Muskeg" as the H.B.R. passenger train is called. But many of them are still so many hundreds of miles from the railway, they still find that they must take their canoe the whole distance. They pack gasoline so far from gas stations that they figure it is worth $18.00 a gallon by the time they get it to the lonely shack in the barrens. Then they save it for the trip out in the spring when they bring the precious white fioxes to the fur buyers.

Fire On High Seas Claimed Many Lives

Sailor-Author Tells Grim Tales of Panic and Heroism in Early Days.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Sept. 6.—(By the Canadian Press)—Few people living to-day can recall the wreck of the R.M.S.E. Company's steam-sailing ship Amazon. It was on January 2, 1852, that the Amazon, then the "crack" ship of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, sailed from Southampton with cargo and mails for the West Indies.

She was a novelty in those days; a timber-fashioned "sailing-steam" ship, reputed to be the biggest sailing vessel out of any British port. Her gross burthen was 2,256 tons. She was 300 feet in length and 41 feet in the beam—scarcely larger than a modern coaster.

Steam was in its infancy in 1852, and the Amazon was one of those cumbersome craft fitted with huge paddle wheels and steam engines, of some 80 horse-power. In addition to a crew of 110 officers and men, she carried 50 passengers. From the first the Amazon experienced bad weather; and the full strength of the 80 horse-power engines was needed to push her against the head winds and seas.

Engineers of those days were little more than mechanics. Very soon the bearings of the engines became heated, and the hose pipe was constantly employed to cool them. And this in the Bay of Biscay! But the master refused to turn back, and pushed his ship into the gale. Then, at night, the second officer, "saw the thing that caused his heart to quicken its beat and lump to rise awkwardly in his gulping throat. There were flames evident, issuing from the super-structure in the neighborhood of the much-criticized engine-room."

All attempts to smother the engine and stop the fire failed, and soon all hope of conquering the flames died. The passengers burst open the doors that had kept them below, and swarmed on deck.

Women fell on their knees to pray, they were jostled to the bulwarks and crushed and trampled, heavy blows were struck as the maniac horror of fear gnawed into men's souls.

"Only one hope of salvation now remained—the boats, But these were aft, and the men who should have handled them were forward."

The ship carried nine boats, but to launch them was next to impossible. To try to drop a boat over the side was to court disaster. Those boats that could be reached were made ready until such time as the engines "Stopped of their own accord", since no man could enter the engine-room."

Miss M. Fisher, who has only one hand, recently won a prize for a knitted dress at a show at Egham, England.

UNDER THE FLEUR-DE-LYS.

Scout Miscellany (By Jim Hawthorne)
Answering a Critic.

The old-timer, like the village blacksmith, was always at home among his boys. He loved them and they were "at home" with him. A balanced temperament was one of his characteristics, and it was very rare he "went off" at what is called the "deep end." Yet there were occasions when it could be truly said he was filled with "righteous indignation." His encounter with the critic was one of them. It occurred like this: the Scout meeting was over and little groups were exchanging goodbyes with the old-timer mingling among the different groups.

Coming along the sidewalk were a number of men who viewed the Boy Scouts with derision, adding contemptuous remarks, loud enough for all to hear. Halting, as if to give emphasis to his remark, one of them expressed himself to his companions thus: "Did you ever see such a sight? There he is, a man among a lot of kids!" A loud guffaw from his fellows greeted this sally. It was like a cut to the raw to the old-timer, for he loved the Scouts to a point of jealousy for their reputation. Cheap sneers he usually ignored, and was content to smile, but this one he could not let pass. His eyes had a sudden flash as of fire, and with lips compressed he strode to the man who had spoken. The "man among kids" now dominated the situation among men. His attitude appeared to make the would-be wit shrink. Facing his critic, looking him straight in the eyes, he calmly began, "So, Mr. Critic, we are a lot of kids. Permit me to pass on some information about them." With a gesture eloquent with pride he pointed to the boys, and in a voice clear and crisp he went on, "Every one of them can do something. See those badges the boys wear? Each spells effort, work, perseverance. There is ability behind every badge. The award for doing things. These boys can do things that would flounder many so-called men.

"Among some of the things they can do is to make and light a fire, cook a meal, erect a tent, make a bed, fell a tree, fix a raft, ride and drive a horse, hold a plough, take a message, write a report, draw a map, run, jump, swim, sing, sew, and render first-aid. Not bad for boys, is it? Can you? They are civil and clean; are you? What can you do? Apparently empty one can into another, which is nothing to be proud about. I prefer to be among the boys."

Placing a hand on the man's shoulder he went on in a kindlier tone: "These boys possess the passport into worlds you have not yet discovered. You have not yet found out your own ignorance. When next you criticise anything, try to understand it first. If you find you can not do a thing any better yourself, don't criticise. These boys some day will be men, useful citizens, contented and happy. Perhaps if you have children you may have cause to be thankful that there are 'men among kids'."

Turning once more to his boys, with uplifted hand and a friendly nod, "So long, boys," he dismissed them.

ONE "DO" AND 50 "DONT'S" FOR BOWLERS

Herb. W. Barker—Nat. F. Caswell

1. DO adopt the D.L.B.A. suggestion for tournaments: White hat blue coat, white shirt, flannel trousers, belt, tan shoes, fancy socks—and a clean shave!

1. DON'T forget that you are a gentleman—under all circumstances.
2. DON'T fail to be on hand at the hour named for your game.
3. DON'T complain about the green—your opponent has no better one.
4. DON'T play the wrong bias—it is the unpardonable sin in lawn bowling.
5. DON'T be short when the shot is against you—the jack seldom comes forward.
6. DON'T deliver your bowl until the previous bowl has come to a stop.
7. DON'T fail to do your very best in whatever position you are asked to play.
8. DON'T delay when it is your turn to play—have your bowl ready.
9. DON'T chase your bowl down the green—its destiny is already fixed!
10. DON'T remain standing on the mat or green after delivering your bowl—step back or to one side.
11. DON'T overdo the running game—consistent persistent drawing will win most games.
12. DON'T leave dead bowls in the ditch—they may interfere with touchers or with the jack.
13. DON'T interfere with any bowl until the count is settled.
14. DON'T be a kicker—except to help in kicking back the bowls!
15. DON'T try to rattle your opponents—play the game!
16. DON'T "pack" your rink for a social game—give the new players a chance.
17. DON'T get sore when someone outbowls you.
18. DON'T bother your skip with advice—wait until he asks for it.
19. DON'T try to frame an alibi for every poor shot you make—be a sport!
20. DON'T scold your partner or your team—keep cheerful and hopeful.
21. DON'T be over boastful about your bowling—your "bump" is coming!
22. DON'T get grouchy if you are getting "licked"—you will get used to it!
23. DON'T quarrel with your opponent—better give him the benefit of the doubt.
24. DON'T be a "pot-hunter"—play the game for the game's sake.
25. DON'T find fault with your skip—play his game. You may some day become a skip.
26. DON'T gloat over a victory—have regard for the feelings of your opponent.
27. DON'T butt in when the count is being settled—leave that to the vice-skips.
28. DON'T make fun of another bowler's contortions after delivering his bowl until you have seen a photo of yourself under similar conditions.
29. DON'T lose your temper—poise is absolutely essential to the best bowling.
30. DON'T rub it in to your opponent by piling up a big score when all you need is to win.
31. DON'T use profanity or vulgar language on the green—it is simply not done in this game, for gentlemen.
32. DON'T become discouraged when the score is against you—many a game is decided by the last end.
33. DON'T try to win at any cost—the main object of lawn bowling is sociability.
34. DON'T fail to observe the rules of the game—thus only can there be fair play for all.
35. DON'T make a "bowling widow" of your wife—give her your company at least one evening a month!
36. DON'T fail to applaud a good play no matter who makes it—we all relish praise.
37. DON'T overlook the fact that Old Man Luck takes a hand in lawn bowling—you may get the next break.
38. DON'T fail to boost your own club—be loyal to its officers.
39. DON'T wobble your bowl when getting it away.
40. DON'T watch the game on the next green—look closely to your own.
41. DON'T talk about your "next victim," until you are 9 up and one end to go!
42. DON'T stand in the way of those on the next green—they, too, have a right to play.
43. DON'T think you know it all—those who have been bowling for years are always learning.
44. DON'T throw your bowl—have regard to the green.
45. DON'T fail to stand on the mat when delivering your bowl—it is not there as an ornament.
46. DON'T use inferior bowls—a good workman should have the best tools.
47. DON'T neglect to shake hands all round when the game is over.
48. DON'T forget that lawn bowling is the only outdoor sport that can be played equally well by the youth of 16 and the man of 80.
49. DON'T forget that lawn bowling has an honorable history, dating back many centuries—help to maintain its great record!
50. DON'T forget that lawn bowling is a game for gentlemen—play it accordingly.

The above makes good reading for bowlers, and if the suggestions are strictly adhered to, bowling will be the real gentleman's game that it was designed to be.

Opera Star Drives Ford

Miss Jeanne Gordon, Metropolitan Opera Star, at the Wheel of her Ford Convertible Cabriolet.

WHEN Miss Jeanne Gordon, Metropolitan Opera star, noted concert artist and known to millions over the radio, alights from the trains which bring her from New York appearances she chooses to drive the rest of the way to her charming summer home on the north shore of Lake Erie near Cedar Springs, Ontario, in her Ford convertible cabriolet.

During the summer Miss Gordon makes frequent trips from her summer home to New York to meet her concert engagements or to appear before the microphone of one of the large broadcasting chains.

Once her engagements are terminated, however, she hurries back to her summer retreat, and her Ford car, with its top lowered, is the vehicle she prefers when she alights from the New York train at St. Thomas. Her garage houses other Ford models, including a station wagon.

Miss Gordon was for nine years a leading contralto with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Her boudoir is hung with scores of photographs of world-known opera stars, bearing intimate personal autographs inscribed to Miss Gordon.

Prominent Paris theatres, well patronized by Americans when silent films were shown, are being deserted by them since talkies in French have been installed.

First-aid cases, containing toothache drops, eye salve and cough mixture are to be carried on all long-distance busses in Poland, according to an order of the Traffic Ministry.

ELECTRICITY
LEARN AT HOME

NEARLY $200,000 has been spent in preparing the Electrical Courses of the International School of Electricity. They have helped thousands of men to get good positions for two reasons. (1) They have been specially designed to meet the needs of the student who studies at home. (2) They have been written by such well-known men as: Edgar Knowlton — Electrical Engineer, General Electric Co.; J. Lester Woodbridge, E.D., and M.E. Child, Engineer, Electric Storage Battery Co.; O. J. Bushnell — Commonwealth Edison Co.; S. A. Fletcher — Electrical Engineer, Alabama Power Co., and S. H. MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book, "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

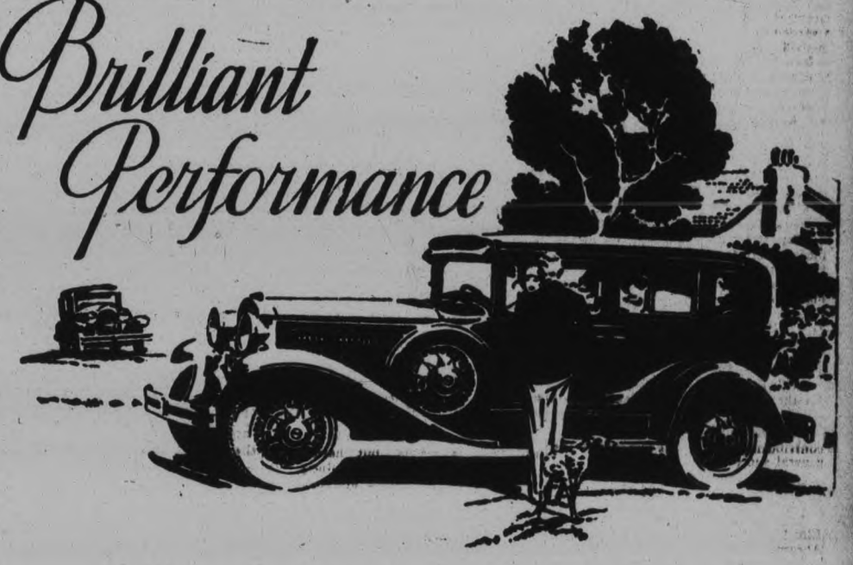
Brilliant Performance



▲▲▲ A noteworthy feature of these low-priced Sixes and Eights ▲▲▲

The brilliant performance of the Willys Sixes and Eights must be experienced to be believed!

Speed?—well over 70 miles an hour. Pick-up?—48 miles an hour in second gear. Comfort?—four two-way hydraulic shock eliminators, extra long springs, oversize balloon tires. Economy?—unusual mileage per gallon of gasoline, especially at modern cruising speeds of 35 to 45 miles per hour. Safety?—internal 4-wheel brakes, fully enclosed.

Faultless taste characterizes every detail of body design, color harmony and interior appointment of these two medium motor cars. The lines of the Willys Six are smart and dashing. The lines of the Willys Eight are more dignified—but gracefully express limitless power.

The Willys Six and Eight are now on display. Their merits are for your own proving—accept a demonstration. Willys Six Prices: Coach $935; Coupe and Roadster (with rumble seats) $935; Sedan $1020; De Luxe Sedan (wire wheels) $1120.

Willys Eight Prices: Sedan $1495; Sedan and four-passenger Coupe, wire wheel equipment, $1560. All prices f.o.b. factory, Toronto, taxes extra.

The Improved Whippet

The low cost of upkeep, gasoline economy and remarkable performance of the Whippet, combined with its many recent improvements in appearance and in its mechanical features, make it the greatest dollar for dollar value on the market today. Prices range from $620 to $760.

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

WHY NOT ESTABLISH EGG ROUTE AND REAP ITS EXTRA PROFITS

Farm page—
Owner of Large Flock Can Offer at Least Three Advantages.

BE SURE OF SUPPLY

Every owner of a fair sized poultry flock should either belong to a co-operative marketing association or be interested in the story of Ben Webster. Ben is a hustling likeable young chap who purchased a run-down farm, stocked it with chickens, and is now attempting to make it pay by establishing a "direct to the user" egg business. Of couse, he'll make a go of it for the story runs true to the old Horatio Alger "work and win" formula. Nevertheless, if Ben were a real flesh and blood egg farmer, I am quite sure he would get there just the same.

I have observed a number of actual parallels to the popular Ben Webster story. None of them encountered such trials as Ben has had to overcome, but without exception, they found the egg route a profitable venture. And why not? If you take your eggs in one lot to one of the egg buyers or to some retail dealer, you know they are going to be resold at a profit of several cents a dozen over what you received for them. You can not only have that profit for your own but can actually demand a premium of from three to five cents a dozen over current store prices as a rule. It is being done by many "egg farmers" in various parts of the country and there is no reason why the plan will not work anywhere.

You can offer your customers at least three advantages over the ordinary farm run of eggs such as they usually get at grocery stores. First, you can guarantee that your eggs are infertile as no roosters are kept with your laying flock, hence your eggs will keep fresh much longer. Second, you can assure them that eggs are gathered twice a day so they are sure to be perfectly fresh. The third advantage is that you can keep your hens penned up so that there is no doubt about when eggs were laid. Eggs collected from haylofts or here and there about a farm may have been laid recently or they may not.

Let Them Try Store Eggs

Should any patron object to paying your price, provided, of course that it is not out of reason, you may safely offer to let them try store eggs for a while. As a rule, your willingness to have them make this comparison will overcome their objections right then and there. Eggs produced under the conditions outlined above are bound to be better than those purchased through stores.

Before starting a business of this kind, be sure you have sufficient hens to make sure of having a year 'round supply of eggs for your year 'round customers. Not to have a constant supply at all times for your regular trade will hurt your business very much.

In addition to the egg business with its very acceptable extra profit feature, there are also dressed fowls to be reckoned with. They too will bring you a much higher price if sold over your route than if marketed in the usual manner. Here again, the assurance of a fresh product makes your offering more acceptable than that of the ordinary retailer. You kill and dress fowls just before you start out to deliver them so they are sure to be in prime condition when delivered.

You have a very good medium for disposing of your extra cockerels and cull female stock and you do so at a profit considerably in excess of what you would realize by any other means. Just how much the increase will be depends on a number of conditions. I should consider it a conservative estimate, however, to say that as prices are at present, dressed birds sold in this way should bring you twenty-five to thirty-five cents more each than if sold in any other way.

It is therefore quite easy to see that, even though the egg route does entail more work than simply taking the week's collection to some retail dealer, the extra profit is more than likely to be worth the effort necessary to get it.

It would be an unusual community where plenty of customers could not be found. The chances are that a little investigation will reveal plenty of potential customers who will be glad to have you serve them. You may not be able to dispose of your entire output on your route at first, but by consistently offering a better service than others and a superior product, you will gradually build up a thriving business of satisfactory proportions.

3 NEW PARALYSES SASES IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6— Three new cases of paralysis were reported to the city department of public health this morning, making a total of 17 for the month. Dr. Gordon P Jackson, M. O. H. stated that an analysis of the cases showed that there were 11 cases in three families. The chill in the morning air is welcomed by Dr. Jackson who expects to see the disease disappear with the advent of cold air.

Co-operative societies are being formed in India to buy tractors to do the plowing for the members.

Cover Raspberry Canes to Cut Loss

Much of the annual winter loss to raspberry plants can be avoided by proper care in protecting them from frost, Horticultural experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture advise bending the canes over and covering them with sufficient earth to hold them down. As a two-man job this is easily and quickly done at little labor cost. While one gathers the canes and bends them gently to the ground with a fork the other applies sufficient earth to hold them firmly to the ground. On the prairies the best results are obtained when the canes are entirely covered with soil; most of this type of covering can be done by horse labor—hence the desirability of having rows about eight feet apart.

NEW APPLE CARTON IS VERY ATTRACTIVE

Fruit May Now Be Bought as Conveniently as Eggs.

A good deal of interest is being shown in the new apple carton displayed at the exhibit of the Dominion fruit branch in the Government building at the big Toronto fair. This is the first time the new handy package has been on display, and if the favorable comments heard at the booth are any criterion it is bound to prove popular.

Apples can now be bought by as conveniently as eggs, and with quality safeguarded by federal inspection. From fifteen to twenty fancy specimens are packed in the carton, which is a real convenience to the buyer.

For the first time, also, the new system of packing apples by size is shown. These are packed under the two new grades, No. 1 and domestic. All sound, hand-picked specimens, well colored and packed with a view to uniformity in size within the package. The container shows not only the grade but the size of apples packed as well. It should do a lot to reestablish confidence in the quality of Canadian fruit whether packed for domestic use or for sale in the export market.

HOLSTEIN SOLD IN U. S.

Fred Miller, South Argyle, N. Y. has just purchased four head of pure bred Holstein cows from David Buchanan of Norwood, Ont., and another from D. H. Asterhout, Frankford, Ont. The cattle a well bred lot of heavy producing cows will be shipped to his farm in the States immediately.

CROP ROTATION ADDS FERTILITY; GREATER YIELDS

Need for Definite System on Farms More Apparent.

USE LARGE FIELDS

Cropping Plan Depends on Use of Crops, Climate, Type of Soil.

In any new section of country it takes considerable time before the settlers are in a position to practice a definite system of rotation of crops. As the country develops, however, and larger areas are brought under cultivation, the need for such a system becomes more and more apparent.

Systematic crop rotations assist materially in building up and maintaining the fertility of the soil. This added fertility gives greater yields and automatically lowers the cost of production.

A fair representation of each of the various crops ordinarily grown on the average farm gives a more even distribution of labour throughout the growing season. Weeds are more easily kept under control and the damage resulting from insects and fungus diseases is often materially reduced by a proper alteration and sequence of the different crops grown.

The adoption and establishment of a suitable rotation involves no additional expense. It merely means the following out of a definite cropping plan which arranges that certain crops be grown after one another in suitable order, depending on certain circumstances such as, the kind of soil, the climate and the intended use of the various crops.

On certain farms it might be advisable to have two distinct rotations. In such cases a short rotation such as hoed crops, grain and two years hay could be located near the buildings while a longer rotation such as oats, barley, three years hay and one year of pasture might serve best on the more distant fields.

Other things being equal large fields are preferable to small ones, for the reason that there is less fencing and less ground for weed infestation along the fences. Large fields also permit the use of wide machinery to better advantage.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, quite a number of rotations have been established, including three-year, four-year, five-year and six-year rotations. These include most of the more commonly grown farm crops such as wheat, oats, barley, sunflowers, O. P. V., potatoes, sweet clover and various mixtures of alfalfa, red clover, alsike clover and timothy.

For anyone contemplating the establishment of crop rotations on their own farm, a day spent looking over those in use at Kapuskasing should prove of value, or further information can be obtained by writing the Superintendent.

Always OVER THE TOP
With Your Work

POWER and traction enough to pull a plow or any other machine over any hill you can work with a team — or through soil that is hard and dry. Light footed enough to work over the low spots if you get too much rain. Strength and stamina enough to last for years under hard usage. All-round ability enough to get you "over the top" with your work, no matter what the obstacles may be.

That's the ideal combination of virtues you would like in your tractor, isn't it? Then why be satisfied with less? "Caterpillar" gives you exactly that — made possible only by the engineering feat of carrying a set of long wide tracks, laying them down, rolling over them, and picking them up again behind.

"Caterpillar" gives you more than that—gives you an acre, or a hundred acres, of plowing or cultivating at the lowest cost for fuel and repairs. For the same reason — it always travels on a hard, smooth track — no sinking or slipping — a full 80% of developed power delivered at the draw-bar.

We carry "Caterpillars" in five sizes — and a full line of parts. Come in and see them—or write for full information. We can't tell half the story here. 78

LIVE BUGS AT EX ATTRACT CROWDS

Best Way to Combat Mosquitoes is Eliminate Breeding Places.

USE PRETROLATUM OIL

Mosquitoes are attracting a lot of attention in the north wing of the Government building at the C.N.E., in Toronto, this week—but they're quite harmless, they are in a glass cage.

The most effective wa. of eliminating the mosquito menace is by doing away with the natural b.eeding places which abound in every community. This is best done through municipal action, the Dominion entymologists advise, first through the proper drainage of marsh and swampy areas and where this is not practicable spraying breeding places with pretrolatum oils. In the home, adequate screen protection with the use of a good fly spray helps eliminate the pest. Care should also be taken to see that there are no barrels or other containers of stagnant water in which mosquitoes can breed.

Among the natural aids in eliminating the mosquito water plants, newts, and the nymphs of the damsel and dragon fly.

"Just look at the bugs," is the predominant ejaculation which greets the visitor to the interesting animated exhibit of the Dominion entymological branch. And bugs there are, lots of them.

Most people think of agriculture in respect to its relation to the farm. Entymology is one form of activity carried out by the Dominion Department of Agriculture which helps the urban as well as the rural dweller.

Dominion entymologists are constantly on the alert to help in the control of outbreaks of insect pests whether of forest, field or home; and an endless stream of people attest to the interest and practical utility of the display being presented this year.

OATS YIELD 69 BUSHELS TO ACRE

Sheaf From W. T. Barrie's Farm at Norwood Wins First at C. N. E.

SEED TAKES LAURELS.

From a ten-acre field, Mr. W. G. Barrie of Norwood recently threshed registered banner oats which yielded by weight 69 bushels to the acre. A sheaf from this field won first prize at the National Exhibition at Toronto this year. Two farmers who bought seed oats from Mr. Barrie won first prize on a bushel of threshed oats at the Toronto Exhibition, and first in the East Peterborough field crop competition respectively.

FEED GRANITE GRIT REGULAR IN HEN'S DIET

Experts Find Limestone Grit is Very Unsatisfactory.

TRY VINEGAR TEST

Grit's Purpose is to Give Hens Something to Aid in Pulverizing Food.

There has been a great change in ideas as to the kind of grit to give hens.

About five years ago we were so enthusiastic about the discovery of the sunlight factor and its importance in poultry nutrition that we lost sight of the real functioning of grit and fed grit primarily for the purpose of supplying additional lime; consequently the pure forms of limestone grit became very popular.

Limestone is soluble in even a weak acid and since the digestive juices are acid a limestone grit does not function as grit except for a few hours. Birds fed a limestone are likely to have dried grass and other fibrous material pass through the digestive tract without being pulverized and thus cause injuries to the tissues of the intestinal wall. This may result in the birds becoming crop-bound.

The real purpose of grit in the ration is to give the birds something that will help them pulverize their feed. The hen doesn't have teeth. It is obvious then that the harder the grit and the more insoluble a grit the better it will serve its purpose.

Poultrymen are begining to realize their mistake and today on many poultry farms you will find limestone grit being replaced by granite grit. If you are not sure of the kind of grit you are feeding put a few pieces of it in a glass of vinegar. If small bubbles keep rising from the stones after the first few minutes it is soluble in acid and should not be used as grit material.

To make sure that the birds are getting the necessary amount of grit sprinkle some over the mash each day to insure proper digestion and assimilation of their feed.

FIRE RAZES BARN

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 5.—Fire late last night destroyed the barn and poultry house on the farm of Cecil Gibbs, Mornington township, occasioning heavy losses. Ten loads of hay and four loads of barley were consumed, but all the livestock was saved. The origin of the fire has not yet been determined.

CULL POTATOES PROVE BETTER THAN SWEDE TURNIPS FOR STEERS

Practise Offers Profitable Market for By-Product of Seed Potatoes.

40 ANIMALS USED IN TEST

For the past several seasons, at the Experimental Station, Charlottetown, P. E. Island, comparisons have been made between the relative merits of cull potatoes and swede turnips as succulent feeds for short-keep steers. The animals employed were grade steers, purchased on the open market, and would class as medium feeders. The average weight per steer at the beginning of the test was 846 pounds, and the average length of feed period for the three feeding seasons, 1926-27, 1927-28, and 1928-29 was 103 days. The animals were dehorned, and fed in roomy box-stalls, four steers to a pen. The quantity of feed weighed into each pen was for four animals, and it is quite probable the larger or more aggressive animals obtained more than their share. In making the original selection the division was made so that there might be the greatest possible uniformity between lots, both in quality and in weight.

All pens, including check lots, received a basal ration of roughage, in the form of mixed hay, and a grain mixture composed of crushed oats, bran, linseed oil meal, etc. All pens, except checks, were fed either turnips or potatoes in varying amounts. Rather than go into detail as to the different system of feeding followed, it will be sufficient to give a summary of the work.

Forty animals in all were fed an average of 2,346 pounds of turnips per steer, and made an average gain of 224 pounds. Sixteen steers receiving an average of 2,288 pounds of potatoes made an average gain of 238 pounds, while twelve steers receiving no roots or potatoes made an average gain of 172 pounds. It will be noted that the gains made by steers receiving either roots or potatoes did not differ very widely but both were considerably above the gain made by steers used as checks.

Figuring on the basis of gain in weight made for the amount of roots fed, as noted above, we find that 4,512 pounds of turnips fed produced 100 pounds of gain over the check pen. For each 3,467 pounds of potatoes, 100 pounds increase in gain over check was produced.

Increase in weight, however, is not the only factor entering into the profitable feeding of steers. We must also take into consideration the quality of the finished product.

The steers used in these experiments were offered singly to the highest bidder on the open market. It seems fair to assume, therefore, that the selling price fairly represented the quality of the articles sold. From this standpoint we find that the forty steers receiving turnips made an average gain (over original cost plus cost of feed) of $49.54, or $12.23 greater gain than that made by the check pens. The sixteen steers receiving potatoes made a gain of $56.89, or $19.58 more than the twelve check steers, which made an average gain of $37.31 each. We find, therefore, that for each 2,000 pounds of turnips fed there is an increased gain over the check lots of $16.42. This is a return of slightly better than twenty six cents per bushel. For each 2,000 pounds of potatoes fed there is an increase in gain over check lots of $17.12. This is equivalent to better than fifty-one cents per bushel for the potatoes so fed.

In concluding, one or two points may be brought out. The rate of feeding roots was not high, being an average of only 22.8 pounds per day per steer for turnips and 22.2 pounds per day per steer for potatoes. In so far as turnips are concerned, this is a smaller amount than is commonly used by most feeders. Using Henry and Morrison's figures for dry matter, that is 10.9 per cent. for turnips and 21.2 per cent. for potatoes, we discover that a greater amount of dry matter was fed to those steers receiving potatoes. It is interesting to note that the returns for dry matter fed are rather close, being $4.78 per cent. for dry matter fed as turnips and $4.04 per cent. for dry matter fed as potatoes.

We feel safe in stating that the practice of feeding either turnips or potatoes to steers is economically sound and is to be recommended. Further, that the feeding of cull potatoes to steers offers an excellent market for this by-product of the seed potato industry, and that in years of low marketability the entire potato crop might be fed with the assurance of at least a fair return.

Hemp Experiments Success in Ontario

Experiments with hemp, designed to prove the feasibility of raising seed in the climate of southern Ontario, have been carried on this year at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Harrow, Ontario. The results have been favorable, reports state, the plants having grown to heights of eight and nine feet.

Hemp plants are male and female, and the male plants are reported to be already withering. In addition to the seed experiments at Harrow, six acres of hemp is being grown for fibre on Pelee Island by four growers. This experiment, too, is under the supervision of the Dominion department.

IT'S WISE TO CHEVROLET CHOOSE A SIX

2,000,000 Six-Cylinder Chevrolets now on the road

SINCE January, 1929, Chevrolet has produced and sold over 2,000,000 six-cylinder automobiles—nearly five times as many as any manufacturer of sixes has ever built in an equal length of time.

Such record-breaking public preference shows how buyers of low-priced cars are demanding the advantages of six-cylinder design. These 2,000,000 people decided on Chevrolet largely because of the following facts:

Chevrolet is Smoother

A six-cylinder engine is smoother, quieter, more flexible—free from annoying vibration—requires less gear-shifting. And Chevrolet gives you a dependable, 50-horsepower, six-cylinder power plant!

More Comfortable, Smarter

Chevrolet is the lowest-priced Six which offers you a rugged full-length chassis with modern semi-elliptic spring suspension—big bodies with form-fitting seats—the style and luxury advantages of Body by Fisher.

Easy to Buy and Own

The Chevrolet Six is priced as low as $635, at the factory. And you will find it costs no more for operation or upkeep than any other car of comparable quality on the road. You may purchase through the G M A C, General Motors' own deferred payment plan. The General Motors Owner Service Policy will safeguard your investment. See your Chevrolet dealer now.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

The following is continued from last Saturday's notes on the Value of Vegetables in Everyday Diet.

"Vegetables vary a great deal in their special food values, usually according to the part of the plant they come from. The "leaf" vegetables like lettuce, spinach, swiss chard, cabbage, asparagus, celery and greens of all kinds are rich in mineral salts. Cauliflower might also be included in this class. Onions, too have this property and tomatoes like many fruits, contain a large proportion of valuable tonic acid. the "root" vegetables are entirely different in composition. The root being the storehouse of food for the plant such vegetables as potatoes, parsnips, carrots, beets and turnips, are rich in either starch or sugar or both. At the same time some of these carrots especially, contain a lot of iron, which is the reason for their being recommended to give color to the complexion and as a remedy for an anaemic condition.

Where the seed of the vegetable is used as in corn, we have a considerable amount of starch and sugar, as well as some protein, since the seed must contain the elements of food necessary for the young plant before it can take nourishment from the ground itself.

There is a certain class of seed vegetables which are always considered by themselves, because they belong to the class of plants called legumes. A leguminous plant has little nodules on its roots through which it gathers nitrogen from the air and stores it in the plant, seeds, stalks, roots and all.

The common leguminous plants in this country are the clovers, beans and peas. Since nitrogen is the chief element in protein this explains why a crop of clover or white beans enriches the soil, and why dried white beans are so rich in protein, that they have been called 'the poor man's meat". The legume vegetables, beans, peas and lentils, contain a fair amount of starch as well as protein and a considerable quantity of lime. But perhaps the two things most important to remember about the food value of vegetables is that the mineral salts and acids which they contain are better tonics and blood purifiers than the most expensive prescriptions to be had at a druggist's and that the coarse fibrous material in the 'leaf and stalk" vegetables will do more to keep the body free of poisonous wastes than any artificial methods known. Spinach contains so much of this fibrous material that it has been called the "broom of the digestive tract."

Knowing the importance of the generous use of vegetables, it is worth while to consider the best methods of cooking and a variety of ways of preparing the common kinds so that the family may not tire of them.

It is also important to "balance" the combination of vegetables at a meal. For example, a starchy vegetable like potatoes might well be used with carrots, cabbage or onions or tomatoes or cauliflower, or brussels sprouts. But imagine a meal of potatoes, macaroni and parsnips. It would be as starchy as it would be tasteless and colorless, especially if the meal were creamed codfish or boiled ham, when potatoes and parsnips are used together, it would be well to have some other vegetable contrasting in both taste and food value, like tomatoes, or cabbage or some other leaf vegetable or to have some brown well-seasoned meat, or to have either the potatoes or the parsnips fried to add both flavor and color to the meal. In fact the simple points of color and flavor in vegetables are better guides to making up their combinations than we might suppose. It might be remembered too, that while cooking makes most vegetables more digestible, the green salad vegetable lose some of their valuable tonic salts in the process of cooking and the more raw vegetable salads we can serve in season the better. Perhaps the finest art of cooking vegetables is to preserve the natural flavor and all the food propetics so far as possible. Valuable mineral matter is often lost by overcooking and the flavor is often killed by a sauce when the vegetable would be better with the simplest dressing of butter and salt and pepper. At the same time it may help to maintain the the family interest in a common vegetable to send it to the table occasionally in a new dress. The common potato, for instance is possibly at its best when it is plain baked with its skin on; but it will be relished none the less of it appears now and then scalloped or beaten to a fluff with egg and milk in what is known as "potato fluff", or even fried in richly browned potatoes cakes or mashed and rebaked in the oven with a sprinkling of grated cheese.

CAVAN.

With so much stress being laid on proper diet, including vitamines, roughage, &c., it was reassuring to reach the address of an eminent British doctor given at the medical conference in Winnipeg recently.

He ridiculed the idea of it, entailing a very great effort to rear healthy children and for adults to live normal healthy lives.

He said in the days when children were allowed to make mud pies and live happy, carefree lives, and their elders lived on plain fare, much of their time being spent in the open air, there was just as much health and happiness as in the present age.

He said good health was very often due to the state of mind.

Where people did not think too much about themselves and their health they were often better.

Children reared simply, both as to food and habits, and having plenty of fresh air and sleep, were usually healthy.

He said not to clutter up the stomach with too much "roughage"; to consult the individual tastes in the matter of food.

If a person felt they wanted certain food, it was usually good for them, and vice versa.

It is really interesting to read such an article, giving opinions of such a learned and experienced doctor along the lines of simple living, happiness and contentment.

It is wearisome to read those tables of calories of food, &c., the mere study of which entails so much work.

At the present time there are so many faddists on food and health.

Many people really make their life a burden, trying to follow elaborate programs of food and living.

This doctor's advice, seems sensible and easy to follow.

Have an interest in life, and in your work. Keep regular hours, eat simple, easily prepared food; do not think too much about yourself and your ailments; cultivate a cheerful, contented state of mind and the minor ailments of life will very likely disappear.

Institutes who have neglected contributing towards the prizes at the Rural School Fairs can still give prizes for the sports when fair day arrives.

The children will enter the contests more willingly and enthusiastically, if the reward is a small coin, with which to buy some treat, rather than a ribbon.

The school fairs are a great benefit to the boys and girls, teaching them to take an interest in growing flowers and vegetables, and looking after the chickens on the farm.

The domestic science contests start them trying to sew and bake at a much earlier age than they would be apt to do, if left to themselves.

One prize won gives a stimulus to their interest, and the next year they want to try again and perhaps try a little harder and practise during the year.

Institutes should in every way encourage and help the rural fairs.

AT WARSAW.

The Fall Conventions will soon be on, and it is well, if possible, to elect the delegates as soon as possible. They usually come about the time of the Winter Fair, so that there is a big reduction in railway fare; also there are boarding houses where bed and breakfast can be obtained quite reasonably. Institutes miss a lot if they fail to send a delegate, but she must be one who will attend the meetings faithfully, take notes and give a full report. The meeting at which the report is to be given should be well attended.

Notices regarding branch reports are already in the hands of presidents and secretaries, and questions are already coming in asking what should be reported, and to whom such reports are to be sent.

The reports should be sent to the District Secretary who was appointed at the district annual. Mrs. Geo. Weller is the District Secretary for East Peterborough. Copies of resolutions any branch may wish to be sent in, should also be sent to the District Secretary on a separate sheet. These should be sent in early, else there is not time to look over them. The reports should contain not merely statistics but any interesting activities and how they were carried out, especially if there were obstacles to overcome. Results and workings of classes held is desired. Programs of the year's work, or topics at meetings, in part or whole, printed, typed or written, are asekd.

One pathetic case is reported, where the little girls were to have a sewing contest, to do the work, and have it exhibited at some meeting, and a prize or prizes given. One delicate wee girlie of about seven years, too weak to go to school, did quite a bit of work, and when she got word the work would not be exhibited until October, she wept, because she felt she would not be here by that time to exhibit her work.

Institutes usually take an interest in hospital work. Apsley Red Cross Outpost Hospital is doing bravely, but in the wards the wash stands are boxes covered with white oilcloth, the work of the nurse and housekeeper. Most of realize these, no matter how carefully handled, are not the most sanitary pieces of furniture in the world, especially for an hospital, and there is a longing for even two plain wash stands, which could be enamelled white, and in there the patients could keep their possessions, and the top would better answer the double purpose of dressing table and wash stand, and easily be kept sanitary.

The nurses' rooms have not all the things most of us have in our rooms, but those young women who undertake the work do it for the pure love of doing good, and wish to see the patient's comfort provided for first, and comfort here means greater safety.

The people do well. They do not beg nor think of it, but if Institutes throughout the county feel able to help a little towards their own county Outpost Hospital, these two pieces of furniture would be welcomed.

The storm was not nearly so heavy in the northern part. Ed. Hamblin's was the farthest north who had the heavy down pour. So far no damage except trees blown down, is reported. On freshly gravelled or earth roads, there are now well washed roads, where previously they were smooth.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

KEEPING THE LIVER ACTIVE.

In getting athletes into good condition the thought behind the trainer is to get the heart and lungs into the best possible shape.

For this purpose plenty of running on track or road is prescribed as this means that with every step taken, the athlete must lift his entire weight off the ground.

Just figure out the pounds, the tons of weight raised by the leg muscles of the body during the running of a quarter, half, one mile, or three to five miles.

In order to supply the blood for all this work the heart must pump harder and faster. And in order that all this blood that is needed is pure before it goes down to the legs, the lungs must breathe harder and faster.

Therefore by the development of heart and lungs—the foundation of strength and endurance is obtained.

But as a matter of fact all the tissues and organs of the body are benefitted by this training.

And among these organs we have that 'king of organs,' the liver.

I have spoken before about the Boston Marathon Race, wherein it was shown by Harvard professors that in the runners who finished nearest the top, and in the best condition physically, the blood was still rich in sugar whereas in those who finished well back and in poor condition the blood sugar was low.

Research men now tell us that when the muscles work hard, and thereby consume a lot of the sugar in the blood, that there forms in the muscles a substance that causes a mobilization of the sugar in the liver, thereby preventing a decrease in the sugar content of the blood, and also preventing a decrease in the sugar recerve in the muscles themselves.

Now what does training or regular exercise do?

It keeps the blood in good condition and with its proper amount of sugar, and the liver itself always alert and active so that it has always available, a sufficient supply of sugar.

There is no sluggishness about the liver of an athlete or other individual who is getting or taking active exercise.

It is often the sluggish liver that takes the fight or the desire for work or exercise out of you.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

YOUTH.

Toil the dust and heat
And the city's voices;
Yet all toil is sweet
When the heart rejoices.

Morn with work ahead
Till the frame is aching
All for roof and bread;
Still a glad awaking!

Urge to know life's sweets
All its songs and laughter
Certain that sore defeats
Must bring triumphs after.

Night and the stars that rise
In promise shining,
To keep rare destinies
For youth's divining.
Youth, and the stars that move
Hearts to the mating;
Youth, and the lips of love
That are somewhere waiting!

OBITUARY

WILLIAM McCOLL

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 6.—William McColl, the fifteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McColl, has been a sufferer for more than three weeks died recently. He leaves to mourn his loss, his parents, three brothers, Charlie, Everett and Clarke, and one sister, Mildred. The funeral service was conducted at the house by Rev. Further Alterations Are Being Made Wallace Block

CAMPBELLFORD, September 6 (Examiner Staff Corrsepondence).—Further alterations are being made to the Wallace Block. To make the whole building uniform, that portion of the coping of the roof on Bridge Street surmounting the Haboco and one other store is being raised to the level of th rest of the building and finished in the same manner. This will give the whole block, which includes six stores on Bridge Street and six stores on Front Street, a uniform appearance and greatly add to the appearance of the corner. The work is in charge of A. McKeel.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

FROM MANY OF THE ADS. which are appearing in our daily paper we learn that peaches are almost at their best, and that they are plentiful, too.

• • • • • • •

I wonder how many of you housewives have seen white peaches?

• • • • • • •

I don't believe I have ever seen them myself, but I am told there is a peculiarly mellow and delicate flavor and texture to white peaches that has a distinct appeal to some persons.

• • • • • • •

Yellow peaches as a variety keep longer without specking which in itself indicates that the yellow peach is a hardier and less delicate fruit.

• • • • • • •

The pink centred white peach has an almost fragile delicacy, but the yellow with its deeper pink toned centre suggests more substance.

• • • • • • •

The soil in some peach-growing centres suits one or the other variety best, which accounts for the variableness in the preference of persons.

• • • • • • •

If you live where white peaches mature better than yellow you naturally choose them, and vice-versa.

• • • • • • •

Cling-stone peaches are supposed to have the finest flavor of all, but their disadvantages outweigh their advantages in most homemakers' minds.

• • • • • • •

The latter peaches are often selected for sweet pickling or for canning when put up whole. They are not desirable for using fresh and ripe in any way for the pulp is too hard to separate from the stones.

• • • • • • •

Here are a few recipes which you might try. The first one will be for Peach cake.

• • • • • • •

Make a sponge cake and bake it in two layers. Slice three-quarters of a cup of ripe peaches for an average size cake. Cut them fine or chop slightly and sugar, prior to baking the cake.

• • • • • • •

When the cake is cold spread one layer with the sugared peaches. Cover with the other layer. Spread the top with whipped cream and circle the edge with peach slices.

• • • • • • •

If the cake is large enough a second small circle of the peach segments can be put in the whipped cream.

• • • • • • •

For peach shortcake, make a short biscuit dough. Bake in a round pan and while hot, cut a circle from the top leaving one inch all about the edge.

• • • • • • •

Pull out some of the inside, enough to form a receptacle for sugared cut peaches. Spread the inside of this shortcake lightly with butter before putting in the peaches.

• • • • • • •

Cover with the circle of crust previously removed. Spread with whipped cream, dot with peach slices and serve hot.

• • • • • • •

For Peach Frappe, chop a cup of peach pulp and mix with sugar until well sweetened. Mix with one tablespoon of powdered gelatine dissolved in one tablespoon cold water, and melted over hot water.

• • • • • • •

Let stand until beginning to harden. Whip one cup of rich cream and fold peaches and cream together. Pour into a mould and set on the ice. Unfold and serve when thoroughly chilled.

rendered by Mrs. I. Connell and Miss L. Race. During the evening, each guest was given a stick of gum and a toothpick with which they were to mould an object. Needless to say there was no lack of variety when they were collected by the hostess. Later the wedding march was played and the bride-to-be, carrying a huge bouquet of gladiolis led the way to the dining room, where a table of pretty gifts awaited her.

The singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow, followed by the serving of dainty refreshments brought the evening to a close.

WAS RUN DOWN AND VERY WEAK

Thin, Weak Children Need Baby's Own Tablets.

Mrs. Jas. A. Haughn, Bridgewater, N.S., writes: "I was badly run down and very weak. So much so I could scarcely do my housework. My nerves were affected; my digestion poor; I had continual headaches and could not get a restful night's sleep. Different remedies failed to be of benefit and I was growing discouraged. One day, however, I saw an advertisement of a case similar to mine which had been relieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so I decided to try them. A few weeks' use of the Pills fully restored my health and now my household duties are a pleasure instead of a torture."

Mrs. Haughn's whole trouble was that she had too little blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were of aid to her because they renewed and purified her blood and that good blood promoted good health, for where good blood abounds disease cannot exist.

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OMEMEE, Sept. 6. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Miss Lila Parsons on Thursday evening where a few friends gathered to do honor to Miss Katie Weir, a popular young lady whose marriage takes place on Saturday. Humorous and appropriate readings were given by Misses Madeleine Gray and Florence Rutherford. Piano selections were

THE REASON WHY

Too Little Blood the Trouble.

Malnutrition, or inability to derive nourishment from food, is a common trouble with little children and is entirely due to stomach and bowel weakness. Another cause of loss of flesh and sleep is worms.

To correct stomach and bowel troubles and thus banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms and allay the pain which accompanies the cutting of teeth is what Baby's Own Tablets were designed for. They never fail to be of aid and can be given with safety to the youngest babe.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sunday Night Suppers Prepared on Saturday

BY EDWINA NOLAN
Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

SUNDAY night suppers can be tedious affairs or they can be happy and gay and served without fuss. The secret, of course, is preparing them in advance.

The simplest of menus is the one that men like the best, as for instance:

Toasted Mushroom Sandwiches
Chicken and Cucumber Salad with Potato Chips
Chocolate Cream Cup Cakes
Coffee

The mushroom sandwiches are made on Saturday afternoon, folded in a damp towel and put into the electric refrigerator, where they keep in perfect condition until Sunday evening. The lettuce is washed and put into the vegetable pan in the refrigerator to crisp. The mayonnaise is made and, with the cucumbers and an eight-ounce jar of chicken, put into the refrigerator. Cup cakes should be made on Saturday morning.

The filling for the toasted mushroom sandwiches: 1 pound mushrooms, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Peel the mushrooms, remove stems and scrape them. Chop mushrooms and stems fine, melt butter in frying pan and add finely chopped mushrooms. Saute slowly until mushrooms are golden brown. Then dredge with flour and salt, stir flour rapidly into mushrooms and cook until mixture thickens. Cool and use as sandwich spread. It will keep satisfactorily for two weeks or more in the electric refrigerator if not all used for the Sunday evening supper. Other menus are as easily arranged.

This plan leaves for the late Sunday afternoon only the combining of the chicken and cucumber salad. The sandwiches may be toasted on a grill at the table and the coffee made in the percolator.

WEDDING BELLS

STANDING—MARSH.

The wedding took place at half-past one o'clock this afternoon, at Knox United Chuch, of Bertha Whitfield Marsh, second daughter of Mrs. Wesley Whitfield and the late Mr. Whitfield of this city, and William T. Standing of New York City. The Rev. W. McDonald, B.D., officiated.

Attendants were Miss Beatrice Whitfield, sister of the bride, and Donald Deyell.

After the ceremony, dainty buffet refreshments were served at the home of the bride's mother. Later, Mr. Standing and his bride left for Montreal and Quebec, by way of the St. Lawrence. They will reside in New York City.

STOCK—MAHOOD

(Examiner Correspondence)

OMEMEE, Sept. 6.—The manse of Riverdale Presbyterian Church was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday when Elva Ruth, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mahood of Reaboro, Ont., was united in marriage to Leslie G. Stock, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stock, J. P., of Toronto. The Rev. A. Bright officiated. The bride wore a dainty frock of printed chiffon with black velvet hat, and carried a bouquet of mauve and pink sweet peas and baby's breath. She was attended by Miss Hazel Shurmer, who wore a green georgette frock with beige hat and shoes and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and baby's breath. Mr. Frederick Coulston supported the groom. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Stock left for Reaboro to spend a short honeymoon with the bride's parents, the bride travelling in a grey ensemble with hat to match. On their return they will reside on Riverdale Ave., Toronto.

GRANT--WHITE.

At three o'clock this afternoon the wedding took place at the parsonage of the Park street Baptist church, of Mabel Ethel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. White, Young street, and David Grant, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Grant, Water street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. L. Harton.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a very pretty gown of rose beige georgette, with strass trimming. Her silk stitched hat was in harmonizing different tones and she wore beige kid slippers and matching hose and gloves, with a fox fur scarf and a pendant, the gift of the bridegroom. Her corsage bouquet was of roses.

Attendants were Miss Ena Batley and Chester Grant, brother of the bridegroom. The former wore an ensemble of autumn brown crepe with eggshell satin blouse, brown felt hat, two-tone brown pumps, matching accessories, and corsage of roses.

After the ceremony Mr. Grant and his bride left by motor for a fortnight's honeymoon in Toronto, Hamilton and Windsor, the bride donning a coat of travel tweed with collar of Rice Lake muskrat, for the journey. On their return they will reside at 541 Gilmour street.

Many handsome gifts were received from a large circle of friends. The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a sterling silver compact, and to the best man a pair of cuff links

ANDERSON—CORNELL.

OMEMEE, September 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — A charming outdoor wedding took place on Saturday, August 30, at Maple Lodge, Omemee, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram E. Cornell, when their younger daughter, Ruth Margaret, was married to Dr. Ernest J. Anderson, of Saginaw, Mich., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anderson, of Campbellford, Ont. The ceremony took place under an arch of evergreens, decorated with white bells and masses of sweet peas and gladioli, and was performed by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, pastor of Trinity United Church, Omemee. The bride looked lovely in a gown of white chiffon velvet, made very long on princess lines. Her veil of hand-embroidered net was arranged in cap style and caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses and lily of he valley. Miss Annie Martin of Fenelon Falls, as bridesmaid, wore a frock of orchid made in period style, with hat of eggshell horsehair, and orchid shoes. She carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas and Ophelia roses. Little Miss Jean Wansbrough, niece of he bride, made a dainty flower girl, wearing a dress of shell pink crepe, and carrying a basket of sweet peas and lily of the valley. Dr. J. Cramer, of Woodville, supported the groom.

Miss Doris Sandy placed the wedding march and Miss Margaret Werry sang during the signing of the register.

The bride's mother was attired in a gown of French blue flat crepe and black hat and Mrs. Anderson wore a dress of black georgette with touches of yellow. Both wore matching corsages of sweet peas and roses.

Following the wedding dinner served to about seventy guests, Dr. and Mrs Anderson left on a motor trip to Timagami. The bride travelled in a smart brown ensemble with small French hat to match. On their return they will make their home in Saginaw, Mich.

Fellow workmen had to use pickaxes in rescuing M. Benson, who had been partially buried at Dungannon, Ireland, by a heavy fall of clay which solidified before he was found.

PAIR FOUND SHOT IN LONELY CABIN

Police Probe Peace River Murder Committed 3 Weeks Ago.

DISCOVERED THIS WEEK.

VICTORIA, Sept. 6. — Provincial Police are investigating what is believed to be the double murder of Mr. and Mrs. Babchuck, Polish settlers, in their lonely cabin on the North Pine River, north of Fort St. John, in the Peace River district.

The victims had been shot to death according to meagre reports from Provincial Constable Devlin at Fort St. John, who told of finding the two bodies. Further investigation by Sergeant Greenwood, in charge of the district, followed, and led to the belief that the crime was committed three weeks ago. The bodies remained undiscovered until early this week.

PAIN so easily relieved
How to treat Headache Neuralgia Neuritis or check a Cold

WHY are some women so patient with pain? Shopping with a head that throbs. Working when they ache all over. Sometimes it's hours before they take Aspirin and get relief! Most men take these tablets the moment that some sudden ache or pain threatens their comfort and so should you. Aspirin is perfectly harmless; it cannot depress the heart. The tablets stamped Bayer are always genuine Aspirin; always the same, always safe. So it isn't sensible to suffer with a headache, a cold, neuralgic pains, or anything else that these tablets relieve almost as soon as swallowed. Buy by the bottle and save money. Any drugstore has the 100-tablet size.

C.G.E. Eliminates Point Anne in Play-Offs

BARRAGE OF HITS DROVE POINTER TO THE SHOWERS

Victory Turns Another Big Lap in Pennant Race For Winners.

MEET OSHAWA NEXT.

C.G.E. Leave Nothing to Chance and Play Sparkling Ball.

(By Ted Outram)

The C.G.E. ball team turned another big lap in their race for the Intermediate O.B.A.A. championship at Belleville yesterday, defeating Point Anne in the third and deciding game of the series, 7 runs to 3.

The Electrics left nothing to chance yesterday. They went out on wind-swept diamond amid eddies of dust and played a heads-up winning brand of baseball all the way. Flourishing a smart fielding defence that smothered the Point Anne hitters effectually, they swung their bats with sure purpose to collect ten hits.

In their pursuit of the Ontario title the winners will next meet the Oshawa Aarabs, conquerors of the local Raybestos and the Toronto champions. The first game in this series has been set for next Wednesday, but whether here or in the Motor City has not yet been decided.

Point Anne chose to pin their hopes of victory yesterday on the shoulders of Tom Pointer, their youthful left-hand box artist. "Hoot" Gibson was kept as the ace in the hole in case of emergency. That emergency, grim and dire, arose in the fifth innings, to the thud of horseshide against hickory. The Electrics were slamming Pointer's offerings to the far winds. The mighty Gibson was rushed to the hilltop, but when the smoke had cleared it was found the C.G.E. had chased four runs across in that single frame, to boost their score to six.

Up until that half-way mark Pointer had shown great form. He had plenty of zipp to his fast one and his hooks were breaking smartly. Two errors in the first innings had presented the C.G.E. with a run, although Pointer had struck out three and not allowed a hit. Not until the fourth did the winners get a hit and in that same frame they scored another run.

Then the fifth came along and the Electrics dropped on the port-sided lad like the proverbial ton. Four hits in succession, one a double, were cracked out and three runs had pranced in, when Gibson answered the call. Another hit brought another run, a double play finally dropping the curtain on the C.G.E.'s big effort.

After that the contest took on a distinctly Electric flavour, although Point Anne did manage to score two in their half of the fifth, to add to their single counter obtained in the opening frame. Some inside baseball by Shiner Johnston in the seventh allowed Swanston to score the winner's other run.

Vin Utronki went the whole route for the winners, and backed by the smart defensive work of his mates he was never in trouble until the ninth. After two were out in the final spasm, he walked two men and hit another to fill the bases, but a high pop by "Sonny" Green, the bad man of the Point Anne stickers, was snared by Red Hollingsworth to remove the peril.

Again the work of Ash at first base was a bright spot in the smooth play of the winners. "Abbie" Rose, feeling far from the pink of health, turned in a great game at second, his one error in eight chances coming as a result of over-anxiety to execute a double play. Utronki also fielded his position well.

Going into features of the play, that cheap run of the Electrics in the first innings looms up. Hatton had fanned, when Red Hollingsworth got a life on Sonny Green's error of his roller. Red Stole second and scored when Kerr threw wild to first on Rose's grounder. Swanston and Ash both faded on Pointer's speed.

In Point Anne's half of the opener, Buck rolled out to Rose, and then Green smote the apple for [illegible] into deep centre. He scored on Bennett's sacrifice fly to Beavis. Goyer was tossed out by Utronki.

It was all Rose in Point Anne's half. "Abbie" took Gaulin's grounder for the first out. M. Green singled, but Rose doubled him off first on Kerr's fly.

Pointer jammed two walks into the third with but one out, but the C.G.E. could not get a hit. Ash opened the fourth with a single and stole second, going to third when the throw hit him. Utronki flew out, but Johnston grounded to short to make first and score Ash. Beavis popped foul to the catcher and Johnston was out at second on Len Hollingsworth's roller to first.

Hatton had struck out in the fifth when the Electrics unloosed the hitting avalanche. Red Hollingsworth started it with a single into centre. Rose dropped a single into right. Hollingsworth landing on third. Swanston crossed the infield, laying down a perfect bunt and all were safe, Hollingsworth scoring. Ash doubled into centre, to score Rose and Swanston. Pointer gave way to Gibson. Utronki singled to score Ash. Johnston rolled to short into a double play.

Two runs were Point Anne's portion in the same innings. With Kerr out, Hutchings singled back of second. Gibson was safe when Rose erred on his grounder. Buck raised a foul fly to Ash, and Hutchings scored. Sonny Green doubled to score Gibson. Bennett's fly was taken by Beavis.

In the seventh, Swanston opened with a single. Ash flew into left, and Utronki rolled to second, Swanston making second on the play. Johnston singled into left, but ran between first and second until put out, meanwhile allowing Swanston to score from third.

The rest of the game passed swiftly until the ninth when Utronki ran into such difficulty in trying to get the last man out.

MARTIAL LAW FOLLOWS STRIKE.

RENTERIA, Spain, Sept. 5 (C.P.).—Virtual martial law was declared here to-day, and all business houses closed after rioting which broke out in the course of a general strike unexpectedly proclaimed at noon.

More than a hundred civil guards were patrolling the streets. Many rifle shots were fired in the air to frighten the mob. Many were injured, including some women, but no deaths had been reported early this afternoon.

RED WINGS AWAY FOR THIRD FLAG BY ROYAL DEFEAT

Second Straight Win By Rochester Practically Eliminates Montreal.

NEWARK DEFEATS READING.

Leafs Triumph Over Bisons 8-7 on Daring Play in Tenth.

It begins to appear that seven clubs in the International League are embarked in a hopeless chase after the high-flying Redwings or Rochester.

There still is a chance that the Redwings can be overhauled before the season ends in a little more than two weeks but it is just about a mathematical possibility, and that's all.

Rochester to-day led the second place Baltimore Orioles by six and one-half games and third place Montreal by seven and a half, and only a serious slump by the leaders would permit either of the latter clubs to draw within striking distance.

Tex Carleton lasted less than two innings against the Royals but the Canadians could do little with Lefty Irvin thereafter. The Redwings smacked Herb Thormahlen for four runs in the first inning and nicked him for single runs in four later innings to win without trouble. Pepper led the Rochester attack with three hits, including a pair of doubles.

Home runs by Stroner, Barton and Sand accounted for six runs as Baltimore trounced Jersey City, 8-4. The Skeeters outhit the Orioles 10 to 9, but Baltimore's collection was used to better advantage. Jim Weaver lasted six innings for the Orioles, giving up eight hits and four runs, but Monte Weaver blanked the Skeeters for the last three innings with two hits.

John Allen went the route for Jersey City and struck out ten men.

Leafs win in Tenth.

The Bufffalo Bisons slugged Johnny Prudhomme for six runs in the eighth and ninth to tie the score with the Toronto Maple Leafs, only to lose out in the first extra inning 8-1. Richardson of the Leafs, singled to start the tenth, went to second on a sacrifice and scored from there when Burke forced Jose Harris who had walked.

Newark clubbed out an 11-7 victory over Reading in a night game. The Bears clouted three Reading pitchers for 13 hits, including a home run by Jordan and triples by Jordan, James and Stahlman. Leo Mangum pitched effectively for six innings but was driven out of the box in the seventh inning when Reading rallied for three runs, within two of a tie. Myles Thomas finished up without much additional trouble.

Grandmothers Parade At Warkworth Society

WARKWORTH, Sept. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular meeting of the Percy Women's Institute was held Wednesday afternon at the home of Mrs. Lorne Hutchinson. Over sixty ladies were present. The interesting feature of the program was the grandmothers' parade. Over twenty took part each being attired in old fashioned costume There was also an interesting contest of photos of each grandmother present. Mrs. James A. Armstrong was the winner of the prize.

INDIANS DOWN WHITE SOX 6-1 ATHLETICS WIN

World's Champion Crew Take Third Game in Row From Boston.

Cubs Lose at Last Minute to Pirates By 8 to 7—Giants Lose Out.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Sports Writer.)

While fans from half the National League still are all steamed up over the chances their teams have of winning the pennant, the principal worry of the followers of the Philadelphia Athletics now is whether they can find places in Shibe Park when the A's meet whoever may become the champion of the senior circuit in the world's series.

The Athletics have eliminated all but two rivals from even a mathematical chance of taking the American League flag and the pair that still is in the running, Washington and New York, is left with but few hopes of overtaking the world's champions. The Senators remain 6½ games behind the Athletics despite all their efforts, while the Yankees, falling back rapidly during their series with Washington, now are 15 games away from first place.

Indians Down White Sox.

Cleveland fell by the wayside yesterday although the Indians won their seventh game in succession, defeating the Chicago White Sox 6-1. Philadelphia also won a game and the Indians were left 18 games behind and with 17 to play for each team. In such a situation even the fine pitching Pete Jablonowski displayed yesterday was of little use. Jablonowski held the Sox to four hits and missed a shutout only because of a Cleveland error. The Indians made 13 hits off Red Faber and Garland Braxton.

Although they lost their eighth straight game, the Boston Red Sox again gave some trouble to the League leading Athletics. In a mound duel between Jack Russell and George Earnshaw, they were only one run behind up to the eighth inning when the A's scored three runs, two on Al Simmons' 34th homer.

Yankees Lose.

Washington gained nothing by slamming the Yankees around for 15 hits to defeat them for the 17th time in 21 games this season by a 14 to 5 count. Al Crowder pitched a great game for seven innings, then let up just in time to allow Babe Ruth to resume home run hitting operations after a lapse.

Detroit and St. Louis had a day of idleness as did four of the National League clubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals profited by this day of rest, going into second place in the National League, four games behind Chicago, without making an effort as the Cubs and New York Giants both played and lost.

Braves Trounce Giants.

New York dropped to third as the Boston Braves hung a third straight defeat on the Giants 6 to 4. Bruce Cunningham had only one bad inning as he limited Giants to seven hits, and he would have escaped that but for an error by Rollings. The Braves hammered away and Carl Hubbell tied the score in the third inning and went ahead in the fifth with a final three run burst.

Pirates Victors Over Cubs.

The Cubs led the Pirates almost to the final moment, then went down 8 to 7 under a final Buccaneer rush. Trailing 7-1 at the end of the sixth, Pittsburg scored three runs in each of the next two frames to drive Pat Malone from the mound and tie the score. In the ninth, Paul Waner came up after one man was out and clouted a home run over the right field stands to win the game.

Scott's Wee Golf Course to Have Official Start With Music in Attendance.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 6 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—A grand official opening of Scott's Wee Golf Course is being planned for Monday, when arrangements are being made for the band of the Northumberland Regiment to dispense music while the lovers of the mashie do their stuff.

The course is in first-class shape, and since it was opened for play a few days ago the sport is becoming very popular. Old and young of both sexes can be seen wielding the stick, and every day it is attracting more attention.

In connection with the course, Dr. H. T. Scott is running a name suggestion contest open to all who play. A prize will be given to the one who suggests the name chosen.

If weather conditions are unfavorable on Monday ,the first fine day after that will be used for the event.

More than 80 branch plants of American manufacturers have been erected in Germany.

Margaret Ravior of Philadelphia, navigated her way in the recent Canadian National Exhibition Marathon swim to fame and $5,000. Before the big splash the wise guys picked the Philadelphia mermaid to be in the money, but not to win, hence her unexpected victory was somewhat of an upset. However, her win was popular, even if the brilliant Miss Ethel McCarry of Buffalo furnished part of the "misery" of the "Big Splash." Without doubt she was the fastest swimmer in the race, but her stamina wasn't enough to stand the killing pace set in the later stages. When passed by the ultimate winner and Mrs. Ruth Towers Corson, in second place, went her status as the premier swimmer of the continent. When asked after her noteworthy feat as to whether she would continue winning Marathon swims, Miss Ravior's answer was, "Once is enough. I never want to swim ten miles again." Her time was seven minutes slower than that of Martha Norelius in last year's swim. Mrs. Corson, who also finished second in last year's swim, has yet to be out of the money. She says that the third time may bring home the bacon. Miss Lonney of Warren, Ohio, provided somewhat of a sensation when it was learned that she had pulled a tendon in the first mile and swam the remaining nine using only one leg. At that she placed fourth. There is evidently Spartan stuff in the Lonneys.

OLDSMOBILE
EARNS YOUR CONFIDENCE

YOUR first appraisal of Oldsmobile leaves you with a friendly feeling of confidence towards this high-spirited car whose very lines suggest staunch build and absolute dependability.

But not until you have driven it ten thousand miles or more . . . under every motoring condition . . . and in all kinds of weather . . . will you fully realize how Oldsmobile earns and keeps your confidence.

You will discover that Oldsmobile, like a true friend, becomes even more trustworthy . . . that it inspires deeper confidence the longer it serves you. Like thousands of other Oldsmobile owners, you will learn that its dependability is based not alone on the time-proven soundness of Oldsmobile design, but also on such mechanical refinements as a mighty 62-horsepower engine mounted on rubber . . . long, flexible springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers . . . big, weatherproof, four-wheel brakes . . . and a sloping, non-glare windshield.

An opportunity to prove how Oldsmobile earns confidence awaits you at our showrooms. Drive Oldsmobile yourself, and let this splendid car demonstrate for itself the qualities owners everywhere claim for it. GOLF NOTES FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE GREEN

By RALPH H. REVILLE

The Open Championship of Quebec and the Amateur Championship of Quebec, which were decided last week on the attractive Country Club course at Montreal brought out the cream of the amateur and professional talent of the Province and in the Open several of the outstanding professionals of Canada. Both events drew record fields and both events witnessed "the come back" of players who were making a golfing name for themselves when many of the entrants were in their early 'teens.

Especially was this the case in the Open. Albert H. Murray professional at the Beaconsfield golf club won his first Canadian Open Championship 'way back in 1908 or 22 years ago. He repeated in 1913. Of recent years owing more or less to foot troubles,he has not figured very prominently in the picture. At Montreal last week, he certainly demonstrated that he is still to be reckoned with. During his long and brilliant career he never played better golf than he did in the Open Championship when he carded 138 which tied for the title with Willie Lamb of the Uplands Golf Club three times Canadian Professional Champion. Now a score of 138 is six under fours per hole and that is mighty fine golf. In the play-off which was necessary, Lamb and Murray were all square at the 18th and another 18 holes in a cold chilly rain was decided upon by the Quebec Executive but "the veteran" rose to the occasion and registering a sparkling 71 annexed the Championship by two strokes. It was a great triumph for Murray who has now been playing in championship golf for a quarter of a century or so.

Then the Amateur Championship the following day witnessed Norman N. Scott, all-round Montreal athlete at the top of his game and with score of 146 he lead all the old and young experts of the Province. Scott, a prominent Montreal stock broker, like Murray, has for many years been "playing the game" and playing it well. Eight years ago he was runner-up in the Canadian Amateur Championship at Hamilton to C. C. Fraser. The moral of the Quebec Championships at Montreal. The twenty-year olders have not always the major titles in their bag. There is a kick yet in some of the stars of yesteryear, praise be!

Don Bradman the young Australian super-batsman, has been dubbed the "Bobby Jones of cricket". Perhaps later on in life, he may yet become the "Bobby Jones of golf" in "way-down-under". He plays a very good game indeed, as do the majority of the Australian cricketers. They played over several of the celebrated English and Scottish courses whilst in the Old Country. Bobby Jones,by the way, can tear a pack of cards in two with his hands. The average golfer, of course, is content to tear up his cards one at a time.

That "grand old man" of Canadian Golf, George S. Ryan, is still going strong. For the tenth time in the last 13 years, this 72-year old veteran won the Canadian Senior's Golf Championship with a remarkable score of 152 over the 36 hole course. He was five strokes ahead of J. Dix Fraser, who finished second with 157. It seems as tho' the genial George, will go on forever.

The Ladies Golf Union of Great Britain, has issued an appeal for $[illegible],000 as a permanent fund to finance the International teams, it proposed to send in the future to the Dominions and the United States. So far the response has been rather lukewarm only $2000 having been subscribed.

In this connection "Fairway and Hazard" London, England, the official organ of the Ladies Golf Union, in a recent issue states—"Almost more than in the U.S.A., disappointment will be keenly felt in Canada if Britain is unable to enter into these matches, for Canadians, realising that in a golfing sense they are not strong enough to challenge this country to a match at golf, have been pinning their hopes on the British-American matches materialising, so that when a British team made the journey across the Atlantic to the U.S.A., it would extend its visit to Canada. Mrs. Lyle the president of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union has emphasised the fact that all Canadian golfers are keenly interested in the progress of the L.G.U. International Match Fund, which they hope will be the means of giving them an opportunity to wlecome a team of British golfers women over there."

It is certainly to be hoped that the L.G.U. appeal will eventually reach its objective. It would be a splendid thing for Canadian women's golf if a representative British team visited this country next year. Such a team headed by the brilliant young champion, Miss Diana Fishwick, would be accorded a Royal welcome in Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton—the cities which would in all probability be included in the itinerary.

London golfers honored Ross Somerville and Jack Nash, last week and honored themselves when they gave a "victory dinner" to them in tribute of their winning respectively the Canadian and Ontario Amateur championships. This is the first time in the history of the game that two residents in any one city have the same year, won these outstanding championships and Londoners naturally feel proud of their townsmen. Both will go to Philadelphia, the week of September 22nd, to compete in the U.S. amateur championship. Nash is only 18 years of age and is the youngest player in Canada, ever to annex a Provincial Championship. Hack Cameron, the outstanding player of the Province of Quebec, is also an entrant in Philadelphia, and altogether Canada has a very strong trio of players for the U.S. event which ranks as the leading amateur fixture in America.

The present holder of the title is Harrison R. Johnson of St. Paul, Minn., but the favorite to win is Bobby Jones. The long-hitting Cyril Tolly is the only British entry, although the former British Amateur champion Phil Perkins, runner-up to Jones in the American champion ship in 1928, but now a resident of the States is among the many stars competing. Somerville is especially fancied to keep the Canadian flag flying far. He is to-day playing the best golf of his brilliant career and is now generally ranked amongst the ten best players in America.

Out on the Coast, the Seniors of British Columbia, Oregon and Washington, had a wonderful tournament this month, staged on the beautiful Colwood course, Victoria, B.S. Prominent professional and business men by the score from Victoria, Vancouver, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and other Pacific Coast cities competed in a week's friendly and International rivalry and honors rested with the United States representatives, two of whom J. A. Byerley of Portland, Oregon and J. H. Fuller, of Aberdeen, Wash., fought it out for championship honors, the former winning. The title for two years has been held by J. E. Wilson, of Victoria, B.C. Thus another Canadian golf title crosses the border.

Showing the virility of Pacific Coast golfers. Many of the contestants were over 50 years of age, whilst one, Charles Hyde of Tacoma, pleaded guilty to still enjoying the Royal and Ancient game, although he recently celebrated his 80th birthday. This popular Pacific Coast Tournament is always held in British Columbia, where the 19th hole holds sway. That perhaps, is the reason although the veterans themselves would probably be the last to admit it.

Horse Yields to Tractor Power on Canadian Farms

A New Fordson Tractor Pulling a Three-Gang Plow in Heavy Ontario Wheat Land.

TRACTORS are slowly but steadily displacing horses on Canadian farms, according to surveys by government bureaus at Ottawa. The reason is that the power-driven vehicle has proved itself a profitable investment on the great majority of farms where it has been put to work. It has demonstrated it is capable of doing a large amount of work in a short time, of providing belt power when needed and of doing the same job in less time than horse-drawn equipment and at less cost.

The photograph shows a new Fordson tractor pulling a three-gang plow in heavy dry Ontario wheat land. The usual practice in the section where the test was conducted was the use of two plows because of the difficult nature of the soil, but the Fordson pulled the three-gang plow with ease, giving a practical demonstration of its power reserve.

Farmers who are installing the Fordson tractor on farms both in the Prairie provinces and in eastern Canada are reporting that through their use it has been found possible to reduce the amount of hired help required, as well as to cut down the number of horses necessary to the operation of their farms.

One of the principal advantages of the tractor, however, these farmers have reported, is that it enabled them to keep their work up-to-date. The reason for this is, they point out, that a tractor can do more work in a 10-hour day than is possible with horses. Prairie farmers also reported that the adaptability of the tractor to both field work and belt power has aided them to keep both their work on the land and harvest operations up-to-date and to better take advantage of favorable weather.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, by the time this gets into print the customers'll know whether the list of Peterborough ball outfits what is through for the season includes Mister Art Primeau's C.G.E.'s or not. When the lads hiked down to the cement belt last week and made Mister Soup Goyer and his pals like it, the serious looked to be in the bag, but back come the Point Annies last Sat. and handed the home talent nothing less than a coat of kalsomine. The Electricians didn't get no more runs than I got fish this summer, and according to the box score, they didn't have very many chances to score at that. This is being doped out Thurs., I for 1 can't see no reason why the local lads can't take the Easterners in the 3rd game and grab the serious. You know by the time you read this, if ever, whether I'm right or not.

Anyway they ain't no doubt about the Sugar Bowl being out of the mush ball party, them and Trenton finally getting together down under the viaduct at Port Hope Tues. nite, with the lads from Bill Fraser's home port getting the big end of a 9-6 score. Just how this softball association does its business, if any, I can't quite make out. Early last Fri. the local crew got a message from the Easterner representative telling them they'd won by the toss of a coin the right to have the play-off game staged here and to make arrangements for a fixture that nite. The same noon the game was called off on orders from higher up, and after the Bowlites had advertised a game and started in to sell tickets. And then at last the teams was ordered to settle their arguments in Port Hope, which ain't no place to settle anything. The association slipped a cog somewheres, and how.

Mister Deannard's Kiwanis jrs. is also through for the season, although they played better ball up in the big town than they done at home. The Peterborough kids hit well in the serious, but their defense was nothing to write home about, and their pitching was spotty, offsetting the work the lads done with their bats. They were not at their best in the clash with the Toronto titleholders and they woulda needed to be to take the T.A.B.A. winners for a ride.

Anyway we still got 2 young outfits left in the juvenile and bantam classes, and mebbe the Kiwanis or the Maple Leaves, or both, will bring home a championship. It won't be a official season if some kind of a baseball championship don't come this way.

It's going to be a case of horses, horses, horses down at Rolly Denne's fair next week, Mac. What with Stan. Lowe's harness nags, the high jumpers and a real wild west rodeo, they'll be plenty for horse-lovers.

I'll be seeing you there.

Sportifully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

KIWANIS HEAR P. P. WESTBYE ON "THE PROGRESS OF CIVILIZATION"

World is Still a Spiritual World —Will Be Happier Because We Have Lived and Laboured.

LABOUR'S CONTRIBUTION.

"If I were to ask you in what way our civilization shows progress as compared to that of ancient times, I suspect you would reply almost unanimously, 'in every way.' An examination of the situation would indicate that such is not exactly the case," said P. P. Westbye, president and general manager of the William Hamilton Company, in the course of an interesting address to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel on Friday.

After considerable study of the effect of industrial life upon civilization, Mr. Westbye said, it seemed to him that this life possesses a romance which is little understood by those engaged in it. He noticed that those who class themselves as intellectuals have a tendency to look down on the man of industry, to accuse him of being interested only in making money, to infer that somehow the lawyer, doctor, scientist or man of letters was of more real use to the human race.

Decrease in Gap

What after all are the real principles underlying our industrial civilization, asked Mr. Westbye.

"I take it that a measure of the progress of civilization is the decrease in the gap that existed between the living conditions of King Tut and the slaves who labored in his tomb, and between for instance Mr. Beatty, president of the C.P.R. or Henry Ford, and the men who labor on the road or in the plants."

"We should be able to see that everything we have, our food, our clothes, our homes, our education is the result primarily not of our own efforts, but of the common efforts of our entire generation together with the accumulative efforts of all those who have labored before us, in building up what we call civilization. If this is true why have all these men worked for us. Why are you and I working for generations yet unborn?"

Mr. Westbye said he thought there were two or three simple principles underlying this seemingly complex problem.

Basis of Progress

The basis of our progress is the fact that society does hold out a direct and definite reward for accomplishments and does stimulate the use of brains and initiative. The significant thing in our industrial structure is not that men of conspicuous ability in any line, become wealthy, but rather that in accomptlishing the things for which riches are the reward they contribute immenaly to the advancement of us all.

The second great principle is that the possibility of advancing ones own interest and that of the loved ones depending upon him is the greatest spur of the human mind.

The third great principal is that notwithstanding the size of our plants the complexity of our organizations, the mass of our machines, the apparent realism of our existence, the world is still a spiritual world, for it is the mind of man which after all controls all these great masses of things upon which to a large extent our welfare depends.

In conclusion Mr. Westbye thanked the gathering for the patience with which they had listened to him, adding in humourous vein my observations will not help any of you to make Quaker Oats, Raybestos, Rose Brand Sausages, carpets, canoes, electrical or other machinery but perhaps they will help all of us to realize the position of our industries in the general scheme of things. We take to ourselves the consolation that we have a definite place in the scheme of things not excelled by anyone else and with all our trials and tribulations we can go calmly forward, serene in the certainty that for generations still unborn, the world will be a better and happier place because we have lived and labored in it."

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

Bad weather, combined with some inactivity on the part of our games committee resulted in bowling being very much restricted during the past week. Three or four doubles games were decided, but until last night there has been little for Newsie to go to press with.

The usual Friday night contest was held restulting in prizes going to rinks skipped by Benny Chesler, Bob French, George East and Jack Fitzpatrick.

As a news item Bob French was quietly whispering in one ear that he had put a seven end over Nelson Routley, while Nelson was telling us in the other ear that he had scored a six on "Bubby" French.

How difficult it is to please everybody was amply demonstrated last night when the draw was being made. With a night to sleep over what was said the "guilty" ones should realise that everything was being done to try and satisfy all.

Incidentally we had our second dance during the week and it was a dandy. We hear that half the tickets have been spoken for in advance for the next one.

Our bridge and and euchre party is scheduled for next Thursday, arrangements being in Roy Disney's hands. Let's get behind Roy and make this a a success. He works hard enough, goodness knows, and deserves everybody's support.

The singles draw has been made and play will be commenced immediately. Details will be found in the locker room.

Our fair members played yesterday afternoon, but the weather was not very friendly, and while most of the games were finished the results are not available at time of going to press.

A BEDTIME STORY

Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY BOTTLE.

Uncle Wiggily was sitting on the sand one day near where the ocean wave slammed and banged themselves into green, salty foam. It looked as if the waves were trying to rush up and catch the rabbit gentleman. And if they could have gotten hold of him they would have tumbled him over and over, upside down and downside up until he wouldn't have known whether he was standing on his ears or his nose.

"But I'm not going to let the waves get me!" said Mr. Longears as he watched his bunny children playing tag with Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the dogs, and Billie Wagtail, the goat. With his sister Nannie, this goat boy was spending the summer at the beach not far from Uncle Wiggily's seaweed bungalow.

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily saw something bobbing up and down in the water that hissed and foamed as it rushed over the sand pebbles and broken shells on the beach.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman as he watched the bobbing thing. "I hope that isn't one of my baby bunnies who has been washed out by a big wave."

Quickly he looked up and down the beach. He saw Baby Bunty, Jingle, Jangle and all the others safe on the sand. Tootsie, Wootsie and Wopsie were digging wells, having taken off their new, hard shoes which they had thrown at the Sea Wolf the day before to drive him away. These were the first hard soled shoes the new little rabbits had ever worn. But they had taken them off, now to play in the sand.

"That's something out there, bobbing up and down in the waves," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he watched the object.

"What are you looking at, if you please?" asked Jackie Bow Wow politely, as he happened to run past where Uncle Wiggily was standing up now gazing out to sea.

"I don't know what it is, Jackie," Mr. Longears answered. "But it is something bobbing in the waves."

"I'll swim out and get it," offered Jackie and, being a good dog paddler, Jackie splashed into the ocean and swam out to get what Uncle Wiggily had seen. Taking it in his mouth, Jackie swam back to the beach, and walked up first the wet and then the dry sand.

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

Nothing but a bottle," barked Jackie.

"Anything in it?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"Only the cork," Jackie said. "That isn't anything, though, I guess, is it?"

"Oh, indeed it is something," answered Uncle Wiggily. "If the cork had not been in the bottle it would have filled with water when it was thrown into the sea. Then it would have sunk. But the cork kept out the water, the bottle floated like a boat and I saw it. So it's a good thing the cork was in the bottle."

"Well, I guess this bottle isn't good for anything," said Jackie, dropping it on the sand beside Mr. Longears. "It's just an old bottle that maybe had some pickles or olives in, or maybe strawberry jam. I wish it had some jam in now. I guess the bottle isn't any good. I'll chuck it back in the water."

"No, don't do that," Uncle Wiggily said. "Maybe the bottle has a note in telling about some one shipwrecked on a lonely island."

But when the cork was taken out of the bottle, nothing was found inside, and no smoke rolled out to turn into a fairy, as once happened in the Arabian Nights.

"It's a funny bottle, to be corked up with nothing inside," barked Jackie. And then just, all of a sudden, there was a scrabbling sound on the dry sand and, turning, Uncle Wiggily and Jackie saw the Sea Wolf coming up out of the ocean, shaking himself to get off the water, and wiggling his tail so it would get dry.

"Ah, Uncle Wiggily! I am in luck at last!" growled the Sea Wolf. "I have found you!"

"What are you going to do to me?" sadly asked the rabbit.

"I'm going to nibble you as soon as I get dry," growled the Wolf, sitting down on the sand beside the rabbit and sticking his tail out straight behind him. "Just a moment, now."

But while Uncle Wiggily waited, Jackie crept around behind the Sea Wolf, and slyly stuck the funny, empty bottle on the tail of the Bad Chap, jabbing it on hard so it would stick. And stick it did.

The Wolf felt something queer. He jumped up and wagged his tail. The bottle on his tail hit him a bang in his ribs, ker thump.

"Oh, what's this? What's this?" howled the Bad Chap. "What is this on my tail?" But he didn't stop to see what it was. Away he ran, as frightened as a shadow, the bottle bobbing behind him; and so he didn't nibble the rabbit.

HEAVY WIND AGAIN DELAYS BOYD'S FLIGHT TO LONDON

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Continued heavy wind conditions obtaining over this side of the Atlantic again delayed the start of the Montreal to London, England flight of Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry P. Connor in the old Bellanca monoplane "Columbia."

With the legal entanglements surrounding the seizure of the plane by Roger Q. Williams showing signs of dissolution, the Canadian flyer and his American friend and navigator are eagerly watching weather reports for the signal to hop off for Harbor Grace, New Foundland, where they will take on a load of gasoline and rise again a few hours later, bound for England.

BEAVERBROOK NOT FULLY RECOVERED FROM POISON

LONDON, September 6 (C.P. Cable). — It is announced that Lord Beaverbrook is for the present unable to fulfill his engagements as he still has a temperature as a result of the food poisoning from which he first suffered while on his yacht about ten days ago.

The newspaper magnate put in to Dover when he was first ill and left that port the next day after it was announced he had recovered from his "indisposition."

Lord Beaverbrook's condition is being watched closely as rapid developments in such a case are not unusual.

GETS TWO MONTHS FOR FRAUD

LONDON, Ont., September 6 (C.P.). — Convicted by Magistrate T. W. Sandrett in City Police Court two days ago, on a charge of fraud and false pretence, J. C. Waterhouse of Toronto was to-day sentenced to two months in the Middlesex County Jail.

Waterhouse said he had no thought of fraud when he issued a cheque for $105.50 to K. C. Peterkin of this city, but as he was arrested in York County a few hours later, he had no chance to secure the funds to cover the cheque.

ANDREE'S DIARY CLEAR TO SEPT. 5

Trio Apparently Battled Over Month Across Ice Fields.

1931 Expedition Suggested.

C.P. — The story of the Andree balloon expedition is understood to be made clear in the explorer's notes up to September 5. It is said there is writing in Andree's log after that date but it is illegible.

The condition of the diary after September 5 is such that it may be impossible, therefore to follow the story of the fate of the expedition as told by its leader himself beyond that date.

It would seem that the trio arrived at White Island on the 5th of September (presumably 1897) after having battled their way across the ice since mid-July when their balloon met disaster on the attempted flight to the North Pole.

Dr. Gunnar Horn to-day proposed that a Swedish expedition be sent to White Island next summer to look for further evidences of the Andree expedition.

Dr. Horn said it is possible that Frankel's body might be found there, buried in the ice. Many of the things which the Horn party found were dug up from a depth of eighteen inches or more. It is considered possible that Frankel's body lies farther down.

FORMING ORGANIZATION TO CONSERVE WILD BIRDS

NEW YORK, September 6. — An organization to conserve American wild birds and game, to be endowed with $10,000,000, and headed by Senator B. Hawes of Missouri, is being formed by Joseph P. Knapp, multi-millionaire publisher.

Senator Hawes plans to announce at the Missouri Democratic State convention next Tuesday, his decision to withdraw from politics at the end of his senatorial term to devote his time to the conservation project.

Mr. Knapp, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Crowell Publishing Company, and chairman of the board of P. F. Collier & Son, declined to discuss the proposed organization, but said the announcement was "premature but correct."

HAMILTON DISPUTE GOES BEFORE BOARD

Three Men Chosen to Decide Wage and Working Conditions Question.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.).—A board of conciliation and investigation has been established by Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, under the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act, to deal with a dispute between the Hydro-Electric Commission of the City of Hamilton and certain of their employees, it was announced yesterday.

L. H. Spencer, K.C., of Welland, Ont., was named chairman; J. B. Capswell, Hamilton, Ont., was appointed on recommendation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Fred Bancroft, Oakville, Ont., was nominated by the 45 employees involved. Mr. Spencer was named by the Minister in the absence of a joint recommendation by the other two members.

The dispute is in connection with wages and working conditions.

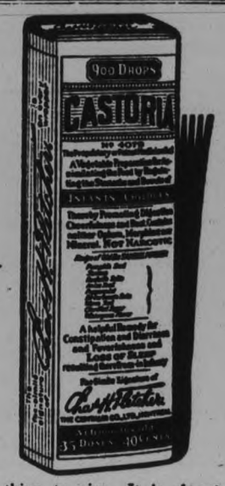
When Babies CRY



Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

GARNET WHEAT, A FIFE PROGENY, HIGHLY APPROVED BY EXPERTS

Should Be Marketed as a Separate Type English Miller Suggests.

CROP RIPENS EARLY.

Garnet wheat, referred to in this article, is an offspring of the old Peterborough county "Red Fife" variety, came resulted from the crossing of Preston and Early Riga, and Preston's parents were Ladoga and "Red Fife." Garnet, therefore, has a heavy infusion of the qualities of Russian and Central European wheats.

Garnet wheat, the new variety of hard, red spring wheat, which matures from seven to ten days ahead of Marquis, has a great future in those Northern districts where late summer frosts sometimes overtake later-maturing varieties. Such is the conclusion of L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, after exhaustive tests carried out by British and Continental millers and bakers.

The tests were made by a score of British, German and Dutch experts, including millers, bakers and research institutes. The concensus was that Garnet wheat has a distinct value of its own, and that if it can be placed on the market separately, instead of being mixed with other varieties of spring wheat, there will be a good demand for it from British and Continental millers. The general attitude of virtually all of those who investigated the milling and baking qualities of Garnet in Britain and on the Continent seems to have been pretty well expressed in the words of Dr. D. W. Kent Jones of Woodlands Limited, Dover, England. Dr. Kent Jones says:

Gives Stability.

"Garnet wheat, both in milling and in baking, has certain pronounced characteristics. Millers will always be faced with the fact that Garnet will give stability to their blends, but not quite the spring and elasticity which is normally given by Manitobas. Millers make their blends remembering all the characteristics of the wheat. There may, therefore, be time when the stability of the Garnet variety will be desired, while there may be times when the blend generally is stable enough, and then the stability of the Garnet with its tendency to lack of spring may be a drawback. Since English and European millers are par excellence blenders of wheat, they require to know the exact properties of the wheats they use. I therefore recommend that Garnet wheat should be placed upon the market as a separate variety, and although in the first instance its price might be slightly lower than the corresponding Manitoba, I am inclined to think the market would rapidly appreciate its merits, and there may be times when the Garnet may command the higher price. The wheat market rapidly adjusts itself to price, and thus wheats which are in demand soon appreciate in value. For myself, I look forward to the time when Garnet wheat is on the market and when we shall have another variety to assist in making our blends."

Separate Purchase.

Another investigator is even more emphatic when he says: "There is no doubt in my mind that we can make very good use this wheat in London, provided we are able to buy it separately as Garnet wheat. In fact, it has a distinct value of its own, but if mixed with Manitobas, it will not only lose its own distinctive value, but it will tend to greatly lower the distinctive value of the Manitoba wheats. If your farmers can send forward Garnet wheat of as good a quality as the particular shipment, I do not think they need fear having to sell it at a great discount, as compared with Manitobas."

"In view of the findings of the British and German millers and bakers concerning the differences which exist between Garnet and our present Manitoba Northerns, together with the fact that Canadian millers not only discount Garnet on account of color of flour, but find that this variety requires somewhat different treatment in connection with the preparation for milling, the question as to how this wheat may be handled to best advantage for all concerned becomes one of prime importance. To be specific, the question now to be settled may be stated as follows: Should Garnet be allowed to go into our highest grades of Manitoba Northern wheat without restriction of any kind, or would it be preferable to set up at least one or two separate grades for the accommodation of this variety or continue to handle it as at present?"

Canadian and U.S. Tests.

These are the conclusions of the Dominion Cerealist. His bulletin contains 100 pages and gives a complete report on the overseas tests of the milling and baking qualities of Garnet wheat, together with tests by the State Testing Mill at Minneapolis, the Pillsbury Flour Mills at Minneapolis, the Trent Institute and the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. These latter tests had to do with the behavior of Garnet and of Garnet mixed with ordinary Manitoba Northern wheat, when ground together under North American conditions.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 55 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

One of the first things d'Arnot did upon their arrival in Paris was to arrange to visit a high official of the Police Department, an old friend. He took Tarzan with him. Here was explained to them the fascinating science of identifying criminals by finger-prints. Tarzan was intensely interested.

Tarzan requested that his own fingerprints be taken. This done, d'Arnot drew forth a little book, turning to a page where were several tiny smudges. Surprised, Tarzan watched, recalling how he had given the diary to his friend. Now he realized the meaning of their visit to the police bureau!

The answer to his life's riddle lay in those tiny marks! With tense nerves Tarzan leaned forward. Was he a pure-blooded white man, the son of Lord Greystoke? Or only a half-savage ape-man? . . . Much depended upon the absolute correctness of the comparisons. Several days' delay was necessary.

And now Tarzan was able at last to see the treasure. When the great oak, iron-bound chest was forced open, it was found to contain gold coin—"doubloons" and "pieces of eight" from pirates' raids along the Spanish Main. Tarzan desired to take it intact to America with him.

What crime, suffering, and sorrow the thing had caused in its bloody history! So d'Arnot advised disposing of it for ever. When the gold was appraised, it brought more than two hundred thousand dollars. And now Tarzan was double anxious to start upon his way to find Jane in America.

CITY'S OLDEST SON DIED THIS MORNING

George S. Kingdon Was Born Here 87 Years Ago.

George Samuel Kingdon, Peterborough's oldest native born resident passed away at his late residence 584 George street early this morning in his 87th year, following an extended illness.

The funeral will be held from the family residence on Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. J. E. Millyard of George Street United Church where the deceased was wont to worship, will conduct the service. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

The late Mr. Kingdon was the son of William Kingdon, cooper who came from Devonshire, England, and established himself in business and erected his dwelling house at the south east corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, where the Salvation Army barracks and hall and a red brick house now stand. Here George S. Kingdon was born and here he continued until, at the age of 26 years, he succeeded his father in business, still later moving to the hill below Queen Alexandra school.

The late Mr. Kingdon married Miss Rook of Newbury, Ontario about 60 years ago, she, having predeceased him in March of this year.

The late Mr. Kingdon sold his business to his sons Orville and Stanley, in 1920, since which time he had lived in retirement.

The deceased gentleman saw a period of military service, which began in the years 1860-61, the year of the formation of the 57th battalion. The first commanding officer of this battalion was Lt.-Colonel Edwin Poole. The late Mr. Kingdon possessed the Fenian Raid medal.

He was also charter member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters.

Deceased is survived by four sons Arthur of N. Monaghan; R. Harry, 544 Aylmer street, Orville of Lakefield and Stanley of Barnado avenue, also three daughters, Mrs. Chas. Baker, Gilchrist street; Mrs. Rabey, Oshawa; Mrs. Arthur Heald of Toronto, and one sister Mrs. Wm. Hill of North Bay.

On the open market, produce was plentiful. Tomatoes sold at 35 cents a basket, pickling beets were 50 to 60 cents in large baskets, peppers were 35 cents a dozen, cucumbers a nickel apiece, cabbage 5 to 10 cents a head, and cauliflowers 10 to 20 cents each.

Apples were 40 cents a peck, corn 20 cents a dozen or 2 dozen for 35 cents, beets 5 cents a bunch and potatoes $1.30 a bag. Pumpkins were 10 and 15 cents, squash 10 and 15 cents each, beans 3 quarts for 25 cents and carrots and onions, 5 cents a bunch.

Honey sold at 65 cents in 5-pound pails and $1.25 in 10-pound containers. Comb honey was 25 and 30 cents.

WON MITE-TEE PRIZE.

Don Loescher Turned in Best Boys' Card.

Don Loescher, King George School, won this morning's tournament at the Mite-Tee greens, Aylmer and Brock streets. His score was 60 for the dollar award. Ken Weldon, P.C.I. was second with 65 and Warden Wright of Central School was third with 73 on his card. Hundreds of school boys crowded the Mite-Tee green for the competition.

SETTLERS FROM U. S. SHOW BIG INCREASE

Gov't Reports Export of Automobiles Shows Boost Over July.

OTTAWA, Ont, Sept. 6. (C.P.)—Appreciation in the United States of the better general conditions existing in Canada as compared with those existing in America is indicated by a substantial increase in the volume of settlers' effects entering Canada from the Republic and by increased volume of United States articles entering the Dominion for exhibition purposes. In July the value of settlers' effects coming from the United States amounted to $1,219,000, an increase of nearly eleven percent over July 1929 and the value of articles entering for exhibition purposes nearly trebled to $704,000.

Government statistics issued during the past week show an increase in the export of automobiles in July as compared with the preceding month an increase in the production of boots and shoes and increased movement of grain traffic on the railways.

The greater use of automobiles and motor driven tractors and other farm machinery is responsible for an increase of 543 percent in the consupmption of gasoline since 1920. The use of fuel oil in heating homes and other buildings is mainly responsible for an increase of more than 137 percent in the consumption of this commodity since 1920.

CALEDONIANS PLAN OPENING PROGRAM

Social Season Begins Next Friday With Scots Rally.

The Caledonian Club met last evening in the Woodmen of the World Hall for its regular monthly meeting. A fairly large representation of members turned out, and the usual routine business was discussed. Mr. W. Petrie, president, occupied the chair.

After the minutes were read by the secretary, a financial report of the Club was given by the treasurer.

A program for this month was drawn up. Next Friday night the Club will commence its social season with a Scottish Rally, for which an attractive program is being arranged, including numbers by the Caledonian Pipe Band. The Caledonian Football Club will be the guests of the evening, as well as all other Scotch people who are not already members. It is the desire of the Club that a large number avail themselves of this opportunity to spend a pleasant evening "amang their ain folk."

The Bowling League, which has been so successful in past seasons, will be run again this winter, and the committee in charge is anxious to have the names of all those who wish to play.

After the business meeting, and before the members dispersed, light refreshments were served by the executive.

IN MEMORIAM

WYATT—In loving memory of our dear father who passed away September 7th, 1929.

Today brings back sad memories,
Of that sad and bitter day.
We often sit and think of you,
And think of how you died.
To think you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.
Sadly missed by loving wife, sons and daughters.
Three little words, "forget us not."
They don't seem much but they mean a lot.
Just a memory fond and true
To show dear father, we think of you.
Sadly missed by your daughters Flossie and Olive.

Henderson Says Britain Will Accept Commission's Suggestions.

PEACE FOR JEWS, ARABS

Persia Advancing Claims of Moslems Expresses Confidence in Britain.

GENEVA, September 8 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — The Council of the League of Nations today cast oil upon the troubled waters of Palestine. The delicate situation which has arisen between the British Government and the Permanent Mandates Commission over the administration of Palestine was largely smoothed out. Discussion opened with the submission of the report of the Mandates Commission comprising suggestions which the Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, declared Britain would be willing to accept.

Promote Good Will.

Mr. Henderson announced his Government had measures in view which he hoped would serve to promote the furtherance of good will between the two great nations of the Palestinian population—the Jews and the Arabs—for it was realized that without good will between these races the peace and prosperity of the country could not be assured by any action of the mandatory power.

Persia Satisfied.

A persian delegation advanced the claims of the Moslems in Palestine but expressed full confidence in the British administration and its promises to do justice to all classes of the population. Jugo-Slavia, which has many Moslem subjects in the southern part of its territories, took a like stand.

The Vice-president of the Mandates Commission thanked Dr. Henderson for his assurances.

At the meeting the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, member of the Council for Canada, was seated with Dr. Curtius, the German member, at his left, and the representative of Cuba on his right. Sir Robert was cordially greeded by the heads of delegations upon his arrival in the Council room.

Tuesday's Program At the Exhibition

Commencing to-morrow afternoon four big vaudeville acts will be presented in front of the Grand Stand at the Exhibition Grounds each afternoon and evening during the week as well as feature numbers by the members of the Rodeo troupe. Each evening a great fireworks display will be staged and a special display of daylight fireworks has been arranged for Wednesday afternoon when the children of the city are to have their day on the grounds.

Daredevil Kurtzo and Kurtz, sensational high pole artists, working with a 60-foot pole, will provide trapeze work and aerial balancing designed to give each member of the audience his quota of thrills for a year. Trick western riding, ladder works and other daring stunts are to be presented by a combination known as "Rosard and Harrison."

The world champion trotter "Dolly May" the guideless trotter, will be introduced in "Race Track Frolics" In this item on the program "Barnie" and 'Sparkle" the rube race stars, will also make their bows and grandstanders will see horses driven by dogs among which will be the famous police dog, "Rex".

In a comedy juggling act and with piano and accordion solos, "Ike and Mike" are scheduled to "do their stuff". Their job will be to provide comedy relief for the evening and, it is claimed, the two gentlemen are easily capable od doing so.

Bread Price Drops One Cent In City

O drop of one cent, on the retail price of a small loaf took effect this morning, it was learned from the principal bakers in this city. A small loaf now retails at 10c while a large loaf is retailing at 20c. This will come as welcome news to the bread consumers who have for some time past felt that the price of bread was inconsistent with the low price of wheat.

17th Parliament Opens at Ottawa Speech Is Short

Brevity Characterized the Speech From the Throne Which Makes Specific Mention of Only Two Measures Amendments to Customs Act and the Tariff.

CAPTAIN GEORGE BLACK, CONSERVATIVE FOR THE YUKON IS ELECTED AS SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Exceptional Economic Conditions and Unemployment Are Given as the Reason For Calling the Special Session of Parliament—Five New Senators.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 8 (Canadian Press). — Canada's seventeenth Parliament disposed of preliminaries in short order early this afternoon. Within the space of three-quarters of an hour members of the House of Commons paid a visit to the Senate Chamber, received instructions to return and elect a Speaker, selected for that important post Captain George Black, Conservative member for the Yukon, and then adjourned to return for the formal opening at three o'clock. Then, led by Speaker Black, the members proceeded once more to the Senate to hear the Speech from the Throne delivered by His Excellency the Governor-General.

His Excellency was not present this morning. Judge Lyman P. Duff, of the Supreme Court of Canada, in the capacity of Deputy to His Excellency, presided over the very brief proceedings in the Senate. These consisted merely of the customary statement, read by the Clerk of the Upper Chamber, that the Governor-General did not see fit to open Parliament until a Speaker had been selected for the Commons.

The election of Captain Black was not opposed. His name was moved by Premier R. B. Bennett and seconded by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice. Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Robert Gardiner, U.F.A. leader, said a few words in which they expressed appreciation of the new Speaker's qualities, and then Captain Black was escorted to the chair by Mr. Bennett and Mr. Guthrie. He made a brief speech of thanks for the honor given him, and the House adjourned.

Mr. Beauchesne announced that no other names being put forward, Mr. Black was duly elected Speaker of the House.

Expressing his appreciation of the high honor conferred upon him, the Speaker declared that he had formed many friendships in the past ten years. He looked forward to meeting new members. He promised to uphold the dignity, the privileges, liberties, and customs of the House of Commons. He would conduct the business of the House impartially, so that when his time came to vacate the office he might do so still enjoying the esteem and goodwill which the members had shown him to-day.

Impartial And Firm.

"The man we are about to elect will not only speak for this House He will be the presiding officer of this House and it will be his duty to maintain order in the debate and to attend to the internal economy of the House," said the Premier in moving the election of Mr. Black.

"It has been said," the Prime Minister went on, "that the Speaker should possess imperturability, good temper, tact, patience and urbanity combined with a previous legal training. He had to be impartial and firm, prepared to apply the rules to all members of the House on the basis of absolute equality."

In Captain George Black (Con., Yukon), Mr. Bennett said, the House had a man well qualified for the post. He had nearly ten years' experience in the House, a distinguished career at the bar, and as an administrator in the Yukon had learned the workings of the Government. Through his experience in the hardships of war he had learned the importance of discipline and attention to detail.

Mr. Bennett then nominated Captain Black and the nomination was seconded by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

To the name put forward by the Prime Minister, he had no objection, declared Mr. Mackenzie King.

Indeed, he wished to join with Mr. Bennett in the expression of appreciation of the splendid qualities possessed by Mr. Black. He would also like to associate himself with all that Mr. Bennett had said regarding the importance of the function of Speaker. Mr. Mackenzie King emphasized the responsibilities of the office, demanding as it did much the way of exceptional character and ability, the qualities of judgment, discretion, quick decision, tact, and also a sense of humor and understanding of human nature. Above all others, there was the quality, however, of impartiality.

Brevity characterized the Speech from the Throne which was delivered by His Excellency the Governor-General in opening Parliament this afternoon. Exceptional ecnomic conditions and unemployment were given as the reasons for summoning Parliament. The speech makes specific mention of only two measures which are to be presented to Parliament. There are to be amendments to the Customs Act and to the customs tariff and the view is expressed that these "will do much to meet the unusual conditions which now prevail." There are only three paragraphs in the speech and four sentences.

Honourable Members of the Senate, Members of the House of Commons—

It affords me great satisfaction to be associated with you in the important duties upon which you are about to enter at this, the first ses-

PLANES RAID CITY 200 ARE KILLED

Besieged Town of Manningfu Refuses to Surrender to Kwantung Forces.

FOREIGNERS READY TO FLEE.

HONG KONG, China, Sept. 8.—(A.P.)—A report here today said two hundred people had been killed in a recent raid by Cantonese aeroplanes on the besieged city of Nanningfu, in Kwangsi Province. The city is a stronghold of Kwangsi rebels.

The inhabitants refused to surrender the report and said they were still holding out against a combined Kwantung and Yunnan forces. Owing to the scarcity of food in the city, 40,000 civilians were evacuated during a lull in the fighting. Foreigners remaining in the city are living in launches on the river, ready to leave the area in haste.

LOGS ON BEACH FATAL TO DRIVER

Anden Mills Butcher Fails to See Obstacle on Beach in Glaring Headlights.

CAR SOMERSAULTS.

WASAGA BEACH, Ont., Sept. 8.—(CP)—A log which drifted up on the shore when water flooded the beach during a heavy gale on the lake, was responsible for an automobile accident which brought about the death of James McLaughlin, a butcher of Anden Mills, who lives here during the summer, last night.

Mr. McLaughlin was driving along the beach at about 11 o'clock when he met another car. Glaring headlights are thought to have prevented him noticing the log which he struck in turning to avoid the car. The sedan in which he was driving, turned over, and McLaughlin was thrown through the windshield sustaining a fractured skull which caused instant death.

His car was one of three which bumped into logs tossed up on the shore last night. Difficulties of this kind are encountered whenever here is a high wind on the lake. The logs are thought to have been part of a boom of logs going to Parry Sound.

NEW REGIME IS ABLY SUPPORTED IN ALL ARGENTINA

Complete Calm Prevails Throughout Whole County Following Revolution.

EX-PRESIDENT HELD.

Cadets and Troops Returning to Their Barracks Are Cheered By Crowds.

Buenos Aires, September 8. (C. P.) — Revolution which during a sanguinary week-end in Buenos Aires overthrew the government of President Hipolito Irigoyen and established a new regime headed by General Jose Evaristo Uriburu, to-day spread to every corner of the Republic. Province after province telegraphed its adhesion to the new order, whose authority to-day was recognized from the La Plata River to Cape Horn, and the Chilean Andes to the Atlantic.

In most cases the overturn was accomplished almost without disorder, Populaces greeting advices of Buenos Aires happenings with cries of "Viva Republica; viva Nuevo Gobierno."

Complete Calm Prevails

Federal interventors were removed and new provincial government heads designated by the Junta or provisional government installed by General Uriburu at Buenos Aires took charge. From every provincial capital there came the same word, "complete calm prevails."

In Buenos Aires citizens returned to work today after an eventful Saturday and Sunday which saw the long political uncertainty of weeks ended in a succession of events which once begun, developed and culminated so rapidly in retirement of President Irigoyen in favor of Vice President Martinez, mutiny of the army and navy, actual resignation of President Irigoyen and his internment, practically a prisoner, in a military barracks, and establishment of a new government headed by General Uriburu, 44-year old opposition leader.

While martial law still prevails and the atmosphere is still charged with the tenseness growing out of the week-end happening. Calm prevails and the utmost enthusiasm is shown for the new order. Cadets and troops returning to their barracks from the fighting in front of government house and newspaper La Epoca passed through cheering lines on the sides of the streets. As General Uriburu's government moved to entrench itself firmly various members of the old regime were arrested and are being held. These included the former minister of interior, Elpidio Gonzales, the former minister of foreign affairs Horacio Oyahanote, the former director of the mails Ammallo, the former director of railroads Claps, the former chief of police traffic Sturla and the old friend of President Irigoyen's, Scarlato.

Hastings County Woman Caught By Bear Badly Bruised Before Being Released

Belleville, Ont., September 8. (C. P.) — Mrs. Thomas Reeves, a resident near McArthur's Mills, in Mayo Township, a northern extremity of Hastings County, was carried away early to-day by a large female bear towards a nearby tract of woods, and was only dropped when the children with her screamed, frightening the cubs, who in turn started to squeal attracting the mother bear's attention. Mrs. Reeves was badly bruised and scratched about the right arm and chest, and was attended by Dr. Lumb of Bancroft, who has ordered the woman to bed for a few days.

Mrs. Reeves, with her two children, went to the field near their home looking for the cows, when, in the middle of the field a large female bear came out of the woods and attacked her. The woman was helpless, and being aged, could offer but little resistance. The bear started to drag her to the woods, and had gone about twenty rods, when the children started to scream. Apparently the cubs were in the woods, and they too set up a howl, with the result that the bear immediately dropped the woman, and rushed to the protection of her young.

Although exhausted by the ordeal Mrs. Reeves was able to crawl through a wire fence, and with the aid of her children, reach her home. The bear has not been captured.

SIX FAMILIES ARE MADE HOMELESS

Early Morning Fire Causes $40,000 Damage in Quebec Village.

MONTREAL AIDS.

ST. CONSTANT, Que., September 8. — (C. P.) — Six families were rendered homeless here early to-day, when fire destroyed their homes. The damage was estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000, partly covered by insurance.

The fire which broke out shortly after one o'clock in a building housing the restaurant and home of Rene Demers, for a time threatened to assume serious proportions. Aid was summoned from nearby towns and also from Montreal. With the arrival of additional equipment, including a powerful fire pump from Montreal, the blaze was confined to a narrow area. Two hours after the outbreak was discovered the "all out" signal was given.

In addition to the home and restaurant of Demers, the residences of M. Houle, Joseph Longtin, A. Basinet and A. LeBlanc were destroyed.

First Meeting Of St. Mark's Society

The opening meetin gof the session of St. Mark's Branch of the W. A. Otonabee was held recently at the home of one of the members, Mrs. F. Shearer, Rogers street. In the absence of the president Mrs. Hughes took the opening prayers.

Names were given in for the autograph quilt. A block pattern was designed, the blocks afterwards being cut out and several stamped out.

The sale of herbs and flower seeds among the members was discussed.

The Deanery officer referred to the forthcoming Deanery meeting which is to be held on October 9 in St. Luke's Parish, Peterborough.

The meeting closed with prayer after which the hostess kindly served afternoon tea.

Come To Blows

(Special to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 8.—The opening of parliament at noon today had one unique feature—a brief but warm verbal altercation between two Liberal members — General Sir Eugene Fiset and Pierre Casgrain, Liberal chief whip, at the end of which a blow was struck.

It happened in the midst of a group of tailenders of the procession to the Senate.

It seems General Fiset used some language not wholly complimentary to Mr. Casgrain apropos of the seat assigned him whereupon Mr. Casgrain landed him one over the left eye.

A. A. Heaps intervened and the incident was closed. General Fiset acted as if his eye was threatening to close. It happened so quickly that few noticed it but considerable comment was occasioned.

TRAIN DERAILED AT BELLEVILLE

ENGINE LEFT TRACK.

Members Are Late

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 8.—(CP) — Word was received by the clerk of the House of Commons at noon today that a train bearing some members of parliament from Ontario points was derailed between here and Toronto. It resulted in a number of the members missing the noon sitting of the House.

Peterboro's Fair Most Attractive Visitor Declares

Exhibition is Rapidy Taking Shape and Its Integration on a larger Scale Than Ever is Accompanied by Liveliness and Bustle All Over the Grounds.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL OF THE BIG STOCK MEN MISSING NEW ONES HAVE TAKEN THEIR PLACES WITH BIG EXHIBITS

At Least Thirty-five Trotters and Pacers Will Take Part in the Racing Events of the Week— Rodeo Men Are Well Pleased With the Early Outlook.

Looking over the Peterborough Exhibition Grounds for the first time this morning, Fred Sporhase of Deland, Florida, owner of the grand stand attraction listed on the program as "Race Track Frolics, described the complete Exhibition plant as one of the most attractive and largest he had ever seen.

"Of course, I am not comparing Peterborough with Toronto," said Mr. Sporhase, who has been booked at fairs all over the continent. "I mean that it compares splendidly with many of the State fairs, and from what I have seen this morning I think your directors have lined up a big show. This is the first time we have shown in Peterborough. We have just come from the Toronto Exhibition, and before that we were in New York State.

We have been in Canada on other occasions, but we have changed our act altogether since the last time we crossed the border. Our Canadian engagements end at Sarnia on September 26, and frome there we jump to the State Fair at Charleston, West Virginia. Our bookings close November 15 in Georgia and from there we will likely go to South America."

The Race Track Frolics include a comedy race, cart before the horse, a dog driving a horse in sulky around the track, and other novelties, which Mr. Sporhase believes have never been seen in Peterborough. His string of horses includes "Dolly May," the world's champion guideless trotter.

"We'll do our best to help entertain the crowds this week", Mr. Sporhase added.

Exhibition's Preparations

Peterborough's Exhibition was rapidly taking shape this morning, and its integration on a larger scale than ever was accompanied by a liveliness and bustle that extended to every corner of the grounds.

Fred J. A. Hall, secretary of the Board, stated that the entry list would mount to a new record, although several herds of cattle were not being shown this year. They are the Field Lodge Farm Jerseys, Norman McConkey's Holstein and one or two Bobcaygeon exhibitors; but their places have been more than filled by new exhibitors.

William Knox, manager of the Exhibition, again faced the problem of insufficient accommodation in spite of the directors' efforts to keep pace with the annual increase of entries. T. H. Graham's horse barns were almost all reserved this morning.

Biggest String of Racers

And Mr. Graham's difficulty emphasizes one feature which should appeal to the Exhibition crowds as a whole and especially those who are race fans. The west end barn is packed with race horses, and there are thirteen in the south barn.

Stan Lowe, who is in charge of the track events, estimated that there would be about thirty-five trotters and pacers here for the main events on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with one race on Wednesday afternoon's program.

Webber Turner reported all the vaudeville attractions ready for the opening Tuesday afternoon. Gray's midway began to set up their rides and concessions this morning, and as for Welsh Brothers, they of the rodeo and stampede, their men are delighted with the courtesy they have received from the Directors.

Rodeo Men Pleased

"You have a fine lot of men in charge of this exhibition said Louis Welsh, "and I understand they are men who are giving their time to building up your Exhibition. We thought the Ottawa Fair directors were about the finest we ever met, but Peterborough's men are just as friendly and helpful, and possibly a little more so. We are very pleased with what we have seen of Peterborough and its people, and we hope this Exhibition will be a big success."

Harry Beatty of the Utilities Commission had a staff of men putting the finishing touches to the lighting of the grounds; Dick Lush was installing the broadcasting apparatus, and the refreshment booths had their first hot dogs sizzling in the pans for the benefit of the crowd of workers.

ROTARY CLUBS ARE RENDERING FINE SERVICE

Doing Great Work on Behalf of Crippled Children in Ontario.

MUCH TO BE DONE.

Still 3,000 to 4,000 Children in Province Requiring Treatment.

That there are still some three or four thousand crippled children in Ontario who have not been reached by service organizations was the estimate given by Rotarian Reg. W. Hopper of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in addressing the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon to-day.

Rotarian Hopper, whose address was illustrated by moving pictures showing various phases of the work being done in this province for crippled children stressed the fact that while other service organizations such as Kiwanis, the Lions, etc., were contributing valuable service, ninety per cent of the work for crippled children was being done by Rotary. The speaker outlined the program generally followed by Rotary Clubs, which consisted of a survey to obtain the names of crippled children whose parents were unable to secure the necessary treatment, the arranging of a clinic at which children are examined by expert surgeons, the providing of hospital and medical treatment and then the follow-up work when the patients come home. This latter stage Rotarian Hopper characterized as extremely important inasmuch as it includes the educating of the child and the providing of an opportunity for him to obtain a job when his education is completed.

Ontario had fine hospitals and clever doctors for the treatment of crippled children, the speaker pointed out and it was estimated that there were between 3,000 or 4,000 children who were still in need of

Auto Kills Deer On Chemong Road

A deer was killed on the Chemong Road, four miles from the city, yesterday morning. The deer, a young doe, was making its way leisurely across the highway, when accidentally struck by a motor car driven by Sidney Chatten, of Allandale. The animal's back and left hind leg were broken, and John Heslip, road foreman of Bailieboro, cut its throat to end its misery.

The carcass was handed over immediately to Captain Carson, fish and game inspector, who now has it in cold storage in Jopling's butcher shop. If the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries approve the meat will be distributed among local charitable institutions.

Residents of Chemong Park report that a young deer has been seen about the Park several times during the summer. Old hunters believe that it had been driven south by wolves.

MESSAGE IN CAN IS BELIEVED CLUE TO SEA MYSTERY

Note Dated March 21, 1899, States Ship Wrecked, Help Needed.

OFF FLORIDA COAST.

Crewless Ship Drifted Into Brooklyn Harbor 29 Years Ago—Owner Never Found.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—A message given up by the seas on Saturday at St. Petersburg, Fla., may be a clue in the 29-year-old mystery as to the fate of the crew of the Commodore of Philadelphia.

The message contained in a rusted tin can which fell apart when handled read:

"March 21, 1899. Send help at once. Our ship, the Commodore, was wrecked two weeks ago. Send help at once. Longitude 83, latitude 91.

GEORGE EVERETT."

Longitude 83 is directly off the Florida coast. Latitude 91 evidently was misread, or blurred from water for the poles are at 90, both North and South however, latitude 31 would place the ship off the Florida Coast, and the upper loop of the figure 3 might easily have taken the appearance of a 9.

Owner Never Found

The Commodore of Philadelphia owners unknown and never traced, was a mystery ship which rivalled that of the Ancient Mariner. On April 6, 1901, a two-master 50-foot rigger drifted into Brooklyn harbor. With a hard bump she struck a wharf in W. M. Tebo's yacht basin. She had come in on the tide.

Workmen going to their labor saw the ship rolling toward the shore and wondered what could be her business in that region.

No one could be seen aboard her, and when the schooner struck the wharf and rolled about workmen boarded her, expecting to find her crew had been killed by midnight pirates of the harbor and their ship cut loose to float with the tide and wind.

To their surprise no sign of life was found, there was no evidence of a struggle. It could not be determined if the schooner had been abandoned or whether her crew had been swept overboard and drowned.

Detective Seeking Promotion Rushes Gangsters' Hangout Alone and is Killed.

GUNMAN SHOT.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—Detective Edward Barney of the Detroit Police Department, and Leo Genovd, gunman, were wounded fatally in a gun battle here Sunday.

Police were sent to a residence near the suburb of Highland Park after receiving word that the place was a "gangster hangout."

Barney, who only recently was appointed a detective, was eager to show he merited promotion, according to other officers, and rushed the rear door of the house alone. After he entered, shots were heard. Detectives who followed him found Detective Barney and Genova lying on the floor in dying condition.

Lone Camp Yields Third Skeleton Andrée Expedition

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8 (C.P.).—The discovery of a human skeleton, believed to be that of Knut Frankel, third member of the Andree expedition, among the remains of Andree's camp on White Island, was reported by the whaler Isbjoern which has a party of journalists aboard.

A number of scientific instruments, weapons, pieces of the gondola of the Andree balloon and Frankel's note-books also were reported found. The camp was in excellent order. Members of the party expressed the belief that the death of the explorers was caused by a sudden catastrophe, such as a blizzard.

FRENCH AVIATORS VISIT U.S. CAPITAL

Huge Throng Cheers Heroes Before Embassy in Washington.

RETURN FROM DALLAS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 8.—(C.P.)—A red plane settled down easily at Bolling Field Sunday and Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte stepped out to meet the welcome of the capital.

The official welcome began even before the French Paris to New York fliers left the Question Mark. Coste and Bellonte, looking fresh and calm stood looking down and Jules Henry, Charge D'Affaires of the French Embassy, swept his hand upward in a wide arc and introduced George Akerson, representing President Hoover.

The fliers held an impromptu reception before they climbed out of the plane that carried them across the Atlantic a few days ago.

A path was cleared for a White House car, which took the fliers to the French Embassy. There they found a crowd that filled a block in both directions awaiting them.

Toronto Girl's Pack Catches on Wing of Plane While 9,000 Feet in Air.

RESCUED BY OBSERVER.

TORONTO, September 8. (C.P.) — Unseen by the thousands of persons craning their necks upward a gripping drama of the air was enacted over the Dufferin airport here on Sunday, when youthful Elsie Storrow, attempting to break the Canadian Women's record for parachute jumping, became fast on the wing of the aeroplane from which she jumped.

Noticing her plight, Pilot W. Van Sickle informed the observer, Percy McGovern, who climbed out on the wing and rescued her.

When she attempted to jump Miss Storrow was more than 9,000 feet up, but after her narrow escape from death she ordered the plane down.

After a brief conference with her manager she again went up and leaped from the machine when it had gained an altitude of 5,000 feet.

PARALYSIS CASES NUMBERING 188 WELL IN CONTROL

Ontario Total For Past Two Months is 82 Above 1929 List.

17 DEATHS TO DATE.

Dr. Godfrey Urges Extra Precaution to Aid in Stamping Disease Out.

TORONTO, September 8. — Notwithstanding that 188 cases of infantile paralysis have occurred in Ontario between July 1 and August 30 this year—82 more cases than were reported during the corresponding period of 1929—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey and officers of his Department of Health, at Queen's Park, are emphatic in their statements that the situation is well in hand.

From these 188 cases there have been 17 deaths. From the 106 cases that occurred in July and August of a year ago there were 18 deaths.

Results in terms of residual paralysis following recovery are also somewhat better this year than last, for the reason, Dr. Godfrey declares in a general statement issued to the press over the week-end, that the public, through the publicity efforts of the Department, are better informed with respect to premonitory symptoms and early indications of the disease, with the result that physicians are being called at a stage of the disease sufficiently early to administer the serum and get good results.

Curative Efforts.

Dr. Godfrey, in his statement, stresses the need for early administration of the serum if 100 per cent. satisfactory results are to be obtained; calls for extra precaution with regard to what is known as the bulbar type of the disease; pays a tribute to child donors of the blood from which the Department is able to prepare and maintain an adequate serum supply; asserts that, while there have been more cases than normal this year, in no locality has the condition approached epidemic proportions or got out of hand; and expresses the belief that "in the light of similar outbreaks in other places, we will have a lower number of new cases reported for the next two weeks, and that after that the outbreak will rapidly die out."

Crown Princess Astrid Gives Birth to Baby Boy.

CROWDS CELEBRATE EVENT.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 8.—(C.P.)— Crown Princess Astrid of Belgium gave birth to a son to-day. As her first child was a girl the little boy becomes heir to the Belgian throne in the direct male line.

The baby was born at Stuyvenberg Castle which had been fenced off from public curiosity by barbed wire in order to assure the maximum of quiet for Princess Astrid.

The baby Prince weighs nearly 9 pounds. He was baptized to-night with the name Daubouin Albert Axel Marie Gustave.

News of the birth was announced to the populace by a salute of 101 guns and aroused great joy. Great crowds gathered outside Stuyvenberg Castle to cheer Leopold, his wife and new son.

Santa Domingo Spends Sunday Seeking Victims Amid Fallen City.

RELIEF SUPPLIES ARRIVE.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, September 8. (C.P.) — Santo Domingo which basked calmly in the warm tropical sun of last Sunday, yesterday spent another period of horror in seeking out the bodies of Wednesday's hurricane dead and burying or incinerating those already recovered.

Troops stood sternly on guard over the food and medical supplies rushed to this old city of the New World as relief workers sought under the masses of wood, stone and mortar for those who were trapped in the falling buildings.

When a body is found a pistol shot is fired into the air, and the shots are heard frequently. So far the death toll is estimated at 4,000 with a promise that the number will be increased when all are accounted for.

Meanwhile the relief expeditions from Porto Rico, Cuba and Haiti have taken charge and are feeding the hungry and treating the ill.

SIX SHOT IN MOSCOW FOR FOOD PROFITEERING

Cows Swim Miles Down Hydro Canal Chased By Bees

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 8.—Sixteen cows, owned by Harry Brown, Montrose, swam down the Hydro canal Saturday afternoon and were rescued with none injured from the forebay at the Queenstown power house. The cattle were peacefully browsing at the side of the Chippawa Creek when a swarm of bees appeared and, becoming disturbed, chased the cows. The herd, one by one, fled into the water and soon got into the current at the Hydro intake and were carried for miles down the canal. Their plight was noted but nothing could be done until the big forebay was reached, where Hydro derricks were swung over and the cows lifted to dry land on scoops after the men on rafts and boats had fastened them there. All the cattle soon were back on their pasture field, apparently unmindful of their escape from a watery grave.

POPE RESUMES ACTIVITIES

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Far from being at the point of death, as some Berlin newspapers reported him Pope Pius spent a Sunday of normal activity.

It was even more than normal, for he began with a lengthy audience to Monsignor Dorconciduca, Papal nuncio to the Kingdom of Italy, to discuss many matters such as the Argentine revolution, the nomination as a successor to the late Cardinal Gamba as Archbishop of Turin, and relief for the churches stricken in the recent earthquake.

LIQUOR RUNNERS OUTRUN OFFICER

Constable on Yonge Street Fired at When Attempting to Stop Car.

TORONTO, Sept. 8. — All main highways around Toronto were watched carefully by provincial police over the week-end in an effort to trace a sedan, believed manned by bootleggers, the occupants of which fired at a traffic officer on Yonge street, near Schomberg Junction early Saturday morning after a wild chase on the highway extending several miles.

Jack Massingham of Aurora, the officer at whom the shots were directed, was patrolling his stretch of the highway between Bradford and Richmond Hill when he caught up to the car travelling at a high clip. Several times when he approached nearer to it he was able to discern cases piled up in the rear, but every time the gap between his motorcycle and the car widened.

Massingham first noticed the car north of Bond Lake. In a final burst of speed just north of the King highway, he managed to overhaul it and come abreast. His order to the driver to pull to one side was answered by several shots which whizzed past the front of his motorcycle just "too close for comfort" he stated.

He slackened the pace of his machine for a moment, as the car pulled away and then struggled to get his gun from his holster which was underneath a heavy leather coat. In the interval while unbottoning his coat to get his gun, the distance between him and the car widened. When he took up the chase a few minutes later, he was unable to overhaul them again.

Massingham reported the incident to his superiors and highway officers throughout the vicinity were given a description of the car. The officer believed that there were three occupants. Residents near Schomberg Junction reported that they heard the shots plainly.

Early Saturday morning a car of the description furnished by Massingham was seen near Brampton, but it sped away before officers could get close. Inspector Hunter of Toronto is in charge of the investigation into the shooting.

745 Bottles Homebrew Captured In Raid On Tobacco Farm Where Still Is Found

ST. THOMAS, September 8 C.P.). — The largest beer seizure in recent years in the district, made on Saturday night, is reported by Provincial Police after a visit to the tobacco farm of Jack Neve, near Richmond, in Bayham Township. It included, according to the officers, 745 bottles of home-brew, two ten-gallon crocks of brewing materials, two ten-gallon copper boilers filled with brew mash, 52 bottles of Government Control beer, and empty bottles, glasses, and bottle openers. Constable Sherville reported that Neve's liquor permit showed purchases of about 600 bottles of beer in the last six weeks, as well as some whisky.

A GILSON FORCED DRAFT SYSTEM WILL SAVE YOU 40 to 60% on FUEL COSTS

A SILENT, efficient automatic equipment easily and quickly attached to any style of furnace. Not only supplies sufficient draft to burn Buckwheat Anthracite and other small grained coal, but gives you 100% service in economy and heating value.

You get 2,000 lbs. in a ton of buckwheat anthracite—identically the same coal as the larger sizes, equal in every way in heating qualities, and at about $8 a ton, compared to $15.50 for the larger sizes. Sufficient air forced through the grates will burn Buckwheat Anthracite and give you a more even, intense fire than you can get from any grade of coal; and you save 40 to 60% in costs.

Automatic control of heat and regulation of draft. The automatic Thermostat located in the hall, dining-room or kitchen permits you to regulate your heat supply with the minimum of attention to the furnace. A silent, alert fireman that saves you money and gives you the exact amount of heat you require.

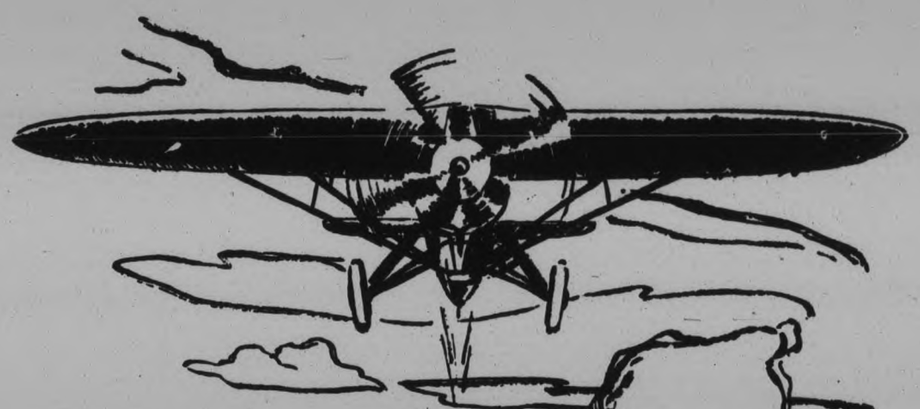
FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTANT ENTERPRISE



THE POSTMAN OF THE SKIES

Hurtling through space at a 100 miles an hour, the "mailman" who left his home this morning may lunch hundreds of miles away at noon. His job is to deliver the mail safely and on time.

Today Canada's air-mail ranks second in reliability to that of no other country. And now, through governmental foresight and enterprise, a complete trans-Canada air service is being planned.

Since pioneer days, Imperial has been providing oils and gasolines for every aviation need. To promote increased convenience and security, supplies of Imperial Gasolines and Marvelube Oils have been established at hundreds of strategic points—in Arctic caches for Northern fliers—in city air-ports—in remote seaplane bases far from the haunts of men.

This effort is but one of the many transportation services that Imperial has developed through fifty years of constant enterprise. It is one of the reasons why Imperial has become a great company—with thousands of dealers—1900 branch warehouses—unrivalled research facilities—a fleet of oil tankers—petroleum resources in Canada, Peru and Colombia.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

The success of one of Peterborough's native sons is widely heralded abroad in a recent issue of The Commercial Tribune of Cincinnati. In the "Progress section" of this issue, under the caption, "Cincinnati Goes Forward" is noted the outstanding achievements of Mr. Bolton Armstrong of that city, as president of the Mabley and Carew Company, department store owners of Cincinnati. Mr. Armstrong was born in this city, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Armstrong, pioneer residents of Peterborough. He visited here last year on the occasion of Old Home Week. He has a brother connected with Barrie's Limited, in Regina. Two sisters live in Peterborough: Mrs. C. Hunter of Stewart street and Mrs. Alex Lang of the Provincial Highway; also, two nieces, Mrs. Roland Merrill of Stewart street and Mrs. P. Allison of Weller street. The Mabley and Carew Company, of which Mr. Armstrong is president, is just moving into the first five floors of the Carew Tower in Cincinnati. The Tribune remarks: "When the Mabley and Carew Company is established in their new home it will mark the biggest forward step which this well-known concern has taken during its fifty-four years of existence. It will place the concern in the very front rank of department stores in this section of the Middle West and establish it as a growing concern with a bright future. The new home of the Mabley and Carew Company will give it more than 60,000 additional feet of floor space. Preparations for the establishment of the company in their new home in the first five floors of this gigantic construction are moving forward under the capable leadership of Bolton Armstrong, president of the company." The Carew Tower represents an investment of $33,000,000.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

A FEW DAYS AGO we discussed quilting, and continuing the subject let us discuss quilting stitches in variety and how to do them.

• • • • • • •

Let us first consider the running stitch. In its perfection, the strands taken up are identical in number with those beween stitches, making the line of stitchery geometrically precise.

• • • • • • •

But in this age and generation no quilter would consider such perfection, nor is it necessary. The stitches should be approximately the same on both sides of the work.

• • • • • • •

As every woman who would make a quilt is familiar with this stitch, it is futile to go more into detail

• • • • • • •

Should one want to make a baby carriage robe or a spread for a crib, and wants to do it particularly fine, she can follow the stitchery sometimes employed by the ancients and embroider in chain stitch taken on the wrong side.

• • • • • • •

In taking a succeeding stitch the needle is always put through the same final hole made by the preceding stitch. In this way there is an unbroken outline of stitchery on the right side of the work.

• • • • • • •

So particular were the old-time embroiderers that this chain stitch quilting stands as the most exquisite ever done. It is beautiful on both sides.

• • • • • • •

Another old method of quilting followed by the Persians is known as corded quilting. It is not applicable to the sturdy coverlets of early Colonial days, or to modern quilts, but lends itself to quilted bags, cushion tops and delicate needlecraft.

• • • • • • •

In this work two lines of running stitches are taken along the contour of a dsign. There must be sufficient space left between these double parallel lines to run a threaded bodkin through the narrow tubing they form.

• • • • • • •

When the design is so run, use a brilliant colored worsted to thread the bodkin, insert the needle through the goods on the wrong side and run it through the tubing.

• • • • • • •

Follow the line started to its finish. Leave a short end of the worsted protruding at start and finish and catch each with a few stitches on the wrong side without letting them show on the right.

• • • • • • •

Then cut the ends close to the work and poke any tip ends into the tubing to make them invisible.

• • • • • • •

The idea of this corded quilting may be to supply a heavy corded effect to the stitchery, or it may be to combine this effect with color work.

• • • • • • •

The Trailing Vine quiltin gpattern given recently is as well adapted to corded quilting as to plain. For a bold outline run the second line of stitchery outside the lines of the design.

• • • • • • •

For small articles requiring delicate work, run the second line inside the pattern outline.

TORONTO YOUTH COMPLETES TRIP

"Bobby" McCurdy Ends 1,400-Mile Canoe Hop From Toronto to Baltimore.

CRAFT BUILT IN CITY.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—The 1,400-mile lone canoe trip of "Bobby" McCurdy, 21-year-old Toronto sprinter, from Toronto to Baltimore, has been completed, according to a wire received at the home of his parents late yesterday afternoon. He paddled a tunnel-stern, cedar strip canoe constructed by the Peterborough Canoe Company in Peterborough.

McCurdy left Toronto unaccompanied in July, and after navigating the St. Lawrence River and shooting the rapids, followed a course through Lake Champlain. Last week he arrived at New York, where he was tendered a reception by sporting circles who awaited news of his passing.

His venture established a new record for a continuous canoe trip, and it is not impossible that later on he may return to Toronto in the same canoe.

WHOLESALE BUYING.

In Brantford police court the other day a woman and her son admitted purchasing 1,368 pints of beer and a quantity of spirits between April 7 and June 24, the total purchases amounting to $215.50.

That is the kind of thing that provides opponents of the Government sale of liquor with powerful arguments to the effect that the control element is not sufficiently exercised.

The quantity of alcoholic beverages this couple was allowed to buy, particularly in view of the fact that the son has been out of work since last March, was beyond all reason, and Sir Henry Drayton should have some pointed remarks to make to the vendor who permitted such wholesale purchasing.

The intent of the Liquor Control Act is supposed to be to prevent excessive buying, especially by people whose circumstances do not justify the extravagance of spending large sums on liquor.

If it is possible for two people, one of whom has been in the ranks of the unemployed for a long period, to purchase over 1,300 bottles of beer in ten weeks; it must be admitted that in that respect the Act is not functioning as it was supposed too, and the fault clearly rests with the vendor or vendors responsible for authorizing purchases on a huge scale.

There is no excuse for responsible officials permitting a condition like this to develop, a fact that the Liquor Control Board should call to the attention of its employees in language that cannot be misunderstood.

JAMES STEVENSON PARK.

A problem that will have to be tackled by the City Council before long is the arriving at of a definite policy in regard to James Stevenson Park, bought by the municipality years ago to be used as a civic park and athletic field, and now so far as plant and grounds are concerned rapidly degenerating.

Members of both the Belleville and Bell Telephone ball teams who remembered the park in its more prosperous days commented upon the uneven surface and the generally down-at-the-elbow appearance of the grounds on Saturday.

The fences are falling down, the stands need repairs and painting, and the playing field itself is each year becoming less fit for use.

There is no more picturesque athletic grounds in Ontario than the James Stevenson Park, the only enclosed playing field within the city limits, and it seems a pity that the passing years should find its usefulness steadily lessened and the whole property running to seed.

Many people believe that the investment of a few thousand dollars in converting James Stevenson Park into a modern athletic field, with decent accommodation for spectators and players, would be decidedly worth while.

Unfortunately, however, there are many more who are opposed to expenditure of that kind.

Between the two schools of opinion City Councils have been content to let the thing drift along, with the result that the grounds are now in worse condition than when privately owned and will soon be past the stage of usefulness.

MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSES.

Stratford, which opened a municipal golf links this year, has found what every other municipality embarking upon a similar enterprise has discovered, that providing facilities for its citizens to enjoy this popular recreation is a profitable enterprise.

The Classic City will have a revenue, it is announced, of $1,000 from the first year's operations of the municipal links, a course that is evidently far from perfect in view of the fact that the Stratford Beacon-Herald reports that only $500 was spent in putting the vacant land used in shape to play on.

Out of an initial expenditure of $500, the municipality receives $1,000, or two dollars for every one put in, which must be regarded as decidedly good business.

Now it is suggested that the revenue for the first year be turned back into the improvement of the grounds, and that the same policy be followed for a number of years, the reasonable argument being used that if the course in its present far from good condition can show a revenue of $1,000 the returns from a greatly improved links will show a corresponding increase.

There seems no question of the fact that municipal golf grounds are self-sustaining from the start; the game, once considered a rich man's pastime, has attained widespread popularity, and there are scores of new players waiting an opportunity to take up the game when facilities at a price within their means are available.

MORE TO SEE AND LESS TO SEE IT.

With the general admission charges for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition reduced by popular demand and with the program at the same time more crowded with unusual features than ever before, there is every reason to be hopeful in regard to the attendance figures.

It is generally agreed that in all departments this year's Exhibition will show an advance.

There will be a record showing of high quality live stock, the entries in other sections have been pouring in, special exhibits will exceed in number and merit the showing of other years, the amusement side has been carefully attended to with the result that a varied program of high-class features is assured, the horse racing will undoubtedly be the best in the history of the local Exhibition, and all in all the slogan, "More to see, less to see it," will be completely lived up to in every respect.

It remains for the people of this city and district to vindicate the confidence shown by the directors in boldly launching out into new features, while at the same time reducing the admission charges.

Obviously it will take a considerably larger attendance at the new prices to equal even last year's revenue, and just as obviously, it will be necessary to exceed the 1929 revenue if anything like a financial success is to be scored this week.

The Exhibition management has done its part, it has provided a better entertainment at a lower price, and it is now up to the public to show that the often-advanced argument that smaller admission charges would mean a record attendance and greater revenues was justified.

Visit the Exhibition as often as possible this week; you will find something new to entertain you at every visit.

CANADA'S AREA GROWS.

The area of most countries, unless loss or gain is experienced in war or by treaty, does not change, or at the most is altered imperceptibly by the recession or inroad of the restless sea, says the Brantford Expositor. But each year the area of Canada grows, as every fall the Government exploration parties pierce far into the Arctic, and bring back word, perhaps not until the following year, of newly mapped and charted coast lines, or hitherto unknown islands in Canada's vast northern archipelago. Of course, these lands have always been there, and all this side of the pole belongs to Canada, but they are of no use until they are explored, and to all intents and purposes the discoveries add to the area of our country.

Slowly and surely the barriers are being pushed back and the far north is being mastered. Each year intrepid men are not only recording the existence of hitherto entirely unknown land, but are discovering the amazing possibilities of lands previously charted as barren wastes, scarcely fit for the habitation of Eskimo. The aeroplane, of course, has been one of the main factors in this work. A remarkable yet typical trip is that now being undertaken to King William's Land by Major Burwash, who hopes to unravel the century-old mystery of the disappearance of the Franklin party. As sidelines, he will take a census along portions of the Arctic coast-line and aid in the prospecting being done on the Coppermine River.

No doubt it will be some time yet before the Arctic comes into its own. But every day it is becoming more apparent that the far north has a great future, and every new discovery, however trivial it may appear, will be an ultimate factor in the greatness of our country.
